Lock, Rev. Walter. John Keble: a biography; with a portrait from a painting by George Richmond. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. 5+245 p. D. (Religious leaders.) cl., $1.

It seems eminently fitting that Keble should be included in any list of modern leaders of religion. He shared largely in the great movement of sixty years ago, called the Oxford movement, in which Newman, Froude, Pusey and Maurice were so conspicuous. He influenced the course of religious thought and sentiment by his poems hardly less than by his activity as a clergyman, and "The Christian year" is still one of the most cherished volumes of religious poetry. And the fact that this year is the one hundredth anniversary of his birth makes the volume specially timely. The author, sub-warden of Keble College, Oxford, tells the story of his life and career with warm sympathy. Contains a list of his published writings.

Personal reminiscences, which include a description of a trip to Constantinople, with past memories and present impressions of Stamboul, and an account of the people who assist the writer in his search for Aziyade, an early love, whom Loti calls in his final chapter "A phantom from yonder."

Lyall, Sir Alfred. The rise of the British dominion in India. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. 13+288 p. D. cl., net, $1.50.

Not only gives a concise account of the rise of British dominion in India but also explains it by tracing rapidly the causes and convergent influences that brought about so remarkable a conclusion. A sketch is embraced of the preliminary events and predisposing conditions that attracted the maritime nations of Europe into the field of competition for predominance in India.

Macduff, J. R., D.D. The pillar in the night. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1898. 14+836 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Intended as a companion to the author's "Bow in the cloud." Like the latter, though purposely in a more extended shape, its pages are addressed to those in affliction. Contains thirty-one meditations.

McGarvey, J. W. New commentary on Acts of Apostles. Cin., O., The Standard Pub. Co., [1898.] c. '92. 2 v., 88+262; 2+298 p. map, D. cl., ea., $1.50.

The author's first commentary on Acts was published nearly thirty years ago; study and the research of many Biblical students have in these years placed so much new material in his hands that this work is much more than a new and improved edition of his first commentary; it is really new in everything except the form.

Maclaren, A., D.D. The Psalms. V. 1, Psalms, i.-xxxviii. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1898. 5+385 p. O. (Expositor's Bible, new [5th] ser.) cl., $1.50.

"A volume which appears in 'The Expositor's Bible,' should obviously, first of all, be expository. I have tried to conform to that requirement, and have therefore found it necessary to leave questions of date and authorship all but untouched. They could not be adequately discussed in conjunction with exposition. I venture to think that the deepest and most precious elements in the Psalms are very slightly affected by the answers to these questions, and that expository treatment of the bulk of the Psalter may be separated from critical, without condemning the former to incompleteness. If I have erred in thus restricting the scope of this volume, I have done so after due consideration. . . ."—Author's Preface.

Russell, H. Rutherford. Poor Lady Massey. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1892 [1893.] 8+212 p. D. (The independent novel ser.) cl., $1.

"Poor Lady Massey" is a mixture of intrigues and unrealities. Faithfully working to gain her daughter a fortune she betrays her true character and loses her daughter's love and respect. The English penniless younger sons play important parts; also English heirs that marry beneath them secretly. A pretty English country parish is the scene.

Russell, W. Clark. List, ye landmen! a romance of incident. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1898. c. '92. 5+408 p. D. cl., $1.

An old-fashioned sea story full of privateers, treasures, press-gangs, remarkable sea phenomena, sailors of all nationalities and scenes of love and fights in the years 1814 and 1815. In the course of plans to hide untold treasures the Black-Watch reaches Manhattan Island. The old privateersman stipulates that some of his treasure shall go to build a church, which gives the novelist an opening for some telling remarks on church and state.

Saint-Amand, Imbert de. The Duchess of Berry and the revolution of 1830; tr. by Eliz. Gilbert Martin. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. c. 5+331 p. por. D. (Famous women of the French court.) cl., $1.25.

With this volume we have the last of the three volumes devoted to the Duchess of Berry, in the "Famous Women of the French Court." Her brilliant career closes with the abdication and flight of Charles X. from St. Cloud, and the embarkation of the royal family at Cherbourg for England. The dramatic revolution by which Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans, reached the throne is forcibly described.

Sand, George, [pseud. for Mme. A. L. A. D. Dudevant.] Convent life of George Sand, (from L'Histoire de ma vie); [from the French,] by Maria Ellery MacKaye. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. tr. 10+219 p. por. S. cl., $1.

The period spent by George Sand while a girl in the English Augustinian Convent at Paris is very graphically described; the episode is taken from her "Memoirs." The translator gives a brief sketch of George Sand's life.

Savage, Rev. Minot J. Psychics: facts and theories. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1893. c. 5+153 p. por. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

For about fifteen years Mr. Savage has carefully and critically investigated psychical phenomena, evincing a spirit at once scientific and sympathetic. The results of his investigations originally appeared in The Arena and The Forum; these papers are now gathered together in the present volume. They are narratives of well-authenticated ghost stories and vivid portrayals of various psychical phenomena, with a closing chapter on the present state of psychical research.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 25, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereto."—LORD BACON.

"TREATING" CUSTOMERS.

At a gathering of a number of commercial travellers on "waiting orders," not very long ago, the question of "treating" customers came up and was discussed with the wit peculiar to the class the speakers represented. In the course of the general talk that ensued various means of evading the custom were related, and on a consensus it was found that though the majority was opposed to the custom, only five claimed that they tabooed the practice altogether—and there were more than twenty present. From this showing it would appear that the absurd custom is still far more prevalent than it is generally supposed to be.

Desirous of obtaining more definite knowledge of the subject, we found that though the better men as a rule did not favor the custom, they claimed that they are to a certain extent forced into it by others. There are many customers, they say, who look for attentions from the visiting salesmen, and who refuse entirely to talk business until they have been feasted, either with drinks, a dinner or a "show" of some kind, and that so long as other representatives indulge such customers they must sink their convictions and follow suit or lose the business.

We suppose there is some truth in this, and that so long as such a state of things exists among buyers the merchants will defer to it—and charge for it accordingly. That seems to be a point which has been overlooked by the buyer quite as much as until very recently it has been by the "drummer." A merchant certainly bases his prices on the cost of manufacture and the expense of getting his goods before the customer. The salaries of his travelling men average a certain amount and their expenses a certain amount. The sum total of these two items figures in the merchant's accounts as his "drummer's" wages, and he will not entertain raising his salary unless the item of expense is reduced or the amount of business raised considerably above the average reached at last arrangement; and so the traveller has awakened to the fact that he is not drinking "on the house," and getting his "extras" and the "hat" that is so cleverly worked into the bill that the firm can't "see it," at the firm's expense, but at his own—in other words, that he is throwing away hundreds of dollars a year that he might, by close economy, put into his own pocket in the way of increased salary.

The buyer, too, will learn in time, if he has not already had an inkling of it, that aside from the sentimental point of view the habit is demoralizing, unbusiness-like and costly. Costly because he is called upon indirectly to bear his share of the large and unnecessary expenses of the commercial traveller. Not only that, but he will find that by buying goods strictly on their merits and without reference to a personal feeling for the "drummer" he will buy better, because he will order only what he actually needs or what is better suited to his purposes than other goods offered.

We therefore appeal to the buyers, as the class most affected by this practice, to combine against it. They must be the gainers in the end, financially as well as morally.

"THE EVENING POST'S" LIBEL SUIT.

ON February 17 a verdict was given for the defendant in the suit for libel brought against The Evening Post by Dr. Isaac K. Funk, of Funk & Wagnalls. The suit which is concluded by The Post's victory has been running for over two years. It resulted from criticisms which appeared in The Evening Post, in which Funk & Wagnalls' action in reproducing the "Encyclopædia Britannica," which was protected by a foreign copyright, was characterized as "piracy" and "theft." The damages claimed were $100,000.

The defence was based upon "the right of a reformer engaged in a public controversy to use the strongest language afforded by the dictionary in criticising, without individual malice, an adversary." According to the counsel for the defence, "the promotion of a correct public sentiment as to the right of property in published ideas, connected with the agitation for the passage of the International Copyright law, justified and compelled the use of strong and harsh—as it might seem to some—terms."

An interesting event of the trial was the citing of a number of publishers to define certain questions of trade custom. Charles A. Clapp, of E. P. Dutton & Co., testified that he had been in the publishing trade for thirty years, and that during that time and down to 1891 the rule was that when an American firm secured the American market for the work of a foreign author from the legitimate foreign publishers, others in the trade respected his rights. In 1880 his firm had bought the rights in Canon Farrar's "Life of Christ" from Cassell & Co., who paid Farrar $10,000 to write the book, and secured all rights in the work. E. P. Dutton & Co. handled this book for several years, and then, in pursuance of a similar arrangement with the English firm, they spent a large sum of money in advertising the same author's "Life of St. Paul." Being informed that Funk & Wagnalls were about to get out a cheap edition of the same book, Mr. Clapp went to Dr. Funk and remonstrated, saying that others had abandoned a like plan on learning of Dutton & Co.'s arrangement. Dr. Funk said that the law would allow it and refused to abandon his plan. In consequence, E. P. Dutton & Co. had to make new plates and get out a new edition, and lost a considerable sum of money. Farrar's works had not been reprinted before Funk & Wagnalls took hold of them, and John B. Alden abandoned his intentions in that direction on being informed of E. P. Dutton & Company's rights.

Charles Scribner testified as to the rights of his firm in the Black edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" and the sale by Funk & Wagnalls of the Allen reprinted edition.

Charles E. Merrill testified that by arrangement with Ruskin's London publisher he was Ruskin's authorized publisher in this country, and as such published "Time and Tide," which, as he had been informed, Funk & Wagnalls reprinted.

Mr. Holt testified that in the trade the words "pirate" and "thief" are freely applied to those who reprint books already equitably in the hands of other publishers, and that the effect of such reprinting by Dr. Funk was "not favorable" to his reputation in the trade.

The principal points in his cross-examination were as follows:

Question. What is the courtesy of the trade?

Answer. Not to jump another publisher's claim.

Q. How?

A. By reprinting a book already his.

Q. How is such a claim established?

A. First by arrangement with the author or his representative. In the absence of such arrangement, by first announcement of the intention to publish.

Q. How long have these claims been acknowledged?

A. Forty or fifty years I presume. I found the system in operation when I entered the trade thirty years ago.

Q. Is not the observance of trade courtesy confined to a few houses who form a sort of trust?

A. Not at all. There is no close corporation about it; anybody is welcome who will behave himself.

Q. But as a matter of fact is it not restricted to a few influential and well-established houses?

A. By no means. I was not very "influential" or "well established" thirty years ago (and may not be now for that matter), but I never had any trouble in getting my rights respected while I respected the rights of other people. The Harpers and Appletons and others of the heaviest houses in the trade have readily given up books to which I had the prior claim.

Q. Under the courtesy of the trade has not the person who first reprints an author's book here a right to all his subsequent books?

A. Yes, if he paid for the first one.

Q. That's an exception then to the "first announcement" rule?

A. Yes; nearly all the rules have exceptions. I could give you exceptions to that exception, and farther exceptions to those exceptions. Trade courtesy is as full of exceptions as the law itself. It has grown up as a mass of decisions in particular cases, just as the common law has. But nevertheless the general principles hold in most cases.

Q. How long has it been held that payment for the first book was essential to establishing a right to later ones?

A. I first heard of it about five years ago, I think. Probably about that time it was agreed in some dispute that a publisher ready to pay an author had a right as against a publisher who had never paid him. I remember that when I first heard of it I thought we were getting ahead.

Q. Why should there be any questions regarding rights from "first announcement?" Why should there not always be an arrangement with the author?

A. There generally has been with established authors. But there are many books by new and uncertain authors that are not worth negotiating for—especially under the disadvantages of the distance to Europe. Such books are a field for experiment, and if a publisher concluded that one was worth experimenting with, though not worth paying for in advance of experiment, the rights from first announcement were intended to secure him the fruits of his experiment, if successful. But of late years there has grown up a set of publishers who let others do the experimenting and pay for the failures, and then steal the successes.

Q. But are not books cheaper since some publishers have disregarded the courtesy of the trade? Before that were not novels ordinarily sold in cloth at about a dollar and a half?

A. By no means. I published hundreds at a dollar, and many in paper at fifty cents, and the Harper's Brown Paper Series had been published from time immemorial at twenty-five.

Q. But how about standard books, scientific books—such books as are in Funk & Wagnalls' Standard Series? You're acquainted with it, I suppose?

A. I am not.

Q. Well, answer my question, please, as to such books in general.

A. I am not competent to. I am not a general dealer. [Mr. Putnam testified later that fifty years ago his father published a standard series in cloth at seventy-five cents.]

George Haven Putnam testified to the same effect. He said that the words "pirate" and "piracy" have been applied to appropriations of works of foreign authors, and were used by authors like Lowell and Stedman as well as publishers.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Lawrence referred to the provision in the Constitution of this State that every person may freely speak and write his views on all subjects, and be responsible for the abuse of that right. He read standard definitions of libel, and said that two defences were allowable in such an action, one the truth of the libel and the other circumstances justifying the publications. It was his duty to charge that when an article is prima facie libellous the motives which lead to its publication are not a defence, though they might be introduced in mitigation of the damages to be awarded.

He left it to the jury to say whether, although the words complained of were used in their natural and usual meanings, there was any malice on the part of the defendant. Although English words are to be taken when spoken or written in their ordinary sense, he would leave it to the jury to say whether the words complained of were used in a special sense. If the jury should come to that conclusion they might bring in a verdict for nominal damages. If they should come to the conclusion that the words were maliciously used they should give the plaintiff the damages they thought he had suffered. While expressing no opinion himself, the judge charged that although there is no technical law, it was a question left with the jury whether the fact that the plaintiff had availed himself of a strict legal right divested the defendant of his right of criticizing.

On the whole case he charged "that if the jury found that articles complained of were maliciously written and not from the high public motive assumed by the defendant, they must give the plaintiff a verdict for the mental suffering sustained by him, but not any pecuniary damage which his firm might have sustained for which he had not sued. If they should come to the conclusion that the terms complained of were not used in the natural and ordinary sense, and that the defendant indulged in a just criticism, a verdict for nominal damages must be given."

The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant.

BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of the association was held on the evening of February 15, and the following new members were elected:

The association, which is rapidly increasing in membership, has for nearly five years paid one thousand dollars to the heirs of deceased members. The entrance fee is low and the cost after becoming a member is to pay into the treasury the sum of $1.10 whenever any member dies, within thirty days after receiving notice of death.

Particulars in regard to the association, together with application blanks, constitution and by-laws, can be obtained by addressing the secretary, Mr. Wilbur B. Ketcham, 2 Cooper Union, New York.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WE have received some further particulars of the life of T. W. Lawrence, the well-known book-dealer, whose death on February 15 has already been noted in these columns. Mr. Lawrence, who was born Sept. 16, 1828, made his first entrance into business life in 1843, when he was for a year a clerk in a dry-goods store in Catherine St., New York. He left there to apprentice himself to a bookbinder in Gold Street. He learned his trade thoroughly and in 1852 went to work in Albany as a finisher, where in 1854 he married Elizabeth Clark, of Peekskill, N. Y. Returning to New York he entered the employ of L. S. Ballou, 15 Spruce Street, with whom he had formerly been connected, and made his home in Brooklyn. In 1858 he left Ballou to work for C. Hughes, 102 Centre Street, whom he left in 1866 to act as clerk in Charles Miller's book-store, 76 Nassau Street. In 1867 he started in business for himself at 60 Nassau Street, dealing in rare old books and engravings. In 1874 he began that branch of business in which he became famous—the inlaying of prints for private illustration. In this work he ranked as one of the three American inlayers whose skill is considered far superior to that of their English or French rivals. His death will not materially affect his business, which is to be continued by his son, Charles H. Lawrence, who has been connected with it for nearly ten years.

THOMAS WHITE DELAND, who died in Boston on the 9th inst., was a member of the firm of Little, Brown & Co. Nothing can be learned of his birth or early career until the fifties, when he is remembered as a book-keeper in the publishing house of J. P. Jewett & Co. About 1860, possibly before, he became assistant bookkeeper for Little, Brown & Co., and in 1868 he was admitted to the firm. Though every one knew and loved him for his uniform warm-hearted and genial manner no one, not even his associates and partners, seemed able to penetrate his reserve, and he rarely overcame his disinclination to talk about himself or his past. He was a member of the Union and one or two other clubs but never took prominent part. He was always at his desk and never lost a day through sickness until the "grippe" became epidemic. He suffered considerably from that disease and to the effects of it his death may be traced. His funeral was largely attended by members of the trade.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE March number of Mr. Eugene L. Didier's illustrated family magazine, Success, contains a sketch and portrait of Amélie Rives, "Our National Song" (The Star Spangled Banner) with portrait of its author, Francis Scott Key, and other equally interesting matter.

THE editors of Town Topics invite a new contest for prize stories of from 40,000 to 45,000 words in length, for which the following prizes will be awarded: $1000 for the first; $300 for the second; $200 for the third. The winners of the second and third prizes will have the privilege of withdrawing their stories if they do not care to accept the moneys named. The story taking the first prize will be printed with the name of the author in the great summer number of Tales from Town Topics, No 8, to be published June 1. Contestants must have their manuscripts in by April 20 at latest.

HENRY M. STANLEY, the distinguished African explorer, contributes to the March number of Harper's Magazine an important article on "Slavery and the Slave Trade in Africa." This article embraces a brief history of England's connection with the slave trade, an account of the enormities perpetrated by the Arab slavers, and a review of what has been done by the European powers for the suppression of the traffic, besides many entertaining details with reference to African discovery and colonization. It is accompanied by a number of striking illustrations from drawings by Frederic Remington. Theodore Child's last contribution to Harper's Magazine also appears in the March number of that periodical, and is a graphic description of the famous palace and monastery of the Escorial, "the eighth wonder of the world," built by Philip the Second of Spain. The article is fully illustrated, and gives some striking glimpses of the history of one of the most important and romantic periods in Spanish history.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTA, GA.—A temporary receiver has been appointed for Bolles & Bruckner, booksellers and stationers. A hearing as to the appointment of a permanent receiver will be held on March 11. The firm's liabilities are said to be $10,000 or $12,000, and its assets $25,000. The cause of the failure is said to be slow collections and a pressing for settlement on the part of some creditors.

COMPTON, CAL.—Robert Harris has succeeded to the book and stationery business of Geo. H. Marsden.

DENVER, COL.—At the annual meeting of the Chain & Hardy Book, Stationery and Art Co., the following officers were chosen: President, S. B. Hardy; vice-president and general manager, J. W. Bowman; secretary and treasurer, I. M. Low. The death of Mr. Chain has not interfered with the affairs of the company, and the business will be conducted upon the same lines as formerly.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Herbert L. Mathews, the well-known bookseller and newsdealer, 813 Wyandotte St., recently won $7,500 as a prize in a lottery. He came to Kansas City in 1877 on foot from the West, where he had been working on the Santa Fé extension. According to his own story, his earthly possessions consisted of a pair of overalls, a blue shirt and a little lunch done up in a red bandanna handkerchief. He had a few cents in his pocket, from which he accumulated a stock of books. He purchased newspapers and for several years was a familiar character on the streets. He found employment with the Dickinson book-store on Main Street in 1882, and remained with them seven years, when his enterprise prompted him to resign and begin business for himself. He began with about 100 books, and continued to prosper until his patronage demanded the store he now maintains. He proposes to enlarge his store and to considerably increase his stock.

NEW YORK CITY.—S. S. McClure has removed to 743-745 Broadway.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—The deed of trust given to Steven C. Woodson by Henry Brill, bookseller and stationer, provides for payments as follows: Saxton National Bank, $24 165.61; Fred. E. Ernst, $1300; Jacob Brill, $1000; Mrs. Dora Brill, $4700.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—J. S. Barr & Co., Springfield, O., booksellers, have sold out to Sterling & Theodore Carson.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

PUTTKAMMER & MÜHLBRECHT, Berlin, have issued a second revised and enlarged edition of their "Wegweiser durch die Neuere Literatur der Rechts- und Staatswissenschaften" ("Guide to the Modern Literature of Legal and Political Science"), edited by Otto Mühlbrecht. This catalogue is based upon practical study for a quarter of a century of the bibliographical helps of all nations used during the editor's business career. The volume contains about 34,000 titles, which appear in the index under about 48,000 entries, covering the literature of its subjects in Germany, Austro-Hungary, Switzerland, France, Belgium, England, North America, Italy, Spain, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. The editor has carefully studied the trade papers and encyclopædias during the past twenty-five years, since the appearance of the first edition, and included all the important titles that have appeared regularly in his Allgemeine Bibliographie der Staats- und Rechtswissenschaften, in which periodical he aims at completeness. The arrangement of the catalogue has been made with special reference to the needs of libraries and booksellers. Most of the titles are entered under author, catch-word and locality, all included in one alphabet, a method specially practical when dealing with the publications of societies and organizations, usually so scattered in ordinary catalogues. Mr. Mühlbrecht's knowledge of the practical difficulties to be faced by the bookseller in hunting up incomplete titles specially fits him for his editorial work. (28+764 p. 8°, cl., 28 marks.)

THE introductory portion of Professor Terrien de Lacouperie's "Catalogue of Chinese Coins" in the British Museum has been issued. The coins cover a period of nearly 1300 years, from B.C. 665 to A.D. 621; that is to say, from the introduction of coinage in China to that of the standard copper coin which remained in force for centuries after. The following are the heads of the subjects treated of in this valuable publication: Numismatic chronology of ancient China; glossary of Chinese numismatic terms; synopsis of shapes of currency; history of the making of coins; coin legends; weights and measures; list of mintages and other names on coins; and bibliography.

Notes and Queries in its issue for January 28 completed its contributions to a bibliography of Mr. Gladstone, extending from 1827 to 1892. Endeavor has been made to render this as complete as possible, and it is believed to be so, with the exception of Mr. Gladstone's anonymous contributions to the Quarterly and Contemporary reviews. These can only be revealed by express permission.

PROF. THEODORE AUFRECHT, of Bonn, who compiled a catalogue of the Sanskrit MSS. in the Bodleian as long ago as 1864, has now offered to catalogue the Sanskrit MSS. in the University Library at Cambridge. He proposes to reside in Cambridge for the purpose.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE dictionary commission of the French Academy has recommended the suppression of the circumflex, leaving only two accents, the acute and the grave.

HODDER & STOUGHTON, publishers of The Bookman, have in press "The Bookman Directory of Booksellers, Publishers, Authors, etc.," a much-needed book.

MISS MARIE CORELLI's works have been translated into Swedish and published. Her admirers among the Scandinavians seem to be numerous, as the editions of some of her works, especially of "Thelma," were speedily exhausted.

THE NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS' AND NEWSDEALERS' ASSOCIATION will probably meet this year in Chicago instead of Minneapolis. The majority of the members seem to be in favor of holding the meeting there either in July or August.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS Co. have in preparation a new series of books for summer reading to be entitled Breezy Library Series. The first volume, to be ready May 1, will be "Merely Mary Ann," by I. Zangwill, who is well known for his "Children of the Ghetto," and other novels.

NOVELLO & Co. will shortly issue a series of thirty Irish melodies from the "Peirle Collection," which will be quite new to lovers of folk-music. The lyrics have been written, with a couple of exceptions, by Mr. A. Perceval Graves, and the airs have been arranged by Prof. Stanford.

THE WAVERLY COMPANY announce a new fifty-cent edition of H. Rider Haggard's "Nada the Lily" on fine paper, with reproductions from the original illustrations that appeared in the Illustrated London News. They also announce for publication on February 28 Paul Bourget's novel, "The Son," in cloth and paper.

MOSES KING, Boston, calls attention to the fact that the entry of the second edition of "Handbook of New York City" in the Weekly Record of new books in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for February 18 was premature. The second edition will not be ready until next summer and will be considerably larger than the first edition, issued last November, and of which it is claimed 10,000 copies have been sold.

THE BÖRSENVEREIN has just ready the 15th part of its "Archiv für Geschichte des deutschen Buchhandels," containing a report to the historical committee of the Börsenverein, by Hermann Meyer, whose recent untimely death is deeply regretted; and two monographs, one on Stephan Roth, of Zwickau, by Dr. G. Buchwald, and one on Ernst Vögellin, of Leipzig, by Albrecht Kirchhoff.

A BOOKSELLER'S CALENDAR (Bestell-Kalender für Buchhändler) for 1893 has just been issued by the Versandt Bureau, W. Fiedler, of Leipzig. The calendar is of practical use only to the German bookseller, and for him contains much valuable and interesting matter. The calendar, for instance, is a daily reminder of the books the bookseller should keep in stock at certain months of the year and offers an order blank on each leaf.

THE ROWFANT CLUB, of Cleveland, O., an association of book-lovers of which Paul Temperly is librarian, has nearly ready its first publication. It is to be "The Culpit Fay, and other poems," by Joseph Rodman Drake, reprinted from the edition of 1835. It will contain 20 small vignette illustrations in the text and an etching on the title-page, all by Mr. E. H. Garrett, together with a portrait of the author. The edition will consist of 95 copies on hand-made paper, and 5 on Japan paper, all numbered.

THE next volume of the Book-Lovers' Library will be entitled "Literary Blunders: a chapter in the history of human error," by H. B. Wheatley, the editor of the series. The history of "literary blunders" is a wide subject, and necessarily covers many centuries and countries. Mr. Wheatley has here brought together an interesting collection of instances of literary blundering, gleaned from many fields and different times. The book will be published early in March by Elliot Stock, of London, and by A. C. Armstrong & Son, New York.

J. M. DENT & Co. have just concluded arrangements with Smith, Elder & Co. for acquiring rights to issue a complete edition of the novels of the sisters Brontë, similar in style to their previous issue of Jane Austen. The set will make twelve volumes, and the first two, containing "Jane Eyre," are expected in March, other two volumes to follow each month. A series of thirty-six drawings is being made by Mr. H. S. Greig, which will be reproduced in photogravure, besides which there will be specially designed title-page and ornaments by Mr. F. C. Tilney, and portraits of the authors. The same firm are about to publish in similar style an edition of Mackenzie's "Man of Feeling."

THE discovery of a book, or rather of linen sheets, in the Etruscan language, an undeciphered tongue, has been lately made by Prof. Krall, of Vienna. Forty years ago a mummy was brought from Egypt by an Austrian traveller. It was wrapped with linen bands, which Brugsch Pasha thought to be inscribed with Ethiopic characters, and Sir Richard Burton thought was Nabathean. A few known words in the Etrurian text have enabled Prof. Krall to identify the manuscript as Etruscan. Etruria was the home of augury, the great Etruscan work on divination being in twelve books. Hardly anything is known of the origin of the people, but Prof. Sayce thinks that it cannot be long before the mysteries of this manuscript are revealed and another page of history laid bare.

GINN & Co. will shortly publish "The Life and Writings of George Gascoigne," by Felix E. Schelling, professor of English literature in the University of Pennsylvania. The monograph belongs to the series of Publications of the University of Pennsylvania in Philology, Literature and Archaeology, and contains an appendix giving several of Gascoigne's poems contained in the first edition of 1572 and not hitherto reprinted. Prof. Schelling will treat of Gascoigne's position as the most important literary figure between Surrey and Spenser, and of his connection with the many famous people of his day, from Queen Elizabeth and William the Silent to Raleigh and Gilbert. It will be followed by a monograph on "The Temples and Other Building Operations of Nebuchadnezzar II., King of Babylon," by Prof. Morris Jastrow.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

MARCH 1, 2, 3 P.M.—Biblical, classical, critical, oriental, etc.; literature. (652 lots.)—Bangs.

MARCH 3, 3 P.M.—Americana and general literature. (375 lots.)—Bangs.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

✱	BY THE AUTHOR OF "Not on Calvary."	✱

It promises to be the most popular Religious Book of the Day, because it helps to solve some of the gravest problems of human existence, and that by an appeal to the most legitimate sources of authority. Most lay students of the Christian religion can spare only odd half hours for study. Such will welcome this little book that, in a few pages, gives a clear impression of the Martyrs and Fathers, their teachings and their modes of thought, in the first one thousand years of the Christian Era.

Handsomely bound in white, blue and gold, 50 cents.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

General Jackson.

By JAMES PARTON. The third volume in the Great Commander Series, edited by Gen. James Grant Wilson. With portrait and maps. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.50.

The last literary work of James Parton, completed just before his death, was the preparation of this volume. It is a model miniature biography, possessing throughout all the interest of a romance.

An Atlas of Astronomy.

By Sir ROBERT S. BALL, F.R.S., Professor of Astronomy and Geometry at the University of Cambridge, author of "Starland," "The Cause of an Ice Age," etc. With 72 plates, explanatory text and complete index. Small 4to, cloth, $4.00.

"The high reputation of Sir Robert Ball as a writer on astronomy at once popular and scientific, is in itself a more than sufficient recommendation of his newly published 'Atlas of Astronomy.' The plates are clear and well arranged, and those of them which represent the more striking aspects of the more important heavenly bodies are very beautifully executed. The introduction is written with Sir Robert Ball's well-known lucidity and simplicity of exposition, and altogether the Atlas is admirably adapted to meet the needs and smooth the difficulties of young and inexperienced students of astronomy, as well as materially to assist the researches of those that are more advanced."—London Times.

New Revised Edition of Lecky's England and Ireland.

A History of England in the Eighteenth Century.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY. Cabinet Edition, seven vols., 12mo, cloth, $7.00.

The Diary of an Idle Woman in Constantinople.

By FRANCES ELLIOT, author of "The Diary of an Idle Woman in Sielly," "The Italians," etc. With plan and illustrations. Crown 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

"Those who love the romance of history better than its dry facts will probably find 'The Diary of an Idle Woman in Constantinople' a book to their taste. The author has rebuilt and reaped the romantic scenes of this essentially Eastern city, gathering her information largely from Gibbon, Von Hammer and similar writers, and remoulding its shape according to her own ideas of what is most interesting. Thus details of dynasties and statistics are thrown aside, and she dwells on the beauties, natural and human, of a long line of favorite Sultans, and of Byzantium of old and the Golden Horn to-day. The author gives us material very much more difficult of access in the ordinary way."—London Literary World.

Dr. Paull's Theory.

By Mrs. A. M. DIEHL, author of "The Garden of Eden," etc. No. 112, Town and Country Library. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"Dr. Paull's Theory" will be found to be a romance altogether out of the common. In this striking book the author has treated a novel theme in a manner which enchains the reader's interest.

A History of Ireland in the Eighteenth Century.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY. Cabinet Edition, five vols., 12mo, cloth, $5.00.

The "History of Ireland" was formerly included in the eight-volume edition of the "History of England." By a rearrangement and revision of the contents the two histories now appear separately as above, each complete in itself, but bound uniformly.

The well-known high character of this standard work needs no fresh commendation.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 1, 3 and 5 Bond St., N. Y.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish shortly a volume made from Mr. Horatio Bridges' recollections of Hawthorne, which originally appeared in Harper's Magazine. New portraits will add a special interest to the book.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready "The Statesman's Year-Book" for 1893, edited by J. Scott Keltie, which for thirty years has sustained the reputation of being the best work of its kind, useful alike to the writer and statesman.

PORTER & COATES will publish on March 6 two books for boys: "Facing the World, or, the haps and mishaps of Harry Vane," by Horatio Alger, Jr., and "Two Ways of Becoming a Hunter," by Harry Castlemon. They will be issued in uniform bindings.

THOMAS WHITTAKER announces "Christ and Modern Unbelief," the Rev. Randolph H. McKim's new book, which will appear this week; also, "Comments at the Cross," a series of sermons on the remarks made by those who witnessed the Crucifixion, by the Rev. Cameron Mann, of Kansas City, Mo.

BENJ. R. TUCKER, New York, will publish early in March a volume with the unique title: "Instead of a Book: by a man too busy to write one." The work will consist of a classified collection of Mr. Tucker's own writings for his weekly paper, Liberty, and is intended to serve as a text-book of philosophical anarchism. It will contain as a frontispiece a portrait of the author.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation "Wagner and His Works," by Henry T. Finck, in two volumes, with portraits; "Art Out of Doors: a book of hints," by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer; "How to Know the Wild Flowers," by Mrs. William Starr Dana, with 100 illustrations by Marion Satterlee; and "Homes in Town and Country," by Russell Sturgis, the late John W. Root, of Chicago, Bruce Price, Donald G. Mitchell, Samuel Parsons, Jr., and W. A. Linn.

TAIT, SONS & Co. have just ready three new novels: "Loaded Dice," by Edgar Fawcett, a story dealing with phases of Continental life, described with this clever writer's never-failing skill; "Christine," a strong novel by Adeline Sergeant, describing a young girl's experiences in Egypt; and "Wrostell's Weir," a bright love-tale by Helen Mathers, "Wrostell" being a dreary old castle set in the heart of an Irish bog, where the young heir to the estate is compelled to pass four months of each year. The consequences of his first visit are brightly told.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have lately published a third revised and corrected three-volume edition of the "Life of Benjamin Franklin, written by himself." John Bigelow is the editor, and he has gathered from the Stevens collection, from Franklin's letters to his friend Strahan, and from other sources new and interesting information never before published. They have ready also a new edition of "Our Own Birds," a short and interesting natural history of the birds of the United States, revised and edited by Edward J. Cope, a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences. They announce as the next number in their series of Select Novels a story by Rosa Nouchette Carey, entitled "But Men Must Work."

CASSELL & Co. are about to bring out a new edition of Mrs. Helen Mathers' clever book, "One Summer in Hawaii." The present state of affairs in Hawaii and the awakening of general interest in the Sandwich Islands lend special interest to this entertaining account of the people, manners, customs and natural resources of the island. Dr. J. W. Lee's book, "The Making of a Man," recently published by this firm, is now being translated into Japanese, and a large number of English copies of the book have been ordered for circulation among the English-reading Japanese. The work of translation is being done at the instigation of American missionaries in Japan, who say that the book is particularly well adapted to the cultivated Japanese mind, to which the physical, moral and intellectual development of man is an absorbing subject.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Lewis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: P. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); O. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (8mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fr. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obli., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Bornhak, Conrad. Local government of country communities in Prussia. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1893.] 16 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 78.) pap., 15 c.

Two important laws for the administration of country communities have been lately passed in Prussia. In 1891 an act for the government of country communities in the provinces of eastern and western Prussia, Brandenburg, Pomerania, Silesia, Posen and Saxony, went into force, and in the following year it was extended with like modifications to the province of Schleswig-Holstein. The importance of these acts is not to be underrated, for they put an end to the last remains of the feudal system in Prussia. This paper briefly examines the character of these reforms, both from a political and an historical point of view.

ber, 1889, was the inciting cause of this volume, the author having been sent out by the New York Tribune, of which he is foreign editor, to observe and report upon the condition of things in Brazil at that time. He remained nine months in South America and Central America and also visited Mexico and Cuba. His work presents besides graphic pictures of travel an extended study, rich in facts and entertaining in style, of the social, political and commercial conditions of the people of these countries and of their relations with the United States.

Garland, Hamlin. Prairie folks. Chic., F. J. Schulte & Co., 1893. c. '92. 5-255 p. D. (The Ariel lib., no. 25.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Pioneer life on the western prairies is portrayed in nine stories told in a vein at once humorous and pathetic. These are entitled: Uncle Ethan's speculation; The test of Elder Pill; William Bacon's hired man; Sim Burn's wife; Saturday night on the farm; Village cronies; Drifting Crane; Old Daddy Derring; The sociable at Dudley's.

*Green, Mrs. Evelyn Everett. Old Miss Audrey. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1893. 320 p. il. 12°, (Oak-leaf ser.) cl., $1.50.

Haynes, F. E. The reciprocity treaty with Canada of 1854. Balt., Md., American Economic Assoc., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 8-70 p. O. (Publications of the society, v. 7, no. 6.) pap., 75 c.

Gives the articles of the treaty, its history and an account of its workings; with an appendix of trade statistics. The writer's conclusions are that the measure was favorable to the development of trade between the United States and the British provinces. The statistics of trade indicate a greater increase of commerce during the continuance of the treaty than at any other time during the period from 1820-1890.

Hitchcock, Loranus E. The ten-minute series of supplemental lessons for the Sunday-school. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. 7 nos., T. pap., ea., 5 c.

Hurlbut, Jesse Lyman. Revised normal lessons. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. 111 p. D. flex. cl., 40 c.; pap., 25 c.

A revision of "Outline normal lessons," first printed as leaflets, and afterwards, in 1887, gathered into a book; contains a general view of the most important subjects necessary to a knowledge of the Bible and of Sunday-school work.

*Keith, Leslie, [pseud. for Mrs. Grace Keith Johnston.] Our street. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1893. 256 p. il. 12°, (Maple-leaf ser.) cl., $1.25.

*Lansing, W. The lawyers' and clerks' assistant: being forms of legal instruments, business and conveyancing, and in statutory proceedings, for the use of lawyers and their clerks, business men and public officers, [etc.] N. Y., L. K. Strouse & Co., 1893. c. 55+1252 p. O. shp., $6.

Lindsay, S. M. Social work at the Krupp foundries. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1893.] 73-106 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 72.) pap., 85 c.

A description of the various plans in operation at Essen, Germany, for the benefit of the workmen of the world-famed cast-steel works belonging to the firm of Frederick Krupp. The efforts made at Essen included the building and renting of workmen's dwellings; co-operative stores; industrial schools; treatment and prevention of sickness and disease; saving banks; insurance against accident and sickness; pension funds, etc.

*Macgowan, W. S. Second German reader and writer. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12°, (Parallel grammar ser.) cl., 50 c.

*McKee, T. Hudson. Presidential inaugurations from George Washington, 1789, to Grover Cleveland, 1893; with inaugural addresses complete; historical notes and incidents of each inaugural occasion; portraits and biographical sketches of the presidents; [also] the names of the cabinet officers and date of service for each presidential term. Wash., D. C., Statistical Pub. Co., 7 Grant pl., 1893. 8°, cl., $1.50.

McLaughlin, J. W., M.D. Fermentation, infection and immunity: a new theory of these processes which unifies their primary causation and places the explanation of their phenomena in chemistry, biology and the dynamics of molecular physics. Austin, Texas, J. W. McLaughlin, M.D., 1892. 2-240 p. D. cl., $2.50.

The aim of this essay is to show that the accepted principles of molecular physics and those of chemistry and biology, if supplemented by legitimate deductions from them, are amply sufficient to account for all the known phenomena of these processes, and also to explain their relationship and intimate nature.

McMichael, Arkell Roger, M.D. A compendium of materia medica, therapeutics and repertory of the digestive system. Phil., Boericke & Tafel, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 5+359 p. F. net, cl., $6; hf. mor., net, $7.50.

The two parts of this work, embracing in Part I, "Materia medica and therapeutics of stomach, appetite, thirst, taste, tongue, mouth, teeth, nausea, vomiting, eructations and flatulence," and in Part II, "Materia medica and therapeutics of stool, rectum, anus, abdomen, hypochondria, umbilicus and hypogastrium," both parts being accompanied by a remarkably complete repertory, make a work that is of great interest to homoeopathic physicians and which marks an era in the study of materia medica and therapeutics.

- *Pennsylvania. The district reports: cont. cases decided in the various judicial districts. V. 1, [1892.] Phil., E. P. Allinson, 1892. c. 16+897 p. O. shp., $5.50.
- *Pentecost, G. F., D.D. Pentecost's Bible studies for 1893; covering the International S. S. lessons. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1893. 436 p. 12°, cl., $1; pap., 60 c.
- *Pepper, W., M.D., ed. Theory and practice of medicine according to American teachers. In 2 v. V. 1. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 1893. il. 8°, cl., subs., $5; shp., $6; hf. rus., $7.
- Percival, H. R. A digest of theology: a brief statement of Christian doctrine according to the consensus of the great theologians of the one holy Catholic and apostolic church; with an appendix containing in English the doctrinal decrees of the ecumenical synods. Phil., J. Jos. McVey, 1893. 14+311 p. D. cl., net, $2.
- The writer states that he has followed in the main the order of the Index Systematicus at the end of Denzinger's Enchiridion symbolorum et definitionum, and that this work contains in handy form all the decrees of the general councils of the Protestant Episcopal Church, with all the rulings which bind the Roman communion to this day. The author's aim has been to present the old truths of the Gospel in the old familiar way and in the old familiar language, and as far as possible in the language of the scientific theology of the Catholic Church. His object is to set forth what the doctrine of the Anglican communion should be if it acted on the principle accepted by the Episcopal Church east and west. Contains a list of authorities cited (6 p.).
- Phelps, H. P. New York state legislative souvenir for 1893; with portraits of the members of both houses and an illustrated sketch of the capitol. 2d year. Albany, N. Y., Phelps & Kellogg, No. 88 State st., 1893. c. '96. O. pap., 50 c.
- *Philadelphia reports: cont. decisions published in The Legal Intelligencer during 1889, 1890 and 1891; all cases reviewed by the supreme court being omitted; comp. by H. C. Brown. V. 20. Phil., E. P. Allinson, 1893. c. 6+508 p. O. shp., $4.50.
- Pollock, Walter Herries. King Zub. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 285 p. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.
- Nine short stories founded on incidents of stage history, and episodes in the career of divers members of the theatrical profession. These are entitled, King Zub: The last act; A fleeting show; A phantom fish; Stage fright; The last droochky; Sir Jocelyn's cap; Three meetings; Mated by magic. King Zub tells how a performing dog of that name was lost after a performance in Madrid and restored to his owner through a clever trick perpetrated on a stranger in London.
- *Ray, C. A. Negligence of imposed duties, carriers of passengers. Rochester, N. Y., The Lawyers' Co-op. Pub. Co., 1893. c. 78+820 p. O. shp., $6.
- Robinson, H. N. Robinson's new practical arithmetic for common schools and academies. N. Y., American Book Co., [1893.] 416 p. D. hf. leath., 65 c.
- Nothing of value or merit in the old "Practical arithmetic" has been discarded in this revision, the scheme of which is one rather of judicious addition than of omission. The book in its present shape meets the requirements of all the standard examinations prescribed for admission to academic grade or for preparation for the best scientific schools of the country.
- Robinson, H. N. Robinson's new primary arithmetic. N. Y., American Book Co., 1893. 80 p. D. bds., 18 c.
- Robinson, H. N. Robinson's new rudiments of arithmetic. N. Y., American Book Co., [1893.] c. '92. 2-224 p. D. cl., 30 c.
- Although this edition is a thorough revision, all the features which have contributed to the popularity of the "Rudiments" have been retained, and the changes made have been only such as would bring the book up to date. One of the features of the revision consists in the addition of about forty pages of introductory exercises.
- Scott, Sir Walter. Marmion: a tale of Flodden field. N. Y., American Book Co., 1893 [1898.] c. '92. 8-247 p. por. D. (English classics for schools.) bds., 20 c.
- *Scott, Sir Walter. Waverley novels; ed. by Andrew Lang. In 48 v. V. 1-10. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1892-'93. il. 8°, cl., per v., $2.50. [Edition limited to 1000 copies.]
- The works already issued are: Waverley, 2 v.; Guy Mannering, 2 v.; The Antiquary, 2 v.; Rob Roy, 2 v.; Heart of Midlothian, 2 v.
- Skeel, Adelaide. My three-legged storyteller. Phil., Rufus C. Hartranft, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 2-203 p. O. bds., $1; pap., 50 c.
- A collection of short stories; the "three-legged" is a photographic camera, and Miss Skeel tells the story of its records and discoveries in entertaining fashion. The book was intended for the holiday season, being enclosed in a white and silver binding and printed on uncut paper showing generous margins.

- *United States. Circuit et. of appeals. Reports, v. 4, for the 8th circuit at Oct.

- term, 1891; S: A. Blatchford, rep., off. ed. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1893. c. 28+805 p. O. shp., $3.25.
- *United States. Supreme ct. Reports. V. 146. Oct. t-rm. 1892. J. C. Bancroft Davis. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1893. c. 22+748 p. O. shp., $2.50.
- Valera, Juan. Commander Mendoza; [from the Spanish,] by Mary J. Serrano. N. Y., Appl-ton, 1893. c. 2+291 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 111.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.
- After a life of hardship and adventure, largely spent in the service of the Spanish navy in the early years of the century, Commander Mendoza returns in his fiftieth year to his native town of Villabermesa, hoping there to spend his remaining days in peace and quietness. A sin of his youth, long forgotten, confronts him in the person of an illegitimate daughter. The mother of this girl is a society woman, who hopes to expiate her sin by making her daughter either marry the real heir of her husband's wealth or retire to a convent. The commander's interference in this plan and his own love-story form interesting episodes.
- Van Dyke, J. C. Art for art's sake: seven university lectures on the technical beauties of painting. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 12+249 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.
- The drift of these lectures is not towards teaching one how to paint a picture, but rather toward giving one some idea of how to appreciate a picture after it has been painted. With this object in view the writer has explained and illustrated such pictorial motives as color, tone, atmosphere, value, perspective. He calls attention to certain well-known pictures, pointing out their good and bad qualities, and making his remarks apply as much as possible to modern art.
- Vincent, J. H., (Bp.) The story of a letter. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. 44 p. S. (The book of book ser., Ephesians.) pap., 20 c.
- The subject of this little book is Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians.
- Warren, H: White, (Bp.) The Bible in the world's education. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. '92. 2-320 p. por. D. (Wycliffe lectures.) cl., $1.
- The first annual course of lectures on the Wycliffe foundation, for teaching the English Bible to the students of the University of Denver. The eleven lectures consider why the Bible was written, its ideals, its prophecies and predictions, its verbal felicities and intensities, its relation to college students and studies, etc.
- *Watson, Lily. The hill of angles. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1893. 224 p. il. 12°. (Maple-leaf ser.) cl., $1.25.
- Weismann, A: The germ-plasm: a theory of heredity; [from the German,] by W. Newton Parker and Harriet Rönnfeldt. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. '92-'93. 19+477 p. il. D. (Contemporary sci. ser.) cl., $2.50.
- Prof. Weismann, of the University of Freiburg-in-Baden, the highest authority on this subject, deals in this volume in a spirit of inquiry and investigation with the fundamental problems of heredity in plants, animals and man. His work is simply written and is for all who are interested in biological problems. The introduction is historical and descriptive. The four succeeding parts treat of "The material basis of heredity," "Heredity in its relation to monogenic reproduction," "The phenomena of heredity resulting from sexual reproduction" and "The transformation of species, its origin in the Idiolasm."
- *Wild life on the plains and horrors of Indian warfare. Milwaukee, Wis., C. N. Caspar, 1892 [1893.] 592 p. il. 8°, cl., $2.
- *Wilkins, W. J. Breaking his fetters. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1893. 223 p. il. 12°, (Maple-leaf ser.) cl., $1.25.

PICK-UPS.

IN A GERMAN BOOK-STORE.—Bookseller: What do you wish? Romantic Backfisch: Werther's Complete Sorrows.—Fliegende Blätter.

LOCATED.—Literary Visitor: Willie, do you know who the Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table is?—Wily Willie: Yes, sir; its our hired girl.—Vogue.

THE bibliomaniac may have a warm spot in his heart for the battered first edition, but the author looks with greater satisfaction on the cheap but popular twentieth.—Puck.

WHAT IS IT GOOD FOR?—A man advertises a book entitled "Where Is My Dog?" This may be a good way to sell a book, but it's a mighty bad way to find a dog.—Mail and Express.

DRIVEN TO DRINK.—"What makes you so thirsty to-day, old fellow?" "I had to stick one of those deucedly large Columbian stamps on the letter my wife gave me to mail."—Puck.

THE LITERARY ART MARKET.—First Poet: How are you making out these days? Second Poet: Immense! Last week I sold four "Pastels in Prose," two "Aquarelles in Rhyme" and three "Etchings in Poetry," and I am at work now on an "Oil Painting in Blank Verse!"—Puck.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL VOLUMES.—Spokesman: We fellers is a gittin' a kind o' tired o' de readin'-matter we's bin a gittin' from dis library, an' we want ter know why you don't stock de place wid books wot'll interest us, like "De Knife in de Heart," or "De Dead Man's Socks," or sumthin' o' that kind.—Life.

HAD THE LITERARY THINGS.—Hicks: Come into the library now, old man. Dix: Why, I didn't know you had a library. Hicks: Oh, yes. Dix: How many volumes have you got?

Hicks: Oh, I don't know much about the volumes, but I've got a couple of fine old library chairs and a box of genuine Henry James cigars.—Somerville Journal.

AT THE LIBRARY WINDOW.—A librarian recently received an instalment of one of F. Marion Crawford's new novels billed as "6 Down in Arizona" [Don Orsino].—A lady who had evidently grown tired of applying unsuccessfully for Mrs. Henry Wood's masterpiece (?) handed in a slip on which she expressed her willingness to take "East Lynne by any author."

NOT REALISTIC.—Young Author: Would you call my novel realism or romance? Friend: What does the heroine say when she accepts the hero? Young Author: Oh, she says: "Yes, dear George, we will tread life's path together, one in heart and purpose, bearing each other's burdens, sharing each other's grief, doubling each—" Friend: Well, then, it isn't realism. A real girl would no more think of making a speech on such an occasion than of singing a song or cutting a pigeon-wing.—Puck.

THE DRUMMER'S PETITION.—A hungry drummer out in the wilds of Nebraska put up the following pathetic petition, to which many of the Eastern travellers will respond "So mote it be!"

"Backward, turn backward, oh time in thy flight!
Feed me on mush again just for to-night;
I have grown weary of restaurant fakes,
Petrified sandwiches, vulcanized steaks,
Oysters that sleep in a watery bath,
Butter as strong as Goliath of Gath;
Weary of paying for what I can't eat,
Chewing trunk hinges, and calling it meat.
Backward, turn backward, for weary I am!
Give me a whack at my grandmother's jam!
Let me drink of the milk that has never been skimmed,
Let me eat butter whose hair has been trimmed;
Let me but once have an old-fashioned pie,
Thereafter in peace I may curl up and die.
I have been chewing old scrap-iron for years,
Can you, then, wonder I'm melting in tears?"

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 4, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

RESTRICTING THE SALE OF TRASH.

THE step taken by Col. George Bliss, president of the Manhattan News Co., in declining to expose for sale flash periodicals upon the newsstands of the elevated railroads in New York City, unless advanced copies have been inspected and approved by him, seems, as the New York Times puts it, a "rainbow of promise projected athwart the sky of literature and virtue." With due allowance for satire, the move is in line with the position we have always taken concerning the bookseller who is true to his profession—namely, that without the bookseller the manufacturers of the prurient and trashy printed stuff would be doomed. They would either have to reform or go out of business.

Too many booksellers and newsdealers, we are afraid, lose sight of the fact that their calling is one of great responsibility, and that they may be agents for evil as well as good. A druggist, the world over, is not allowed to sell poisonous drugs to children, and even when he sells them to grown people he is compelled in many countries to take certain precautions, so that no harm may arise. The bookseller, on the contrary, is subjected to no restrictions, to no surveillance, and need render no account. He may sell the most pestiferous trash, poisoning the minds and arousing the passions of youth, without let or hindrance, excepting possibly when some agent of a society for the suppression of vice feels obliged to earn his salary, or somebody else is in need of a boom to his reputation. He may every day sell with impunity police gazettes and other sheets familiarizing readers with every kind of vice and crime, hardening the feelings and corroding the conscience until crime and wickedness become so familiar that indulgence in the one and perpetration of the other almost become matters of course.

There has grown up in late years a class of absolutely trashy and debasing reading-matter which does not come within the jurisdiction of the law regulating the sale of obscene literature, and which, we regret to say, is therefore flaunted with impunity from the windows and stands of newsdealers who might be engaged in better business. Almost daily certain mills grind out such stuff in the shape of libraries and story-papers, placed by their price within the reach of thousands of children, that do considerably more to injure the mind and morals of growing youth than is suspected.

And while youth is so liberally supplied its elders are not forgotten, as a look at the average news-stand will confirm. Flamboyant newspapers with pictures and reading-matter crowding the line of indecency as far as the law permits—nasty and suggestive books galore. Public custom, if not public taste, may have changed; but it is time that a reaction should set in.

The bookseller and his ally, the newsdealer, may well follow the example set by Col. Bliss, who, though a man of the world, is yet a cultivated gentleman and may be trusted to draw the line where mere fun or innocent gallantry shades off into indelicacy or downright indecency. No intelligent or respectable bookseller or newsdealer will think of bartering away his reputation for however large a sum of money that might be made in disseminating immoral literature. Let him then beware lest he lend a hand in the distribution of reading-matter that awakens a thirst for such.

We do not expect, nor even wish, booksellers to band themselves together as an Association for the Sale of Godly Books; but we think that it is about time that members of the book trade, especially those connected with the periodical part of it, positively refuse to sell or keep in stock such printed matter as common sense tells them is dangerous. They may lose in the beginning by such a course, but only to benefit in the end, besides having the satisfaction of knowing that they are in some degree helping to elevate the standard of morality among their fellow-creatures. If booksellers would but consider the greatness of their mission, they would see that they wield an enormous power. Will they use it for good?

ICELAND BOOKSELLERS.

W. E. Mead, in The Atlantic Monthly for February.

A GLANCE at the booksellers and their shops may be suggestive. Nearly every visitor to Iceland begins his acquaintance with the country at the capital, Reykjavik, and I was no exception. A very few minutes after I had been rowed ashore from the little steamer, and had engaged rooms at the hotel, I went in search of a bookseller. I soon learned that the most successful way to find books was to look in unlikely places. Scarcely a dealer keeps a stock of any size, and he seems to hide it as much as possible. The photographer has a few volumes, and the postmaster a few more. One can buy text-books at the office of one of the little newspapers published at Reykjavik; and by going up-stairs in a stone school-house and knocking at the proper door one can find a very tolerable miscellaneous collection of text-books and other works for sale at the published prices—with a slight increase for strangers. One of the largest shops is beside the Althing House, where I found a greater variety of books and more courtesy than anywhere else in Reykjavik. In fact, the cordiality of the proprietor, who is also a publisher, became slightly embarrassing, after I had made some considerable purchases of him; for toward the close of my stay in Reykjavik I was never sure that I should be able to finish my dinner without being told that the bookseller was waiting to see me. He usually brought a pamphlet or book which he had published, and which he insisted on presenting to me. Among his gifts was an Icelandic translation of Hamlet—the first ever made—a volume of travels in England, a book of modern Icelandic poems and various pamphlets. I may add, as an aside, that he seemed to care nothing for the payment of my bill, and showed no hesitation in letting it run till I could send him a draft from America.

The thought that most impresses one, in looking through these little book-shops, is that readers are shut out almost entirely from the inspiration and suggestion of seeing large quantities of new books exposed for sale. Small opportunity is afforded for testing a book before buying it, and nobody except a scholar in constant touch with the outer world can realize what is doing in the various departments of literature and research. The books ordinarily on sale are school-books, isolated specimens of Danish, English, French and German works, and a number of the better-known Icelandic publications. Very popular is a recent reprint, in three volumes, of the shorter Icelandic sagas. Some modern Icelandic poems, a few modern Icelandic romances, and treatises of more or less scholarship comprise the greater part of the stock. Whenever books are wanted from abroad, they are usually ordered from Copenhagen; but communication with the outside world is slow and expensive, and during certain months impossible.

The number of volumes printed in Iceland is limited; but a few appear every year with "Reykjavik" or "Akureyri" on the title-page. Several newspapers are published at Reykjavik, all ridiculously small in comparison with English or American papers, yet serving to keep up a slender connection with the far-away world, and to chronicle the events of a country where little or nothing happens. One weekly sheet, the Isa-fold, has an extensive circulation in the remote country districts.

RECEPTION TO THE NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

ON the afternoon of February 23 an "authors' and publishers' luncheon" was given by Boston publishers at the Vendome to the members of the National Education Association, then in session in the city. Among the guests were Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, T. B. Aldrich, J. T. Trowbridge, Margaret F. Deland, Edna Dean Proctor, Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, Sarah Orne Jewett, Justin Winsor, Professor Charles Elliot Norton and many others.

Dr. Holmes was the last to arrive and was immediately escorted to the raised platform at the end of the banquet-hall, where he was kept engaged for some minutes in hand-shaking. Mr. Houghton, of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., presided, and after making a short address of welcome introduced Dr. Holmes. He made a pleasant, brief speech in reply, and closed by reading the following verses which, he said, "did not exist in word or shape before 10:30 o'clock to-day:"

"Teacher of teachers, yours the task,
Noblest that noble minds can ask,
High up Ionia's marmorous mount,
To watch, to guard the sacred fount
That feeds the stream below;
To guide the hurrying flood that fills
A thousand silvery rippling rills
In ever-widening flow.

"Rich is the harvest from the fields
That bounteous Nature kindly yields;
But fairer growths enrich the soil,
Ploughed deep by thought and wearied toil
In learning's broad domain,
And where the leaves, the flowers, the fruits,
Without your watering at the roots
To fill each branching plain?

"Welcome! The author's firmest friends,
Your voice the surest good deed lends,
Of you the growing mind demands
The patient care, the guiding hands,
Through all the mists of morn,
You knowing well the future's need,
Your prescient wisdom sows the seed
To fire the years unborn."

THE AUTHORS' CLUB'S DECENNIAL.

THE Authors' Club celebrated its tenth birthday on February 28 by a dinner at the Hotel St. Denis, which was attended not only by many more or less famous members of the club but also by more or less famous authors who are not members. Seventy-five authors were present. Edward Eggleston presided. Among those present were Richard Malcolm Johnston, Joseph Jefferson, W. D. Howells, Richard Henry Stoddard, John Burroughs, George W. Cable, Brander Matthews, Richard Watson Gilder, Noah Brooks, H. M. Alden, H. H. Boyesen, Andrew Carnegie, W. H. Bishop, R. R. Bowker, H. E. Krehbiel, Frank Stockton, E. C. Stedman, T. A. Janvier and Titus Munson Coan. The single toast of the evening, "The Authors' Club," was proposed by Edward Eggleston. Richard Henry Stoddard read an original poem. The honors of the evening, in the matter of speaking, were carried off by Joseph Jefferson and John Burroughs, each of whom made a short speech full of wit and epigram. Richard Malcolm Johnston, Parke Godwin, Andrew Carnegie, E. C. Stedman, Gen. Horace Porter, Thomas Nelson Page, W. H. McElroy and F. Hopkinson Smith also made capital ten-minute speeches. It was not until after midnight that the festivities ended.

HOW TO SWEEP OUT A STORE.

THE following wrinkle, originally suggested by a correspondent of the Boots and Shoes Weekly, may be recommended as a practical and efficient way of sweeping a board floor without creating much dust. Of course care must be taken not to get too much oil on the broom at one time, and to let it soak through the willow before setting it down to sweep:

As a great deal of harm is often done in sweeping out a store by dust soiling we believe our plan is worthy of adoption. Take a shallow pan, and partly fill it with kerosene oil. Then dip the broom into the oil, turning the broom-handle to the floor for a minute or two, long enough to allow the oil to run into the broom. Use a soft, light broom. You may have to dip the broom three or four times. After sweeping a few times you will have no dust, and your floor will be white and clean. The smell of oil soon passes off. This is the cleanest way on earth to sweep out a store. In sweeping after business hours it is a benefit to the stock, as no moths will bother the goods. If you will try it for a week it will always be done. No oil will get on the floor to injure it (it will evaporate) if you are careful not to use the broom too suddenly after dipping.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE "COSMOPOLIS" CONTROVERSY.

CHICAGO, February 22, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Monday, Feb. 20, we received from Alphonse Lemerre, in answer to our letter which was published in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY [February 18], a cablegram informing us that we are and have been the only authorized publishers of "Cosmopolis." In answer to a cablegram whether Tait, Sons & Co. were authorized, he informed us by cable that Tait, Sons & Co. were not authorized. When we received a letter from Tait, Sons & Co., in which they positively stated that they were the authorized publishers, we believed them, as we usually go on the principle that every man should be considered honest until he has been found otherwise. Misrepresentations in some quarter, which is not very difficult to discover, have led us to say that we would withdraw the words "authorized edition" from our book. It is needless to say that we shall not withdraw these words, but will continue to be, as we have been, the only authorized publishers of "Cosmopolis." Very truly yours,

CHARLES H. SERGEL & Co.

NEW YORK, February 28, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: With reference to Messrs. Chas. H. Sergel & Company's communication, probably the best answer to it we can furnish is to reproduce the two cablegrams of the 6th of February (respectively from our agents and from Lemerre, the Paris publisher), which practically close up the matter so far as we are concerned.

CABLEGRAM TO LEMERRE, Paris: "Cable definite answer if we have authorization. Will pay answer."

CABLEGRAM FROM LEMERRE: "We send authorization. Make payment to Meyer."

These cablegrams were the final outcome of lengthy negotiations with Lemerre, and if clear language and good faith on the part of a reputable house count for anything, the exclusive authorization is ours, a view in which M. Lemerre's New York agents have all along concurred.

On the 3d of February prior to the sending of these despatches Meyer Bros. & Co., of this city, who are acting for Lemerre in the matter, had written to him that their arrangement with us was that they should hand over to us the letter of authorization as soon as received, in exchange for our check, and they would remit the money to Lemerre by draft of the French bankers, Lazard frères, as soon as received.

What transpired after we received the cable of the 6th inst. is best told in the following letter from Meyer Bros. & Co.:

13 WEST 34TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 28, 1893.
Messrs. Tait, Sons & Co., 31 East 17th St., New York.
DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of this date enclosing copy of circular issued by Messrs. Charles H. Sergel & Co. with reference to the authorized edition of "Cosmopolis." As you wish a statement from us with regard to that circular, we would say that we have had nothing further to do with this matter than simply to carry out M. Lemerre's instructions; and with regard to Messrs. Sergel & Co.'s circular we desire to make the following categorical statement:

First—It was our clear understanding of Lemerre's cablegram of the 6th inst. that it gave to your company, beyond all question, the sole authorization to issue "Cosmopolis" in this country.

Second—We understood from that cable that Lemerre was sending to you through us a written confirmation of the authorization given by cable.

Third—We understood that you were to hand us a check for the price of the authorization ($500) in exchange for the promised letter of authorization, as soon as we should receive it by mail.

Fourth—You sent frequently to us inquiring whether Lemerre's letter had reached us, and after allowing a sufficient time for its arrival you tendered us your check for $500, and made a formal demand upon us for the written authorization.

Fifth—Since the cable of the 6th inst. was received, authorizing and directing you to pay the money to us, M. Lemerre has not, so far as we know, made any request that you should send the money direct to him.

Sixth—We should state that in all the transactions relating to this authorization, your company has not omitted any precaution to secure your rights which prudent and honorable men would consider necessary or advisable, and that you have not been guilty of any action which could justify M. Lemerre in withdrawing the authorization given to you in his cablegram of the 6th inst.

Yours very truly,

MEYER BROS. & COMPANY.

If, as stated by Messrs. Charles H. Sergel & Company in their circular headed "We Are the Only Authorized Publishers of 'Cosmopolis,'" the French publisher has sold the authorized right of issue to them, he has sold what no longer was his to sell, seeing that we complied with all the conditions imposed by him, in tendering payment as directed by him to Meyer Bros. & Co. We must decline to believe that such a statement emanated from Lemerre himself, as it is utterly inconceivable to us that a publisher of his standing should cable to Sergel & Co. that he had refused us the authorization because we had not sent him the money, seeing that in the cable quoted he had instructed us to pay it to his agent here, and that we had offered the amount to these agents.

Is it within the bounds of reason that knowing that we stood ready to pay him 2500 francs on delivery of his written authorization, he should, without notice and before we had time to receive that authorization, agree to sell it to Sergel & Company for 500 francs less, that being the sum Sergel & Company said in their early communications they had agreed with him for the purchase?

Sergel & Company's references in their circular to our "peculiar claim," etc., are unworthy of our notice, but we unequivocally deny their statement that in a letter we said we had paid a large sum for the privilege of issuing the authorized edition. What we did say was, "for that privilege we pay," etc., a statement which was in every respect accurate and truthful, meaning as it did that we had entered into an agreement to pay.

In conclusion we would say that we have taken steps to have this matter cleared up on the spot (i.e., in Paris), and we will leave no stone unturned to get at the exact truth.

We notice that Serger & Company are discreetly silent as to whether they have tendered payment to Lemerre or whether it has been accepted. In all the circumstances the omission seems a strange one.

It is, of course, quite unnecessary for us to add that we will still continue to style our book the "Only Authorized Edition."

With many apologies for such a trespass upon your space, we are Yours respectfully, TAIT, SONS & COMPANY.

IN RE A. C. McCLURG.

CHICAGO, February 22, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: While there is probably much that is not too well founded in the complimentary notice of me which you published in your issue of the 18th inst., there is one statement inadvertently made which it would be wrong for me to allow to stand uncorrected; that is the statement that at the battle of Missionary Ridge I was the first to reach the crest of the ridge. It would very likely be impossible to determine in a line of nearly three miles in length, charging with wonderful uniformity and precision, what fortunate individual first reached the top; but it is very easy for me to say, with absolute certainty, and without fear of contradiction, that I was not the first by any means. If you had said the first and perhaps the only one on the extreme left to reach it on horseback there might possibly be reason for the statement. Certainly the old black horse that got a grape-shot in his nose as he went up and a minie ball in his leg after he reached the summit, and never got any handsome mention in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, or any promotion for it, would not dispute it.

Permit me to add that it might puzzle some of my old soldier friends to understand how "three weeks before the fall of Atlanta he (I) was promoted to lieutenant-colonel in recognition of his (my) gallant services at Jonesboro," inasmuch as the battle of Jonesboro was followed as a result by the fall of Atlanta the following night. The "three weeks" statement is a slight error.

Pardon my calling attention to these errors in your too flattering notice, which to others may seem trifling, and which are probably the result of a hasty condensation of facts from some other source.

Very respectfully yours,

A. C. McCLURG.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SAMUEL L. PELGRIFT died on Sunday, February 19, at his residence in Brooklyn, of heart failure. Mr. Pelgrift had been associated in the publishing business with E. R. Pelton for over thirty years, the two having entered the employ of W. H. Bidwell when boys. Mr. Pelgrift was esteemed by all who knew him for his sterling honesty and great kindness and consideration for others. As an instance of this, during the war, while Mr. Pelton was away, the latter's position with a large increase of salary was offered to Mr. Pelgrift, but was declined, as he was unwilling to take advantage of his friend's absence. Mr. Pelgrift, though a quiet and unostentatious man, was never weary of well-doing, but was always ready with a cheery word or a kind act, and one of his intimate friends has said that so far from speaking slightly of any one, Mr. Pelgrift always found some excuse for what would seem to be the ill conduct of others. For thirty years he had scarcely missed a day from business on account of illness, and within a fortnight had passed a rigid examination for life insurance, so that his sudden death is a severe shock to his family. Mr. Pelgrift was born and had always lived in Brooklyn, where he had many warm friends. He was a veteran of the 13th Regiment, whose medal he held for long and faithful service, and was one of the early members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association. Mr. Pelgrift leaves a wife and one child.

GEORGE V. SUNDERLAND, for the past seven years travelling salesman for the Worthington Company, died in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., on the 25th of February.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. KNUDTZON is about to publish the complete cuneiform texts of that series of tablets which have commonly but erroneously been said to be inscribed with texts referring to the downfall of the Assyrian Empire, together with transliteration, vocabulary, etc. The expenses incurred in printing the two volumes of this work have been partly defrayed by the University of Christiania.

MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT tells in the February instalment of her articles now running in Scribner's Magazine about the original of Joan Lowrie, the heroine of "That Lass o' Lowrie's." She was a factory girl who, Mrs. Burnett says, "did not look like a back-street girl at all, though she had clogs on. Somehow she was different." Her father was a drunken brute, but his daughter Mrs. Burnett describes as absolutely fearless, though his habit was to "dance on his wife with his clogs when depressed or irritated." Admirers of the novel will understand it the better after reading Mrs. Burnett's account of this girl.

EMILE ZOLA has no idea of giving up his struggle to become one of the immortals and considers himself a candidate until he shall have attained his end. M. Zola is convinced the prejudice is not against himself but against his books. In France, as in England, he told an interviewer, there is "a mass of not very intelligent people" who object on principle to the kind of literature he produces. On other grounds he cannot see that there can be any objection to him. "The Academicians admit," he says, "that I am a respectable man, that I have no debts, that I am a brave bourgeois whose private life is decent and honorable, that I don't make too bad a figure in a drawing-room, and that I dress just like anybody else," and, dressing like anybody else and behaving like a respectable citizen, he does not see why he should persistently be denied the honor to which he aspires. He is resolved to have it and will probably succeed, for he has on more than one occasion shown remarkable tenacity of purpose.

BUSINESS NOTES.

EASTON PA.—J. H. Lindeman, who conducted a book, stationery and music store at 316 Northampton Street, for the past eight years, has disposed of his stock.

FREMONT, NEB.—Charles Nicodemus succeeds Arthur Gibson in the book and stationery business.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Conger & Baumann, booksellers, are offering to compromise at fifty cents on the dollar, thirty, sixty and ninety days in good endorsed paper.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Bryant-Douglas Book and Stationery Company was incorporated February 17, with a capital stock of $4000 paid in and divided into forty shares of $100 each. Of this Percy Douglas holds twenty shares, Thomas E. Bryant two shares and Lottie T. Bryant eighteen shares. Messrs. Bryant and Douglas were formerly connected with the late M. H. Dickinson in the book and stationery business, and it is understood that they have secured the stock and store of another Main Street stationery dealer.

LAKE CHARLES, LA.—A. O. Forister has opened a book and stationery store here. He was previously at Orange, Tex.

LIGONIER, IND.—W. R. Treash, bookseller, is reported to have sold out.

MEYERSDALE, PA.—K. M. Newcomer has started a book-store here.

MIDDLETON, CONN.—J. Allison Broatch has purchased the business and stock of books, stationery, etc., of D. C. Tyler, and is carrying on the business.

NEW YORK CITY.—Richard A. Saalfeld, music publisher, 843 Broadway, has made an assignment. He began business in 1872 and became embarrassed in 1884, with liabilities of $29,500, but he obtained an extension from his creditors, running over two years, and he paid them in full. In May last he made a detailed statement, showing assets $137,000 and liabilities $33,000.

NEW YORK CITY.—Judge Ingraham, of the Supreme Court, on February 23, gave a decision setting aside as fraudulent and void the assignment made by Edward Goodenough as surviving partner of the firm of Goodenough & Woglom, on June 20, 1888. The decision was rendered in an action brought by judgment creditors of the firm. The judge said that the assignment was plainly fraudulent in view of the fact that prior to the assignment being made stock of the assignors was transferred to their wives, and the assignment must be set aside and a receiver appointed. This action, we understand, does not affect the creditors of the Goodenough & Woglom Company, of which A. M. Tomkins is manager.

NEW YORK CITY.—William J. Kelly has resumed business as publisher of art and miscellaneous books, prints, etc., with office and salesroom at 128 W. 23d Street. He will be ready in a week or two to make definite announcement of his new books.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mr. Little, the receiver for the Worthington Company, is making fair progress with the accounts. He expresses the hope to be able to pay 100 cents on the dollar.

NEW YORK CITY.—The accountants are still at work on the affairs of the United States Book Company, and may be for some time yet, as the snarls and tangles seem to be endless. Under the circumstances the reorganization committee does not feel justified to make a statement at present. The receiver has now charge of all the branches, and is pushing the sales to the full extent of his power.

NEW YORK CITY.—Norman L. Munro's publishing house, 24 and 26 Vandewater Street, was partially destroyed by fire on the 28th of February. The building is eight stories high, with strong brick walls, but was not fire-proof. It was erected in 1883, and was owned by Mr. Munro. He practically occupied the entire building for the publication of The Family Story Paper, Golden Hours and other papers. The work of publication had been divided, however, so that the composing-room was conducted by W. C. Dunn on the top floor, the plates were prepared by the Ralsbeck Electrotype Company on the third floor, and the binding was done by Henry Cortelyou & Co. on the sixth floor. Mr. Munro made arrangements temporarily for the publication of The Family Story Paper in another building. The cause of the fire was not known. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

NEW YORK CITY.—John Beacham, for many years at 7 Barclay Street, has removed his stock of old and rare books, etc., to 149 W. 23d Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The announcement in a daily paper that Mitchell's is to sell out by auction is premature and not quite correct. Mr. Mitchell, on account of ill health, will retire from the business, and Messrs. Bowden & Smith will continue it on other lines—making their headquarters probably on Nassau Street. Further particulars will be given later.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—Mr. S. E. Bridgman, senior partner of S. E. Bridgman & Co., the proprietors of the well-known "College Book-store," in company with his wife, on the 7th inst. will start on a trip around the country, touching New Orleans, Mexico and California. On his return he will visit the World's Fair in Chicago. He hopes to be home in the store about the middle of June next.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Behm & Gerhart, booksellers, have dissolved partnership. J. C. Gerhart continues.

REDLANDS, CAL.—C. C. Beatty and Mrs. L. E. Foote compose the new firm of Beatty & Foote, booksellers and stationers.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Inadvertently we located the Utah Book and Stationery Co. in our issue of February 18 at a place which has no existence. They are in this city at 18 West 1st South Street in the McCormack block. D. M. McAllister is the manager.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—The style of the firm that succeeded J. S. Barr & Co., booksellers, at 31 S. Limestone Street, is Carson Brothers, not Sterling and Theodore Carson.

TEMPLE, TEX.—S. A. Douglas, bookseller, has been succeeded by J. W. Lee.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—His many friends in the trade will be pleased to hear that John M. Dean, of the old firm of John M. Dean & Co., has opened an elegant new book and stationery store on West 4th Street, opposite the government building, and will be glad to receive catalogues and price-lists from dealers and manufacturers.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have compiled a new and unique catalogue for the use of those interested in school libraries. Its strong feature lies in the fact that the books listed are wholly from those adopted by the boards of education of some seven or eight important States for their public school libraries. Thus each book has the especial recommendation of having been selected by competent authorities, making the catalogue particularly desirable for the use of any one who is choosing books for young people, either for public, school or home libraries. The size, kind of type, number of pages and price of each book are given, with a brief description or comment intimating its contents and general aim. Figures representing the school grades for which the book is considered suitable are entered in the margin. (96 p., 16°.)

The Charity Organisation Review, published by Longmans, Green & Co., is now printing a catalogue of the library of the organization. The issue for February covers the alphabet from Baltimore to Chadwick, and extends from the seventeenth to the forty-eighth page.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Edward Baker, 14 John Bright St., Birmingham, Bibliography and priced catalogue of early railway books, the collection forming a complete history of railways 1824-1860. (24 p., 16°, 6d.)—Brentano's, 31 Union Square, North, N. Y., Clearance catalogue. (16 p., 8°.)—John W. Cadby, 357 River St., Troy, N. Y., Miscellaneous. (No. 10, 32 p., 8°.)—Chain & Hardy Co., Denver, Col., Second-hand law-books. (Jan., 1893, 18 p., 32°.)—A. S. Clark, 34 Park Row, N. Y., Odds and ends from a literary junk-shop. (No. 35, 32 p., 8°.) An interesting catalogue which, if printed on a little better paper, would be considerably more useful, because more easily read than now.—W. O. Davis, 16 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, O., Law, Politics, Banking, Political and Legal Biography. (No. 41, 25 p., 8°.)—E. Dufosse, 27 Rue Guénégaud, Paris, Americana. (9th series, No. 5, 1033 titles.)—Otto Harrassowitz, 14 Querstr., Leipzig, Arische Linguistik, einschliesslich der nicht-arischen sprachen Indiens, including the library of the late Dr. C. Schütz, a celebrated Sanscrit scholar. (No. 187, 1890 titles.)—J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia, Classified catalogue of publications and importations, prefaced by an interesting illustrated history of this famous publishing house. (104 p., 8°.)—Macmillan & Co., 112 4th Ave., N. Y., List of works by American authors published by this house, to which is added a list of works copyrighted in the United States since the passing of the copyright act of July, 1891. (48 p., 16°.)—Macmillan & Bowes, Cambridge, Eng., Miscellaneous from the library of Prof. John Couch Adams, etc. (No. 244, 501 titles.)—Geodefroy-Mayer, 47 Rue Richer, Paris, Collection of portraits, historical prints, etc., including rare and interesting American portraits, chiefly Revolutionary. (No. 12, 3338 titles.)—H. Sotheman, 136 Strand, London, W. C., Clearance Catalogue. (No. 3, Sc-Z, 193-280 p., 8°.)—M. Spitzgatis, 23 Marienstr., Leipzig, Romanische Philologie. (No. 13, 965 titles.)—Henry Stevens & Son, 39 Great Russell St., London, Americana. (No. 33, 769-788 p., 12°.)—S. Zickel, 129 Duane St., N. Y., Systematisches Lager-Verzeichniss, mit ausführlichem Schlagwörter-Verzeichniss. (227+99 p., 16°, bds.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE Waverly Company have in press an illustrated edition of Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis," with chapter head and tail pieces and full-page cuts.

A. G. SULLIVAN & Co., 47 Liberty Street, New York, announce "Key to the World's Great Cipher: a full translation of the Book of Revelation, and the key to the whole great problem of the Bible."

PHELPS & KELLOGG, Albany, N. Y., have ready the "New York State Legislative Souvenir for 1893." This is the second year of its publication, and it contains, besides fine half-tone portraits of the members of the legislature, officers, reporters, Gov. Flower, Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan, Senator Murphy and others, an illustrated article upon the capitol building.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, have in press a number of little elementary French texts with notes, vocabulary, list of irregular verbs and a grammatical appendix. These are designed to furnish beginners, or those who have read but little, with interesting reading edited especially for that stage of progress. Jules Verne's "L'Expédition de la Jeune-Hardie," just issued, is the first to appear—an interesting little narrative.

WE regret to learn that the book-store of Robert Clarke & Co., 63-65 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, was damaged by fire on the morning of February 25. About five thousand dollars' worth of rare books were destroyed. The fire started in the cellar among an accumulation of dust, rags and paper, but was extinguished before the building was injured. A number of cheaper books stored in the cellar were ruined by the water. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

WARD, LOCK, BOWDEN & Co.'s next volume in their Minerva Library of Famous Books will be a new edition of George Borrow's remarkable work "Lavengro," which will contain a lengthy and specially written introduction by Theodore Watts, a recognized authority upon Gypsy folklore and language, and Borrow's intimate friend. Other attractions will be two engravings showing Borrow's home at Oulton (now pulled down) as well as the summer-house where he worked.

GINN & Co. will publish early in this month "The Principles of History," the "Historik" of the late Johann Gustav Droysen, Professor of History in the University of Berlin. The "Historik" was the syllabus which Prof. Droysen used to place in the hands of the advanced classes in history as a basis for his extended lectures on the encyclopaedia and methodology of history. While relating primarily to history, it comprises in outline a philosophy of religion, literature and pedagogy, all in one. The translation is by Dr. E. Benj. Andrews, President of Brown University. A biography of Dr. Droysen is included.

A PRETTY Easter carol, by Rachel A. La Fontaine, has been privately printed and delicately gotten up in white leatherette decorated with a large cross beautified with roses and lilies and printed in green. "Deck the Altar with Blossoms Fair" is the title. There are six verses, all closing with a repeated Alleluia. The little book is printed on one side of the paper only and the words and illustrations are printed in green. The book is for sale at the office of Far and Near and the money it brings in will be used for the benefit of working girls. A motto chosen from a sermon of Bishop Phillips Brooks and a facsimile of the Bishop's signature opens this Easter offering. The retail price is 75 cents.

ONE of Howard Pyle's sea tales is inscribed to Alfred Leighton Howe, a graduate of the Naval Academy, now in civil life. The dedication was partly the result of friendship and partly of gratitude. When Mr. Pyle was writing the book Mr. Howe lived in Wilmington, Del., and the two were friends. In the course of the story Mr. Pyle, who knows something of seamanship, as of many other things, got his imaginary ship on a lee shore and then found himself quite unable to bring her off consistently with ordinary rules of navigation. In this extremity he appealed to Mr. Howe, and the latter made some suggestions that enabled Mr. Pyle to go on with his story. In gratitude for Mr. Howe's friendly and timely aid Mr. Pyle inscribed the book to his friend.

THE WEST PUBLISHING CO., St. Paul, have issued "A Description of the Home Establishment of the National Reporter System, with some account of the Business of the West Publishing Company." It is a well-printed 30-page pamphlet, illustrated with twenty process cuts, describing in interesting style a trip through the establishment of this great law-publishing firm. An account of the different departments of the eight-story building and of the various processes necessary to the evolution of the bound volumes of "Reports" from the MS. copies of decisions sent in from the courts of the States, is given, and there is a short history of the development of the business since the prospectus of the "Federal Reporter" (the first of the series) was first issued in 1880.

MRS. ELLA STERLING CUMMINS, 1605 Baker St., San Francisco, has completed "The Story of the Files," a volume, now in press, which records the periodical literature of California. It contains a review of the literary journals and magazines of California from 1852 to 1892, brief biographical sketches of their contributors, a catalogue of the best-known books published by Californians, and many portraits, designs of headings and newspaper trade-marks, etc. Mrs. Cummins is author, editor and publisher of the book, which is issued under the auspices of the Californian World's Fair Commission. It is of importance to all interested in Californian literature and should be of special value to libraries as a reference-book and index to the periodical literature of the Pacific coast.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. have arranged for the early publication of a new novel by Miss Matt Crim, the author of "Adventures of a Fair Rebel," etc. It will be called "Elizabeth: Christian Scientist," and will deal with the career of a refined and deeply religious girl, who leaves her home in the Georgia mountains with the object of converting the world to Christian science. Her romantic experiences in the great cities of the Union are portrayed; and the fact that, after all, her destiny is to be loved and wedded does not detract from the book's interest. The true aims and spirit of Christian science are set forth by Miss Crim in a manner intended to do away with many alleged false impressions. They will issue early in the Spring a volume of "Stories from the Rabbis," by Dr. Abram S. Isaacs, professor of German and Hebrew at the University of New York and editor of The Jewish Messenger. Dr. Isaacs has gathered from the Talmud and Midrash and retold in prose a number of entertaining tales illustrating the wit, the pathos, the sober wisdom and the broad humanity of the rabbis.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish shortly, uniform with their one-volume editions of Tennyson, Wordsworth and Shelley, the collected edition of Coleridge's "Poetical Works," upon which Mr. Dykes Campbell has been engaged for some time past. The text, according to the London Athenaeum, is founded upon the edition of 1829, which is the last upon which the author was able to bestow personal care and attention. To the poems comprised in it have been added, as far as possible in chronological order, (1) all those omitted by Coleridge from the various collections issued in his lifetime, (2) all those hitherto added by his editors from whatever source, (3) a number which have escaped their notice, and (4) a further considerable number of poems and fragments which have hitherto remained in MS. These last appear with the sanction of Mr. Ernest Coleridge, the author's grandson and literary executor. In a long introduction Mr. Campbell has supplied a more complete and accurate narrative of the events of the poet's life than has yet appeared. In the appendices are given the original versions of several poems which afterward underwent great alteration, while the notes, which are unusually full, will, it is believed, throw much new light upon the circumstances under which many of the poems were written, and so be of service not only to students of the poems, but to all who are interested in the character and career of the poet.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. are publishing by subscription a new and beautiful edition of Dumas' romances. This Illustrated Library Edition, which is to be strictly limited to one thousand numbered sets, will possess every advantage which can be derived from clear and readable type, choice paper, beautiful and artistic printing, and illustrations embodying the skill and imagination of the best artists and engravers. The printing will be done by the University Press, Cambridge, on "Enfield hand-made paper," free from glaze. The volumes will be small octavo, pleasant and convenient to hold, and will be embellished with nearly two hundred and fifty beautiful full-page plates, comprising etchings, photo-gravures and engraved portraits of famous historical personages, all of which will be unlettered proofs on Imperial Japan paper. The complete set will comprise forty-eight volumes, two or more of which will be issued monthly. The translations will be complete and unabridged, carefully following the author's own text and containing much matter usually omitted, but necessary to a proper comprehension of the stories. Four of the stories, "Olympe de Cleves," "The Companions of Jehu," "The Whites and the Blues" and "The She-Wolves of Machecoul," have never before been translated. The romances will be divided into historical groups and will be published in the chronological order in which they should be read, beginning with the "Period of Henri II.," which includes "The Two Dianas" and "The Page of the Duke of Savoy," and concluding with the "Period of Louis Philippe," which is treated in "The She-Wolves of Machecoul." The first seven volumes are now ready.

FOREIGN NOTES.

BURNS has just been done into Italian by Signor Otensl, who has already translated the works of Edgar Allen Poe.

CHAPMAN & HALL will publish at once "The Emancipation of South America," being a condensed translation of a work by General Mitre, the first president of the Argentine Republic. It will be illustrated with maps.

PERCIVAL & Co. have in press "Recollections of Dr. John Brown," by Dr. Alexander Peddie. This will supply in part a biography of the author of "Rab and His Friends," of whom curiously enough no biography as yet exists.

AFTER an interval of several years the third part of the "New Dictionary of the Welsh Language," by the Rev. D. Silvan Evans, including the whole of the letter C, is now completed, and will shortly be issued to subscribers by the publishers, W. Spurrell & Son, Carmarthen, Wales.

THE clever novel called "An Exquisite Fool," which appeared some little time ago and attracted general attention owing to the writer's graceful English and refinement of tone, turns out to be by Miss Poynter, the well-known author of "My Little Lady" and several other pleasant works of fiction.

EDEN, REMINGTON & Co. will shortly publish the Memoirs of Ernest Legouvé, of the Académie Française, entitled "Sixty Years of Recollections," translated, with notes, by the editor of "An Englishman in Paris." They have also in the press a novel entitled "Chidlock Tichbourne," by the late Marcus Clarke.

THE French Academy has resolved to abandon for the present its "Dictionnaire Historique," a history of words which, after forty years' work on it, has not yet, in four volumes, reached the end of the letter A. The academy is anxious to devote its whole attention to the edition of the ordinary dictionary soon to be published.

H. GREVEL & Co., London, are preparing an English edition, by Miss Constance Bache, of Franz Liszt's letters, collected by La Mara. The books will contain between six and seven hundred letters, the first volume comprising those written during Liszt's years of study, and the second volume those written during his years of travel.

T. FISHER UNWIN has just ready Miss Owen's curious collection of stories of Indian and negro folk-lore under the title of "Old Rabbit, the Voodoo and Other Sorcerers." Charles Godfrey Leland has contributed an introduction, and the volume has been profusely illustrated by Miss Juliette A. Owen, sister of the author, and Mr. Lewis Wain.

MATHEWS & LANE, London, have nearly ready William Watson's long-promised prose volume, "Excursions in Criticism," and also a new poem, written last autumn, entitled "The Eloping Angels: a caprice." This last volume—for which Warrington Hogg has designed a title-page—is a companion in form to the author's "Epigrams."

JAMES CLEGG, Rochdale, Eng., has in press the fourth edition of "The International Directory of Second-Hand Booksellers and Bibliophile's Manual," including lists of public libraries (British and foreign), publishers, learned and scientific societies, theological colleges, etc. The directory will be revised to date, and promises to be even more useful than it has already proved in the past.

W. DRYSDALE & Co., Montreal, desire to notify the trade that owing to new and stringent regulations on the part of the Canadian customs authorities, the value must be marked on all parcels sent to Canada, whether for enclosure, by express direct, or by mail. Care must also be taken to see that any enclosures, especially editorial copies, are clearly marked on invoice, and that invoices are certified correct.

SWAN SONNENSCHNIG & Co. will shortly publish "An Account of the Fire Insurance Offices, Schemes, etc., of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries," by F. B. Relton, late secretary of the Sun Fire Office. The work will contain particulars of various schemes not noticed by Walford in his "Insurance Cyclopædia," and apparently unknown to him. It will also give information respecting the fire insurance schemes of Charles Povey, the projector of the Sun Fire Office, the history of which company has never before been given to the world. It will further contain details of the life, writings and schemes of that remarkable personage which have now for the first time been collected.

J. M. DENT & Co. have in press a new edition of "Le Morte Darthur," to be issued in two volumes, and probably in ten monthly parts also. The text will be that of the 1485 edition printed by Caxton, but the spelling will be partly modernized, obsolete words and such as have changed their meanings alone being printed in the old spelling. Prof. Rhys is to contribute an introduction, and Mr. Aubrey Beardsley is supplying drawings for ten photogravure and twenty other full-page illustrations, besides a separate design for the border around the first page of each of the twenty-one books, and a variety of chapter headings on a new plan.

BERNARD QUARITCH has just issued the great "Fac-simile Atlas of the Early History of Cartography," by Baron A. E. Nordenskiöld, a work said by authorities to be indispensable as furnishing by far the best apparatus for studying the growth of geographical science and the gradual enlargement of knowledge with regard to the surface of the globe. The text of the work is rendered from the Swedish, by Ekeldt and Clements R. Markham, and it contains reproductions of the most important maps printed in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Fifty-one of these large maps are printed as plates, and eighty-four of smaller size are printed with the letter-press. This scientific work may be regarded as almost exhaustive of its subject.

B. F. STEVENS will publish soon the xvth volume of his "Fac-similes of Manuscripts in European Archives Relating to America, 1773-1783." It continues from previous volumes the official and diplomatic correspondence of the English ambassador in Paris with the minister for foreign affairs, and of the French ambassador in London with his court, in so far as it relates to American matters. Amongst this correspondence are some letters from Beaumarchais; also one dated from Skenesborough, July 13, 1777, containing interesting details from General Fraser, commanding a brigade in Burgoyne's ill-fated army. Fraser was mortally wounded in the action at Stillwater on the 7th of October, a few days before the surrender at Saratoga.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

Life of Benjamin Franklin.

Written by himself. Edited from original manuscripts and from his printed correspondence and other writings. By JOHN BIGELOW. Third edition, revised and corrected. Three volumes, crown 8vo, cloth, $4.50.

Since the appearance of the previous editions the author of these volumes has been able to gather from the Stevens' collection, from the letters of Franklin to his early friend William Strahan and from other less copious sources new and interesting information never before published. Among the articles are some the peculiar interest of which will be manifest from their titles. "Preparatory notes and hints for writing a paper concerning what is called catching cold," "Notes on the condition of his health from 1778 to 1780," "Personal expense accounts with Congress during the first two years of his official residence in Paris," "A fragment of his diary for 1780," "An elaborate account of the first successful balloon experiment ever made, addressed to Sir Joseph Banks, then president of the Royal Society of London," etc. None of these papers, save the last, which was printed anonymously in the Federal Gazette of March 25, 1790, appear to have ever been consulted by any previous biographer.

This edition also contains several additional interesting illustrations.

A Leafless Spring.

A new novel by OSSIP SCHUBIN. Translated from the German by Mary J. Safford. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"In Ossip Schubin novels," says the London Athenaeum, "we are brought face to face in the first pages with the men and women whose fortunes we are to follow. Our attention is arrested at once, and is well sustained through the admirably drawn episodes of cosmopolitan life—the subject-matter from which these stories are generally taken. There is nothing elaborate in the workmanship, no studied effort after effect, and no minute analysis of character, and yet we know these charming, well-bred, well-dressed men and women, and feel familiar with them. We recognize their idiosyncrasies, think of them by their nicknames, distinguish their individuality, and mark their family resemblance."

OTHER NOVELS BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

12mo, cloth, $1.25 each.

COUNTESS ERIKA'S APPRENTICESHIP.

"O THOU, MY AUSTRIA!" ERLACH COURT.

John Gray.

A Kentucky tale of the olden time. By JAMES LANE ALLEN. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"It is in a different vein from that which characterizes Kentucky stories—a vein so tender and human and sympathetic as to render it the most charming story of Kentucky life that we ever read."—Boston Home Journal.

Our Own Birds.

A Familiar Natural History of the Birds of the United States, revised and edited by EDWARD J. COPE, Corresponding Secretary of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia. New edition, containing, in addition to the numerous illustrations, twelve new half-tone plates. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1892.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1892 contains:

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1892.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1892.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1892.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.00 sheep, $3.50 half leather.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1892 as soon as ready, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

NEARLY READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. L. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER.

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

THE ONLY AUTHORIZED EDITION.

Cosmopolis.

By PAUL BOURGET. With handsome cover in five colors, 50 cents.

The controversy that has been going on between Tait, Sons & Co. and ourselves, concerning the authorization of our respective editions of "Cosmopolis," has taken on a new phase in the last few days. In answer to a letter addressed to Alphonse Lemerre, the Paris publisher, we received from him the following message by cable: "We send you exclusive right. Lemerre." As this seemed to be in direct contradiction to the statement of Messrs. Tait, we asked M. Lemerre by cable what right he had given Tait, Sons & Co. The reply, which was dated Feb. 21, was as follows: "Right refused Tait on account of not sending money."

When we received some weeks ago a letter from Tait, Sons & Co., informing us that they were authorized by the Paris publisher to issue the only American edition of "Cosmopolis," and had paid a large sum for the privilege, we believed their statements, for the reason that we usually consider men to be honest until they prove themselves otherwise; but the action of Messrs. Tait in assuming to themselves the only authority to publish the book, when they had, in fact, paid nothing for the right, demonstrates that these gentlemen were not without guile. Not satisfied with making "peculiar" claims as to their own authority, Messrs. Tait have gone out of their way to make misleading statements concerning us. The cablegrams quoted above are a sufficient proof of our right. We shall continue to be, as we have been, the only authorized publishers in America of Paul Bourget's "Cosmopolis."

This excellent translation is issued as No. 19 of SERGEL'S INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY, the best series now published.

JUST ISSUED :

Loaded Dice.

By EDGAR FAWCETT, author of "An Ambitious Woman," "The House at High Bridge," etc. 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.25

Mr. Fawcett has given the reader of his best in this new story from his prolific pen. The scene is laid in Paris and the characters are drawn from American, English and Continental types. The story is cleverly written, interesting throughout, and exciting in many of its situations. Though it deals with the social lapses of a woman of the world, the story is delicately told and with a proper regard to the moral sensibilities of the most fastidious reader.

Christine.

By ADELIN SERGEANT, author of "Beyond Recall," "A Life Sentence," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

In "Christine" the reader is transported at once to Egypt, and introduced to a score of likable people whose weal or woe is eagerly followed. Many strong passages occur that set forth a man's nobility and a frail woman's heroism. The old, old theme of true love tried and good triumphant is woven through the plot. In brief, this story of a young girl's life in a foreign land is in every way fascinating, because of its pathos, its purity, and its fidelity to life.

Wrostella's Weird.

By HELEN MATHERS, author of "T'Other Dear Charmer," "Hedri," "Comin' Thro' the Rye," etc. 18mo, paper, 25 cents. Shandon Series.

A sparkling little love-story written in Helen Mathers' well-known style. Wrostella is a dreary old castle situated in the heart of an Irish bog, whither, by the provision of a singular will, the young heir to the estate is forced to live four months of the year. Happenings tragic and comic attend the first attempt to abide by the strange command. The story is most diverting, well told, and sure to take its place beside the writer's earlier efforts in the field of fiction.

PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED :

The Only Authorized Edition.

Cosmopolis.

By PAUL BOURGET. A masterly and unabridged translation. Large 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.50; paper, 50 cents.

"The work is full of life and variety; its personages talk and act like human beings and not like analytical subjects." —The Athenaeum.

"François Coppée has justly said that 'Cosmopolis' is Bourget's chef-d'œuvre. It is the triumphant affirmation that man is not complete, and that a people is never great except through moral beauty and religious regeneration. With exquisite art Bourget colors this conclusion." —New York Sun.

The Grand Chaco.

By GEORGE MANVILLE FENN, author of "The Weathercock," "The Dingo Boys," "In the Wilds of New Mexico," etc. Profusely illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.50.

"The Grand Chaco" is a book that boys of every age will revel in. The information it contains about the South American forests is varied and trustworthy." —Boston Beacon.

"The Grand Chaco," like all of Mr. Fenn's books, is written with vigor and animation, and without being vigorously instructive, vividly impresses the swarming life of these regions upon the reader." —The Boston Herald.

Stories and Sketches.

By GRACE GREENWOOD, author of "My Tour in Europe," "Queen Victoria, Her Girlhood and Womanhood," etc. 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.00.

"The work is permeated with a genuine womanly sentiment and will appeal to a wide variety of tastes." —Boston Beacon.

"The volume is charming and especially to be commended to young readers, because it is what they should be: bright and not too knowing." —Boston Herald.

WILL PUBLISH IN APRIL:

A new work by Henryk Sienkiewicz, the great Polish Novelist.

WITHOUT DOGMA.

A Novel of Modern Poland. Translated by IZA YOUNG. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50:

A psychological novel of modern thought, and of great power. Its utter contrast to the author's historical romances exhibits in a most striking manner the remarkable variety of his genius.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

WITH FIRE AND SWORD.

An Historical Novel of Poland and Russia. Now first translated into English from the Polish of HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ. By Jeremiah Curtin, author of "Myths and Folk-Lore of Ireland," "Myths and Folk-Tales of the Russians," "Western Slavs and Magyars," etc. Fourth edition. Crown 8vo, cloth, 795 pages, $2.00. Also, a Library Edition, 2 vols., crown 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $3.00.

"A capital novel. The only modern romance with which it can be compared—for fire, sprightliness, rapidity of action, swift changes and absorbing interest—is the 'Three Musketeers' of Dumas."—New York Tribune.

THE DELUGE.

An Historical Novel of Poland, Sweden and Russia. A sequel to "With Fire and Sword." Translated from the Polish of HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ by Jeremiah Curtin. With photogravure portrait of the author, and map of the country at the period in which the events of "The Deluge" and "With Fire and Sword" take place. 2 vols., crown 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

"This grand romance—even more important in theme and more imposing in development than the author's famous 'With Fire and Sword'—re-enforces every impression already made by the writings of Henryk Sienkiewicz. It is a work of one of the direct anointed line of the kings of story-telling."—Literary World.

NOTES IN SEASON.

F. J. SCHULTE & Co. have just ready "Prairie Folks," a new volume of characteristic stories of Western life, by Hamlin Garland. They will shortly publish a new novel by Opie P. Read, entitled "The Colossus," the scene of which is laid in Chicago.

JAMES POTT & Co., Thomas Whittaker and E. & J. B. Young & Co. will issue on the 20th instant "The Hymnal," revised and enlarged, as adopted by the General Convention of the P. E. Church in 1892. This will be the Standard Edition, uniform with the "Prayer-Book" recently issued by these three houses.

J. G. CUPPLES will publish for the Easter season a book entitled "A Dream of Lilies," by Katherine Conway, one of the noblest workers in the Catholic journalistic field, whose "Watchwords from John Boyle O'Reilly" was a splendid success.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready two American novels—"White Birchies," by Annie Elliot, and "Katherine North," by Maria Louise Poole. Amélie Rives' tragedy of "Aethelwold," handsomely illustrated, will soon be issued in book form. It will be printed on hand-made paper, and most attractively bound.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish next month a new work by Henryk Sienkiewicz, the author of "With Fire and Sword" and "The Deluge." The forthcoming work is entitled "Without Dogma," and is said to be a psychological novel of great power of modern thought in Poland. It has been translated by Iza Young.

JOHN KNOX & Co., New York, have just issued a volume of selections from the writings of J. M. Barrie which they have entitled "An Auld Licht Manse, and other sketches." None of the matter contained in it has yet appeared in book form. The volume opens with a biographical and literary estimate by Elliott Henderson. The compiler has aimed to show Barrie's versatility and has gathered short stories, humorous bits and literary essays from the columns of many magazines and newspapers. The first edition of this book was entirely sold out before publication.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish at once a "Second Book of Verse," by Eugene Field, whose "Little Book of Western Verse" is in its eleventh thousand. They have also in press a new volume in the Great Educators Series, "Abelard, and the Origin and Early History of Universities," by Jules Gabriel Compayré, rector of the Academy of Poitiers, France; a volume of delightful reminiscences of the most entertaining phases of Paris life under the title of "Recollections of Middle Life," by Francisque Sarcey, who is acknowledged to be the most distinguished dramatic critic of the present day.

D. APPLETON & Co. have nearly ready a new volume in their Town and Country Series entitled "Dr. Paull's Theory," by Mrs. A. M. Diehl. They are just bringing out an "Atlas of Astronomy," by Sir Robert S. Ball, containing numerous printed telescopic views of planets, the sun's corona, etc., and diagrams of orbits; many star maps and a series of twelve plates devoted to the moon, showing its aspects on consecutive days from the third to the fourteenth, making seventy-two plates in all, accompanied by an introduction of nearly sixty pages, which gives a comprehensive explanatory text. They are also bringing out a new revised edition of Lecky's "History of England in the Eighteenth Century" in 12mo form. The revision includes a rearrangement so as to bring the parts devoted to Ireland by themselves, making seven volumes of the English history and five of the Irish, each work complete in itself, but bound uniformly. They issue also in a small volume Mr. Lecky's address entitled "The Political Value of History," delivered in Birmingham last October.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 18 cm.); TL. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Ames, Ja. Barr. A selection of cases on the law of trusts with notes and citations. 2d ed. V. 1. Cambridge, Mass., C: W. Sever, 1893. c. 209-432 p. O. cl., net, $6.

Angus, J. Keith. Amateur acting. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1893.] 4-170 p. il. D. (Routledge's Christmas ser.) bds., 50 c.

The various subjects discussed are: Aim and object of performance; Audience; Stage-manager; Prompter; Selection of company; Erection of stage; Stage effect and illusion; Learning parts; Acting; Dress; Facial make-up, etc., etc.

Baily, Rev. T: L. In the pine woods. N. Y., American Tract Soc., 1893. 304 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

After a prospective trip Hugh Dalton determines to locate himself and family in a comparatively unsettled region, nine hundred miles from Westford, for the purpose of engaging in a mining enterprise. In giving the novel experience of himself and family the author evidently wishes to show that the work at hand is always the acceptable work in the eyes of the Lord.

Baird, Rob. Greek-English word-list: containing about 1000 most common Greek words so arranged as to be most easily learned and remembered. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1893. 48 p. D. cl., 35 c.

Bancroft, Mrs. M. E. B. Gleanings from "On and off the stage." N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1892 [1893.] 3-320 p. D. bds., 80 c.

The parts that more immediately concerned Mrs. Bancroft, the celebrated English actress and manager, in her husband's work entitled "On and off the stage," are embraced in this volume, with a number of amusing stories, anecdotes and letters relating to stage life.

Barrie, J: M. An auld licht manse, and other sketches. [Also] Biographical and literary estimate by Elliott Henderson. N. Y., J: Knox & Co., 62 Ann St., [1893.] c. 2-256 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Besides the opening sketch, "An auld licht manse," which introduces the reader again to the neighborhood of "Thrums" and to the "Auld licht" minister, there are a number of funny articles, short stories, and papers on literary subjects such as "The humor of Dickens," "What is Scott's best novel?" "Q," etc. They are all now for the first time collected into book form, and serve admirably to carry out the publishers' purpose of presenting together specimens of each of Mr. Barrie's three different styles of writing.

Part I.—the explanatory lessons—includes general remarks on chemistry, lessons on the properties of the different classes of foods and special articles on air, water, milk, digestion and nutrition. Part II consists of recipes, menus of liquid, light and convalescents' diet, and articles on serving, feeding of children and district nursing. A list of books on the chemistry of foods, bacteriology, nutrition, health, practical cooking and allied subjects, useful for reference, covers a page. Also contains charts of the composition of various foods for use in a cooking-school and the apparatus for furnishing a cooking-school. Index.

Castlemon, Harry, [pseud. for C: A. Fosdick.] Two ways of becoming a hunter. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1893.] 3-391 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Frank Fuller, of Boston, was sent to Eaton, a little country town, because he was unmanageable. Shortly after his arrival there he confided to his cousin, Leon Parker, a plan which he believed if carried out would make him a successful poet hunter. Oscar Preston, also of Eaton, has likewise individual ideas about becoming a hunter. The interest is in the various means used by the two boys to attain the same end and their results.

Couch, Arthur T. Quiller, ["Q," pseud.] The blue pavilions. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1893. c. '91. 3+363 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 135.) pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., December 12, 1891, [1037.]

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Craik, H., ed. English prose selections; with critical introductions by various writers and general introductions to each period. V. 1. Fourteenth to sixteenth century. Students' ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12+604 p. D. cl., $1.10.

The object of this collection is to show the growth and development of English prose by extracts from the principal and most characteristic writers. In the introductory notice to each author only so much of biographical detail has been given as may enable the reader to judge the general circumstances of the author's life and surroundings and the scope of his work; and to this is added a critical description of his style and methods and of his place in the development of English prose. It is thought that the specimens thus brought together may prove useful to the student of our literature as a supplement to the histories of that literature now chiefly in use.

Was first published in serial form under the title of "A modern Judith." The present title is the one originally intended by Miss Dickens, who is the author of "Cross currents." In this novel she has sought a new field and one full of shadows. The hero is a dipsomaniac who is sent for treatment to the home of Dr. Custance in an obscure English village. Mrs. Custance, though "a mere cypher" in the world's estimation, is the controlling influence of his life. Through her he reforms, and when in after years he becomes a rich man and her unprincipled husband endeavors to extort money from him by threatening to fasten upon him a crime of which he is innocent, she commits murder for his sake.

"This book is as much for the merchant as for the banker. In the part devoted to credits the business man will find a guide that will enable him to trust out his goods to those who will pay for them. It will teach those not engaged in business to conduct themselves in such a manner as to merit the confidence and thereby the credit favors of the business community. I have incorporated the principles of banking and credits in as few words as are consistent with a proper and comprehensive elucidation of the subject-matter, and have aimed to produce a work that would be practical and useful."—Preface.

Harris, J. Rendel. The newly-recovered Gospel of St. Peter, with a full account of the same. N. Y., Ja. Pott & Co., 1893. 67 p. D. pap., 50 c.

In the winter of 1886-87 the French Archaeological Mission at Cairo published a volume made up of Greek documents found by excavation amongst the Christian tombs in Upper Egypt. At the end of this book are found the contents of a vellum manuscript of thirty-three leaves—containing portions of three lost Christian works—the Book of Enoch, the Gospel of Peter and the Apocalypse of Peter. This Gospel of Peter is a product of the second century. It was considered heretical by the early Christians, because it does not believe in the humanity of Jesus nor his physical suffering.

Mr. Holder in his preface to this life of the great naturalist and scientist says: "I have not attempted an elaborate analysis of his life and its effect upon the scientific world, but rather a brief story of its salient features, an impression of the good he accomplished, hoping that younger readers as well as those of maturer years may be tempted to emulate the lesson his life presents." Contains a "Bibliography of Louis Agassiz" (36 p.), consisting of his principal works, articles in publications of learned societies and periodicals, books containing contributions by Agassiz, biographies of Agassiz, articles on Agassiz and principal reviews of his works. Index.

The publishers have divided Prof. Hoffmann's well-known "Modern magic" into four parts, so that those interested only in a particular branch of the subject may not have to buy the whole volume. This volume and the one following are both separate sections of the work.

Lewis, Angelo J., ["Professor Hoffmann," pseud.] Miscellaneous conjuring tricks; from "Modern magic." N. Y., G. Routledge & Sons, 1893. 124 p. il. D. (Routledge's Christmas ser.) bds., 50 c.

McDermott, P. L., (pseud.) The last King of Yewle: a novelette in nine chapters. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1893. c. 4+162 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 21.) cl., 50 c.

The Kings were an ancient house in Yewle, Southshire, England. In 1870 Geoffrey King died, leaving two sons, Rowan, aged twenty-eight, and Charles, twenty-five. Charles was appointed by his brother to be vicar of Yewle. When his young daughter Agnes was fifteen years old the vicar was accused of forgery and sentenced on circumstantial evidence to five years' penal servitude. On the day of his return his brother is found dead, and the long-suffering clergyman is suspected of murder. The details of an excellent plot are skillfully worked out, and the solution of the several mysteries is a surprise.

Moore, Frank Frankfort. I forbid the banns: the story of a comedy which was played seriously. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 404 p. D. cl., $1.

The story begins on a vessel returning to England from Australia. The hero and heroine meet on board and learn to love each other devotedly. The girl does not believe in the rite of marriage and says to her startled lover, "I forbid the banns." After much thinking he finally agrees to take her to his home without any marriage ceremony, religious or legal. She is rich and beautiful. The consequences of this departure from custom make an interesting and instructive story.

Needell, Mrs. J. Hodder. Julian Karslake's secret: a novel. Bost., Bradley & Woodruff, [1893.] 2+506 p. D. cl., $1.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., September 22, 1890, [922] This novel was first reprinted by the J. B. Lippincott Co. in their Series of select novels in 1839.

Raymond, G. Lansing. The genesis of art form: an essay in comparative aesthetics: showing the identity of the sources, methods and effects of composition in music, poetry, painting, sculpture and architecture. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 21+811 p. il. D. cl., $2.25.

"This book is the result of an endeavor to trace to their sources in mind or matter the methods employed in the composition of the art forms. As an incidental, yet as it seemed necessary step to the accomplishment of this endeavor, the action of the mind in these methods has been identified with its action in scientific classification; the methods have been arranged according to the logical order of their development; they have had added to them, so as to render the whole presentation complete, a number hitherto recognized, if at all, only indirectly; and their character and effects have been shown to be exemplified not alone in painting, sculpture or architecture, to which it has been customary to confine consideration in essays of this kind, but equally in all the arts." Fully illustrated with copies of celebrated pictures and sculptures. Mr. Raymond is professor of oratory and aesthetic criticism, Princeton College.

Reader, Emily E. Voices from flower-land; original couplets: a birthday-book and language of flowers; il. by Ada Brooke. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. unnp. por. il. T. cl., $1.

Some practical advice on cooking, etc., with a number of recipes for the breakfast and dinner table. Also a number of bills of fare for invalids.

Rhoades, Walter C. The story of John Trevennick. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 5+421 p. D. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.

John Trevennick is introduced as an Oxford student home for the long vacation, among his relations and friends in a Cornish seaport country-seat of which his father is the Squire. The young scholar is deeply in debt, and to meet notes and other promises he goes into the smuggling business on his private yacht. His partner, who is also his rival in his love-story, betrays him and John goes to London and by hard work becomes partner in a house doing a large business in South American securities. A young artist's career is incidentally worked into the story.

Music Hall, New York, Feb. 16, 1893. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1893. 6+47 p. por. O-pap., 25 c.

Contents: Prayer by C. L. Thompson, D.D.; Addresses by D. H. Greer, D.D., Rabbi Gustav Gotthall, Mr. Jos. H. Choate, R. S. Storrs, D.D., J. R. Day, D.D., T: J. Ducey, Lyman Abbott, D.D.; Letters from Bp. H. C. Potter, H. Van Dyke, D.D., President Seth Low; Benediction by C. C. Tiffany, D.D.

Shepherd, Margaret L., [Sister Magdalene Adelaide.] My life in the convent; or, the marvellous experiences of Margaret L. Shepherd, consecrated penitent of the Arno's Court Convent, Bristol, England. Phil., Jordan Bros., 1893. c. '92. 4+420 p. por. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

Professes to be the real experience of a woman born of Roman Catholic parents who was betrayed by a priest, and who after many sensational and discreditable occurrences entered a convent. The story of convent life is a succession of vulgar, revolting episodes. The woman left the convent, became a member of the Salvation Army and finally a lecturer against Romanism.

Siegvolk, Paul, [pseud. for Albert Matthews.] Ruminations: the ideal American lady, and other essays. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 5+423 p. sq. S. cl., $1.50.

Grouped under the general title "Concerning woman" are five articles, called "The ideal American lady," "Third-love," "Friendships between men and women," "Woman suffrage in America" and "Words about women." Under "Author and artist" the papers are called "Verbal music," "The coming novel," "Novelty in belles-lettres" and "Authorship." The other essays are "Touches of nature," "Every-day talk," "Shreds of character," "Social hints and studies" and "Concerning life and death."

Smith, H: Preserved. Inspiration and inerrancy: a history and a defence; containing the original papers on Biblical scholarship and inspiration. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1893. 374 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Prof. Smith prepared this volume so that he might state his case more fully than it was possible in his trial for heresy before the Presbytery of Cincinnati. The volume throws light upon the relation of critical study of the Scriptures to established creed tests, and to sundry assumptions of systematic theology. Incidentally it discusses the question of doctrinal subscription and the enforcement of such subscription by ecclesiastical process. The true Protestant position concerning the Scriptures is explained and defended, and the nature of historical study of the Scriptures is set forth.

*Stearns, H: Putnam, M.D. Lectures on mental diseases; designed especially for medical students and general practitioners. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1893. 18+9-636 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.

*Studer, Jacob H., ed. The birds of North America: 119 colored plates representing the different species and varieties drawn and colored from nature; including text giving a popular account of their habits

- and characteristics, based on observations made in the field by the most eminent writers on ornithology; prefaced by a systematic table and index to page, plate and figure arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union. N. Y., Natural Science Assoc. of America, 114 Fifth ave., 1893. c. '88. 208 p. il. 4°, hf. mor. or seal, $40; tky. mor. or seal, $45.
- *Taber, Sydney Richmond. The law of assignment for the benefit of creditors in the state of Illinois; being an analysis of an act concerning voluntary assignments, approved May 23, 1877, in force July 1, 1877, and amended by acts in force July 1, 1879, and July 1, 1888, and a collation of all the decisions of the supreme and appellate cts. of Ill. in which the act has been construed. Chic., E. B. Myers & Co., 1893. c. 106 p. O. shp., $2.
- *Thackeray, W: Makepeace. Complete works. Édition de luxe. In 30 v. V. 17-30. Bost., Estes & Lauriat, 1891-92. il. 8°, cl., per v., $2.50.
- *Thayer, Jos. H.; D.D. Books and their use: an address to which is appended a list of books for students of the New Testament. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. '90, '93. 3-94 p. D. cl., 75 c.
Prof. Thayer, who is professor of New Testament criticism and interpretation in the Divinity School of Harvard University, is generally recognized as one of the foremost New Testament scholars in America. His paper on books and their use is wise and helpful, and the list which he offers of books for students of the New Testament is a comprehensive and carefully selected bibliography (48 p.) of great value.
- *Thompson, Maurice. The King of Honey Island: a novel; il. by H. M. Eaton. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1893. 343 p. D. (The choice ser., no. 79.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.
Pierre Rameau was a dreaded outlaw known in Louisiana in 1812 as the King of Honey Island, because this small island in the Pearl River was the headquarters of himself and a daring band of outlaws. The novel includes sensational and romantic episodes in his career, with incidents in the war of 1812 in which General Jackson figures.
- Toole, J: Lawrence. Reminiscences of John Lawrence Toole, related by himself and chronicled by Joseph Hatton. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1892 [1893.] 5+281+3 p. por. il. D. bds., 80 c.
This edition is abbreviated from the 2-v. edition published in 1888.
- *Walton, I: Complete angler. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1893. 287 p. 16°, cl., $1.
- Waterloo, Stanley. An odd situation. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., 1893. c. 2-311 p. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 37.) pap., 50 c.
The "odd situation" is obtained through David Long, who owns adjoining farms, one on each side of the Canadian border. When he attempts to haul dutiable produce from one of his farms to the other a malicious neighbor denounces him as a smuggler, and he comes in conflict with the United States government officials. The arguments, set in a homely story, are in favor of free trade with Canada and annexation.
- *Wethered, Frank J., M.D. Medical microscopy: a guide to the use of the microscope in medical practice. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1892 [1893.] il. 12°, cl., $2.50.
- Wheeler, W; comp. The spectator: a digest-index. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1892 [1893.] 10+178 p. D. cl., $1.
Dedicated to "Bibliographers, librarians, indexers and others engaged in the art of record." A remarkably full and well-made subject index to Steele and Addison's Spectator (Prof. Morley's edition).
- White, W: Hale, ["Mark Rutherford," pseud.] Autobiography of Mark Rutherford; ed. by his friend Reuben Shapcote. New ed., corr. and enl. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] 9+189 p. D. cl., $1.
The first authorized edition printed in America. Tells the religious experience of Mark Rutherford, a Dissenting minister, who breaks the bonds of a creed which neither appeals to his heart nor his intellect. The hard narrow lines of his boy life are strongly though simply described, as are also his love experience and his seemingly hopeless struggles after peace and happiness.
- Willink, Arthur. The world of the unseen: an essay on the relation of higher space to things eternal. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 4+184 p. D. cl., $1.25.
The author has applied the scientific knowledge of "the fourth dimension of space" to the examination of the transcendental theories of the Christian religion. He of course assumes the inerrancy of the Scriptures.
- Wilson, Woodrow. Division and reunion, 1829-1889. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. c. 17+326 p. maps, S. (Epochs of American history, no. 3.) cl., $1.25.
This, the third and concluding volume of the Epochs of American history, brings down the narrative to the end of President Cleveland's first administration, 1889. As but an outline sketch has been attempted, in this, as in the other volumes, ample bibliographies for reference have been prefixed to the several chapters. The volume opens with a list of reference-books for teachers (8 p.); the other references prefixed to chapters consist of lists of bibliographies, historical maps, general accounts, special histories and contemporary accounts.
- World (The) almanac, 1893. N. Y., Press Publishing Co., World Bldg., 1893. c. 464 p. D. (World supplement, v. 2, no. 14.) pap., 25 c.
- *Year-book of treatment for 1893: a comprehensive and critical review for practitioners of medicine and surgery. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., 1893. 496 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.50.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 11, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

HOW TO KEEP A STOCK OF MUSIC.*

THE amount of detail and system required to keep and arrange a large stock of music is understood by but few people dealing in music and not even imagined outside of the music trade. The nature of the stock creates manifold difficulties. Almost every work of music that has stood the test of time and become classic and all the melodies of the day and hour are brought out in almost innumerable styles. Beethoven's sonatas and symphonies are arranged for four hands and eight hands, for one, two and four pianos, for almost every instrumentation, for beginners, and more advanced scholars and renowned artists. Sheet-music is a very delicate article, easily creased, soiled and shop-worn, and the problem of classifying and shelving it is complicated by considerations of time, space, popularity, competency of the salesman, etc. In our day, when music has become so general a study and the vast musical public keeps itself so thoroughly posted as to new composers and their works, the amount of stock that must be kept on hand is simply appalling.

The old way of shelving foreign music is to put the same in folios, consisting of two pasteboards, joined with linen strings, one at the bottom, the other at the top. The back of the folio is of linen, which can be enlarged or diminished in size. The folio is filled with music about six to eight inches in height, tied tightly and placed on the shelf. On the back of each folio hangs a label indicating the contents of the same.

The newer and more universally adopted method of shelving foreign music is to arrange the same in bundles eight to ten inches in height, with a pasteboard at the bottom, another on top, hanging over it in front about three inches, upon which the contents are written. (See figure a.) The latter manner of shelving music is now more generally in use, because it is simpler and requires less labor, and also because the music can be taken from the bundles without lifting them on to the counter. The old way is merely neater, because when the packages are in the shelves they are more uniform and give the store a tidier look.

The essential object in arranging music, which is always largely foreign, is to have the system as simple as possible and to keep the various arrangements of the same work on a plan that can easily be mastered by any willing and intelligent salesman.

The foreign music is invariably arranged according to the composer's name. (An exception to this rule may be the vocal compositions published in England; these are sometimes arranged according to the name of the compositions.) The compositions of each individual composer are arranged according to the opus number; if no opus number then in alphabetical order. On nearly every musical composition is printed op. 1, 2, 3, etc. This means such and such a work. Some composers have reached nearly opus 900, but fortunately not a great many. With composers like Beethoven, Mozart, and others, the sonatas are put together, the variations together, the various compositions together, etc.

* We are indebted for the information contained in this contribution to our Series to Mr. W. C. DYKSEN, who, by reason of his large experience and long connection with the firm of G. Schirmer, of New York, one of the best and most fully equipped music-stores in the country, is well qualified to speak on the subject.—ED. P. W.]

The arrangement of the stock in general is as follows :

1st. All music for piano solo.

2d. " " piano, 4 hands.

3d. " " piano, 6 hands.

4th. " " 2 pianos, 4, 8, 10, hands, etc.

5th. " " piano and violin.

All music for piano and cello.

" " piano and violin, piano and bass, etc.

" " piano and flute.

" " piano, violin and cello.

" " piano trios, the various combinations, each separately.

" " piano quartets, the various combinations, each separately.

" " piano quintets, etc.

" " string instruments without piano.

" " wind " " "

And so on all the various combinations must be strictly separated and arranged in the most systematic manner.

The orchestra music is divided as follows:

Symphonies, all according to composer's name.

Fantaisias, " " " "

Overtures, " " " "

Arrangements " " " "

" for small orchestra.

Dances, etc.

The vocal music is arranged in a similar way.

Songs.

Duets.

Trios.

Quartets, mixed voices, female voices, male voices.

Oratorios.

Cantatas.

Masses.

Sacred music.

The various languages are kept separate.

The cheap editions of classics, such as "Peters Edition," "Augener Edition," "Schlesinger Edition," "André Edition," etc., are all arranged according to the number, each volume having a different one.

This is the plan in which a stock of foreign music is generally kept.

The packages in the store contain from one to two copies of each composition, the balance of the stock is kept on the same plan in duplicate in the storeroom. The persons selecting the orders must first look in these duplicate bundles; what is not there can be taken from the storeroom, and a sharp lookout must be kept as to when compositions run out; it happens very frequently that through the negligence of some one the most salable pieces run out. One or two persons are continually kept busy assorting, arranging and replacing the music that has been taken out of the bundles and not bought by the customer. It requires an experience of a great many years to be sure that you have a good knowledge of stock. It changes constantly. Every year thousands of compositions are published and must naturally be kept track of. Another reason why it is difficult to acquire a thorough knowledge of a foreign stock is because the titles of the pieces are in the various languages—German, French, Italian, etc.—and in a great many instances the titles of the same pieces are very different, the translations being more catchy than literal. Besides, a clerk in a music-store must know what he is selling—he must have some idea of music—and music-dealers would find it impossible to get along with the indifferent help found even in some of our large book-stores.

American music is arranged on an entirely different plan. Nearly all American music is arranged according to the name of the composition; the composer's name is secondary. It is put away and shelved in folios about 4 inches high, with the contents marked on the back of each. Though it is much simpler and does not so severely tax the memory of the persons handling it, this way of shelving the music has its drawbacks. For instance, if somebody wishes to see the various compositions of one composer it would be troublesome to show them, because they would be in various places according to alphabet and would take a good deal of time to get together.

Every music publisher has his own idea, and in some points a different arrangement, of his own publications. These are generally kept separate from other publications. A certain number of copies are put in packages in shelves, the bulk packed up and marked on the outside with the plate number and put aside. As soon as the last number is taken from the package it is at once replaced so that it can always be found when looked for. All collections are kept separately, the vocal together, the instrumental together, all alphabetically arranged. All octavo publications are kept according to the numbers on the title. The person handling these has an alphabetical list, so that when any piece is demanded he can consult his list and find the number at once.

WE are now at work on the Spring Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and will thank publishers to send us before the 18th inst. any information they may be ready to give of books to be issued during the Spring Season. We ask especially for the full title, size and price, as well as description of the work in hand; if there be any material in print, duplicate or triplicate copies of title-pages, circulars, etc., would be desirable. Copy for advertisement should also reach us at the earliest possible moment.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

FALK VS. GAST LITHOGRAPHING CO.

THE United States Circuit Court of Appeals recently rendered a decision affirming the decree of the Circuit Court in the suit brought by Benjamin J. Falk, the photographer, against the Gast Lithographing Co., of New York, for infringing the complainant's copyright in a photograph of Julia Marlowe, the actress. The decree sustains the complainant's bill and directs an injunction and accounting. The defence of the Lithographic Co. rested on the assumptions, first, that the copy of the photograph from which their reproduction was made was not marked with the proper notice of copyright; and, secondly, that the action could not stand from the fact that the complainant had sent around to retail dealers an "exhibition card," containing reduced copies of nearly one hundred different photographs of Miss Marlowe, from which the dealers were to order the particular photographs they desired. The card announced the fact that the photographs were copyrighted, but not in the form required by law, and it was claimed that as the copies of the photograph in question did not bear notice of copyright the suit could not be maintained. The Court of Appeals disposes of these points as follows:

"Where complainant has fully complied with the statutory requisites for obtaining a valid copyright of a photograph, his right to an injunction protecting it cannot be defeated by proof that the picture complained of was made from a copy which did not bear the proper copyright notice, unless there is evidence that it left complainant's possession without such notice.

"The distribution, for the use of dealers in giving orders, of cards or sheets of miniature copies of copyrighted photographs, which cards or sheets bear a statement that the photographs are copyrighted, but does not bear the statutory notice, does not affect the validity of the copyrights involved."

A NEW PUBLISHING HOUSE—MAYNARD, MERRILL &amp; CO.

EFFINGHAM MAYNARD & Co., recently of 771 Broadway, and Charles E. Merrill & Co., of 52 and 54 Lafayette Place, have just consolidated, and taken quarters at 43 to 47 East 10th St., under the name of Maynard, Merrill & Co.

Maynard & Co.'s text-books include Reed's "Word Lessons," Reed's "Introductory Language Work," Reed and Kellogg's grammars, Kellogg's "Rhetoric and Literature," Anderson's Historical Series, Thomson's Mathematical Series, Hutchinson's physiologies, Shaw's "Physics by Experiment," Macvane's "Working Principles of Political Economy," Young's "Government Class Book," Clark's "Commercial Law," Baker's "Elementary Psychology," Keetels' "French Course," Kellogg's editions of Shakespeare's plays. Merrill & Co. contribute to the new firm their well-known "System of Penmanship," Collard's readers, Hailes' drawing-books, Merrill's "Word and Sentence Book," "The Church Hymnary," Lalor's "Political Cyclopædia," Jackson's "Concise Dictionary of Religious Knowledge," etc. The new firm will succeed Merrill & Co. as the authorized American publishers of Ruskin's works, including the Brantwood Edition.

A NEW SOUTHERN BOOK-STORE.

H. M. STARKE & ESTES, successor to H. M. Starke & Co., the enterprising bookselling firm of Richmond, Va., have opened a new store at 907 Main Street in that city. The location, Main Street, between 9th and 10th Streets, is the most central in the city. Ninth Street is the principal street for cross-town traffic. On the corners of this street are the new Chamber of Commerce Building, and the large Hennewinkel Buildings, devoted to offices; the N. & W. R. R. ticket office and the Union Passenger and Ticket Office; four doors below are the Adams and Southern Express offices; at the corner of 10th Street two banks; on the square below, the post-office and two more banks, as well as some of the largest retail establishments in Richmond. Ninth Street is also the street-railroad centre, four of the six roads centering at that point and the other two transferring to it.

Excepting the Chamber of Commerce and the Hennewinkel Buildings, Starke & Estes' new building is the most striking edifice in that section of the city. It is a four-story structure, 25 x 150 feet, painted white from roof to pavement. Two additional stories in the rear are given by the declivity of the ground. These overlook a twenty-foot paved alley.

The first floor, or sub-basement, is used as a boiler-room for furnishing steam heat and for heavy storage and packing. The second floor is a fully equipped printing office, with cylinder as well as job presses.

The third floor, or store proper, is entered by a 5 x 5 vestibule, on either side of which are 5 x 8 windows. In passing the inner door the eye is caught by rows of wall showcases filled with stock; at the right is stationery, which includes possibly the largest assortment of Hurd's stock to be found in a retail store south of Philadelphia; at the left is an assortment of Bibles, prayer-books, hymnals, miscellaneous and religious books. Back of the stationery cases is the general office, arranged in alcoves, well lighted and comfortably furnished with all office appliances. Here are the desks of the junior partner, Mr. Jas. T. Estes, and the book-keeper, Mr. Purdie, well known to the travelling men who visit Richmond. Back of these come shelves lined with books and cases crowded with well-displayed stock of stationery, pens, albums, novelties, etc. Half way back is the office of the senior member of the firm on a low platform, overlooking the entire store. In the rear of this office is an elevator, and directly opposite is the "store parlor," a cosy corner for looking over magazines and examining any desired book. No regular business is transacted in this sanctum, which is comfortably furnished, carpeted and curtained, and contains a fine rosewood and tile combination mantel with a tile hearth on which a gas log fire burns. Back of the parlor and elevator are counters and shelves devoted to the heavier stock carried by the firm, blackboards, typewriters' supplies, duplicating machines, office and school furniture. At the rear of the store are two committee-rooms, which are rented for special meetings, etc. These rooms will seat thirty and fifteen persons, and can be united by opening the movable glass partition which divides them.

The fourth floor contains two handsome front offices, which are rented by the firm, and a room 19 x 80 feet used for storing surplus stock that cannot be carried in the basement. The fifth and sixth floors are fitted up as offices and occupied by the United States engineers in charge of the James River improvements. The whole establishment has an air of solidity, enterprise and determination that seems to breathe the spirit of the senior member of the firm as expressed recently in a private letter: "I hope to live to keep all promises made and to worry through my hobby of organizing the book trade of this country on such a basis that we may all, publishers and booksellers, get more than a mere living out of our business, and have it placed on a much higher plane than it now stands, so that the bookseller will be something more than a shopkeeper."

OBITUARY.

HIPPOLYTE ADOLPHE TAINÉ.

HIPPOLYTE ADOLPHE TAINÉ ["Henri" was a pseudonym inflicted by Buloz, editor of the Revue des deux mondes, but never used by Tainé], philosopher, critic, historian, died on the 5th inst. at his home in Paris. Tainé was born in Vouziers, a little town in the Ardennes, April 21, 1828. He learned Latin from his father, and when quite young English from his uncle, who was a merchant and had lived in America. At the age of fourteen years he was a pupil in a boarding-school in Paris. In 1847, at the Collège de Bourbon, he won the first prize of rhetoric, awarded by the university for a Latin essay; in 1848, the two second prizes of philosophy. His first start in life was as a teacher under government patronage, but the strong hold which the Church then (1851-52) had on the administration of Napoleon III. led to his being assigned to posts that yielded only small pay in Toulon, Nevers and Poitiers. In 1853 he wrote a treatise on La Fontaine and his fables, advancing therein certain new literary canons, working out his theories with great minuteness, which created a profound sensation in the world of letters. In 1854 Tainé competed for a prize offered by the French Academy for an essay on Livy. None of the papers received were acceptable, although Tainé's was pronounced the best. However, he withdrew and rewrote it, and thus finally secured the desired award. An affection of the throat, which deprived him of his voice and compelled him to seek the baths in the Pyrenees, interrupted his active work for two years, but he gave much attention to English literature at this time, Spenser's "Faerie Queene" being his favorite study. His next publication was "The French Philosophers of the Nineteenth Century." In 1858 he published a collection of his earlier essays, including some on Macaulay, Thackeray and Dickens, that were later introduced into his "History of English Literature." Meantime he visited England in person, and afterward made repeated visits at different times. In 1863 he began the publication of his famous "History of English Literature," which created great excitement in France. His next and greatest work, "Les Origines de la France Contemporaine," was produced between 1876 and 1882. A large part of the first half was devoted to the Revolution. Like his "History of English Literature," this was a psychological work and full of analysis and philosophy.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE death is announced of Mr. W. Hazlitt, only son of the famous essayist. He edited his father's works, and besides some law-books he wrote a biography of Cromwell, compiled a classical gazetteer, and prepared a number of bibliographical works.

HORATIO HILL, who was for a number of years connected with D. Appleton & Co., died in Chicago on the 4th inst., aged eighty-six. At one time Mr. Hill published the New Hampshire Patriot, at Concord, and in the '60's with "Long John" Wentworth established the Chicago Democrat.

STEPHEN W. SWIFT, a well-known New York peripatetic bookseller, died in New York on the 1st inst. He was born in Philadelphia about sixty-seven years ago. For the last forty years Mr. Swift lived in New York and sold books to the brokers and bankers of Wall Street, making an Ann Street book-store his headquarters. He had many patrons, and was familiarly known to the whole "Street."

WILLIAM L. ALLISON, publisher, 54 Warren Street, New York, died on the 4th inst., at his residence, 76 Montauk Street, Brooklyn. He was 61 years old. He was born in Orange County. At one time he was the editor of the Newburg Gazette. Later he published the Working Farmer. He came to New York thirty-five years ago and engaged in the general publishing business, first in Chambers Street and later at 54 Warren Street. He leaves a widow, three sons and four daughters.

PROF. WILLIAM MINTO died in London, March 1. He was born in Auchincarrn, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, October 10, 1845. He was graduated at Aberdeen in 1865 with high honors. He spent a year at Oxford and then acted for some years as assistant of Professor Bain, of Aberdeen. During this period he wrote two biographical and critical books on English literature, "English Prose Writers" (1872) and "English Poets" (1885). He contributed occasionally to The Examiner, of which he was from 1874 to 1878 the editor. Later he was an editorial writer on The Daily News and The Pall Mall Gazette. He was appointed professor of logic in Aberdeen in 1880. He was the author of various works, including "The Crack of Doom" (1885), "Defoe" (1879), "The Meditation of Ralph Hardelot" (1888), "Was She Good or Bad?" (1889) and several literary biographies in "The Encyclopædia Britannica."

DOUGLAS CAMPBELL, a former member of the bar of New York City, and the author of "The Puritan in Holland, England and America," died in Schenectady, N. Y., on the 7th inst., aged about fifty-three years. Mr. Campbell was born in 1839 in Cherry Valley, N. Y. His father was Judge William M. Campbell, of the Superior Court of this city and afterward of the Supreme Court. Douglas Campbell was graduated at Union College in 1860. At the beginning of the war he enlisted as a volunteer and rose to the rank of major. After the war he studied law at the Harvard Law College, and in 1866 began to practice in New York as a member of the firm of Kilton, Campbell & Bell. Mr. Campbell had made a specialty of constitutional history, particularly that of New York. He was a member of the New York Historical Society and of the Century Club. "The Puritan in Holland, England and America" was the result of years of study and of personal research, made by the author in the libraries of London, Leyden and The Hague, as well as in American libraries.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GRANT ALLEN has completed a novel, which he calls "Linnet."

BARNETT SMITH is engaged on a life of Ferdinand de Lesseps.

LAURA DEARBORN, author of "At the Threshold," is the pseudonym of Nina Pictou.

FRANK R. STOCKTON has completed a new short story entitled "The Watchmaker's Daughter."

It is rumored that Mary Anderson, or rather Madame Navarro, is engaged in writing the memories of her stage life.

ZOLA's "Docteur Pascal," the last of the Rougon-Macquart Series, will begin in the Revue Hebdomadaire on March 18.

MARGARET WYNMAN, the author of "My Flirtations," is understood to be one of the daughters of the late Mr. Hepworth Dixon, author of "Her Majesty's Tower."

MRS. LAURA C. HOLLOWAY-LANGFORD, author of "Ladies of the White House," is engaged in editing, in conjunction with Anton Seidl and W. J. Henderson, of the New York Times, the Music Department of the "Standard Dictionary," now in course of publication.

NATHALIE HERZ IMBER, an Austrian Hebrew of profound and varied scholarship, especially in the Kabala, has taken up his residence in this country. Mr. Imber spent seven years in Palestine in the home of Lawrence and Alice Oliphant, and in fact furnished the scholastic basis of their wonderful and inspired books, "Sympneumata." Mr. Imber intends to translate the "Zohar," the principal book of the Kabala, which, we believe, has never been translated.

THE following authors have consented to act on a committee to arrange the proposed "World's Convention of Authors," to be held during the Chicago Exposition next summer. It is proposed to arrange some fifteen sessions bearing on different subjects: Dr. O. W. Holmes, chairman, and T. B. Aldrich, Boston; Professor C. E. Norton and T. W. Higginson, Cambridge; G. W. Cable, Northampton; Charles D. Warner, Hartford, Conn.; E. C. Stedman, W. D. Howells, R. W. Gilder, Professor H. H. Boyesen, Professor F. D. Sherman and Professor G. B. Woodberry, New York City; H. H. Furness, Philadelphia; Maurice Thompson, Indiana; T. N. Page, Richmond, Va. The headquarters of the committee will be in New York.

"WILLIAM MORRIS, the poet," according to the New York Tribune, "is doing at his Kelmescott Press a publishing business which appears to be as profitable financially as it is artistic. Of the books which he issued during the past year he brought out only 2426 volumes altogether—twenty-six being on vellum—and a careful calculation, based on prices actually affixed to the books in the catalogues of leading second-hand booksellers, shows that the output of the year is worth in the market at the present moment between $50,000 and $55,000. The edition of the works of Chaucer which Mr. Morris is preparing will be, it is asserted, the most magnificent edition of a classic ever produced in any country. Mr. Morris has a special Chaucer type; and Mr. Burne-Jones has made about sixty illustrations for the edition. Book lovers and collectors will welcome it with ardor, and many a poor poet will long for it—in vain."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

SOME unpublished letters from Wordsworth are printed in the March number of Cornhill.

GEORGE ALFRED TOWNSEND has written a novel to which he has given the title of "Columbus in Love." It is to appear in Lippincott's Magazine.

Scribner's Exhibition Number will contain a new short story by Thomas Hardy, entitled "The Fiddler of the Reels," and an autobiographical account of W. D. Howells' early life when he worked with his father editing and publishing a country newspaper in Ohio.

A NEW monthly magazine has been started in Buffalo under the name of The Bohemian, which aims to be a feast of good things of all kinds of literature from the pens of trained and amateur writers. The editor is John Reeves Sutton; the art department is under the editorship of Geo. D. Sutton, and the business management under Geo. W. Sutton, 186 Fifteenth Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

A MAGAZINE for American schools, American homes and American youth has been started in Chicago under the name of American Young People. The magazine will be American in the broadest and most liberal sense, devoted to the creation and fostering in the heart of every dweller in the land, without regard to place of birth or local opinion, a love and veneration for the spirit of freedom, a knowledge of American history and an education in the duties and privileges of American citizenship. Serials and short stories of American interest will be included, and there will be a department of book reviews confined to books suitable for young people.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WORTHINGTON CO. (Joseph J. Little, receiver) will publish shortly Ohnet's "Antoinette, or, the marl-pit mystery;" and in their Rose Library Felix Pyat's "The Ragpicker of Paris."

D. C. HEATH & Co. will issue about March 15 Beaumarchais' "Le Barbier de Seville," edited with introduction and notes by I. H. B. Spiers, of William Penn Charter School, Philadelphia.

THE DAILY NEWS PRINTING CO., Staunton, Va., will publish on the 15th a story entitled "Tom Swindel," by Col. J. L. Peyton, which was published as a serial in the Staunton Daily News.

GEORGE M. ALLEN CO., New York, have just issued a dainty volume with pictures of violets from water-colors, and selected verses about them on every page, entitled "Stray Violets," by Mary E. Hart.

MACMILLAN & Co. will issue shortly a new edition in one volume of Freeman's "History of Federal Government," which deals with the Greek federation and has long been out of print; also Kipling's new volume, "Many Intentions."

POSTMASTER-GENERAL WANAMAKER accepted the proposition to lease to the government 30,750 square feet in the Industrial Building, adjoining the Forty-second Street station, New York, for use as the up-town branch of the New York City Post-Office.

THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., it is reported, has made arrangements with Gail Hamilton for an authorized "Life of James G. Blaine."

Miss Dodge will have the coöperation of the Blaine family, but she cannot yet say when the biography will be completed or issued.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a new illustrated edition of "Old Court Life in France," by Frances Elliot, author of "The Diary of an Idle Woman in Italy." They have also in preparation a new illustrated edition of "Woman in France During the 18th Century," by Julia Kavanagh.

CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. have just issued "I Forbid the Banns," "the story of a comedy which was played seriously," by Frank F. Moore. They have also a new edition, corrected and with additions, of "The Autobiography of Mark Rutherford," and announce "A New England Boyhood," by Edward Everett Hale.

F. TENNYSON NEELY, Chicago, has just issued "Madam Sapphira," by Edgar Saltus, the first novel he has brought out for two years; "Are Men Gay Deceivers?" by Mrs. Frank Leslie, with chapters on "An Unhappy Marriage" and "Is Marriage a Failure?" and "Miss Madam, and other sketches," by Opie Read.

TICKNOR & Co. have just ready a portrait of the late Bishop Phillips Brooks etched from the latest photographs by Charles A. Walker who has produced highly satisfactory portraits of William M. Hunt and Sarah Bernhardt. The portrait is issued in three styles—plain, in a limited number of India proofs, and signed Japan proofs.

THE council of the Grolier Club re-elected the officers last night as follows: President, Beverly Chew; vice-president, Samuel P. Avery; secretary, Frederick A. Castle; treasurer, Edward H. Bierstadt, and librarian, Richard Hoe Lawrence. The new house committee consists of Edwin B. Holden, John H. Caswell and Samuel W. Marvin.

THE manuscript of the "Poems by Two Brothers" (Charles and Alfred Tennyson) has been purchased by Dodd, Mead & Co. for $2100. The best copy in size and condition among the six or seven copies extant of Harris' "Virginia" (1590) was recently sold by this firm. It was found by their London agent in the shop of a bookseller and is valued at $3000.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just issued last year's series of the Rev. Dr. A. J. Gordon's "Lectures on Foreign Missions" before the Rutgers Theological Seminary. Dr. Gordon, the well-known Boston preacher, has just completed twenty years of continuous service in the pastorate of the Clarendon Street Church. This, since the death of Phillips Brooks, makes him, we understand, the senior pastor of that city.

THEODORUS OLYNTHUS DOUGLAS, who claims to be a native of Greece, and who proved himself to be an exceedingly clever young man, was arrested on the 5th inst. on the complaint of George H. Baker, librarian of Columbia College Library. He is charged with having stolen from the Columbia College Library and the Astor Library books to the value of over $2000. Among the dealers who were unfortunate enough to have dealings with Douglas were A. J. Bowden, W. R. Benjamin, Dodd, Mead & Co., Charles L. Woodward, Richmond & Crosscup and others.

DODD, MEAD & Co. announce for publication "Youth" ("La Jeunesse"), translated from the French of Chas. Wagner; "Thomas Jefferson," by James Schouler, and "Peter Stuyvesant," by Bayard Tuckerman, in the Makers of America series; "Parliamentary Novels," by Trollope; "Belinda," by Maria Edgeworth; "A Singer from the Sea," by Mrs. Barr; "The Year-Book of Science for 1892," edited by Prof. T. G. Bonney; a novel, by Emily Howland Hoppin; and "The Tragedy of Mill River Valley," by Miss Finley.

WILLIAM WHITEHEAD, a driver, was arrested in New York City on the 5th inst., charged with stealing books valued at $17.50 from the Worthington Co. He offered them to Edward Hegely, of Williams & Co., in West Fourteenth Street, at a price far below their value. Hegely became suspicious and informed Mr. Williams, the head of the firm. He questioned Whitehead, and as the latter was unable to give a satisfactory explanation as to how the books came into his possession, the police were informed, and Whitehead was locked up. Whitehead and Sydney White, who were identified as having purchased some of the stolen books, were held for trial.

JAMES POTT & Co. will be the American publishers of "The Cambridge Teachers' Bible," "The Cambridge Companion to the Bible," fully described in our issue for February 18 under "Foreign Notes," is bound up in the form of a supplement with the "Cambridge Reference Bible," and Bibles containing this new matter will be known as "The Cambridge Teachers' Bible." Much care has been bestowed on the index of proper names in which all changes made in the Revised Version are recorded. The volume is made complete by a glossary of Bible words, an index of subjects and a concordance of considerable fulness. An entirely new set of maps has been provided, and in those illustrating the travels of St. Paul account has been taken of the latest investigations concerning the roads in Asia Minor.

It appears now that the fire in Robert Clarke & Co.'s book-store mentioned in our last week's issue, did not start from an accumulation of dust and rags, etc., in their cellar. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as it started in the frame or shutter of one of the back windows on their first floor, twenty feet or so from the pavement in the rear. It is surmised that the fire originated from the powerful electric wires of Pike's Opera House, which were strung along their wall immediately below their shutters. The fire was confined to the first story by the iron traps of the elevator, which was next to the window where the fire started. The loss was only $2000, chiefly by burning a division of their Americana stock next the elevator, and some duplicate stock in the basement damaged by water. The cellar was so clean that the burning embers falling into it down the elevator found nothing to burn.

IN the first version of Dr. Holmes' poem, read at the meeting of the National Association, as printed in the newspapers, and transferred from one of them to our columns last week, the poem was not addressed to the "teachers of teachers," but to some individual "teacher of teachers," "Aonia" was turned into "Ionia," and the "murmurous mount" became the "marmorous mount." The desire to destroy the plural seemed to be omnipresent, for the "streams" were cut down to a single "stream," and "fairer growths" became "fairer growth." "Vain" was transformed into "plain." The "Author" was thrown into insignificance by the use of the small letter "a" instead of the capital, and "God-speed" became "God's deed." But worst of all was the mutilation of the last line—to say nothing of the error by which the "and" at the beginning of the third line from the last was turned into "you"—for this last line, instead of reading "To flower in years unborn" became "To fire the years unborn." The Critic, which points out these variations, however, insisted upon printing the first line with the error intact.

WILLIAM H. YOUNG, the respected bookseller of Troy, N. Y., talks of retiring from business. It is one year more than a half century ago that Mr. Young rose from the preliminary ranks of clerkship into proprietorship by the purchase of the book business of T. Clark, at 201 River Street, on the 1st of March, 1842. The firm at that time was Young & Hartt. While associated in partnership with different men in his present business for different periods of time, the greater part of his transactions have been conducted alone. During those fifty-one years Mr. Young, who is now seventy-five years old, has witnessed and been a participator in many of the great events of Troy's history. When he was twelve years old the first railroad in this country was built. There were no electric telegraph lines, no bridges at Troy and no motor cars then. Lafayette's visit to Troy in 1824 is a pleasant event in Mr. Young's memory. The book trade as well as his native city are proud of William H. Young, and while it is to be regretted that his withdrawal will end the long record of his business career at one place, it is conceded that he has richly earned an honored retirement.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce that the new novel upon which Gen. Lew Wallace has been long engaged is now completed, and that they have it in hand for publication early in the summer. Its title is "The Prince of India, or, why Constantinople fell," and it is described as "a stirring historical romance of the fifteenth century, brilliant with pictures of Oriental magnificence, and abounding in scenes of intrigue, statecraft and valor." As the leading motive of the work, the author has introduced a love-story in which heroism and adventure have parts, and the reader is taken through a succession of thrilling and unlooked-for episodes. While he was United States minister to Turkey, Gen. Wallace had special facilities for acquiring information, having secured access to the Turkish archives. In this way he acquired a knowledge of life and manners in the East which has enabled him to present a vivid and important picture of the period of which he treats. His "Ben-Hur" has reached a sale of half a million, and its popularity is unabated. They will publish this month "Primary Convictions," a discussion of the fundamental truths of religion, by Dr. William Alexander, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on March 18 "Tools and the Man," a thoughtful study of sociological and economic questions by Dr. Washington Gladden, who sets forth the law of pure and true Christianity as applied to current conditions of property and industry. He devotes chapters to the consideration of the Christianization of society, economics and Christian ethics, property in land, property in general, the labor question, scientific socialism, Christian socialism and kindred subjects, which are treated with sober thought and a clear insight into the social and economic problems of the day. Of a similar character is Nicholas Paine Gilman's "Socialism and the American Spirit," to be published simultaneously. Mr. Gilman treats the subject from a less ethical standpoint. He discusses the present position and probable future of socialism and social reform in the United States, outlining the principal characteristics of "The American Spirit" and defining its general attitude towards extreme socialistic theories. "Nationalism" and "Christian socialism" are criticised from this standpoint. In separate chapters he discusses the functions of the State, industrial partnership, social spirit, the way to Utopia, etc. On the same date will be published "The Gospel of Paul," by Charles Carroll Everett, dean of Harvard Divinity School, who presents what is believed to be a wholly new view of that apostle's doctrine of the atonement, based upon the most literal interpretation of his words, preceded by a study of the significance of sacrifice in ancient times with a survey of the history of the doctrine of atonement, and followed by an examination of Paul's philosophy of history; "The Story of Malta," by Maturin M. Ballou, an interesting account of that "maritime half-way house between Europe and Asia," which, in spite of its commercial importance, is little known to the world at large; and the 1893 edition of the "Satchel Guide for the Vacation Tourist in Europe," which, like its predecessors, covers the portions of Europe usually visited, and gives concise information on all points likely to be useful to travellers abroad. W. D. Howells' novel, "A Foregone Conclusion," will appear in the Riverside Paper Series at the same time. They have nearly ready the late T. W. Parsons' unfortunately incomplete translation of Dante, including the "Inferno" and the "Purgatorio" and a large part of the "Paradiso."

FOREIGN NOTES.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish during the summer Rider Haggard's new romance, "Montezuma's Daughter."

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish this year the second part of Lewis Carroll's story of "Sylvie and Bruno," of which the first part was published three years ago.

HORACE COX, London, will shortly have ready "Modern (Sporting) Dogs of Great Britain and Ireland," by Rawdon B. Lee, editor of the Field. It will be profusely illustrated by colotype prints from drawings by Arthur Warder.

ALPHONSE LEMERRE, of Paris, publishes an "Anthologie des Poètes Français du XIXe Siècle," which includes two Americans who have gained fame in Paris—Vièle Griffin, who was born in Virginia, and Stuart Merrill, who, according to the compiler, was born "at Hempstead, Island of Long Island, State of Arkansas."

WILLIAM ANDREWS & Co., Hull, England, are publishing by subscription a work entitled "Biblical and Shakespearian Characters Compared: studies in life and conduct," by Rev. James Bell, of Wycliffe Congregational Church, Hull, author of "George Eliot as a Novelist." The author's plan is to point out the striking resemblance under certain phases between Hebrew prophecy and the Shakespearian drama. The methods of dealing with life and character of the old Hebrew writers and of Shakespeare offer strong points of resemblance.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exiles of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

BOOKS WANTED.

 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

We desire once more to make an appeal to all our subscribers who send us copy for the "Books Wanted" department. This copy comes to us in every size and shape and in every variety of execrable handwriting. Getting this department ready for the printer consumes much valuable time, and the proof-reading is a feat in patience and guess-work. As already pointed out, our subscribers are requested to use a postal card, or in case of long lists paper of note size. On this nothing but the address and "want" is to be written, thus:

BOOKSELLER, NUMBER AND STREET, CITY AND STATE. [Cash.]

Ben-Hur. Harper.

The matter must be correctly worded and legibly written, as hereafter we shall be obliged to omit from our list such wants as are not easily deciphered.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will issue next week "Methods of Teaching Modern Languages." This book consists of a collection of papers by leading educators on the value and on methods of instruction.

THE WAVERLY CO. have just issued in their World Library a new novel by Paul Bourget, entitled "The Son" ("André Cornélis"). It is attractively bound in paper covers, imitating cloth. Bourget's other novels, "Cosmopolis," "The Disciple," "The Promised Land," etc., are also to be had in this series.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published "The History and Theory of Money," a series of twelve lectures in finance, with syllabus and attendant discussions, by Sidney Sherwood, Wharton School of Finance and Economy, University of Pennsylvania; and a new story by Rosa Nouchette Carey, entitled "But Men Must Work."

GINN & Co. have in press an essay on "Die Erhebung Europa's gegen Napoleon I.," by H. von Sybel, with introduction and notes adapting it for use in schools, by A. B. Nichols, of Harvard; also, "A Practical Course in English Composition," by Alphonso G. Newcomer, assistant professor of English in the Leland Stanford University, adapted for use in high schools and colleges.

BANGS & Co. call the attention of the trade to the sale by them of an important consignment of English remainders from Grant, of Edinburgh. The sale takes place on March 30. On April 16 and the following days they will dispose of a desirable portion of the stock of Mitchell's, 830 Broadway, which includes, besides many rare books, a fine selection of autographs, prints, etc. They will also sell, on March 23 and 24, the medical library of Dr. Morris H. Henry; and, on April 3 and 4, books from the collection of Chas. W. Frederickson, comprising works relating to drama, Shakespeariana, poetry, etc.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready: "National Life and Character: a forecast," by Charles H. Pearson, dealing with racial characteristics and the dangers and possibilities of political and national development; a second revised and cheaper edition of Prof. Skeats' "Etymological Dictionary of the English Language;" and Henry James' new volume of stories and sketches, which is entitled "The Real Thing." They are bringing out a new and cheaper edition of the Eversley Edition of Charles Kingsley's novels, to be published monthly. Of these "Westward Ho!" is just ready, in two volumes.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "White Birches," an American novel, by Annie Elliot; "Katherine North," a new story, by Maria Louise Pool; "Coffee and Repartee," a series of humorous sketches, by John Kendrick Bangs; and new editions of William Black's "White Wings," "Sunrise" and "That Beautiful Wretch." They have also just added to their Black and White Series "Giles Corey, Yeoman," a play founded upon incidents of the Salem witchcraft delusion, by Mary E. Wilkins, whose new story, "Betsey Somerset," will soon appear in Harper's Bazar; and "The Japanese Bride," by Naomi Tamura, a native of Japan.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have nearly ready "The Independent Treasury System of the United States," by Prof. David Kinley, of the University of Wisconsin. This volume is the first one in the Library of Economics and Politics, edited by Prof. Richard T. Ely, and will be a timely contribution to a subject of the greatest interest at the present time. Another important volume that Messrs. Crowell & Co. have nearly ready is "Philanthropy and Social Progress," seven essays delivered before the School of Applied Ethics, at Plymouth, Mass., by Miss Jane Adams, Father J. O. S. Huntington, Robert A. Woods, Prof. Franklin A. Giddings and Bernard Bosanquet, with an introduction by Prof. H. C. Adams, of Cornell University.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Ps. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Alger, Horatio, jr. Facing the world; or, the haps and mishaps of Harry Vane. Phil., Porter & Coates, [1898.] c. 2+318 p. 1l. D. cl., $1.25.

When Harry Vane's father died he left him in the guardianship of a certain John Fox, of Cobbrook, but after the lad arrived in that town a brief experience with his guardian led him to decide that "facing the world" would be preferable to living with Fox. His adventures after that make up an exciting and interesting story of land and sea.

Allen, Ja. Lane. John Gray: a Kentucky tale of the olden time. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1898. 218 p. por. D. cl., $1.

John Gray was a schoolmaster in Kentucky one hundred years ago. Disappointed in the girl whom he hoped to marry, he left Lexington and returned to his old home in Mount Vernon. At a most critical time he met George Washington, and from the life and character of the president of the United States he learned to live again. Mrs. Falconer, a lady who had followed her husband to Kentucky, a strong, noble woman, has great influence with John Gray, and her interest in him through her long, useful life is admirably and pathetically told.

*Ashby, H.; M.D., Wright, G. A., and Northrup, W. Parry. Diseases of children, medical and surgical. 2d ed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 22+771 p. 8°, cl., $5.

Baugs, J. Kendrick. Coffee and repartee. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 4+123 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

The scene of this witty series of dialogues was the breakfast-table of Mrs. Smither's high-class boarding-house for gentlemen; the characters were the boarders, variously designated by the author as the "Schoolmaster," the "Idiot," the "Minister," the "Bibliomaniac" and the "Doctor." The conversation dwells on many topics, "repartee," in which the "Idiot" carries off the honors, being a strong point with the boarders. The amusing text and equally amusing pictures first appeared on the back page of Harper's Bazar.

Bourget, Paul. The son, (André Cornélis.) N. Y., The Waverly Co., [1893.] c. 311 p. D. (World lib., no. 21.) pap., 50 c.

When André Cornélis was nine years old his father was murdered. Very shortly after his mother married again. A bundle of letters written by his father to his aunt, after sixteen years, makes André suspicious of his stepfather. He finds the man "had loved his mother madly enough to purchase her at the cost of the murder of his most intimate friend." The end is tragic and a subtle study in psychology. By the author of "Cosmopolis."

The author of The three Miss Kings tells another charming story of Australia. It is a single character study, sketched with power and delicacy; the "little minx" is the young wife of Jack Primrose who comes out from England to the Colonies to be curate to Archdeacon Brown. Jack has delicate lungs and Nancy is soon a widow having in the meantime excited the animosity of all the women and won the admiration of all the men through her beauty and vivacity. Her life has many other dramatic events after Jack dies, and a most unexpected ending.

Carey, Rosa Nouchette. But men must work. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1898. c. '92. 2-197 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 143.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story is related by Miss Osborne, a middle-aged governess, who is engaged to give lessons to a young lady curiously backward in ordinary studies, who lives with her mother and sister in a retired corner of a little village not far from London. That there is a mystery in the Hillyard family soon becomes evident to Miss Osborne, and also that this mystery is breaking the hearts of her pupil and her sister, and depriving them of their lovers; this secret the story very cleverly unravels.

Dr. Hugh Paul when house surgeon in a great London hospital is called to the accident ward and finds the wounded man is the titled head of a large city banking-house. Friendship follows between the doctor and his patient, a pessimistic woman-hater. Dr. Paul marries a peculiar character who is constantly probing and exhibiting her love for him. She is fiercely jealous and exacts upon her death-bed a promise that he will shoot himself. He is saved and the great romance of his life follows. His theory relates to souls and their powers in this world and the next, in which he looks for the solution of all problems.

Fawcett, Edgar. Loaded dice: a novel. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1898.] c. '91. 2-288 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Three Americans (two men and a woman), a French sharper, and an innocent young English girl are the actors in a highly sensational drama which takes place in Paris. The central figure is a beautiful American woman with a past, who has been the mistress of one of the men and wishes to marry his rich friend, but is balked in her plans by the "sharper," of whom she had hoped to make a tool as easily as she had won his love. The English girl is caught in the net for a while, but escapes with the aid of one of the Americans. The ending is tragical, justice being done swiftly and surely.

- Dr. Paul Gifford, who accompanied an exploring expedition to the very centre of the Australian Continent in 1874, became detached from his party, and after many hardships and adventures found himself in the midst of the fabled Fallen Race, the Anonos of Australia, who appeared like huge balls, covered with hair and with small paws and legs, and were nearer animals than human beings. The Great White Queen who ruled over them is a reminiscence of Haggard's "She." The whole story is a vivid effort of the imagination.

- "The real thing," the opening story, relates with delicate humor the perplexities of an artist who accepts as models two elderly society people whose penniless condition drives them to this method of gaining a living. The second story "Sir Dominick Ferrand," is based upon a package of papers found in an old day-
- enport bought at second-hand by a literary man; its mystery is cleverly managed. The other stories are: "Nona Vincent," "The chaperon" and "Greville Fane." They are all of London life, touching slightly its artistic and literary side.

- Lysaght, Sidney Royse. The marplot. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. c. 4+425 p. D. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.
- "Connie," a pretty but ignorant little girl whom Dick Malory first notices in the ring of a travelling circus, is the "marplot" not only of his life but of the lives of others. Connie runs away from the circus and leads a chequered life in London, singing and dancing in cheap concert halls, and joining her life finally with that of a poor socialist, with whom she lives without the marriage ceremony. Dick meets her again in London, and without knowing to what depths she has sunk marries her to reform her. Dick Malory and his friends are the best types of young English men and women; the scenes are mostly from English country life.

The arguments offered in these seven sermons by the rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., give in small compass and popular language "sufficient reasons to any candid inquirer for accepting Jesus of Nazareth as the Son of God and the Saviour of the world."

Mann, Rev. Cameron. The comments at the cross: six Lent sermons. N. Y., T. Whittaker, [1893.] c. 5+121 p. D. cl., net, 60 c.

By the rector of Grace Church, Kansas City, Mo. The sermons take for text the sayings of those who watched Christ during the crucifixion, and are called "The comment of indifference," "The comment of hatred," "The comment of despair," "The comment of faith," "The comment of superstition" and "The comment of thought." In the appendix is a sermon on "The comment of love."

The hero of the first and longest story is a wild young Irishman named Terence Fitzgerald, who inherits a lonely neglected place in Ireland, with a proviso attached to it that the heir makes it his home for four consecutive months of each year. Wrostell Castle possesses a ghost with its many other gruesome peculiarities, and is anything but a cheerful home for Terry's bright young French bride, whom he brings there for the honeymoon. Jealousy and enmity bring about a strange succession of circumstances in which the young couple figure.

The translator in his introduction says: "Prof. Meitzen's work represents a full statement of theoretical statistics in a small compass. The work covers systematically the whole field of statistical theory. Statistics, as defined by the author, is a method of scientific investigation by means of enumeration of objects and the numerical comparison of the results of such enumeration. They may be applied to any field of knowledge if the necessary conditions present." Two parts, entitled "History of Statistics" and "Theory and Technique of Statistics," heretofore bound separately in paper, are now offered in one volume at a reduced price.

Parton, Ja. General Jackson. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 332 p. por. D. (Great commanders ser., no. 8.) cl., $1.50.

The last literary work of James Parton was the preparation of this brief biography of General Jackson. It was completed in August, 1891, two months before his death. It is the successor of many valuable American biographies that we have had from his pen, all popular in character, unconventional and impartial in judgment. Although less ambitious in scope than some of Mr. Parton's previous volumes, it presents a fair estimate of its subject, and is singularly free from what Macaulay calls "the disease of admiration." The editor calls it "a model miniature biography, possessing throughout all the interest of a romance."

Pool, Maria Louise. Katharine North: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. '92. 4+312 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Another New England character study, in line with "Roweny in Boston" and "Mrs. Keats Bradford." Katharine North is an inexperienced country girl who is pursued by her strong-minded mother to become the fourth wife of Jeacon Grove. She runs away from her husband directly after the marriage ceremony, and with another girl goes to "South Shore," a summer resort on Massachusetts Bay, and becomes a waiter in a restaurant. Here she first meets her aunt, a lecturer on woman's wrongs, who strongly influences her life. Her father furnishes the tragic element of the story, in a sudden attempt he makes to rid his unhappy daughter of her uncongenial husband.

- *Proctor, R. A. Old and new astronomy: complete by A. Cowper Ranyard. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 8+813 p. maps, pl. il. diagrams, 8<sup>c</sup>, cl., $12.
- *Quain, Jones. Quain's elements of anatomy: ed. by E. A. Schaefer and G. D. Thane. In 3 v. V. 3, pt. 1, The spinal cord and brain, by E. A. Schaefer. 10th ed. Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 4+219 p. il. 8<sup>c</sup>, cl., $4.
- Rainy, Rob., D.D. The epistle to the Philippians. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1893. 5+368 p. O. (Expositor's Bible, new [6th] ser.) cl., $1.50.
- The author is principal of New College, Edinburgh. This exposition of Paul's Epistle to the Philippians is rich in human interest, as the Apostle's teaching repeatedly touches on the question, "How the problem of practical human life on this earth is to be conceived and dealt with under the light and the influences of Christianity?"
- Read, Opie P., ["Arkansaw traveller," pseud.] Miss Madam, and other sketches. Chic., F. T. Neely, [1893.] 4-318 p. D. (Neely's lib. of choice literature, v. 2, no. 3.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.
- Twenty-nine short stories about the west and south-west, by the author of "A Kentucky colonel."
- Rives, Amélie, [now Mrs. J. Armstrong Chanler.] Athelwold. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 5+118 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.
- The play has its scene laid in Anglo-Saxon England, some time during the ninth century. The leading characters are Edgar, King of England, Athelwold, Thane of Edgar, Oswald, a priest, and Elfreda, daughter of the Earl of Devonshire. Elfreda, loved both by the King and Athelwold, is the motive for a thrilling tragedy. The author shows exquisite powers of description and characterization. Finely printed on wide margined linen paper.
- Roberts, R. D. The earth's history: an introduction to modern geology. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 20+270 p. maps, il. D. (University extension manuals.) cl., $1.50.
- A sketch of the methods and chief results of geological inquiry such as a reader interested in the subject for its own sake would desire to obtain. The work is not intended to be a text-book of geology, nor is it designed with a view to the requirements of any examination. Much of the material had been used in courses of university extension lectures, by Prof. Roberts, who is university lecturer on geology in the University of Cambridge.
- Saltus, Edgar. Madam Sapphira: a Fifth Avenue story. Chic., F. T. Neely, [1893.] c. 5-251 p. D. (Neely's lib. of choice literature, v. 2, no. 6.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.
- The duplicity of a Fifth Avenue wife towards her husband, easily earns for her the title of "Madam Sapphira" bestowed upon her by the author. Fond of life and pleasure, and tiring of her husband, she cleverly conceives and executes a heartless and unprincipled plot against him to obtain a divorce. Contemporary society life in New York City gives the setting to the story.
- Sarcey, Francisque. Recollections of middle life; [from the French.] by Elizabeth Luther Cary. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 12+307 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.
- Mr. E. Cary gives in an introduction a brief sketch of Sarcey's career. Francisque Sarcey has been for more than thirty years teacher, journalist, dramatic critic, novelist and lecturer, an eager and fortunate member of that society in Paris which embraces men of letters, artists and the extremely varied class of men of genius. Aside from his own interesting personality, which lends many illustrations, his book sheds new light on some phases of French life not often easily studied. This volume may be considered a sequel to Souvenirs de Jeunesse published in 1885.
- Savage, Minot J. The evolution of Christianity. Boston, G. H. Ellis, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 4-178 p. D. cl., $1.
- Twelve discourses, namely: Old world religion; Judaism and its hopes; Conditions when Christianity was born; Jesus and what he attempted; The influence of the Christ idea; The first church and Paul; The problem of the Trinity; The church of Rome; Growth away from Jesus; The Protestant resolution; Science and the church; Free Christianity.

Schubin, Ossip, [pseud. for Lola Kirschner.] A leafless spring; after the German, by Mary J. Safford. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 295 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A young Englishman reduced to living on £200 a year considers himself ruined. He goes to Paris to study painting as a means of living. He meets a beautiful Italian model who behaves mysteriously and mars his life. He marries a sedate, respectable, rich English cousin and on his wedding tour again meets his fate. The end is sensational and tragic. The descriptions of English women and middle-class conventionality show keen observation and humor.

Sergeant, Adeline. Christine: a novel. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 2-325 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Colonel Lingard, an English military man holding a high command in Egypt, had long been estranged from his brother's widow and children; desiring a reconciliation he invites his niece Christine to come out and spend the winter with him. He has a plan to marry her to a handsome young soldier, a favorite protégé, but death carries him off very suddenly a few days before her arrival. The complications arising out of this proposed alliance, and the loss of Christine's inheritance, for a claimant appears who says he is the colonel's son, furnish ample material for a good story.

Smith, Albert W. Constructive materials of engineering. Palo Alto, Cal., Palo Alto Press, Leland Stanford Junior University, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 4+82 p. D. pap., 80 c.

"This work is the outgrowth of lectures before the students in mechanical engineering at Cornell University, the University of Wisconsin and Leland Stanford Junior University. The object is to give the student a start toward that understanding which shall enable him to select materials best adapted for machine parts subjected to different working conditions. Effort has been made to omit all unessential details, and to treat of underlying principles only. Bibliography appended (2 p.)."—Preface.

Tamura, Naomi. The Japanese bride. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 6+92 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

Japanese home life is frankly pictured in a series of chapters entitled: "Why do we marry?" "Courting." "The go-between." "Preparation for the wedding." "The honeymoon." "Bride and bridegroom at home." "Mother and grandmother." The sketches are not quite so rose-colored as those we received from Sir Edwin Arnold.

Trenholm, W. L. The people's money. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 15+280 p. D. cl., $1.50.

This volume was written "not for the learned, or for those who are versed in economic literature, but for the large number of plain people who desire to get some practical ideas upon the important subjects to which it relates." It has chapters upon industry, commerce, finance, etc.; Cash and credit; Money; Legal tender; Coined money; Bank-note circulation; Value; The gold standard.

Trumbull, H. Clay. The blood covenant: a primitive rite and its bearing on Scripture. 2d ed., with a supplement. Phil., J. D. Wattles, 1893. c. '85, '93. 9+390 p. O. cl., $2.

Originally published by C. Scribner's Sons, 1885. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Oct. 17, '85, [718.] The present edition contains thirty additional pages containing a new line of facts which further investigation in the same general field revealed to the writer.

United States Army. Infantry drill regulations, adopted Oct. 3, 1891. [Special ed.] N. Y., Army and Navy Journal, 1893. c. '91. 353+44 p. Tt. pap., 50 c.

This edition of the new infantry drill regulations, published by the Army and Navy Journal differs from others in having an appendix of forty-four pages giving the interpretations to many questions in the new drill. These interpretations were made by Lieut. J. T. French, Jr., 4th U. S. Art., recorder of the board which prepared the new drill.

Upham, Arthur A. Fifty lessons in wood-working. N. Y., E. L. Kellogg & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 99 p. il. S. cl., 50 c.

Outlines a short course in manual training such as is possible in a school for both boys and girls of fourteen years of age or upwards. Forty-five minutes a day are to be devoted to the work.

*Utah. Supreme ct. Reports of cases from the June term, 1890, to the Jan. term, 1892. J. M. Zane, rep. V. 7. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1892. c. '93. 21+578 p. O. shp., $6.

Verne, Jules. L'Expédition de la Jeune-Hardie; ed. with notes, vocabulary and appendices, by W. S. Lyon. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893. 5-84+12 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 25 c.

*Villemain, M. Souvenirs des cent jours; ed. with notes by Granville Sharp. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 6+188 p. 12°, cl., 75 c.

Vincent, J. H., (Bp.) In search of his grave: an Easter study. Meadville, Pa., Flood & Vincent, [The Chautauqua Century Press.] 1893. c. 32 p. il. S. pap., 30 c.

The exact site of Jesus Christ's suffering and death and the place of his interment are lost to the historian, although there are many theories on the subject. This little monograph deals with these various views, and gives interesting descriptions of several visits made by Bishop Vincent to Jerusalem at different times since 1868.

Warfield, B. B., D.D. The canon of the New Testament: how and when formed. Phil., American S. S. Union, [1893.] c. '92. 12 p. D. leatherette, 10 c.

Dr. Warfield's statement of the way our New Testament books came to be regarded as the word of God is clear and definite; it was written for the average Sunday-school worker.

Wells, J. D., D.D. The pastor in the sick-room: three lectures delivered at Princeton Theological Seminary, March, 1892. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1893.] c. 4-128 p. S. cl., 50 c.

Wendell, Barrett. Were the Salem witches guiltless? A paper read before the Essex Institute, February 29, 1892; from the historical collections of the Essex Institute, v. 29, 1892. Salem, Mass., [The Salem Press Pub. and Print. Co.] 1892 [1893.] 2+19 p. O. pap., 50 c.

The writer's conclusions are that the so-called Salem "witches" did use an apparently supernatural power over their victims—and it was what we know to-day as hypnotism. Mr. Wendell is the author of two novels, "Duchess Emilia" and "Runkell's remains."

Wilcox, Mrs. Ella Wheeler. Was it suicide? Chic., F. T. Neely, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 6-164 p. D. (Neely's popular lib., v. 1, no. 10.) cl., $1; pap., 25 c.

"Was it suicide?" which illustrates through a love-tale why marriage is sometimes a failure, is the opening tale only of a collection which includes "Dave's wife," "An angel's whisper," "The old man's Christmas," etc.

Wilkins, Miss Mary E. Giles Corey, Yeoman: a play. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 2+108 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

A play founded on the persecution of the Salem witches in 1692. In the conversation of about a dozen characters Miss Wilkins sets vividly before her readers the superstitions and the high religious feeling of the old days she describes. A quaint love-story brightens the gloom. A young child learning to be a witch furnishes an element of ghastly humor.

*Wood, Mrs. H. Danesbury House; with an introd. preface by Frances E. Willard and Lady H. Somerset. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1893. 294 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Woolley, J. G. Seed: number one hard: six speeches; introd. by Frances E. Willard and Lady H. Somerset. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893. c. 8+149 p. D. cl., $1.

This book is the gift of its publishers to Rest Island Mission, Rest Island, Minnesota, a "sanctuary" established by the author for the restoration of men fallen through drink. All profit arising from the sale will be donated to the Mission. The six speeches consist of: 1st, Number one hard; 2d, Christian patriotism; 3d, Gospel temperance; 4th, "Thy bottle;" 5th, "Wine is a mocker;" 6th, A larger view of gospel temperance.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

MARCH 18, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

BOOKSELLERS' EXAMINATIONS AND SCHOOLS.

WE are at last in a position to satisfy the curiosity of a number of our readers by placing before them the series of questions propounded by the council of the London Booksellers' Society at their examinations last fall.

For the Preliminary Examinations for assistants under 21 years of age eight candidates presented themselves, one young lady being among the number. Fourteen candidates offered themselves for the Advanced Examinations. The time for the Preliminary Examination was from 7:15 P.M. to 9 o'clock, and everything passed off to the satisfaction of the examiners, who were D. B. Friend, David Stott, J. Ellis and J. Shaylor.

In deciding the value of the answers given the examiners placed a pro rata value on each question, making a total of 160 for the sixteen examination questions; taking this as a basis they found the number of marks gained by the lowest candidate to be 35 and the highest 94.

As the marks obtained were so few they considered that the money prizes should be withheld but that a certificate of merit be given to two candidates.

In summing up the results of the examination the examiners do not think they were so satisfactory as might have been anticipated; in many papers a great want of power was shown in grasping some of the questions laid before the candidates, a lack was also displayed in manipulating figures, and a general deficiency in the knowledge of trade terms. Should the examinations be continued they think more publicity should be given to them; this might stimulate the candidates to work up their knowledge in matters connected with literature and the bookselling trade, and would in all probability lead to results more satisfactory both to the examiners and to the examined.

The questions were as follows:

PRELIMINARY.

- 1.—Give the names of 12 living novelists, and mention two works by each author, with the publishers and prices.
- 2.—If you were asked to recommend a good dictionary and a good cookery-book, whose would you mention?
- 3.—Give the net cost of books offered 13/12, at sale less 5 per cent., and selling at 1/-, 2/6, 3/6.
- 4.—What is the difference in profit on books bought 13/12 and 25/24 beyond those bought without any odd copy?
- 5.—Write out the names of the authors of the following works: "Robinson Crusoe," "Little Arthur's History of England," "Don Quixote," "Gulliver's Travels," "Gil Blas," "Sandford and Merton," "Peep of Day," "Paul and Virginia."
- 6.—Give the names of the authors and publishers of the following: "Four Winds Farm," "In the Days of Thy Youth," "Handley Cross," "Yeast," "Wealth of Nations," "Rise of Dutch Republic," "Christian Year," "Pleasures of Life."
- 7.—Name one work of each of the following authors: Andrew Lang, A. Trollope, W. Black, F. Max Müller, Mrs. E. Marshall, John Milton, George Eliot, W. Besant, G. R. Sims, W. M. Thackeray, Q. E. Burke, T. De Quincey, C. Kingsley, E. J. Worboise.
- 8.—Distinguish between: "None done up" and "Binding," "Reprinting" and "Out of print at present," "None in town" and "Not kept in town."
- 9.—Fill in the scrip and sale of the following retail prices: 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/-, 15/-, 16/-, 20/-, 21/-, 25/-, 32/-.
- 10.—Give the names of 12 living and 12 dead poets, and mention the principal poem of each.
- 11.—Give the equivalents of the following terms: "Beatitudes," "Pentateuch," "Decalogue," "Canticles," "Apocalypse," "Septuagint."
- 12.—Make out cash invoice for the following at sale, less 5 per cent.: 2 at 5/-, 7/6½ at 3/6, 2 at 2/6, 4 at 4/-, 2 at 10/6.
- 13.—Describe some different styles of binding.
- 14.—Give titles, prices and publishers of twenty standard biographies.
- 15.—Give real names of the following pen-names: Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, Lewis Carroll, Thomas Ingoldsby, Sam Slick, Uncle Remus, Author of John Halifax, Owen Meredith, "Boz," Michael A. Titmarsh, Christopher North, A. K. H. B., Ouida, M. E. Braddon, G. A. S.

- 16.—Quote title of work and author in which the following are introduced as characters: Becky Sharp, Sam Weller, Ursula March, Sairey Gamp, Jeannie Deans, Dinah Morris.
- 17.—Quote various styles of types in order of size from smallest to largest.
- 18.—Give author, title, publisher and price of three each students' text-books on geology, physiology, botany.

The Advanced Examination was more satisfactory, though it fell far short of the expectations of the council. The examiners placed a pro rata value upon each question, making a total of 160 for the fourteen examination questions. Taking this as a basis, the number of marks gained by the lowest candidate was 22 and the highest 89. A very fair knowledge was shown of the technicalities of the trade, and an intelligent comprehension of the questions. Certificates of merit were awarded to four of the candidates and prizes of £1 each were given to the two highest candidates.

The following were the questions proposed:

ADVANCED.

- 1.—Give titles, prices, and publishers of principal works of: Freeman, Professor; Froude, J. A.; Scott, Sir W.; Smiles, S.; Spencer, H.; Carlyle, T.; Arnold (Matthew); Max Müller, F.; Darwin, C.; Farrar (Archdeacon); Church, A. J.; Lang, Andrew; Fenn, G. M.
- 2.—Give the authors, titles, and publishers of twelve leading works in both theology and science.
- 3.—Write a business reply to the following inquiry: "Have you in stock any works on evolution, or can you give me any information as to who are the best authorities on this subject, with the titles and prices of their works?"
- 4.—Write out an invoice for the following books at sale, less  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., and show sorting: 13/12 "Hurst & Blackett's 5/- Series," 2 "Light of the World," Arnold, 4 "Lang's Letters on Literature," 1 "Dictionary National Biography," Vol. 15, 4 Dickens, at 4/-, 5 Dickens, at 3/6, 4 Dickens, at 3/-.
- 5.—Give the titles of 12 books which may be considered English classics.
- 6.—Give the names of 12 living and 12 dead poets, mention their principal poems, with anything characteristic concerning the poet.
- 7.—Give the names of the authors and publishers of the following works: "Areopagitica," "Faerie Queen," "Queen Mab," "Ecclesiastical Polity," "Yellow Plush Papers," "Evelina," "Pamela," "Piers the Ploughman," "Joseph Andrews," "Headlong Hall."
- 8.—Give the principal technical terms used in the trade, and distinguish between: "None done up" and "Binding," "Reprinting" and "Out of print at present," "None in town" and "Not kept in town."
- 9.—Mention the names of 12 of the principal authors in France, and give the title of one of their translated works.
- 10.—Give the titles of 10 of the most suitable books for an assistant to read, to help him towards proficiency in his business.
- 11.—Give the names of 20 well-known authors of America, and give the titles of some of their works.
- 12.—Give the net cost of each copy of books offered 13/12 at sale, less 5 per cent., selling at 5/-, 7/6, 10/6.
- 13.—Give the names of 12 living novelists, and 12 deceased, and mention two works by each author, with their price and publisher.
- 14.—Mention the authors, titles, prices, and publishers of 12 histories of England, or periods of English history, and give their leading tendencies.

Although the number of candidates presenting themselves for examination was disappointingly small, 150 letters received since show that some interest was taken in the examination. Many of these letters come from clerks who had neither the time nor money required for a trip to London for examination. When these examinations come to be more clearly understood there can be no doubt that their great advantages will be realized. There is still much doubt in the minds of those who should be interested as to the true aim and object of the Booksellers' Society. It does not guarantee positions to applicants, but offers them facilities to acquire the general and technical knowledge that will make their work more valuable to their employers and in the end make them more sought after and better paid.

Leipzig has a thriving Booksellers' Institute, or school, that was founded in 1852 by George Friedrich Fleischer. His daughter, who died in 1891, willed the school a fund of 50,000 marks, which is known as the George Friedrich Fleischer endowment, the interest of which goes to the institute. The students of this school must all be in the employ of Leipzig booksellers, and that their regular duties may not be interfered with the hours of instruction are from 6 to 8 A.M. during the summer and from 7 to 9 A.M. during the winter months. The discipline is strict. Students must appear every working-day in the year and are only excused upon presentation of a written excuse signed by their employers. The fees for instruction only amount to 30 marks (about $8) a year. This sum is paid in two instalments by the employer. The school is graded into three classes and the studies taken are German, French and English, history of literature, general history, physical and mental and moral sciences, natural history, arithmetic and book-keeping. There is a staff of eight teachers. The institute publishes a biennial report. The average attendance is between 130 and 150. The graduating exercises take place during the spring and the director of the institution always makes an address to the graduating class that dwells upon the duties and responsibilities of the vocation the graduates have chosen and inspires them to look upon their calling as a profession and an art in which their highest talents can be called into use. Manner, good address and other valuable qualities needed in a good salesman may perhaps not be guaranteed in the curriculum of study, but the German bookseller is almost forced to acquire accurate knowledge of his wares, and by a liberal education is taught to test and appreciate and judge of his wares as literature. The inhabitants of the small towns of France and Germany look upon their booksellers as literary guides and friends. These know their customers and know the books that will appeal to them, and bookbuyers very seldom go beyond their own township or county to get the books they read, a system that has great educational and business advantages.

A booksellers' school like this one in Leipsic, modified to suit our American needs, would seem to be within reach of the trade, if its necessity and its advantages were understood and if it were started in the right place by the right people. At first thought it would be difficult to name ever so small a number of booksellers in any locality who are really well-informed enough to be instructors; and where could we find 150 booksellers' apprentices who would sufficiently realize what they were getting to make them get up early and work late at the lessons required in a way that would not interfere with their employers' time! Yet we have enough confidence in the enterprise of the younger members of our trade to assert that if proper opportunity were offered enough applicants and support could be found to make such a school a success. We need only point to the flourishing condition of the library schools, which but a few years ago were looked upon as Quixotic and unpractical. Yet through the enthusiasm and persistency of one individual these institutions have not only grown in importance and value to the library profession but in numbers as well.

It is generally understood that the sale of the books of the hour cannot support a book-store and to sell the classics and books of information on which money is made it is necessary to have a knowledge of their contents as well as of the technical business details of discounts, billing, book-keeping, etc.

Our public is becoming more and more of a reading public, its interests are widening and it needs competent providers of mental food, not to say guidance in its choice. Young men should look upon bookselling as a profession not only as great as that of a doctor, lawyer or clergyman, but really covering all these three and many more if carried on in a spirit conscious of its possibilities! The bookseller is more! According to the editor of the New York Sun, he "is a civilizing force." Are we living up to that ideal? Will the coming generation, without better education than is provided for it now, be able to maintain the standard?

THE BOOK TRADES AT THE COLUMBIAN EXHIBITION.

THE German book trade will be represented at the Columbian Exhibition at Chicago by exhibits from 325 firms, including every publishing house of any importance at all. A feature of their exhibit, which will be held in the "Deutsche Haus," already described in our issue for February 4, will be a representative library for an educated family of ample means. This library will embrace 182 works in 316 volumes, at a total cost of 3000 marks, or about $750. The library is intended besides to present as complete and varied a view as possible of literary activity and development in Germany. Only the best editions will be admitted, and these will be bound in the best style of German bibliopegic art. The library will be in nine groups: (1) collected works; (2) poetry and anthologies; (3) fiction; (4) illustrated works and éditions de luxe; (5) history; (6) travels, geography and natural history; (7) literature, art, music and philosophy; (8) miscellaneous; (9) educational. The exhibit will be made in a specially designed niche of the salon of the Reichs Kommissar.

The French book-trade exhibit has pre-empted a space in the galleries of the Department of Liberal Arts and Manufactures which is 45 metres long and 17 wide, lighted by six large windows overlooking Lake Michigan. Thirty-eight firms are to take part in the exhibition, which is to be held under the auspices of the Cercle de la Librairie, the details of arrangements having been left to the competent planning of M. Emil Terquem.

Compared with Germany and France the English and American book trades will make a less imposing showing. Though the more important firms will no doubt be represented, the exhibits of these countries will, unlike the collective exhibits of the former two, be purely individual, thus detracting from them the one element of interest that attaches to exhibits of this kind. It will later perhaps be found a matter of regret that the book trade, of this country at least, should have been content to let the matter of collective exhibit go by default. Not only should the publishing trade have been represented as a unit, but with it should have been associated the allied book-making trades, in order that the progress in the literary quality as well as the grace and finish externally of our book production during the three decades since our Centennial Exhibition might have been made evident to the world. As this has been neglected, we trust that those who have taken space will make special efforts to have their exhibits as representative as possible.

AN AMERICAN PATERNOSTER ROW.

FIFTH AVENUE below Twenty-third Street in New York is rapidly becoming the American Paternoster Row. Beginning at the lower end we find Macmillan & Co. laying the foundation of a fine building on the avenue just below Thirtieth Street; C. L. Webster & Co., W. B. Harison, Brandus & Co. and the New York offices of Ginn & Co. and Leach, Shewell & Sanborn are in the same neighborhood. Further up, at No. 112, near Sixteenth Street, we find the New York offices and warehouses of Fleming H. Revell Company, who have just removed to that point; at No. 114, the handsome new store of James Pott & Co.; at No. 150, on the corner of Twentieth Street, the handsome building of the Methodist Book Concern with Hunt & Eaton's handsome book-store, and the International Bible Co., and at No. 182, near Twenty-third Street, the publishing house of Anson D. F. Randolph & Co., with its attractive and well-stocked retail department.

On the side streets east of the avenue, running across to Union Square, we find on Tenth Street Wm. Wood & Co., A. C. Armstrong & Son, John Wiley & Son, the University Publishing Co., Lovell, Coryell & Co., the New York office of L. Prang & Co., Maynard, Merrill & Co. and Fords, Howard & Hulbert. On Twelfth Street, Ward, Lock, Bowden & Co. On Fourteenth Street, Thos. Y. Crowell & Co., A. Lovell & Co., J. A. Hill & Co., J. W. Schermerhorn & Co., D. C. Heath & Co. and Isaac Pitman & Son. On Sixteenth Street, Longmans, Green & Co., the United States Book Co. and the New York office of the John Church Co. On Seventeenth Street, The Century Company, Thomas Nelson & Sons, Tait, Sons & Co., Brentano's (who will be at the corner of Sixteenth Street and Union Square, West, in a couple of weeks), Breitkopf & Härtel, Novello, Ewer & Co., the New York office of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., the Catholic Publication Society Co. and Richmond & Croscup. On Eighteenth Street, McLoughlin Brothers. On Nineteenth Street, Dodd, Mead & Co. On Twenty-first Street, Fowler & Wells Co., M. L. Holbrook and George M. Allen & Co. On Twenty-second Street, the Reformed Church Board, and on Twenty-third Street, west of the avenue, Geo. P. Putnam's Sons, Henry Holt & Co., E. P. Dutton & Co., Fred. A. Stokes Co., G. W. Dillingham, Wm. J. Kelly, Town Topics Publishing Co. and E. S. Werner. Several other houses are now looking for quarters in this circle, and additions to the above list may be expected about the first of May next.

Besides those mentioned are the publishing offices of The Judge, Frank Leslie's, etc., and Mrs. Leslie's own publications, The Forum, North American Review, Town Topics, Truth and The Cosmopolitan. On Union Square, West, or one block from Fifth Avenue, are the publishing offices and retail stores of Wm. A. Pond & Co., G. Schirmer, R. A. Saalfeld and Edward Schubert & Co., publishers and importers of music. Art is represented by Charles Klackner, George M. Allen Co., Jellineck & Jacobson, Geo. F. Kelly & Co. and Radtke, Lauckner & Co.

COMMUNICATIONS.

WARNING TO NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: As I am one of your oldest subscribers I suppose you will give this short communication a place in your columns, but do not, I beg, let any one know who writes it, as I would not like to advertise myself as an innocent who may be caught twice in the same trap.

The first time he called—some ten or twelve years ago—he was Mr. Tuttle, an engraver. He was then a good-looking, well-dressed young gentleman of the Y. M. C. A. variety. It was about shutting-up time and too late for him to get into some place where, of course, he could get any amount of money, and he wanted a small loan to enable him to get home—some place up the river; and I took pride in loaning him sixty cents, the amount he named as necessary to promptly restore him to perhaps an anxious mammy. I have not yet forgotten how he looked then, but when he called a few weeks ago I failed to recognize him. Time, which had not brought me wisdom, had dealt not severely with him. He was still fairly well dressed and presented the appearance of a well-kept, middle-aged man of business. I had put out the lights and put on my overcoat and hat and was just leaving my place of business to catch a train home when he called and introduced himself as Mr. Pinner, of the Photogravure Co. He said he had been to Brooklyn, had spent all his change and been detained, and as it was too late to get into his place of business, wanted seventy-five cents to get home to New Brunswick. I was in too much of a hurry to give the matter much thought, but made bold to inquire why he came to me. He said because he was an engraver and I a bookseller, and seemed to think he had the same kind of claim on me that a doctor has on an undertaker. I loaned him the money, but a minute later would have sold my claim on Pinner for two cents, and thrown in as a chromo my old claim on Tuttle. As I walked along towards home I thought of my friends Tuttle and Pinner for a while in parallel columns until their duality faded away, and I could see clearly that they were one and the same. Verily New York is the paradise of thieves. This fellow has been working the same racket for at least ten years, and is now going over his ground a second time. Look out for him.

BOOKSELLER.

NAME OF AUTHOR WANTED.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Feb. 27, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: When THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY was the American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular, years ago, I was much interested in the letters of "G. S.," which appeared regularly in the Gazette under the title "Our Continental Correspondence." I frequently reread these numbers and should like to know the full name of "G. S." Can you give it to me through your columns? Very truly yours,

WM. VAN SITTERT.

[We regret that we cannot give the desired information. Mr. G. W. Childs, who edited the American Literary Gazette during the time that "G. S." furnished the continental correspondence, also confesses that, as he has been so long out of business, the name has entirely escaped his memory. Possibly some of our older readers may remember the name.—Ed. P. W.]

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. DR. ANDREW P. PRABODY, for thirty-five years connected with the faculty of Harvard College, died in Boston, March 10, aged 82 years. He was the author of "Lectures on Christian Doctrine" (1844), "Sermons of Consolation" (1847), "Conversation: its faults and its graces" (1856), "Christianity the Religion of Nature" (1864), "Sermons for Children" (1866), "Reminiscences of European Travel" (1868), etc. He was a contributor to the Whig Review from 1837 to 1859, was editor of the North American Review from 1852 to 1861, and contributed frequently to religious and educational journals and magazines.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HENRY IRVING's elder son is occupied in writing a life of Judge Jeffreys, the "Wicked Judge."

MISS EMILY LAWLESS, the author of "Grania," so the London Bookman learns, is very seriously ill and may not be able to work again.

LORD RONALD GOWER is about to publish a monograph on Joan of Arc to be accompanied by ten etchings of places and buildings associated with her life.

A SPECIALLY interesting chapter in the life of the late Lord Tennyson, upon which the Hon. Hallam Tennyson is now engaged, will be contributed by Mr. Frederick Locker-Lampson, the author of "London Lyrics." Mr. Locker-Lampson's daughter (now Mrs. Augustine Birrell) was formerly the wife of the Hon. Lionel Tennyson. Mr. Locker-Lampson's contribution to the life of Lord Tennyson will consist chiefly of personal reminiscences.

IN a note to the New York Sun Henry George denies the current report that he will fill a consulship or other office under the new national administration. During the year Mr. George will write a general work on political economy, wherein his views of capital and wages, of land-ownership and taxation, will be developed in their bearings upon the other elements of economy. Mr. George's last book, "A Perplexed Philosopher," in which he severely castigated Mr. Herbert Spencer, is already in its second edition. Although favorably received by the public, the critics take exception to the style of this book as lacking the calm dignity which hitherto has characterized its author.

DAVID A. WELLS is engaged upon his well-planned work on taxation, one-third of which is now written. The chapters will probably appear serially in the Popular Science Monthly before being issued in book form. Serial publication, however, will not begin until the whole work is out of its author's hands. Mr. Wells intends to make his presentation thoroughly popular, and the discussion of theory will be introduced by an interesting historical sketch, and by noteworthy examples of taxation good and bad. His experience and success in the reform of national taxation and his life-long study of fiscal questions give him the foremost place among American authorities on taxation. His work will appeal to the constantly widening circle of readers who desire that public burdens shall be just, and who therefore wish to understand the principles of equity in taxation.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ANNISTON, ALA.—Wm. H. Zinn has sold his stock of books and stationery to Samuel Seaton.

BOSTON, MASS.—Charles F. Gould, of New York, was appointed on the 15th inst. temporary ancillary receiver of the property of the United States Book Company situated in Massachusetts by Justice Knowlton in the Superior Court. The court will hear parties on next Tuesday on the matter of making Mr. Gould's appointment a permanent one. It is reported here that John W. Lovell is making arrangements to re-establish himself in the publishing business, and that he has the plates of 100 books to start with.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—George A. Hall & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

MADISONVILLE, KY.—L. R. Woolfolk, bookseller and stationer, is selling out.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—William Keye, bookseller, is dead.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—H. T. Hutchinson & Co., the well-known booksellers, have issued a souvenir of the opening of their new store at 198-200 Union St., presenting views of the three stores occupied by them since they began business. The first view shows their modest "Cheapside Book-Store" on Cheapside now Pleasant St., occupied by them from 1864 to 1875. The second shows S. Hutchinson's Book and Stationery Store at 142 (now 194) Union St. The third introduces us to their handsome new quarters opened February 7, 1893. The new store, judging from the photogravure illustration, seems to be of metropolitan proportions, and will no doubt become a favorite resort of New Bedford book-lovers.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Critic Co.'s sign was hung up, on March 4, above the third-story windows of the Scribner Building, 743-745 Broadway. The offices of The Critic now occupy the suite of rooms formerly occupied by The Magazine of American History, and still earlier by the art department of The Century. Scribner's Magazine and The Book Buyer are published in the same building; and the offices of McClure's Magazine also are there.

OXFORD, N. Y.—J. B. Galpin, bookseller and stationer and proprietor of the Times, is dead.

OMAHA, NEB.—C. G. H. Kastman, who for the past few months has been managing the Antiquarian Book Shop, at 207 Washington Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., has just opened Rayner's "Old Book" Store, at 615 N. 16th St. This makes No. 4 by that name, which seems to be destined to belong to the "old-book trade." Mr. Kastman desires to receive catalogues, circulars, etc., of new books and bargains in all branches of literature.

ORANGE, TEX.—G. W. Curtis is a new dealer in books and stationery here.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The Dodge & Brown Company, 41 State Street, announce that they have increased their capital stock from $15,000 to $20,000 for the purpose of adding a commercial stationery department. They have purchased the stock and good-will of Isaac A. Wilcox & Co. Mr. Geo. A. Newman, formerly with Scrantom, Wetmore & Co., will take charge of this department.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The trustees of the Mercantile Library Association have elected H. R. Coleman to fill the vacant position of librarian, taking effect on the 15th of February. Mr. Coleman has been identified with the book trade of San Francisco since 1867, nineteen years of which time he was with the Bancrofts. He was a member of the firm of Coleman & Gruninger, and later was associated with Johnson & Emigh. He has for years been considered as a painstaking bookseller, devoting much energy and enthusiasm to his profession, and his experience peculiarly fits him for his new position.

WEST POINT, GA.—M. Herzberg, bookseller, is advertising to sell his stock.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.—The stock of books belonging to J. M. Howeth has been attached.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish the "Study of Ernest Renan," by Sir M. E. Grant Duff.

THE REV. W. P. DREW, who lately has been a canvasser for Dodd, Mead & Co., was arrested on the 10th charged by Henry Granfield, manager of their subscription department, with forgery. He was held for trial.

BLACKWOOD'S have in press a translation into English of Scheffel's epic poem, "Der Trompeter von Säkkingen." It is to be entitled "The Trumpeter: a romance of the Rhine." The original has lately reached its two hundredth edition in Germany.

REPORT has reached New York that J. A. McQuillan, of George Routledge & Sons, had been struck down with paralysis in Salt Lake City. There is hope that the attack was not serious enough to cause alarm for his recovery. Mrs. McQuillan proceeded at once to the West to nurse her husband.

JOHN GLENN, of Marcus Ward & Co., arrived in this city from Europe on the 1st inst. As soon as he crossed the gang-plank he complained of a severe headache. On his arrival home he went to bed, and when physicians were summoned they found him suffering from congestion of the brain. Though at one time his condition was so serious that the doctors were unable to hold out hopes of recovery, he is now considered out of danger.

W. B. HARISON offers the trade an original little device called a "pocket revolving planisphere," designed particularly for the convenience and guidance of amateur star-gazers or of those possessing an elementary knowledge of astronomy. It is so arranged that the principal stars visible from lat. 40° N. are shown for every hour in the year by means of a movable disc, which is "set" so that the day of the month will correspond with the hour at which the stars are viewed.

THE new building of E. L. Kellogg & Co., publishers of the The School Journal, just completed at No. 61 East Ninth St., is in many respects an ideal one for a publishing house. It has twenty-six feet front and ninety-two feet depth, is substantially built of stone, brick and terra-cotta, and is six stories high. The front of the basement and first story is Indiana limestone of a light-gray buff tone; above this Perth Amboy mottled brick and terra-cotta of a rich brown color is used. The main offices are on the second floor. The store occupies a room sixty feet long. The editorial rooms are on the third floor of the building in front. The subscription department is on the fifth floor, while the printing department occupies the front half of the sixth floor.

THE NEW YORK NEWSDEALERS AND STATIONERS' PROTECTIVE AND BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION held their second anniversary in the association's rooms, No. 267 West Thirty-fourth Street, on the evening of the 15th. There was a large number of members present, who were called to order shortly after 9 o'clock by the chairman, J. P. Mack. After a few words from him he introduced Joseph Brennan, the president of the association, who spoke of the hopeful outlook of the New York branch. C. B. Swift, president of the Philadelphia and of the National Association, told of the great progress the newsdealers and stationers were making throughout the country. Then followed readings, songs, monologues and stories by C. Hemsbriet, W. P. Maher, T. A. Ledwith, Frederick D. Crozier and J. M. Karlshoven.

AN important heraldic work upon which Mr. W. H. St. John Hope, assistant secretary to the Society of Antiquaries, has for some years been engaged is to be published by Messrs. W. Griggs & Sons, London. It consists of a series of chromo-lithographic reproductions of the stall-plates of the Knights of the Garter, affixed to the back of their stalls in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, in accordance with the statutes of the order. Executed on plates of copper, engraved with the arms of the Knights and enriched with gold, silver and enamels of various tinctures, these plates form a singularly rich and beautiful series, illustrative of mediæval heraldry in its decorative aspects. The volume is to reproduce eighty-six of the earliest of them, dating from the Plantagenet period, 1348-1485, and including the forty-five plates set up by Henry v. about 1421 in memory of deceased Knights, of whom no memorial then existed on their stalls. It is proposed to follow up the present volume with a second series, reproducing the plates of the Tudor period, 1485-1603. Mr. Hope furnishes an historical introduction to the book, and descriptive notes on each example.

THE German book trade is taking active measures to protect itself against foreign reprints of its copyrighted matter. As noted a few weeks ago an injunction was obtained against an English bookseller who supplied the Continent with American reprints. Now steps have been taken to bring a Swiss bookseller to trial for supplying the German market with Holman German Family Bibles containing reproductions of the famous Hoffmann gallery of the New Testament. Injunctions have already been issued, and there is every reason to believe that the sale of unauthorized American reprints of copyrighted German books in the countries bound by the Berne treaty will be a thing of the past. The Börsenverein also signifies its intention to take more active measures to protect its members through its agency in this country. Since July, 1892, their agent, Reinhard Volkman, 15 East Seventeenth Street, New York, has made copyright arrangements for four of Klepert's atlases issued by Dietrich Reimer, of Berlin; two pieces of music by Mattioli and five songs by Reichmann, issued by Bote & Bock, of Berlin; two etchings by Mannfeld, of Charlottenburg, and the series of sketches by Allers, of Fürst Bismarck in Friedrichsruh, issued by the Union Deutsche Verlagsgesellschaft, of Stuttgart.

STRAIGHT SERMONS

To Young Men and Other Human Beings. By HENRY VAN DYKE, D.D. 12mo, $1.25.

The keynote of this new book is found in the title. It contains ten sermons of singular frankness and force, sweetness and light. They have been tested by practical success in Dr. Van Dyke's work among the colleges. They are addressed not exclusively to young men, but to common humanity.

A Second Book of Verse.

By EUGENE FIELD. 12mo, $1.25.

The characteristics which gave wide popularity to Mr. Field's "Little Book of Western Verse"—his individuality, his sentiment, his humor, his versatility, his melody—make this new volume equally delightful reading.

Abelard,

And the Origin and Early History of Universities. By GABRIEL COMPAYRÉ. Great Educators Series. $1.25, net.

This review of Abelard's character and work is from an entirely new point of view that is most instructive; and the beginnings and early history of the great European universities are graphically pictured.

But Men Must Work

Is the latest issue in Lippincott's Series. By ROSA NOUCHETTE CAREY, author of "Mary St. John," "Not Like Other Girls," etc. "It is a story that deals with strong and realistic glimpses of life," says the Boston Herald. "Miss Carey is no mean romancer, and whatever she says has a dash of color and a vigorous style about it that almost immediately catch the eye of the reader. Her descriptions are finished in every detail. Tragedy, intrigue and self-willfulness are important factors in her little drama, which deals with life in a quiet and yet sensational way. The characters do not figure prominently in social life, but they have their own personal history, which is far more entertaining. It has the touch and finish of an artist, and is replete with those side ventures which hold the attention while the heavy acting is under way." 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

JUST ISSUED.

The latest novel from the pen of Mr. FERGUS HUME, author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," entitled which deals with an extraordinary state of facts in a mythical South American republic.

The Harlequin Opal,

The adventures of four Englishmen in search of a marvellous Harlequin Opal, whose rays prophesy peace or war according as they are blue or red, with a vivid description of a modern sea fight—for which the author is possibly somewhat indebted to the recent Chilean troubles—form the principal features of the story.

The American Copyright of this attractive romance has been secured by Rand, McNally & Co., and the work appears in their "Rialto Series." Paper, 50 cents; half morocco, $1.50.

Heimburg's New Novels.

MISS MISCHIEF. (MANSELL UNNUTZ.)

By W. HEIMBURG. Translated from the German by Mary Stuart Smith. 12mo, 350 pages. Illustrated by Warren B. Davis. Handsomely bound in cloth, $1.50; paper cover, 50 cents.

Heimburg's new novel is one of the most interesting books that have come from her pen. It is the story of a young girl brought from Italy to Germany and reared amid scenes and circumstances uncongenial to her nature. Unappreciated and misunderstood, it is not strange that her acts are misinterpreted and that she gets the reputation of being a good-for-nothing and a mischievous child; but so interesting is her character, and so skilfully are her fine traits developed by the author that the reader is surprised by the vision of beauty and truth and heroism which, as the story proceeds, dawns upon the mind. "Miss Mischief" becomes a noble woman, and repays a hundred-fold all the protection and assistance which have been grudgingly given to her during her childhood. The story is a charming one, the characters are interesting and the incidents natural.

"A Masterpiece of Fiction."—Rundschau.

THE CHILD OF THE PARISH.

By MARIE VON EBNER-ESCHENBACH, author of "Beyond Atonement." Translated from the German by Mary A. Robinson. 12mo, 335 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

The author of this novel stands in the highest rank of living woman-writers in Germany. "The Child of the Parish" is a powerful original story, strong in delineation of character, healthy in tone and artistic in local coloring, somewhat in the style of "Oliver Twist," by Charles Dickens, and "No Relations," by Hector Malot. The scene is laid in a Moravian village, and both the scenery and the inhabitants are drawn with the fidelity of an old Dutch picture. The hero, who grows up under the worst influences, unjustly treated, despised and trodden under foot by all except the eccentric old schoolmaster, by sheer force of character and through love of his sister develops into a strong, capable, honorable man.

A New Book by Mrs. Barr.

THE MATE OF THE "EASTER BELL," and Other Stories.

By Mrs. AMELIA E. BARR, author of "The Beads of Tasmer," "Mrs. Barr's Short Stories," "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," "Friend Olivia," etc. Illustrated by Victor Perard. 12mo, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.25; paper cover, 50 cents.

These delightful stories embrace some of Mrs. Barr's best work. "The Mate of the 'Easter Bell'" has all the characteristics of Mrs. Barr's more ambitious works. It is a story of true love, in which patience and heroism are exalted. The book contains a variety of other stories, grave and gay, full of fine characters, drawn with the vigor and discrimination which have raised Mrs. Barr to the front rank of the novelists of our time. The book is nicely illustrated, and forms a beautiful companion volume to "The Beads of Tasmer."

A New Novel by Col. Knox.

THE SIBERIAN EXILES.

By Col. THOMAS W. KNOX, author of "The Boy Travellers," "Overland through Asia," "Decisive Battles Since Waterloo," etc. Illustrated by Victor Perard. 8vo, handsomely bound in cloth, $2.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

"One of the best and most interesting stories of the year is 'The Siberian Exiles,' by Col. Thomas W. Knox, which is handsomely published by Robert Bonner's Sons, New York. The story is told in Colonel Knox's best style. It holds the attention from first to last, and is all the better because it instructs while it entertains. It is graphically illustrated."—Baltimore American.

A Romance of New Orleans in the Olden Times.

THE KING OF HONEY ISLAND.

By MAURICE THOMPSON, author of "A Tallahassee Girl," "The Fighting at Point Rose," "His Second Campaign," etc. Illustrated by H. M. Eaton. 8vo, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.50; paper cover, 50 cents.

"The King of Honey Island" is a romance of society in New Orleans in the days of creole ascendancy, when General Jackson won his famous victory behind the cotton-bales and drove the British invaders back to their ships. Piracy was not yet extirpated and smuggling was extensively carried on. The neighboring West India islands and the intricate water-ways of the mouth of the Mississippi afforded a great field for illegitimate transactions. The author has made skilful use of the rich materials which the time and locality furnish.

THE SPANISH TREASURE.

By ELIZABETH CAMPBELL WINTER (Isabella Castelar). Illustrated by H. M. Eaton. 12mo, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

"The story opens in New York at the present time. It relates to a treasure buried in the far West among the Indians by a descendant of one of Columbus' crew, a Spanish outlaw named Pedro Mendoza. In a singular manner the surviving heirs of the Mendozas, a young American girl and an English nobleman, meet in New York, learn of the buried treasure and its history, and of the 'curse' that guards it, etc. The attempt to find it is rich in thrilling adventures and apparently supernatural occurrences."—Literary News.

A Novel. By "Q." (A. T. QUILLER-COUCH), author of "Dead Man's Rock," etc., etc. Cassell's Sunshine Series. Paper, 50 cents; small 8vo edition, cloth, $1.25.

"Chief of the recent novels is assuredly Arthur T. Quiller-Couch's 'Blue Pavilions.'"—Quarterly Register of Current History.

Wm. C. Hudson.

The Dugdale Millions.

A Novel. By WM. C. HUDSON ("Barclay North"), author of "The Diamond Button," "Jack Gordon, Knight-Errant, Gotham, 1883," "On the Rack," etc., etc. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 50 cents. Cassell's Sunshine Series.

As with Mr. Hudson's other stories, the scene of this one is laid in and around New York. That it is fresh, breezy and fascinating his host of appreciative readers will correctly surmise.

AUTHORIZED EDITION

Cosmopolis.

By PAUL BOURGET. A masterly and unabridged translation. Large 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.50; paper, 50 cents.

"The work is full of life and variety; its personages talk and act like human beings and not like analytical subjects."

—The Athenaeum.
"Cosmopolis' is Bourget's masterpiece. . . . The story is told with a sombre power and deftness of characterization which will certainly hold the attention of the reader."—New York Recorder.

"François Coppée has justly said that 'Cosmopolis' is Bourget's chef-d'œuvre. It is the triumphant affirmation that man is not complete, and that a people is never great except through moral beauty and religious regeneration. With exquisite art, Bourget colors this conclusion."—New York Sun.

Loaded Dice.

By EDGAR FAWCETT, author of "An Ambitious Woman," "The House at High Bridge," etc. 12mo, cloth, gilt, $1.25.

Mr. Fawcett has given the reader of his best in this new story from his prolific pen. The scene is laid in Paris, and the characters are drawn from American, English, and Continental types. The story is cleverly written, interesting throughout, and exciting in many of its situations. Though it deals with the social lapses of a woman of the world, the story is delicately told and with a proper regard to the moral sensibilities of the most fastidious reader.

The Victorian Age of English Literature.

By MRS. OLIPHANT, author of "The Makers of Florence," "The Makers of Venice," "Laurence Oliphant's Life," etc., etc. In two volumes. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $3.00.

"The charm of Mrs. Oliphant's style, as well as the justness of criticisms, and the thorough knowledge which she possesses of English literature, particularly during the last two centuries, will make this new work from her pen much sought after both by students of English literature and by critical reviewers. . . . The work is sober, well-informed, and sympathetic; its range is wide, and it has a patient as well as an industrious chronicler."—American Bookseller.

The Master Builder.

A Play in Three Acts. By HENRIK IBSEN, author of "Prose Dramas," "Hedda Gabler," etc. Translated from the Norwegian by Edmund Gosse and William Archer. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

A curious pathological study is the new drama Ibsen has written, entitled "The Master Builder." Its elements are pretty much those which we have grown accustomed to in this Danish master of light social and domestic satire. The story seizes and absorbs the reader's attention, and the end is reached in thrilling catastrophe which brings into play many of the more striking resources of the dramatist's art. The drama is now being played in London and is creating a great sensation.

Dearest.

By MRS. FORRESTER, author of "Viva," "Of the World, Worldly," "My Lord and My Lady," etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Dearest" is a novel in Mrs. Forrester's earlier and better manner. The story, which is simply and naturally told, narrates the experiences of a young girl in subjection to an obnoxious governess and to a mother who favors her elder daughters and treats the defiant one harshly. The young girl's cause is taken up by a step-brother whom the mother fears, and a new governess comes upon the scene to make interesting complications in the family circle and change the situation of the once hapless but now triumphant Cinderella. "Dearest" is one of the most charming novels of the day, and is sure to win its way to success.

Oriole's Daughter.

By JESSIE FOTHERGILL, author of "The First Violin," "A March in the Ranks," "Healey," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

This is the last work written by the gifted author of "The First Violin" before her death a few months ago. The scene is laid in Europe, and the local coloring is faithful and striking. The plot is highly original, and there is a freshness and vigor about the style which hold the reader absorbed in the story, and carry him interestedly in imagination to imperial Rome, the ancient center of the world's glory. In this respect the story may be taken as a pendant to M. Bourget's "Cosmopolis," though Miss Fothergill's story is not cast, as "Cosmopolis" is, in the philosophic vein.

The Drama.

Addresses by HENRY IRVING. 16mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25. Edition de Luxe, large paper, limited to 300 copies, signed by Henry Irving. One volume, 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $5.00 net.

This dainty little volume comprises four interesting addresses by Mr. Irving, dealing with the annals of acting and with the art as well as with the traditions of the stage. It is full at once of the enthusiasms and the professional culture which mark everything said or done by the chief figure on the modern stage, who properly holds his profession in high esteem. The addresses, delivered at Oxford University, on the Four Great Actors of the English Stage, will, we are sure, be read and re-read by all lovers of the higher drama and by everyone in sympathy with the actor's art. The work is enriched by an excellent character portrait of Mr. Henry Irving.

The Last Sentence.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The Reproach of Annesley," "In the Heart of the Storm," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A new work by the author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland" will, naturally enough, excite considerable interest in the world of novel readers. "The Last Sentence" is an exceedingly interesting story, cleverly told, with many evidences of feminine taste and culture, as well as wide reading on the part of the author. The scene is laid chiefly in Brittany, and the picturesque surroundings of the Breton coast are sketched in a fascinating manner which cannot fail to arrest the attention and chain the fancy.

Kitty's Father.

By FRANK BARRETT, author of "The Admirable Lady Biddy Fane," "A Smuggler's Secret," etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Hollywood Series.

Mr. Barrett's new story is distinguished by the characteristic excellences which render his work of extraordinary interest. There is an exciting narrative, continually worked up into strong and original situations; there is an absorbing mystery, which from time to time becomes entangled in new and unexpected complications, and the story ends in a startling and powerful dénouement. The frequency of strong situations, and the original developments of the mystery, stamp the story as one that cannot fail to arouse an intense interest on the part of every novel reader.

The Doomswoman.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam," "Los Cerritos," "A Question of Time," etc. 16mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.00.

This latest production from the pen of Miss Atherton is one continued narration of thrilling incident and vivid picturesqueness. The scene is laid in Mexico and, as may well be imagined, is full of the passion and unconstraint of that southern clime. Some of the scenes, notably that in the last chapter, are intensely dramatic and forceful. "The Doomswoman" is by far the most powerful piece of fiction yet rendered by Miss Atherton, and will not lack appreciation by those previously unfamiliar with her style.

The Dingo Boys.

By GEORGE MANVILLE FENN, author of "The Grand Chaco," "The Weathercock," etc. Illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

In his new story, "The Dingo Boys," George Manville Fenn tells of the experience of an English family in the wilds of Australia. Many strange and unforeseen adventures are graphically described and prove absorbing reading for young and old. The heroism and devotion of one of the blacks supplies the pathetic as well as the humorous element, and as a character he is certainly another of the many queer specimens of humanity, who move in their own characteristic fashion through Mr. Fenn's charming stories.

The Weathercock.

By GEORGE MANVILLE FENN, author of "In the Wilds of New Mexico," "The Grand Chaco," etc. Illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Mr. Fenn's facile pen has again rendered possible a substantial and thoroughly satisfying literary feast in this volume. To those who are already familiar with the author's vigorous and animated style, a work possessing such high merit as "The Weathercock" hardly needs commendation. Boys of every age will enjoy the story which has been so naturally weaved about the lives of its various characters, and will follow with eagerness their numerous mishaps and adventures.

General Jackson.

By JAMES PARTON. The third volume in the Great Commanders Series, edited by Gen. James Grant Wilson. With portrait and maps. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.50.

The last literary work of James Parton, completed just before his death, was the preparation of this volume. It is a model miniature biography, possessing throughout all the interest of a romance.

An Atlas of Astronomy.

By SIR ROBERT S. BALL, F.R.S., Professor of Astronomy and Geometry at the University of Cambridge; author of "Starland," "The Cause of an Ice Age," etc. With 72 plates, explanatory text and complete index. Small 4to, cloth, $4.00.

Three Roads to a Commission in the U. S. Army.

By Lieutenant W. P. BURNHAM, Sixth U. S. Infantry, author of "Manual of Outpost Duty," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This handbook has been prepared with a view to providing popular information concerning the manner of entering the United States Military Academy and the course to be pursued for obtaining a commission. The rules governing the various examinations are taken from official sources, and the author has embodied the substance of the latest legislation affecting his subject.

Manual of Guard Duty

FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY, as approved by the Secretary of War, January, 1893. Paper, 25 cents; leather, 50 cents.

Joost Avelingh.

By MAARTEN MAARTENS. New edition, uniform with "God's Fool," by the same author. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The increasing demand for Maarten Maartens' two novels has led the publishers to prepare this edition of "Joost Avelingh" for the convenience of those who prefer a uniform binding.

A History of England in the Eighteenth Century.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY. Cabinet Edition. 7 vols., 12mo, cloth, $7.00.

A History of Ireland in the Eighteenth Century.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY. Cabinet Edition. 5 vols., 12mo, cloth, $5.00.

The "History of Ireland" was formerly included in the eight-volume edition of the "History of England." By a rearrangement of the contents the two histories now appear separately as above, each complete in itself, but bound uniformly. Important revisions have been made, and the work is in some respects practically new.

The well-known high character of this standard history needs no fresh commendation.

The Political Value of History.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY, author of "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," etc. A Presidential Address delivered before the Birmingham and Midland Institute, October, 1892. Reprinted with Additions. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to; under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Th. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Abbott, Rev. Lyman. The Roman Catholic question. N. Y., The Christian Union Co., Clinton Hall, Astor Pl., 1893. c. 22 p. D. pap., 10 c.

This sermon, preached at Plymouth Church, provoked so much newspaper discussion that it is printed in pamphlet form, by special request of the trustees of the church. It includes a clear account of the recent differences between the liberal and conservative wings of the Roman Catholic Church in this country, and of the present position of the public-school question. Dr. Abbott's own views of the attitude which should be taken by Protestants toward liberal-minded and progressive Roman Catholics are earnestly set forth, and whether accepted or rejected by others are certainly suggestive and based on careful study of the subject.

Adams, J. Howe, M.D. History of the life of D. Hayes Agnew, M.D. Phil., F. A. Davis Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 7+876 p. pers. il. O. cl., subs., net, $2.50; hf. mor., net, $3.50.

Dr. Agnew, "the most experienced surgeon, the clearest writer and teacher, the man most beloved and venerated," was born in Pennsylvania in 1836 and died March 22, 1892. He was modest, retiring, kind, gentle and devoid of all ambition. His manual dexterity was wonderful. He gave a great impetus to American surgery. He was one of the surgeons in attendance on Garfield in 1881. This biography gives the words spoken at his funeral services. An appendix gives the authorities from which the facts are gathered. The writer has known Dr. Agnew since their college days. Full index.

Bacon, Francis, (Lord.) Novum organum; or, true suggestions for the interpretation of nature. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1893. 8-245 p. D. (Sir John Lubbock's hundred books, no. 45.) cl., $1.25.

*Ball, Sir Rob. S. An atlas of astronomy; with 72 plates, explanatory text and complete index. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 4°, cl., $4.

Ballou, Maturin M. The story of Malta. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 9+318 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The island of Malta, since the opening of the Suez Canal, has become the maritime half-way-house between Europe and Asia, which imparts to it vast commercial importance and causes it to be visited by many people who but from the force of circumstances would perhaps never have become conversant with its singularly beautiful surroundings, or its fascinating capital, the unique city of Valletta. Mr. Ballou's new volume gives a thorough description of the island of Malta, its history, scenery and inhabitants.

Barr, Mrs. Amelia E. The mate of the Easter Bell, and other stories. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1893. c. '72-'93. 4-347 p. il. D. (The choice ser., no. 80.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. Contents: The mate of the Easter Bell; The harvest of faith; A horse for a wife; A tale of two brothers; Romance of two pictures; The story of a wedding; A discovered life; The true Delzel; Earning one's capital;

A brave girl; Just as it happened; The hero of Saltham Pit, etc.

Barrett, Frank. Out of the jaws of death. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] 4+410 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 136.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Sept. 10, 1892, [1076.]

*Bates, W. C. Exponential outline with definitions of Blackstone's commentaries. Columbus, O., Landon Pr. and Pub. Co., 1893. c. '92. 1 chart, 94 p. O. (Students' ser., v. 1.) pap., 75 c.

Beecher, Rev. H. Ward. The original Plymouth pulpit sermons of H: Ward Beecher in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn; from stenographic notes by T. J. Ellinwood. New ed. (2 v. in 1 v.) In 5 v. V. 1, incl. v. 1 of old ser., Sept., 1868 to 1869, and v. 2, March to Sept., 1869. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1893. c. '69. 6+438+6+466 p. O. cl., net, (for set of five volumes,) $12.50.

Bowles, J. The stormy petrel: an historical romance. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., [1893.] c. '92. 349 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.

"The stormy petrel" was a little girl thrown from the deck of a Mississippi steamboat and caught by Frank Clayton, a noble young Kentuckian. Her story, written by a Southerner, gives a fair picture of the closing days of slavery. John Brown's raid and death are described in detail. Abraham Lincoln also shapes events in the lives of the actors North and South. The plot is involved but interesting and rests on facts. Dedicated to "An intelligent and united people, North and South."

*Buschbauer, Hans. Amerikanisches gartenbuch für stadt u. land. Milwaukee, Wis., G: Brumder, 1893. c. 500 p. il. 8°, cl., $2.

A compilation from German works enlarged by original essays suited to American needs. Also a plan for laying out a kitchen garden, and instruction in the cultivation of vegetables, fruit and forest trees, vineyards and flowers. With an appendix treating of indoor flower culture.

*Cauvain, H. A village priest; from the French, by Albert W. Vandam. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1893. 212 p. 12°, (Library of continental authors.) pap., 35 c.

Chaffee, Frank. Bachelor buttons. N. Y., G: M. Allen Co., Broadway, cor. 21st St., [1893.] c. '92. 5+129 p. D. cl., $1.

Twenty-one brief essays or sketches, the first of which has for its subject Bachelor's buttons. This is followed by Bachelor bits; Mademoiselle; My old clothes; With one's own hands; A fable (perhaps); Elaine; A bachelor tea; Table d'hôte; Madame Mysteria; A-coaching; From out my attic window; Cozy nooks and pleasant corners; The very young man; Fads and fadism; Light infantry; Misplaced switches; A cup o' tea; The peculiar man; About picture frames; Railway fancies. These were formerly published in Harper's Bazar, The Home-Maker and other magazines.

Demosthenes. Oration of Demosthenes upon the crown; tr. into English with notes by Henry Lord Brougham. Rev. ed. N. Y.,

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

G: Routledge & Sons, 1893. 2-254 p. D. (Sir John Lubbock's hundred books, no. 46.) cl., $1.

Dodge, Mary Abigail, ["Gail Hamilton," pseud.] English kings in a nutshell: an aid to the memory. N. Y., American Book Co., 1893. c. '85, '93. 2-81 p. il. sq. D. cl., 60 c.

A convenient little epitome of English history, from William the Conqueror to Victoria, given in rhyme. First published by the Century Co., in 1885, in a different form.

Dodge, Walter Phelps. Three Greek tales. N. Y., G. M. Allen Co., Broadway, cor. 21st St., 1893. c. 5+173 p. S. cl., $1.

The scene of these three romances is modern Greece; they are called "Angelica and the Hermes," being an idyl of Olympia; "Marika," an episode of Athens, and "The arrows of Heracles," a romance of Corfu. They first appeared in the Hartford Post.

Euthanasia; or, turf, tent and tomb. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1893. 2+310 p. D. bds., $1.25.

The career of Lord George Mansfield as depicted in this novel is typical of that of a large class of young English society men. He loses a fortune on the turf and with it the girl he loves, sells out of his regiment, goes to Vienna and enters the service of the Austrian army, and after new love experiences dies a heroic death. The heroine is a brave, attractive specimen of womankind.

Everett, C: Carroll. The gospel of Paul. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 13+307 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Dr. Everett, dean of the Harvard Divinity School, presents what he believes to be a wholly new view of Paul's doctrine of the atonement based upon the most direct and literal interpretation of which his words admit. The result reached is equally removed from the traditional view which makes Christ the vicarious bearer of the penalty of the world's sin, and that which sees no efficacy in his death beyond its effect upon the hearts of his followers. The presentation of this interpretation is preceded by a study of the significance of sacrifice in the ancient world, and a brief survey of the history of the doctrine of the atonement. It is followed by an examination of Paul's philosophy of history, and of his positive doctrine of salvation.

Farjeon, B. L. Something occurred. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, [1893.] c. 5+331 p. D. cl., $1.

The scenes and characters of this story belong to modern English life, but the events read like a fairy tale. A young married couple, embarrassed for ready money, resort to some playful incantations, and wish very hard that they may be helped. When they raise the light, they find a queer little man seated in their room, who says he is "Wootenot, the Genius of the Utterly Absurd." He gives them four wishes, with the promise that they will be granted if not unreasonable, but that something ridiculous will happen to them each time. They go through four absurd transformations, which make great fun for the reader.

Field, Eugene. Second book of verse. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. '92. 9+260 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Over fifty short poems, on the same lines as "A little book of western verse."

Fisher, Frances C., ["Christian Reid," pseud.] A little maid of Arcady; reprinted from the Ave Maria. Phil., H. L. Kilner & Co., [1893.] c. 284 p. D. (Catholic lib.) cl., $1.25.

When Bernadette Arnaud's mother was killed in a railway accident which occurred in a mountain gorge of the Blue Ridge Range, Bernadette was adopted by a Scotch family who lived in the vicinity, and reared a Catholic. At the age of fifteen she is unexpectedly restored to wealthy Protestant relatives, whose home is in New Orleans. They are so charmed with her simplicity of manner that they call her "A little maid of Arcady." The interest is in the quaint love-story of the heroine, and in her way of showing her devotion to the Catholic religion.

Flower, B. O. Civilization's inferno; or, studies in the social cellar. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 287 p. D. (Arena lib., v. 8, no. 13.) pap., 50 c.

Papers on the vice and poverty of a great city. The writer selected Boston for his study, as it has long claimed the proud distinction of being practically free from poverty. The scenes described show a frightful state of destitution and immorality among the very poor. Many statistics are given. The book is a strong appeal to the Christian civilization of the time to arise and change the current of human misery.

France. Constitutional and organic laws of France, [1875-1889;] tr. with an historical introd. by C: F. H. Currier. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, 1893. c. 77 p. O. (Supplement to publications of the society.) pap., 60 c.

*Gale, J. T. Account guide and form book for administrators and executors in the state of Ohio; including the substance of the laws, with complete references to sections of the revised statutes. Fully indexed. Columbus, O., The Ruggles-Gale Co., 1893. c. '92. 111 p. D. cl., [64 p. blank,] $4.

Gilman, Nicholas Paine. Socialism and the American spirit. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 10+376 p. D. cl., $1.50.

This work, by the author of "Profit sharing between employer and employee" and "Conduct as a fine art," is a timely discussion of the present position and the probable future of socialism and social reform in the United States. After two introductory chapters on "Individualism and socialism" and "The present tendency to socialism," the author outlines the principal characteristics of the American spirit, and defines its general attitude towards the extremes of individualism and socialism. "Nationalism" and "Christian socialism" are criticised from this standpoint. Constructive chapters follow on the "Industrial future," the "Functions of the state" and "Industrial partnership." The last three chapters consider the "Higher individualism," "Social spirit," and the "Way to Utopia." Contains a "Select bibliography" (4 p.), giving the titles of the best recent books on topics touched by this volume—mostly issued since 1888.

Gladden, Washington. Tools and the man; property and industry under the Christian law. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 7+308 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The chapters are devoted to (1) The Christianization of society, in which the general laws of Christian life are laid down; (2) Economics and Christian ethics, in which the author seeks to show the impossibility of treating economics as a pure science; (3) Property in land, a criticism in part of Henry George's theory; (4) Property, in general, an attempt to discover the relation which the person holds to the material world; (5) The labor question, a study of the mutual rights and duties of employers and employed; (6) The collapse of competition, an examination of the principle as applied to modern society; (7) Co-operation, the logic of Christianity; (8) The reorganization of industry; (9) Scientific socialism, an inquiry into the philosophic basis of current schemes of socialism; (10) Christian socialism, an effort to formulate the growth of a new condition under the sway of genuine Christian principles.

Goodhue, Bertram Grosvenor. Mexican memories: the record of a slight sojourn below the yellow Rio Grande; il. by the author. N. Y., G. M. Allen Co., Broadway, cor. 21st St., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 8-167 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Seven sketches of Mexico, entitled, "El Ciudad," "The legend of Frey Agustin," "A veritable Arteaga," "Concerning politics and the people," "A los Toros," "A night ride through the mountains," "Los Señoritas."

Grayson, Pauline. The social evil; or, the woman Lalarge. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1893.] c. 2-160 p. D. (Peerless ser., no. 61.) pap., 25 c.

The author sets forth in story form what she calls the "social evil," that is, the bringing into the world of a larger family than parents are able to provide for. She would have the births regulated by law, and so decrease the large class which becomes criminal because it has no other method of existing.

Griswold, W. M., comp. A descriptive list of novels and tales dealing with American country life. New enl. ed. Cambridge, Mass.: W. M. Griswold, 1890 [1892.] unpag. O. pap., 75 c.

A number of new titles, with notices of recent novels, have been added to this new edition.

Griswold, W. M., comp. A descriptive list of novels and tales dealing with life in Norway. Cambridge, Mass.: W. M. Griswold, 1893 [1893.] unpag. O. pap., 25 c.

H., A. C., comp. Stepping-stones. N. Y.: G. M. Allen Co., Broadway, cor. 21st St., 1893. c. 8-185 p. S. cl., $1.

A little book of quotations, for each day of the year.

Hart, Mary E. Stray violets gathered and pictured by Mary E. Hart. N. Y.: G. M. Allen Co., Broadway, cor. 21st St., 1893. c. 8-49 p. il. O. cl., $2.

A collection of poetical tributes to the violet, gathered from the works of great poets; illustrated throughout with violets in white and purple; prettily bound in white cloth with gold stamping and violets in colors.

Hicks, I. P. Hicks' builders' guide; comprising an easy, practical system of estimating material and labor for carpenters, contractors and builders: a guide to those engaged in the various branches of the building trades. N. Y.: D. Williams, 96-102 Reade St., 1893. c. 2+160 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.

In this volume the object of the author has been to point out how mistakes may be avoided in making estimates and to introduce a practical system for making such estimates, thus enabling the carpenter or builder to do the work with greater accuracy. The information has been collected from the close observation and actual experience of a practical workman.

Howells, W. D. A foregone conclusion: a novel. Bost.: Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. 12° (Riverside pap. ser.) pap., 50 c.

Ingham, Mrs. W. A. Women of Cleveland and their work, philanthropic, educational, literary, medical and artistic: a history, in which more than one thousand people of Cleveland's past and present are mentioned; introd. by C. C. Baldwin; a word commendatory by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton. Cleveland, O.: Mrs. W. A. Ingham, 138 Superior St., 1893. 362 p. por. D. cl., $1.50; hf. cf., $3.

Ingle, E. The negro in the District of Columbia. Balt., Md.: The Johns Hopkins Press, 1893. 2-110 p. O. (Johns Hopkins Univ. studies, 11th ser., nos. 3-4.) pap., $1.

The District of Columbia was selected as a field for a study of the position the negro is to occupy towards the civilization of this country, because it presents so many phases of the great problem. The author gives an honest, impartial account of the social, moral, political and religious condition of the negroes of today.

Jacob, Edith S. The gate of Paradise: a dream of Easter eve. N. Y.: T. Whittaker, 1893. 2-31 p. S. leatherette, 20 c.

A weary watcher, by the bedside of a sick child, sleeps and dreams of being conducted through the realm of Paradise by a departed spirit called Gabrielle, who reveals in this supposed dream some of the mysteries of life, death and the resurrection of the body.

Lecky, W. E. H. A history of England in the eighteenth century. New rev. cabinet ed. N. Y.: Appleton, 1893. 7 v., 12°, cl., $7.

Lecky, W. E. H. A history of Ireland in the eighteenth century. New rev. cabinet ed. N. Y.: Appleton, 1893. 5 v., 12°, cl., $5.

Lecky, W. E. H. The political value of history: a presidential address delivered before the Birmingham and Midland Institute in Oct., 1892; reprinted with additions. N. Y.: Appleton, 1893. 12°, cl., 75 c.

Le Row, Caroline B. Werner's readings and recitations, no. 10: America's recitation-book. N. Y.: E. S. Werner, 1893. 15+275 p. D. cl., 60 c.; pap., 35 c.

This number of "Werner's readings and recitations" is known as "America's recitation-book," because it presents the best productions in prose and verse that have been written on the great events in the history of our country. These are arranged in chronological order, and are accompanied with explanations intended to increase their interest and value. The aim of the book is to stimulate the study of American biography and history.

Maartens, Maarten. [pseud. for J. Van der Poorsen Schwartz.] Joost Avelingh. New ed. N. Y.: Appleton, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Macdonald, Stephen Ja. Jos. Alex. [Marshall, and Duke of Tarentum.] Recollections of Marshal Macdonald, Duke of Tarentum; ed. by Camille Rousset; tr. by Stephen L. Simeon. New rev. ed. N. Y.: C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 8+488 p. por. il. D. cl., $2.50.

Macdonald was one of Napoleon's marshals, his memoirs embracing many anecdotes of the emperor and his officers, with the details of his own services in many fields. He was born at Sedan, Nov. 17, 1765; entered the army in 1785; and was successively captain, colonel, general of division, governor of Rome and ambassador extraordinary to the court of Copenhagen; he was created marshal on the field of battle of Wagram, July 6, 1809, and Duke of Tarentum, Aug. 15, 1809; he died a natural death at Courcelles-le-Roi, Sept. 7, 1840.

Marsden, Kate. On sledge and horseback to the outcast Siberian lepers; il. from photographs and drawings. N. Y.: Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '92. 19+291 p. D. cl., $2.

Kate Marsden is a member (special badge) of the Royal British Nurses' Association, of which Florence Nightingale is head, and is also a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, etc. Encouraged by the Princess of Wales and her royal sister-in-law, the Empress of Russia, Miss Marsden spent two winters among the suffering lepers of Siberia and tells of their frightful sufferings in detail. Miss Marsden relied chiefly upon total abstinence in braving the Siberian winter. Dedicated to Queen Victoria.

May, J. Wilder. The law of crimes. 2d ed., ed. by Jos. H. Beale, jr. Bost.: Little, Brown & Co., 1893. c. 31+841 p. D. (Students' ser.) leatherette, $2.50.

Mills, Harry E. The sod-house in heaven, and other poems. Topeka, Kan.: G. W. Crane & Co., 1893. 12°, cl., $1.

Milne, W. J. Elements of arithmetic for primary and intermediate classes in public and private schools. N. Y.: American Book Co., [1893.] c. '93. 240 p. D. cl., 30 c.

Prepared to meet a demand for a book that contains, within brief compass, an elementary course in arithmetic. Also designed to be an introduction to the more thorough and exhaustive treatment of the science which is given in the author's "Standard arithmetic."

Minnesota. Supreme ct. Reports, v. 48, Jan.-Mar., 1892; C. C. Willson, rep. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1893. c. 16+595 p. O. shp., $2.75.

Morse, E. S. A curious Aino toy. Salem, Mass.: [The Salem Press Pub. and Print. Co., 1892 [1893.]] 7 p. O. (Bulletin of the Essex Institute, v. 25.) pap., 25 c.

A little wooden toy, found by Mr. Morse in an antiquarian's collection in Japan, is made the subject of a paper in which it is compared with similar toys found in recent mounds in Egypt, whose contents dated back to the first century of our era. These two specimens with one found in the Ethnological Museum in Berlin, coming from the Yakuts in Siberia, he endeavors to trace back to a common origin.

*New York. Railroad corporations: general railroad laws of N. Y. with decisions and forms; constitutional and statutory provisions affecting steam, street surface, "rapid transit," cable, electric and other railroads, as found in the N. Y. state constitution, the general corporation law, the stock corporation law, the railroad law, [etc.]; with decisions, cross-references and forms, also decisions under the "town bonding" acts; by E. H. Wells. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1893. c. '92. 88+666 p. O. shp., $2; pap., $1.50.

Y. supp. cases in v. 65, Hun's reports; 46 and 47, N. Y. state reporter. A table of statutes cited and construed is given in the index. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1893. c. 19+1098 p. O. (National reporter system.) shp., $4.

Not changed but glorified. N. Y., T: Whitaker, [1893.] unnp. obl. Fe. pap., 20 c. A religious poem for Easter, printed in purple ink.

*Poor, H. V. Poor's handbook of investment securities for 1892-'93; 3d annual no.: a supplement to Poor's "Manual of railroads." N. Y., H. V. & H. W. Poor, 1893. 800 p. 8°, cl., $4.

*Poor, H. V. Poor's manual of the railroads of the United States for 1893; in which is incorporated Poor's "Directory of railway officials and directors." 26th year. N. Y., H. V. & H. W. Poor, 1893. 8°, cl., $6.

Schupphaus, Otto F. The plutocrat: a drama in five acts. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 103 p. D. cl., $1.

Written in blank verse. West, a rich manufacturer, utterly heartless and unscrupulous, Henry, his humane superintendent, Ida Field, a widow, Alice, her daughter, and several workmen and servants, are the characters. Based on the greatest struggle of modern times, the struggle between capital and labor. West, the plutocrat, perishes in a fire, and Mrs. Field, who inherits his wealth, joins heartily in raising and helping the men who make her money.

Sherwood, Sidney. The history and theory of money: a special course of twelve lectures in finance, with syllabus and attendant discussion and addresses, by W: Pepper, M.D., W: L. Trenholm, E: S. Lacey and others. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 12+418 p. O. cl., $2.

These lectures were delivered under the auspices of the Association Local Centre of the American Society for the Extension of University Teaching, and the patronage of the bankers of Phila.; their subjects are: Money and civilization; Coins and coinage; Production of gold and silver—historical fluctuations in the value of money; Substitutes for metallic money—credit-money and credit; The place of banks in the money system, as shown in the history of the Bank of England; History of American currency; History of monetary theories; Value and distribution of money; Paper money, inconvertible and convertible; The banks and the government; The battle of the standards; Monetary panics. Three pages are devoted to lists of useful books of reference, courses of reading, etc.

*Story's legal digest and directory of lawyers; cont. compilations of the laws of the several states and territories of the U. S. and of the provinces of Canada relating to civil rights and liabilities, [etc.] 8th an. issue, 1893. N. Y., Mutual Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 1199+146 p. O. shp., $5.

Thierry, Gilbert A. The palimpsest. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 8+170 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 24.) cl., 50 c.

A palimpsest is a manuscript on which the original writing has been scratched out and a new work written. By chemicals the old writing can be made to appear. This palimpsest was supposed to be one of the lost tales of Melitus, and over this had been written the psalms used in the burial service. A French bibliophile tracks this treasure to Russia, where he finds it in the possession of a man who had obtained it by murder. The plot is involved; the end tragic.

*Travis, W: D. T. The tragedy of the ages; or, Calvary and Gehenna; introd. by E: B. Hodge, D.D. Phil., The Thompson Pub. Co., 238 S. 6th St., 1893. il. 8°, cl., subs., $1.50; $2.50; ed. de luxe, seal, $4.50.

*United States. Circuit cts. of appeals. Reports; cont. the cases determined in all the circuits from the organizations of the courts; fully reported with numerous annots. V. 2. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1893. c. 32+764 p. O. shp., $2.85.

Verdi, Tullio de Suzzara, M.D. Verdi's special diagnosis and homœopathic treatment of disease for popular use; including such functional disturbances as are peculiar to girls and to maternity. Phil., Boericke & Tafel, 1893. c. 2-579 p. O. cl., net, $3.50.

Zimmermann, Dr. G. A. Vierhundert jahre amerikanischer geschichte; zur 400-jährigen jubelfeier der entdeckung Amerikas, den Deutsch-Amerikanern geschildert. Milwaukee, Wis., G: Brumder, 1893. c. 736 p. por. maps, il. O. cl., $2.50.

The author has taken his facts from the best-known historians, and written a popular history of the past four hundred years, with special reference to the work accomplished by Germans in this country. Appendix gives the constitution, list of presidents, names of all German Americans who have held high public offices, chronology, etc.

Zola, Émile. Modern marriage; from the French, by B: R. Tucker. N. Y., B: R. Tucker, 1893. c. 64 p. S. pap., 15 c.

"The heroic love of the seventeenth century, the sensual love of the eighteenth, has become the positive love of the nineteenth, to be dealt with expeditiously as in a stock exchange transaction." After this statement Zola gives some of the causes that make modern marriage so often a failure, and tells the history of four marriages in detail, in which the contracting parties are types of several classes of society.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 25, 1893.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

UNLIKE that of the previous year, the spring season of this belated Columbus year, from the publishing point of view at least, threatens to be a backward one. Owing to political and other causes things at present seem almost at a standstill, and our outlook thus far is almost upon a "leafless spring," both in nature and in publishing. Yet that need not necessarily alarm the trade, for enough is promised to save it from inanition. Though the books in preparation fall far below last year's in number their quality is fully up to the standard of those issued in 1892, and this standard had been raised considerably since the year before. This fact is due in no small measure, we believe, to the international copyright law, which even in its infancy has proved a telling force in the book trade.

Last year we reported the future plans of fifty-nine firms; this year we have heard from sixty-two, and yet the number of books recorded in the classified list falls far short of last year's figures. One of our largest firms, which last year announced forty-eight books, has this year only twenty-four in preparation. This falling-off certainly has one redeeming feature. It is easier to push the sale of twenty-four books than of forty-eight, and we look to see the bookseller return as much if not more profit to himself and the publisher in half the number of books. Especially do we hope this in looking over the titles of forthcoming books. Fine editions of classics and works of standard authors are well represented, and biography and history are to be covered by many strong books whose authors' names vouch for their being well-written and whose publishers' imprints are an even surer guarantee of their being brought out in good marketable shape.

It seems to be the bookseller's chance this spring. There will be strangers in all the larger cities, and local advertising and tasteful, discriminating display will tell, especially on foreigners, who, as a rule, have not been spoiled by fine work in this latter method of temptation. We have preached for many years that all real and lasting trade prosperity must have its rise in a flourishing retail trade, and the bookseller alone is able by intelligent work and enterprise to demonstrate to the publisher that such is a fact.

We are gratified to note that the feeling of the trade, and especially of the trade journals, against the wholesaler's competing with the retailer is spreading. One of these latter holds that though "modern methods and the rush of competition are breaking down many old theories and ideas, it will never be correct business management to consider prices entirely on the amount of business done." That is, a trade account, however small, should have the advantage over a private account, however large. If the producer discriminates in favor of the latter he must eventually suffer by the competition which injures his permanent ally, the retailer. Besides, by adhering consistently to the old rule of supplying only the trade, the publisher would not lose the sale of a single copy of his books that is wanted, as the private order must come to him through the retailer. This is the only sound system of business, and one which, had it always been adhered to, would long ago have cut short the spread of the discount system. We agree with the journal from which we have quoted that the day will certainly come when "any manufacturers who supply their goods to other than legitimate retailers at less than retail price will find their accounts with the trade dwindle down to nothing."

At the recent annual meeting of the Cercle de la Librairie the president in his report described a state of affairs in the French book trade with which Americans are unfortunately only too well acquainted. As with us, competition in France has brought down the prices of books sold to the public to such a low figure that the retail trade would seem to be approaching ruin. Only those dealers who include stationery and office furniture or who cultivate a trade in second-hand books may hope to make ends meet. The sale of new books alone yields almost nothing. The president of the Cercle alluded to the heroic efforts made during the past year by the retail trade to get the better of this state of things. He pointed out that this move had been in the interest of publishers as well, and dwelt strongly on the necessity for protecting these indispensable allies of the publisher. He especially appealed to his confrères to take measures against the cheapening of their productions by insisting upon maintaining the fixed retail price. It also appears from the report that an understanding with this in view had already been brought about between the publisher and bookseller, and during the past few months the results have been found satisfactory and profitable.

THAT periodical literature is of growing importance as compared with books is a fact to-day much in evidence. In the "Cyclopædia of Applied Mechanics," recently published by D. Appleton & Co., the information as to the latest achievements of mechanical ingenuity is brought down to date. At the end of their article on electric motors Messrs. Frank J. Sprague and Nikola Tesla find it necessary to refer to no fewer than six electrical journals and to the index to periodical electrical literature, "Fort-schritte der Elektrotechnik," Berlin. Similar references are subjoined to other important articles in the volume—proving once more that a need of the day is a comprehensive index to scientific periodicals, to receive its additions week by week. Such an index in public libraries and in editorial offices would inestimably facilitate research. The card catalogue has made available in a perfect way, the book literature of libraries. An adaptation of the same device can unlock their wealth of literature in periodicals, provision being made for the distribution of title-cards from a central agency.

A BIG PUBLISHING SCHEME.

WE quote the following from the correspondence of Mr. E. W. Bok to the Boston Journal. The scheme is not new, in fact has been attempted in a modified form by at least two concerns. One of these has faded from the view of its creditors altogether, and concerning the other its creditors are as yet in fear whether there will be a "post-mortem inquest" or a "lingering convalescence." The "best class of authors" will probably give the "scheme" a wide berth, and to the struggling author we feel tempted to pass on the advice of Punch to the struggling young person inquiring as to whether he should marry—"don't." We give Mr. Bok's description of the scheme without further comment:

Perhaps one of the most gigantic undertakings for bringing the works of the best authors within the reach of the humblest person is now undergoing organization in New York, and if everything turns out as present indications point, the enterprise will begin its work in October next.

The movement, which for months past has been under way, is the organization of a book-publishing corporation of gigantic dimensions. It has for its sole object the dissemination of the best reading at prices generally considered by the book trade to be ruinous. While no legal organization has as yet been perfected, this will now be obtained, since two-thirds of the entire capital stock of $5,000,000 has been pledged. The company proposes to secure the works of the best current authors and publish them in paper-covered volumes, to be sold not higher than ten cents per volume. The paper used will be of good quality, the type will be of legible size, and the books are to bear favorable comparison in appearance to the present 25 and 50 cent paper-covered volumes of the best book houses. There will be 50,000 copies of each book as a first edition, this number being necessary to insure a profit on each book. The company hopes to be able to secure a sufficient number of good manuscripts to enable it to publish five books each week. This would mean a weekly output of a quarter of a million books each week, or over twelve millions of books per year. Only original works will be used, and preference is to be given American authors. But no reprints of old books are to be issued under any circumstances.

Of course only a trial will show whether the scheme is feasible. One thing is certain, however, that the undertaking will be launched full-fledged. The organizers are as yet kept in the background, but from one of them I learned that the capital thus far subscribed had been taken by some of the best business men of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco. So far as I have been able to gather, the plan of the company will be to sell their books to the trade at a discount of 20 per cent.; the authors will receive a similar royalty. The company expects an equal amount as its profit; hence four cents are allowed as the cost for the manufacture of each volume. The main trouble which the company will encounter will be whether our authors will consent to have their works published at ten cents per volume. Like the best class of actors, who will not play in theatres where the highest-priced seats command less than a $1.50 or $1, so the best grade of authors do not like to see their cloth-covered novels sold for less than $1 or $1.25, or the paper-covered editions of their books at less than 50 cents or 25 cents. But, on the other hand, a twenty per cent. royalty is a larger percentage than many of the popular authors receive, and this, together with a guaranteed first edition of 50,000 copies of each of their books, may prove very attractive to many an author.

READING-MATTER FOR THE POOR.

THE Hospital Book and Newspaper Society is now forced for the first time in its history to appeal to the public for money. This society furnishes reading-matter of all kinds to the inmates of hospitals, prisons, and public and private charitable institutions to the number of 140. The work has gone on for eighteen years, and hitherto a few regular subscribers have given enough to support it, but the society is now obliged to leave its rooms, No. 21 University Place, and move into the United Charities Building. There is no surplus to meet the expense of moving and the increased rent, and the society finds itself in need of assistance. Subscriptions should be sent to Mrs. Fordham Morris, No. 45 East Thirtieth Street.

DESCRIPTIVE SUMMARY OF THE SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE descriptive summary which here follows presents as usual, in its alphabetical arrangement by publishers, a survey of the entire field, so far as the necessary information is at hand. Other books, not yet fully determined upon, will find mention in subsequent issues. In our announcement lists proper, the books will be found arranged by classes, while the advertising pages will afford further detailed information as to prices, sizes, styles, etc.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY have nearly ready "In the Pine Woods," by Rev. Thos. L. Baily, an interesting story of missionary work suitable for Sunday-school and young people's home libraries; and "Mr. Grosvenor's Daughter," by Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, author of "Adam's Daughters," a well-written story of city life by this practised writer. Agnes Giberne's popular and useful book, "Sun, Moon and Stars," having reached its twentieth thousand, the author has almost rewritten it prior to its being reset and printed from new plates. New illustrations have also been made, so that it will be practically a new book with more than its former merit. There will also be a new edition of "American Heroes on Mission Fields," revised and enlarged under the editorship of Rev. H. C. Haydn.

D. APPLETON & Co. announce a goodly number of books, covering almost every department of literature and useful information. In the department of fiction there will be "Many Intentions," by Rudyard Kipling, which will include some stories that have not yet appeared in periodicals; "The Simple Adventures of a Mem-Sahib," a new book by clever Sara Jeannette Duncan, with many illustrations by F. H. Townsend; "Children of Destiny," by Molly Elliot Seawell; "The Voice of a Flower," a novel by E. Gerard; "Diana Tempest," a novel by Mary Cholmondeley, author of "The Danvers Jewels," and a new edition of Hall Caine's "Cap'n. Davy's Honeymoon." Dr. Georg Ebers, whose "Uarda," "Joshua," "A Thorny Path," etc., are known throughout the reading world, will publish his autobiography under the title of "The Story of My Life;" and two new lives will be added to the Great Commanders Series—"General Greene," by Col. F. V. Greene, and "General Johnston," by R. M. Hughes. Description and travel will be represented by "Appletons' Guide-Book to Alaska and the Northwest Coast," by Miss E. R. Scidmore, uniform with "Appletons' Canadian Guide-Books;" philosophy and science by the second volume of Herbert Spencer's "The Principles of Ethics;" "The United States," forming the third volume devoted to North America in Ellisée Reclus' great work on "The Earth and Its Inhabitants;" and "Laws and Properties of Matter," by R. T. Glazebrook, a new volume in the Modern Science Series. Appletons' Annual Cyclopædia for 1892 is almost ready, and other important books of information will be "Three Roads to a Commission in the United States Army," by Lieut. W. P. Burnham; "Manual of Guard Duty, U. S. A.;" and "Appletons' Guide to United States and Canada, with a Columbian Exhibition Supplement." A new edition is in preparation of Bayard Taylor's "History of Germany," edited by his wife.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have the sixth series of their Expositor's Bible well in hand, and promise the six volumes during the spring. They have just ready "The Epistle to the Philippians," by the Rev. Principal Robert Rainy;

"The Book of Daniel," by the Rev. Prof. J. M. Fuller; and "The Book of Psalms, Vol. II.," by the Rev. Alexander MacLaren, are in press, and as nearly ready are announced "The First Book of Kings," by the Ven. Archdeacon Farrar; "Ezra, Nehemiah and Esther," by the Rev. Prof. W. F. Adeney, and "The Book of Joshua," by Rev. Prof. W. G. Blaikie. This house has just issued "Corinthians II. to Philippians," forming the tenth volume of The Sermon Bible, and Rev. J. R. Macduff's "Pillar in the Night," a companion volume to "The Bow in the Cloud." A new volume in the Book-Lovers' Library will be "Literary Blunders," by Henry B. Wheatley, editor of the series. These blunders, chiefly humorous, are classified under appropriate subject headings. The material gathered will all be interesting to the bibliophile and will be connected by a running thread of comment and explanation.

BAKER, VOORHIS & Co. have in preparation some important works, full titles of which may be found elsewhere in this issue under the heading Law.

ROBERT BONNER'S SONS have in preparation three new novels. "Miss Mischief," translated from the German of W. Heimbürg by Mary Stuart Smith, is the story of a young girl who is brought from Italy to Germany, where her warm southern nature is misunderstood and unappreciated, but who unencouraged develops from a hoydenish child into a noble woman. Another translation is "The Child of the Parish," by Marie Von Ebner-Eschenbach, rendered into English by Mary A. Robinson. The scene is a small Moravian village, and the hero of the story is a little poor-house walf, subjected to the worst of influences during his childhood, but winning by force of will an honorable name and position. Mrs. Amelia E. Barr's Easter story, "The Mate of the Easter Bell," which appeared originally in the New York Ledger, will be issued in book form, and several of her short tales and sketches which have appeared in different periodicals will be included in the volume.

THE BOSTON BOOK Co., C. C. Soule, president, have in press several law-books dealing with American and English statutes, full titles of which are given in the classified list preceding this department under the heading Law.

A. I. BRADLEY & Co. announce several books, of which the full titles may be found elsewhere in this issue under the headings Juvenile Literature and Fiction.

CHARLES E. BROWN & Co., Boston, will have ready immediately a volume of "Bishop Brooks' Addresses," with introduction by the Rev. Julius H. Ward and an etched portrait by W. H. W. Bicknell, a most timely publication, which will meet with melancholy appreciation from the admirers of the great Christian preacher.

W. J. CAMPBELL will have ready next month "The Bench and Bar of Philadelphia," an illustrated, chronological and alphabetical legal directory, with full-page half-tone portraits of all the judges of the Philadelphia courts, and of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. have in preparation several works of exceptional interest. "On Sledge and Horseback to Outcast Siberian Lepers," by Kate Marsden, is one of the most important. Miss Marsden is a member of the Royal British Nurses' Association and a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, who has devoted herself to work among the outcast lepers of Siberia. In this volume she will tell the story of her adventures and experiences during the two Siberian winters in which she has carried on, with heroic self-devotion, a work which, by reason of its repulsive details and attendant privations, may be said to be the most wholly and entirely philanthropic of any missionary service. Of a less personal nature will be the late Lieut. Frederick Schwatka's book, "In the Land of Cave and Cliff Dwellers," now about to be published. It will touch upon one of the most interesting and perplexing subjects in the ancient history of America, describing from the view of a traveller and student the remarkable aboriginal dwellings still existent in parts of New Mexico, Arizona and southern California. A volume which will be welcomed by readers generally is "A New England Boyhood." These charming papers, in which Dr. Edward Everett Hale tells the story of his boyhood in the Boston of fifty years ago, had a prosperous career in the Atlantic Monthly, and in a more permanent form will assuredly take a fresh hold upon public affection. A volume of literary criticisms from the pen of Emile Zola will be called "The Experimental Novel, and other essays." It will present the famous realist in the character of a critic instead of a novelist, and his utterances are said to be both caustic and emphatic. As Zola is assuredly qualified to discuss fiction, so W. H. Beard is fitted to speak with authority on art, and in his new book, "Action in Art," which will be embellished with over two hundred illustrations, he will treat the subject with critical appreciation. The same publishers have a long list of excellent novels which will be issued during the spring and early summer. In the front rank are: "A Wild Proxy," by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, the story of a girl whose happiness is risked by her acceptance of the theory that a woman is born only to marry; "His Letters," by Julien Gordon (Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger), who, in the form of a series of letters from a man to a woman, tells an intense and original love-story; "Tiny Luttrell," a story of Australian life, by E. W. Hornung; "Utterly Mistaken," by Annie Thomas; "Jean Bering, Sailor," by Pierre Loti; "The Revolution in Tanner's Lane," by Reuben Shapcott, issued uniform with the new edition of "The Autobiography of Mark Rutherford," to which it is a companion; "The Last Tenant," the story of a haunted house, by B. L. Farjeon; a new edition of Zola's "The Downfall" (La Débâcle); "Dr. Pascal," translated from the French of Zola by Mrs. Serrano; "Witness to the Deed," by Geo. Manville Fenn; "Only a Guard-Room Dog," by Edith E. Cuttrel; "Two," a story of English school-boy life, by Barry Pain; "Under the Great Seal," by Joseph Hatton, and "Lottie's Wooing," by Darley Dale. In their Unknown Library they will publish "A Study in Temptation," by John Oliver Hobbes, and "Squire Hellman, and other stories," by Juhani Aho. The popular stories now to be put in the Sunshine Series are "The Fate of Fenella," the olla podrida novel constructed by Helen Mathers and twenty other well-known writers; Jules Verne's entertaining "Mistress Branican"; "Out of the Jaws of Death," an exciting story of English and Russian life, by Frank Barrett, and a second edition of W. C. Hudson's story, "The Dugdale Millions." The Cassells have just ready a second edition of W. Clark Russell's new story, "List, Ye Landsmen!"

THE CENTURY Co. have just issued "A Handbook of Invalid Cooking," compiled by Mary A. Boland, instructor in cooking in the Johns Hopkins Cooking-School for Nurses, which ought to be widely known among all those entrusted with the care of the sick and convalescent. It is practical and will be a great aid to the right people. It is very neatly gotten up, and contains a bibliography of the cook-books and other authorities that have been consulted in its preparation.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. announce for early publication "Eastward to the Land of the Morning," by M. M. Shoemaker; "Some Little of the Old Angel Still Left," by Mrs. John M. Clay, and a reprint of the first edition of James F. Meline's "Mary Queen of Scots and Her Latest English Historian," a narrative of the principal events in the life of Mary Stuart and a criticism of Froude's History of England as regards its treatment of that period. Mary E. Meline has written an introduction for this new edition.

CRANSTON & CURTS (Western Methodist Book Concern) announce "The Drama of the Song of Solomon," a new translation and arrangement of Solomon, by Dr. Milton R. Terry, whose known ability in Biblical interpretation will raise great expectations for his new book; a work on courtship and marriage, by Henry Tuckley, to be entitled "An Earthly Eden," and an interesting study in the self-sacrificing work of modern deaconesses, to be brought out as "Joy, the Deaconess."

J. G. CUPPLES COMPANY, Boston, announce for immediate publication: "Under Cotton Canvases: the Onward's last voyage," by her master, Capt. John H. Potter, with frontispiece; "A Dream of Lilies," an Easter book of verse, by Katherine E. Conway; "From Heart to Heart," verses by Kate Vannah, with portrait; "Catharine," a novel from the French of Jules Sandeau, translated by Jennie Hamilton Irving, with portrait of Sandeau, and "An Escape from Phillis," a novel by Russell P. Jacobus.

G. W. DILLINGHAM announces a long list of novels to be published throughout the year in his 25-cent library. Full titles will be found under the heading of Fiction in classified list in this issue. Of special interest will be "A Book About Lawyers," to be published immediately, and "Philip St. Clare," by Robert Appleton, the author of "Mrs. Harry St. John," which will be ready in April.

DODD, MEAD & Co.'s spring announcements are chiefly in the department of fiction. They will continue the publication of their fine edition of Anthony Trollope's novels, with the five novels coming under the head of "parliamentary novels," which include "Can You Forgive

Her?" "The Prime Minister," "Phineas Finn," "Phineas Redux" and "The Duke's Children." Every volume in this series has a frontispiece in photogravure from designs by C. R. Grant. A de luxe edition, limited to 250 copies, printed on Holland paper, will also be forthcoming. The "Novels of Maria Edgeworth" will be issued at the uniform price of $1 per volume, and the works will be broken up to make these volumes of average uniform size. The edition will be uniform in size and type with the edition of "Jane Austen's Novels," published by Dent, of London. Other works of fiction to be brought out in rapid succession are: "A Singer from the Sea," by Amelia E. Barr; "From Out of the Past," a story of Touraine, by Emily Howland Hoppin; a Phoenix Edition from new type of E. P. Roe's "Barriers Burned Away," that ever-popular story of the Chicago fire, and a Quarter Century Edition of Martha Finley's "Elsie Dinsmore," to be issued on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the publication of the first records of Elsie, who has become a great-grandmother, and is now wept over by a new generation. In the Makers of America Series will be issued "Peter Stuyvesant," by Bayard Tuckerman, and "Thomas Jefferson," by James Schouler, and a book which has been crowned by the French Academy and recommended for translation by Charles Dudley Warner, will be brought out under the title "Youth," a book in which the French author, Charles Wagner, protests against materialism and makes a plea for the ideal, for plain living and high thinking. The translator is Ernest Redwood. "The Year-Book of Science for 1892," edited by Prof. T. G. Bonney, is also nearly ready.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT will reissue the original ten volumes of the "Sermons and Prayers of Henry Ward Beecher," known as the "Plymouth Pulpit," but will bind them in five and issue them at one-half their original cost. The edition will be a limited one, and is undertaken in response to a growing demand. The first volume is just ready and the others will be issued at the rate of one per month.

GINN & CO., Boston, will shortly publish in the series of Publications of the University of Pennsylvania in Philology, Literature and Archaeology "The Life and Writings of George Gascoigne," by Felix E. Schelling, professor of English literature in the University of Pennsylvania. Gascoigne's position as the most important literary figure between Surrey and Spenser is one of peculiar interest, not only on account of the part played by him in English literature, but because of his contact with many of the famous personages of his day from Queen Elizabeth and William the Silent to Raleigh, Gilbert and Breton. Prof. Schelling will treat in detail Gascoigne's life and work. An appendix will include several poems from the first edition of 1672, never before reprinted. The next issue in the Publications of the University of Pennsylvania will be a monograph on "The Temples and Other Building Operations of Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon," on the basis of a cylinder in the collections of the University of Pennsylvania, by Dr. Morris Jastrow, Jr., professor of Arabic in the university. This house has, as usual, a good list of text-books which are now in preparation. The titles of these will be found under the heading Education, Language, etc., in the classified list in this issue.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. announce for early publication a work by Elizabeth A. Reed, author of "Hindu Literature," etc., to be entitled "Persian Literature, Ancient and Modern." Mrs. Reed has just been honored by election to membership in the International Congress of Orientalists, and also enjoys the distinction of being the only American woman on the rolls of the Philosophical Society of Great Britain. Her forthcoming work will trace the growth and development of the literature of Persia from its origin in Babylonia about 4000 years ago, recounting its almost total destruction at three different periods; first by Alexander the Great, who burned Persepolis, the ancient capital, and all its stores of literature; second by the Mohammedans, who substituted the Koran; and third by the Tartars, who again obliterated all the historical records, down to the present time. The work will be arranged in four chronological divisions, the epoch of Persian poetry being again divided into seven distinct periods corresponding to the time of the leading poets who have been called "the Persian Pleiades." A fac-simile of the illuminated title-page of a Persian manuscript of great value will enrich the volume, and through the courtesy of Prof. Max Müller, the author and publishers are enabled to present in fac-simile a portion of one of the oldest known Zend manuscripts, the original of which is now in possession of the University of Oxford.

HARPER & BROTHERS have a long list of books to be published during the spring and early summer, covering the varied branches of literature, history, biography and fiction. In their dainty Black and White Series they will have a short sketch of the life and character of Phillips Brooks, the memorial sermon delivered by Arthur Brooks, the brother of the late bishop. Dr. Chadwick's address on George William Curtis, delivered at the Brooklyn Institute on Washington's Birthday, 1893, is to be preserved in book form; Horatio Bridge's "Personal Recollections of Nathaniel Hawthorne" will be shortly published; and "The Earl of Aberdeen," by Sir Arthur Gordon, is the forthcoming volume in The Queen's Prime Ministers Series. The second volume of the superb new illustrated edition of Green's "Short History of the English People" will be ready immediately; and "A Child's History of France," by John Bonner, is announced. In miscellaneous literature they will have "The Philosophy of Singing," by Clara Kathleen Rogers; "Picture and Text," by Henry James, a new volume in the Harper's American Essayists Series; "Primary Convictions," the Columbia College lectures of 1892, by the Rev. William Alexander, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, who discusses the simpler evidences of Christianity; a forcible presentation of "Slavery and the Slave Trade" in Africa, by Henry M. Stanley, in the Black and White Series; "Lawn Tennis," by Dr. James Dwight, the ex-champion tennis player; and a well-written manual of etiquette, entitled "Everybody's Book of Correct Conduct," by Lady Colin, adapted to American readers by Mrs. French Sheldon. A new "Index to Harper's New Monthly Magazine," alphabetical, analytical and classified, covering all the volumes from one to eighty-five inclusive, will prove a useful guide to the stores of instruction and amusement hidden in the "back numbers" of that treasure-house of literature. Nor is there lack of "lighter reading" than has yet been mentioned. Several new novels and several new editions of old novels are promised. There will be "The Dictator," a novel of society and politics, by Justin McCarthy; "The Love-Affairs of an Old Maid," by Lillian Bell; "The Story of a Story, and other stories," by Brander Matthews; "An Imperative Duty," by W. D. Howells, in cheaper form; and in the Black and White Series, "The Rivals," a pathetic little tale of French life, by François Coppée, and "The Unexpected Guest," W. D. Howells' charming farce, which was first published in the Christmas Harper's. "The World of Chance," Howells' story of a young journalist's experiences in New York City, after closing its successful career as a Harper serial, is to be brought out in book form.

WILLIAM BEVERLEY HARISON announces several new publications, the titles of which appear in the classified list under the heading Education, Language, etc.

D. C. HEATH & Co.'s forthcoming spring publications will be found classed under the heading Education, Language, etc., in the classified list in this issue.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce "Jock O'Doon," a story of the Carolina coast, by Maria Beal; and "John Paget," a story of New York and Newport, by Sarah B. Elliott, author of "Jerry," whose successful novel, "The Felmeres," will also be reissued by these publishers. This house will also publish "Brief Psychology," by J. Mark Baldwin; and R. Falckenburg's "History of Modern Philosophy," translated by Prof. Armstrong, of Wesleyan. Other books are announced that are strictly educational, and the titles will be found elsewhere in this issue under the heading Education, Language, etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have two important works in the department of biography, one "The Life of Ruskin," written by his secretary, W. G. Collingwood, who has had access to abundant sources of information, and who has prepared a work of very great interest on this famous writer on art and ethics. He does not use a very large number of Mr. Ruskin's letters, but with those which he does use will incorporate others by Carlyle and Browning which possess biographical interest. The work will be in two volumes, and will be amply furnished with portraits of Ruskin taken at different periods of his life, and with other illustrations. The other biography is the "Life of Abraham Lincoln," in the series of American Statesmen, by John T. Morse, Jr., who is the editor of the series, and who has already written four volumes in it. He has, of course, restricted himself principally to the public life of Lincoln, with the discussion of the very important questions which Lincoln considered before, and especially those which arose during the war, and has brought out in admirable relief those wonderful qualities of Lincoln's character and mind which gave him the pre-eminence he held during his term in the presidency. This will be one of the most valuable contributions to the series, and will be followed later by volumes on Chase, Charles Francis Adams, Sumner and Seward. A work of some historical interest is entitled "From Chattanooga to Petersburg Under Gens. Grant and Butler, a contribution to the history of the war, and a personal vindication," by Gen. Wm. Farrar Smith, who suffered from the unfavorable, not to say hostile, judgment of both the generals above named, and who has prepared an account of a certain portion of the war, so far as he was connected with it, which he trusts will receive the favorable regard of those competent to judge. In fiction, Miss Phelps will have a story entitled "Donald Marcy," telling in her characteristic way a tale largely of college life, of its vivacity, its special interests, and of character deepening as added years bring a sense of responsibility and possible achievement. Mrs. Deland will gather into a volume her little romance of "Mr. Tommy Dove and Miss Temple," in which she will include four or five other stories contributed by her to the Atlantic and other magazines, embracing "At Whose Door?" "A Fourth-Class Appointment," "Elizabeth" and "The Face on the Wall," recently printed in Harper's Magazine. Mrs. Clara Louise Burnham, who has a large clientèle of admiring readers, will publish a book called "Dr. Latimer," a story of Casco Bay, including the various experiences of three couples, all terminating happily. In the Riverside Paper Series Mr. Howells' powerful story, "A Foregone Conclusion," will appear at an early date. Mr. M. M. Ballou, who has travelled the globe in almost every possible direction, recently visited Malta, and stayed there an unusually long time for him. He searched all available sources of information with relation to its history and its interesting features, and he offers these now in a book called "The Story of Malta." The "Satchel Guide" has been revised up to date, and continues to be, as for many years it has been, undoubtedly the best compact guide-book for those portions of Europe visited by the vacation tourist. In poetry there are but three additions promised by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.: "The Wayside Harp," by Louise Imogen Guiney, which will include the rather remarkable poems which Miss Guiney has printed in various magazines and other periodicals within the last few years; a volume entitled "Horatian Echoes," by the late John O. Sargent, who had no little fame as a scholar and translator, and who had made metrical translations of eighty-seven of the hundred Odes of Horace, which will contain a poem addressed to Horace by Mr. Sargent, a biographical sketch by Mr. Sargent, and an introduction by Dr. Holmes; and Prof. W. H. Appleton, of Swarthmore College, has culled from English literature the best translations of the best Greek poems, and in a volume entitled "Greek Poets in English Verse" will print these selections from Homer, Hesiod, Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Anacreon, Aristophanes, Pindar, Theocritus and others, prefacing them with an excellent original essay. Two volumes of religion, or rather of theology, are announced: one, "The Gospel of Paul," giving a new view of the doctrine of St. Paul with regard to the atonement, by Prof. C. C. Everett, Dean of the Harvard Divinity School, and "The Divinity of Christ," a volume containing several essays contributed by the editors of the Andover Review to that periodical, and setting forth what may be considered the best thought of the liberal evangelical school on the theme it treats. Two important books of sociology are announced: "Tools and the Man," by Dr. Washington Gladden, who discusses the most important relations of property and industry, including labor, co-operation, competition, socialism, all with reference to the Christian law, which he regards as the ultimate standpoint, and, if adopted, sure to work a solution of all the perplexing problems of our present industrial and social life; and a volume by Rev. N. P. Gilman, whose work on "Profit-Sharing" has had so large popularity, to be entitled "Socialism and the American Spirit," in which he follows a line quite different from that of most persons writing upon the same general subject. It is a book likely to call forth considerable comment and perhaps some controversy, inasmuch as it does not advocate socialism, at least in the form in which this is understood by many of the most intelligent and conservative persons in America who are inclined to regard socialism with favor. Of special interest will be "The Riverside Primer and Reader," intended for use in primary schools, but of interest to all parents, as it claims to be the only preparation needed for the reading of good literature, and is planned to be a stepping-stone to the Riverside Literature Series.

HUNT & EATON have in press several books intended to foster the spread of Methodism, some of them stories for young and old, and some of them essays by noted preachers and writers. "Christus Consolator" will be a book of cheering words for the bereaved, by Dr. Gilbert Haven; "The Prophecies of Daniel" will be explained by Dr. Milton S. Terry; Rev. G. H. Dryer has prepared a useful work to be called "Manual for Official Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church." "Seven Graded Sunday-Schools" will show some careful work by Hon. Lewis Miller, George S. Bennett and others; Bishop J. H. Vincent will publish "The Story of a Letter" in the Book of Books Series; Rev. J. D. Bloodgood will have "Personal Reminiscences of the War," and the new stories will be "Amos Truelove," by Charles R. Parsons; "Sybil's Repentance," by Mrs. Haycraft; "Our Boys," by William Stoddart, and "Jacob Winterton's Inheritance," which will be issued without the author's name.

WILLIAM R. JENKINS will have some new books in his specialty of French fiction arranged for school reading, full titles of which will be found in the classified list elsewhere under the heading Education, Language, etc.

THE JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY OF AMERICA, Philadelphia, will issue the second volume of Graetz's "History of the Jews," of which the first volume was published in 1891.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS PRESS, Baltimore, announces the following contributions to its valuable Studies in Historical and Political Science, edited by Herbert D. Adams. The separate titles of the forthcoming papers will be "History of Slavery in Connecticut," by Dr. B. C. Steiner; "The Cincinnati Southern Railway: a study in municipal activity," by J. H. Hollander; "Jared Sparks and De Tocqueville," by Prof. Stephen B. Weeks; "Local Government in the South and Southwest," by Prof. Edward W. Bemis and others; "The Negro in the District of Columbia," by Edward Ingle; "Progress of American Historical Literature," by Dr. J. M. Vincent; and "Progress of American Economic Literature," by Dr. Sidney Sherwood. This society will also bring out a valuable "Monograph on the Genus Salpa," by Prof. W. K. Brooks, which will have sixty colored plates describing these peculiar inhabitants of the ocean.

LEA BROTHERS & Co., Philadelphia, have several important medical works in preparation. Titles of these are collected under the heading Medical Science in the classified list preceding this department.

LEACH, SHEWELL & SANBORN announce for April "The Private Life of the Romans," by Harriet Waters Preston and Louise Dodge, a book which will have beautiful original illustrations, some of them photographed upon the ground mentioned; "Macaulay's Essays on Milton and Addison," by Dr. James Chalmers, Ohio State University; and a book of "Milton Selections," by Prof. Louise Manning Hodgkins. They also have a number of school-book announcements, of which the full titles will be found elsewhere in this issue under the heading Education, Language, etc.

LEE & SHEPARD announce "The Poet and the Man," under which title Francis H. Underwood will give appreciations of James Russell Lowell, with full bibliography and brief estimates of his works, a book not intended to take the place of a complete biography, but to supply all the important literary facts that all readers ought to know; and by the same competent compiler will be the first series of "The Builders of American Literature," to include biographical and critical notices of American authors born before 1825, a book intended to take the place of Underwood's "Handbook of American Literature," issued twenty years ago, which was made somewhat cumbersome by the specimens of the works of the authors that will be excluded from the new work. A new work of historical value will be "Historic Mansions of New England," by Samuel Adams Drake, who will describe some of the houses connected with the famous people and interesting events his former studies in New England character and scenery have made so familiar; and books of educational interest are announced in "Fröbel Letters, with Explanatory Notes," by Arnold H. Heinemann, containing the groundwork of his educational plans which have transformed the teaching of the world; "Stories of English History," by Albert F. Blaisdell, arranged especially for pupils at school, and "Elementary Wood-Work for Manual Training-Schools," by George B. Kilbon, with many illustrations. A volume will be made of "The Select Works of Benjamin Franklin," including his autobiography, with notes and a memoir, by Epes Sargent, and the autobiography and notes will also be brought out separately in a cheaper volume. In works of fiction the house has in preparation "Larry," the story contributed by Miss Douglas to the Youth's Companion, for which she received the prize of $2000; also another of this popular writer's stories to be entitled "Bertha Wray's New Name;" and the fourth volume in Oliver Optic's All Over the World Series, to be entitled "Strange Sights Abroad and Adventures in European Waters."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce many new publications in almost all departments of literature. In biography they will have "Major-General Wayne and the Pennsylvania Line in the Continental Army," by Charles J. Stillé, and a third edition, revised and corrected, of John Bigelow's "Life of Benjamin Franklin," to be published in three volumes with illustrations. In fiction they are preparing "A Leafless Spring," by Ossip Schubin, translated from the German by Mary J. Safford; "John Gray," by James Lane Allen; "Little Miss Muffet," by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "Foes in Ambush," by Capt. Charles King; "Man of Feeling," by Robert Mackenzie; "Val Maria," a romance of the time of Napoleon I., by Mrs. Lawrence Turnbull; "A Riddle of Luck," by Mary E. Stone, and several new stories in Lippincott's Series of Select Novels, of which the most important will be "Found Wanting," by Mrs. Alexander; "But Men Must Work," by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "Was He the Other?" by Isobel Fitzroy; "North Country Comedy," by M. Betham-Edwards; and "One of the Bevans," by Mrs. Robert Jocelyn. In literary history and miscellany there will be "Essays and Sketches, Educational and Literary," by Julia Duhring, and "Through Colonial Dooways," by Annie Hollingsworth Wharton. The last volume of "Chambers' Encyclopædia" is just ready, completing the new issue of this valuable work of reference, and the edition for 1893 of "Lippincott's Gazetteer" is also a most important publication very nearly completed. Important contributions to the literature of nature and science will be "Our Own Birds," a natural history of the birds of the United States, by Edward D. Cope, of which a new edition will be ready shortly, and "Outlines of Forestry," by Edwin J. Houston. Finance will be represented by "History and Theory of Money," by Sidney Sherwood, and religion and philosophy will receive the addition of the third volume of "Styx's" work of "Hermetic Philosophy," answering the question "Can virtue and science be taught?" There will also be upwards of half a dozen medical works, full titles of which are given in the classified list in this issue under the heading Medical Science.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY's announcements are confined almost wholly to fine editions of works of fiction that now almost rank as classics. To their fine edition of Bulwer-Lytton with etched frontispieces from designs by Garrett will be added "Paul Clifford," "Godolphin," "Ernest Maltravers," "Alice, or the mysteries," and "Night and Morning." Of these books there will also be a large-paper edition limited to 100 numbered copies, printed on Van Gelder hand-made paper with plates on Imperial Japan paper. In the edition now being published by subscription of the works of Alexander Dumas there will be issued "La Dame de Monsoreau," "The Forty-five" and "The Three Musketeers." These will only be sold in complete sets. They are printed on Enfield hand-made paper, with numerous portraits and designs by eminent French and American artists with plates on Imperial Japan paper. The edition is limited to 1000 numbered sets. Of great interest to those able to appreciate the scholarly work of Henryk Sienkiewicz will be the announcement of two new novels, dealing with the great political and social problems of Russia. "Without Dogma" will be translated by Iza Young, and "Pau Michael," by Jeremiah Curtin, whose fine work on "The Deluge" and "With Fire and Sword" almost added to the author's genius.

LONGMANS, GREEN & COMPANY have in preparation a goodly list of volumes of marked literary and scientific quality. In biography they will issue "The Life of the Right Hon.

Robert Lowe, Viscount Sherbrooke," by A. Patchett Martin, with five portraits on copper; and a cheaper edition of Marbot's "Memoirs" in one volume. Of literary importance will be Andrew Lang's work on "Homer and the Epic," of which a large-paper edition limited to 107 copies is also in the press; and "The Æneid of Virgil, Book I.-VI.," translated into English verse by James Rhoades. In works dealing with religion, theology and speculation the house announces "The Epistle to the Romans," by the late Canon Liddon, of St. Paul's, London; "The Decalogue," by Elizabeth Wordsworth; "The Final Passover," a series of meditations upon the Passion of Jesus Christ, by Rev. R. M. Benson; "The Life of Love," a course of Lenten lectures, by Rev. George Body, and "Theosophy, or, psychological religion," by F. Max Müller, being the Gifford lectures for 1892. The announcements in nature and science are "Papers and Notes on the Glacial Geology of Great Britain and Ireland," by the late Henry Carvill Lewis, Prof. of Mineralogy in the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia, edited from his unpublished manuscripts, with an introduction by Henry W. Crosskey; Part 13, with appendix, completing the valuable work on the "Old and New Astronomy," by Richard A. Proctor and A. Cowper Ranyard; and new volumes in the Silver Library by Richard A. Proctor, to be entitled "Rough Ways Made Smooth," "Pleasant Ways in Science" and "Other Worlds Than Ours." "The Theory of Credit," by Henry Dunning Macleod; "An Analysis of the Ideas of Economics," by L. P. Shirres, and "The Land of Home Rule," an essay on the history and constitution of the Isle of Man, by Spencer Walpole, will be added to their long list of political and economic literature; history will be represented by the third and concluding volume of "Epochs of American History," by Woodrow Wilson, dealing with "Division and Reunion, 1829-1889," description, by "Where Three Empires Meet," a narrative of recent travel in Kashmir and adjacent countries, by E. F. Knight, and "York," the new volume in the Historic Towns Series; and education, by "A Sanskrit-English Dictionary," compiled by Arthur A. Macdonell, and "A Course of Practical Elementary Biology," by John Bidgood. In arts and sciences the publishers will offer "A Manual of Machine Drawing and Design," by David Allan Low and Alfred William Bevis; the third volume of "Thorpe's Dictionary of Chemistry," completing the work, and "Telephone Lines and Their Properties," by W. J. Hopkins, Prof. at Drexel University, Philadelphia. In juvenile literature will appear "The Making of the Body," a reading-book for children on anatomy and physiology, by Mrs. S. A. Barnett; in fiction is promised "Keith Deramore," by the author of "Miss Molly," in hygiene may be expected "Manual of Health and Temperance," by G. T. Brodribb, and in poetry there will be the fourth edition of "The Shadows of the Lake, and other poems," by Frank Leyton.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have a large number of choice books in press, to be ready early this spring. A beautiful memorial volume to Bishop Brooks is being prepared in an édition de luxe of "Helps by the Way," which is to be elegantly printed and bound in parchment with antique decorations in gold. It will contain a fine photograph frontispiece of his portrait and autograph, and will be of special interest to the many who loved and honored Bishop Brooks. Another tribute to the dead will be the elegy on the death of Thomas William Parsons, entitled "Seaward," written by Richard Hovey, which attracted so much attention when it appeared in The Independent. It will be printed on parchment paper, with wide margin and illuminated throughout with beautifully designed initials in red, and will be among the very pleasing publications of the season. Margaret Sidney's very charming tribute, "Whittier with the Children," will delight all lovers of the good Quaker poet. It will be illustrated with a full-page photogravure representing him surrounded by the children, and with fifteen drawings of Whittier's pets and his favorite haunts, and is to be elegantly bound in silver gray, with gold and silver ornamentation. A dainty book for an Easter offering will be Harriet Adams Sawyer's "Song of the Christ," with sixteen fine full-page photogravures from original drawings. The "Tennyson Remembrance-Book," edited by Elbridge S. Brooks, will commend itself as embodying "much in little" of the poet's life, character and genius. It will have dainty illustrations and will form a handsome memorial. A book which will excite laughter while inspiring all to good work is Rev. J. F. Cowan's racy dialect story, "Endeavor Doin's Down to the Corners," in which Brother Jonathan Hayseed will relate some very edifying experiences in the line of Christian Endeavor work. Mrs. A. M. Diaz, who is well known as one of the brightest as well as most practical of women writers and workers, has a new book coming out this spring through D. Lothrop Company under the title, "Only a Flock of Women." It consists of forty-two keen, crisp, thoughtful and trenchant papers on important topics of the day. A capital juvenile, "Archie of Athabasca," by J. Macdonald Oxley, is nearing completion in the pages of Wide Awake. It deals with Canadian life, in which the author, being a Canadian, is thoroughly au fait, and will be heartily welcomed in book form. Several other bright juveniles are also in the press of this house. One bearing the suggestive title, "Oscar Peterson, Ranchman and Ranger;" one by Margaret Sidney, called "Little Paul;" while "That Mary Ann," by Kate Upson Clark, which has just been published, is acknowledged to be one of the most taking and natural stories of boy and girl life that has been issued for many a day. Several choice issues of D. Lothrop Company, which were unavoidably delayed in the press, are now ready, notably Dr. Clark's fine study of "Oliver Cromwell," which represents the Great Protector in his true light; Caroline Hunt Rimmer's charming art manual and picture-book combined, "Figure-Drawing for Children;" and Edward A. Rand's graphic story of New England life and manners a decade ago, "The Down-East Schoolmaster's First School."

LOVELL, CORVELL & Co. are to have a new volume by J. M. Barrie, to be entitled "A Tillyloss Scandal," in which Thrums is once more the scene of a story full of dry humor, skilled delineation of character and rare knowledge of human nature. A new novel by Mrs. Oliphant, entitled "The Marriage of Elinor," will be issued in the Belmore Series. These publishers also announce editions in paper of some of their popular stories, full titles of which may be found in classified list under the heading Fiction.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have almost ready the eighth volume in their attractive series of The Great French Writers, which will be devoted to "Bernardin de St. Pierre," a translation from the French of Arvede Barine, with introduction by Augustine Birrell, the literary artist of "Obiter Dicta;" the Laurel-Crowned Letters will be enriched by "The Best Letters of William Cowper," edited with an introduction by Anna B. McMahon; and the Elisabethan Library will have the addition of two new volumes, "A Bower of Delights," interwoven verse and prose from the works of Nicholas Breton, and "Selections from the Works of Lord Bacon." A book sure of welcome will be a large-paper edition of "Echoes from the Sabine Farm," a free translation of certain Horatian lyrics by Eugene and Roswell M. Field, made thoroughly delightful by "little pictures" from the pencil of Edmund H. Garrett. "Counterparts" will soon be issued in two volumes uniform with "Charles Auchester," Miss Sheppard's other novel, which has almost become a classic; and there will be a work by Thomson Jay Hudson, to be entitled "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," which is said to refer the whole range of mesmeric, hypnotic and other uncanny phenomena to two or three fundamental principles.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce a long list of new books, fine editions of classics and new editions of many works already on their list. There will be a new edition in two volumes of Mrs. Humphry Ward's translation of "The Journal Intime of Henri-Frédéric Amiel;" the fourth volume of Charles Booth's "Life and Labor of the People in London," dealing with East London industries; "Boswell's Life of Johnson," edited by Mowbray Morris, a new edition to the Globe Library; and "Lives of Eminent Persons," reprinted from the London Times, of which there will be four volumes, three of them now ready. In fiction has just been issued "The Real Thing, and other stories," by Henry James; and among forthcoming novels are announced the two first volumes in the new edition of Frances Burney's works, covering "Evelina," the edition to be uniform with R. Brimley Johnson's new edition of Jane Austen's novels; and the "Works of the Brontë Sisters," in thirteen volumes, also uniform with the Austen novels. There will be monthly additions to the handsome and remarkably cheap Dryburgh Edition of the "Waverley Novels." A new novel by Paul Cushing will be entitled "The Great Chin Episode;" Marion Crawford will have a new story, "Pietro Ghisleri," and his essays on the modern novel which appeared in The Forum will be issued in book form under the title, "The Novel: what it is," in which will also appear a new photogravure portrait of this popular writer. There will also be a new novel by George Gissing, to be called "The Odd Women." There is to be a third revised and enlarged edition of Bryce's "American Commonwealth" in two volumes, of which the first is just ready; and other important historical works announced are a new edition of E. A. Freeman's "History of Federal Government in Greece and Italy," edited by J. M. Bury; "The English Town in the Fifteenth Century," in two volumes, by Anna Stopford Green; and "An Atlas of Classical Antiquities," by Th. Schreiber, edited for English use by Prof. W. C. F. Anderson, Firth College, Sheffield. Two new volumes will be added to the English Classics: Spenser's "Faerie Queen," edited by H. M. Percival, and Tennyson's "Holy Grail," by G. C. Macauley; there will be a volume of Goethe's "Prose Maxims," selected and translated by T. Bailey Saunders; a new edition of Frederic Harrison's "The Choice of Books, and other literary pieces;" "The Complete Works of Tennyson" in one volume; and volumes 8, 9 and 10, completing the Cabinet Edition of Tennyson, and including his latest works, "The Foresters" and "The Death of Ænone." Among the many more books in preparation we briefly mention "The Poetical Works of Coleridge," edited with introduction by J. Dykes Campbell, to be uniform with Tennyson, Wordsworth, etc.; a library edition in five volumes of "English Prose Writers," edited with a general introduction by Henry Craik; and also a Student's Edition of the same, "The Eloping Angels," by William Watson, to be uniform with the collected edition of his poems; "Annals of an Old Manor House, Sutton Place, Guildford," by Frederic Harrison, illustrated from original drawings by W. Luker, Jr., W. Moen and C. Foster Hayward; "Introduction to the Study of Political Economy," an entirely rewritten third edition of Luigi Cossa's great work, translated with the author's sanction and assistance by a scholar in the University of Oxford; "Biblical Miscellanies," a new volume of essays by Bishop Lightfoot; "Survivals in Christianity," by Rev. Charles James Wood; and a second series of "Shadows of the Stage," by William Winter. Books strictly intended for schools and colleges, embodying almost every subject of study, will be found in the classified list under the heading Education, Language, etc.; text-books on medicine are classified under heading Medical Science; works of physical science under heading Nature and Science; and works of applied science under heading Arts and Sciences.

MARCH BROTHERS, Lebanon, Ohio, have several books in preparation, full titles of which will be found elsewhere in the classified list under the heading Education, Language, etc.

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co. have in preparation a goodly number of novels, some by very noted authors. Among the names in their announcement we notice Adolphe Belot, Octave Feuillet, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, etc. For full titles of the books to be issued at regular intervals we refer our readers to the classified list, where they will all be found under the heading Fiction.

JOHN MURPHY & Co. announce a long list of educational works full titles of which will be found elsewhere under heading Education, Language, etc. They will also have ready a Catholic novel, by Maurice Francis Egan, to be entitled "A Marriage of Reason," and some books for the study of the Catholic faith, the most important of which will be "Guide to the True Faith," by Rev. P. I. Cullen; "Miraculous Events at Lourdes," from the French of Henry Lassere; and several works in the Latin, of which the full titles may be found under heading Religion and Philosophy elsewhere in this number.

THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY AND PUBLICATION HOUSE announce some new juveniles inculcating the principles for which their society works. "Barclay's Daughter" is written by Jean Kate Ludlum, and will be suitable for Sunday-school libraries; "Juvenile Temperance Reciter, No. 4," has been compiled by Miss L. Penny; and a "Programme for a Public Temperance Meeting" has been arranged for young people by Faye Huntington, and will be issued very shortly.

THE ORANGE JUDD COMPANY will issue "Forest Planting," a treatise on the care of woodlands and the restoration of denuded timber lands on plains and mountains, by H. Nicholas Jarchow. The author has adapted his information and long European experience to the different climates and trees of America, and his work is said to be destined to become a standard authority on its subject. The recklessness with which Americans have cut down their forests is sternly censured. Another most important book will be "Market Gardening and Farm Notes," by Burnet Landreth, adapted for the amateur gardener as well as for the trucker and farmer.

PORTER & COATES again announce new stories by those untiring writers for boys, Harry Castlemon and Horatio Alger. The former will tell of "Two Ways of Becoming a Hunter," and the latter will describe "Facing the World, or, the haps and mishaps of Harry Vane." These books will be illustrated and in all things suitable for healthy, happy boys.

JAS. POTT & Co. have prepared for the Easter season three dainty series, the Christian life, the Christian faith, and the Christian classics. These are bound in special Easter bindings of white and gold, white parchment, and delicate cloth. The first series comprises Drummond's "City Without a Church," Miss Taylor's "Lays of Lowly Services," and Dr. Faber's addresses on "Simplicity" and "Kindness." In the second are: Gannett's "Blessed be Drudgery," "The Sermon in the Hospital," "Just for To-Day," Miss Gellebrand's little story of "J. Cole," and Mary K. A. Stone's verses "As Thy Days," while the third contains "The Christian Year," "The Invitation of Christ," "Pilgrim's Progress" and "The Poems of George Herbert." The new Hymnal, revised and enlarged, as adopted by the 1892 General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will be issued in various bindings at different prices, and "The Cloud of Witness," Mrs. Lyttelton Cell's excellent compilation of religious thoughts and quotations, will be brought out in four different styles. There will also be special Easter editions of the Rev. Cunningham Geikie's "Precious Promises, or, light from beyond" and of "Daily Light on the Daily Path," a devotional text-book for every day in the year. They also announce a new and beautiful edition of the "Altar Services," consisting of the communion office, the collects, epistles and gospels for the year; the offices for the ordering, making and consecration of deacons, priests and bishops, and for the consecration of churches and chapels. It will be printed from a new set of plates after the new standard, in great primer type. The size will be octavo, and there will be four styles of morocco binding. Printing and binding are to be done in London, and arrangements have been made to put the edition on the market shortly before Easter. This house has, as usual, a fine assortment of Easter booklets printed in colors and monotype. Among these special mention may be made of the late Bishop Brooks' two carols, "Easter Angels" and "An Easter Carol," Archdeacon Farrar's "Easter Hymn," and "The Good Wine at the Feast's End," one of Bishop Brooks' last sermons.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have an unusually long list of works in preparation, all of which are expected to be ready by the month of May. Of biographical importance will be "Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life," the autobiography of George Jacob Holyoake, author of "The History of Co-operation in England;" the fourth volume of "The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay," completing the work; the second volume of "The Writings and Correspondence of Thomas Jefferson," edited by Worthington C. Ford; the thirteenth and fourteenth volumes of "The Writings of George Washington," completing the great work so ably done by the same editor; and a new revised and enlarged edition of James Ross' "Three Generations of English Women," giving the memoirs and correspondence of Susannah Taylor, Sarah Austin and Lady Duff Gordon. In the department of history are announced: "Venice: an historical sketch of the republic," by Horatio F. Brown, author of "The Venetian Printing Press;" "Outlines of Roman History," by Henry F. Pelham, professor of ancient history in the University of Oxford, a work planned particularly to meet the requirements of higher-grade students and reading-classes; "The Church in the Roman Empire, A.D. 64-170," with chapters of later Christian history in Asia Minor, by Prof. W. H. Ramsay, of Mansfield College, Oxford; "The Fishguard Invasion by the French in 1797," some passages from the diary of Rev. Daniel Rowlands; "The Story of Poland," by W. R. Morfill, in the Story of the Nations Series; "Napoleon, Warrior and Ruler," by W. O'Connor Morris, who gives special attention to the military supremacy of revolutionary France, which will form the eighth volume in The Heroes of the Nations Series, and Part I. of "The Empire of the Tsars and the Russians," by Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu, translated with annotations from the third French edition by Mme. Z. A. Ragozin, a work that will be completed in three volumes. The works of fiction in preparation are "A Literary Courtship," by Anna Fuller, author of "Pratt Portraits;" "Marked 'Personal,'" by Anna Katherine Green, author of "The Leavenworth Case;" "A Conflict of Evidence," by R. Ottolengui, author of "An Artist in Crime;" "Voodoo Tales, as Told Among the Negroes of the Southwest," by Mary Alicia Owen, with an introduction by Charles Godfrey Leland, illustrated by Juliette A. Owen and Louis Wain, a most important contribution to folk-lore; "Chinese Nights' Entertainment," by Adele M. Fields, forty stories told by almond-eyed folk, illustrated by Chinese artists, and "A Washington Symphony," by Mrs. William Lamont Wheeler. "Heroic Happenings Told in Verse and Story," by E. S. Brooks, being No. 4 in the Tales of Heroism Series, and "Diccon the Bold," a story of the days of Columbus, by John R. Coryell, author of "Diego Pinzon," will be the additions to juvenile literature. Works of literary importance will be the second group of the Ariel Shakespeare comprising seven of the histories: "King John," "Richard II.," "Henry IV." (first part), "Henry IV." (second part), "Henry V.," "Richard III.," and "Henry VIII.," to be followed later by seven of the principal tragedies; "The Origin and Growth of the Bible and its Place Among the Sacred Books of the World," by Jabez Thomas Sunderland, who has added a list of books for study and reference, with critical comments; "Ruminations, the Ideal American Lady, and other essays," by Paul Siegvolk; "Tasks by Twilight," a series of essays by Abbot Kinney; "The Iliads of Homer, Translated from the Greek," by George Chapman, to be issued in three volumes with a full series of illustrations from Flaxman's designs and from Greek vases, to be issued uniform with the "Ballad" volumes of the Knickerbocker Nuggets, and "The Making of a Newspaper," experiences of representative American journalists related by themselves and edited by Melville Phillips. New volumes of poetry forthcoming will be "Red Leaves and Roses," by Madison Cawein, "Ranch Verses," by Lawrence W. Chittenden, a new revised edition of Margaret Dixon's "Chronicles of Christopher Columbus," "The Loves of Paul Fenly," by Anne M. Fitch, and "Fleeting Thoughts," by Caroline E. Prentiss. The religious books in preparation are "The Gospel and Its Earliest Interpretations," a study of the teaching of Jesus and its doctrinal transformations in the New Testament, by Orello Cone, author of "Gospel Criticism;" "The Meaning and Method of Life," a search for religion in biology, by George M. Gould, and "An Inquiry into the Truth of Dogmatic Christianity," by William Dearing Harden. Other volumes, all of interest, are "Studies of Travel," from the writings of E. A. Freeman, in two volumes, one relating to Greece, the other to Italy; "A Brief History of Panics and Their Periodical Occurrence in the United States," by Clement Juglar; "Vertebrate Embryology and a Junior Course in Practical Zoölogy," by A. Milnes Marshall and C. D. Hurst; "Shrubs of Northeastern America," by Charles S. Newhall, and "The Art Principle," an introduction to the study of comparative aesthetics, by George L. Raymond, of Princeton College.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. announce several new novels in their Globe and Rialto libraries, full titles of which will be found elsewhere in this issue under the heading Fiction. Of special interest will be "The Harlequin Opal," the most important addition to the latter series a story of the search in a mythical South American republic for a stone whose rays according to their color prophesy peace or war. This firm will make a specialty of "Guides and Handbooks to the World's Columbian Exposition," and have three thoroughly accurate ones under way.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in preparation "Princeton Sermons," by President Patten, of the Princeton Theological Seminary, and Professors Green, Hodge, Warfield, Paxton, Aiken, Murray and Davis; "The Holy Spirit in Missions," by Rev. A. J. Gordon; "Moses the Servant of God," by Rev. F. B. Meyer, a new volume in the series of Old Testament Heroes; "Confidential Talks to Young Men," by Lyman B. Sperry; "Condensed Creed of Christendom in the Words of Scripture," by Rev. C. E. Long; "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life," in German, by Hannah Whitall Smith; "The Ivory Palaces of the King," by Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman; "The Future Tenses of the Blessed Life," by Rev. F. B. Meyer; and "Letters to Dorothy," by Edith Metcalf. These books are almost all nearly ready. A few titles of works to be published later appear in the classified list under heading Religion and Philosophy.

RICHMOND, CROSCUP & Co. will publish immediately L. E. Chittenden's long-looked-for book of "Personal Reminiscences 1840-1890," which will give the observations of such a man as the Register of the Treasury under Lincoln, fortified by full notes taken at the time that must possess a high historical value, made attractive by the literary skill of very marked character that was shown in his "Recollections of President Lincoln and His Administration."

ROBERTS BROTHERS have in preparation some very excellent books, two of great American interest. The long-expected biography of "A. Bronson Alcott," by F. B. Sanborn and William F. Harris, will be published, with a portrait from a crayon by Mrs. Richard Hildreth and one from a photograph by Boyd and an engraving of the Orchard House and School of Philosophy; and the third and fourth volumes of "The Memoirs and Letters of Charles Sumner," edited by Edward L. Pierce, will also be ready and will give two excellent portraits of Sumner and complete this work containing all the information gleaned by the conscientious editor from the perusal of nearly 40,000 letters left in the great statesman's library. In fiction Balzac's "A Great Man of the Provinces in Paris," is promised, which will be the second part of "Lost Illusions" in Miss Wormeley's masterly translation. Mrs. Helen Campbell will have a story of the radical cure of inebriety, entitled "Some Passages in the Practice of Dr. Martha Scarborough;" and Arthur Burrell has ready "The Man with Seven Hearts." The fine edition of Miss Ferrier's novels, begun with the issue of "Marriage," will be completed by the publication of "The Inheritance" and "Destiny," each in two volumes. Horace Parker Chandler, whose two volumes of extracts from the poets, forming "The Lovers' Year-Book of Poetry," showed such excellent literary taste and poetic feeling, will again bring out two little volumes, one covering from January to June, the other from July to December, to have the same general title as the first collection, with the sub-title "Married Life and Child Life." Abby L. Alger has translated a work of Louis Figulier, which will be brought out as "Joys Beyond the Threshold," and will be a sequel to "The To-Morrow of Death." Some studies in historic psychology, by William Morton Fullerton, will be entitled "Patriotism and Science," and there will be a new edition for 1893 of Charles Eyre Pascoe's ever useful "London of To-Day."

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS announce half a dozen new volumes in their series of Lubbock's 500 Best Books. These are Wake's "Apostolic Fathers," Bacon's "Novum Organum," Demosthenes on "The Crown," Pascal's "Thoughts on Religion," Berkeley's "Human Knowledge," and Malory's "Morte d'Arthur." They will also publish new and cheaper editions of Crabbe's "English Synonyms," Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," and Smiles' "The Huguenots in France," the latter to be issued in their Popular Library. Two new novels are also promised—"Something Occurred," by B. L. Farjeon; and "Euthanasia; or, turf, tent and tomb," an anonymous story of English and continental life.

SABISTON & MURRAY, New York, announce or immediate publication several manuals and text-books of veterinary science, titles of which are grouped under the heading Medical Science in the classified list preceding this department.

W. B. SAUNDERS has several important works in preparation, full titles of which will be found in the classified list in this issue under the heading Medical Science.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just issued several important works and have a long list of publications still to come. Among the principal books already before the trade we briefly mention "Tropical America," by Isaac N. Ford; "Art for Art's Sake," seven university lectures on the technical beauties of painting, by John C. Van Dyke; "Adzuma, or, the Japanese wife," a play in four acts, by Sir Edwin Arnold; "The Germ Plasm," a theory of heredity, by Dr. August Weismann; "The French War and the Revolution," by Prof. W. M. Sloane; "The Campaign of Waterloo," by John C. Ropes; "Rise of the British Dominion in India," by Sir Alfred Lyall; "Blackfoot Lodge Tales," by G. B. Grinnell, a companion volume to "Pawnee Hero Stories and Folk Tales," pronounced by The Tribune to be a collection of decided value and original flavor; and several volumes of religious literature, including a "Manual of Natural Theology," by Prof. G. P. Fisher; "Calvinism Pure and Mixed," a defence by W. G. T. Shedd; and "The Higher Criticism of the Hexateuch," by Prof. C. A. Briggs. Among the works on art to be issued shortly are "Wagner and His Works," the story of the great dramatic composer's life, with critical comments, by Henry T. Finck, who makes clear Wagner's genius in its musical, poetic and scenic manifestations in a handsome book in two volumes; "Recollections of Middle Life," by Francisque Sarcey, the most eminent dramatic critic of his time, in which this typical Parisian describes his adventures and experiences as a lecturer on literary and dramatic topics and incidentally shows many phases of Paris life; and "Art Out of Doors," a book of hints, by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, describing with freshness and enthusiasm landscape gardening as an art in its practical application to the beautifying of country places. Nearly related to the last book is a volume to be made of a series of articles which have appeared in Scribner's Magazine, to be entitled "Homes in City and Country," of which the writers are Russell Sturgis, the late John W. Root, of Chicago, Bruce Price, Donald G. Mitchell, Samuel Parsons, Jr., and W. A. Sinn, who have severally discussed the city house in the East and West, the country house, its comforts, the landscape gardening which gives it its setting, and building and loan associations, to be illustrated with pictures representing all styles of American architecture. A work of political and economic value will be "The People's Money," by W. L. Trenholm, ex-comptroller of the currency, an exposition in non-technical language of the principles which should control in financial legislation and of the natural laws which govern the operations of trade and exchange, in which the silver question of the hour will receive special attention. There will be a cheaper edition of Henry Norman's "The Real Japan," and "Abelard," by J. G. Compayré, will be the new volume in the Great Educators Series. The religious works in preparation are "Straight Sermons to Young Men," a collection of sermons recently delivered before the universities of Harvard, Yale and Princeton, by the late Henry Van Dyke; "Present-Day Theology," by Prof. Lewis F. Stearns, designed specially for laymen and uniting literary attractiveness with an incisive and thorough-going discussion of the theology of the Bible rather than of any sect, with memoir of the author by Dr. George L. Prentiss and preface by Prof. Fisher; "Christ in Modern Theology," by Principal A. B. Fairbairn, of Oxford; and a second edition of "The Peace of the Church," by Dr. W. R. Huntington. New works of fiction will be "The One I Knew Best of All," a memory of the mind of a child, by Mrs. F. H. Burnett, the frankly autobiographical story of the experiences of a child up to girlhood, the study by a mature mind of a child's mental life, intended for thinking, grown readers; "Stories of a Western Town," by Octave Thanet; and "Island Nights' Entertainments," a new volume of short stories, by R. L. Stevenson. Eugene Field will have "A Second Book of Verse," and there will be a volume entitled "What I Know About Wild Flowers," by Mrs. William Starr Dana with one hundred illustrations by Marion Satterlee, on the general plan of John B. Grant's "Our Common Birds and How to Know Them."

JOHN M. SCUDDER & SONS' announcements will be found in the classified list in this issue under the heading Medical Science.

F. J. SCHULTE & Co. have now in press new editions of "A Kentucky Colonel" and "Emmett Bonlore," by Opie Read; the twelfth edition of Ignatius Donnelly's "Ragnarok: the age of fire and gravel," a new edition of Winnie Louise Taylor's "His Broken Sword;" and a new edition of Roswell M. Field's "In Sunflower Land" that will be added to the Ariel Library, in which the following new books will also take their places: "The Colossus," by Opie Read, with scene, characters and incidents taken from Chicago life; "Thekla: a musical novel," by William Armstrong, author of "The American Nobleman;" "Christoforo Colon," a poem by Dr. O. A. Fliesburg and Lewis P. Johnson, with introduction by Ignatius Donnelly, illustrated by A. Foerster; and "Colonel Adams," by Thomas P. Berry, a story of life in the extreme West.

CHARLES L. SERGEL & Co. will publish during the year four new volumes in their important series of histories of the Latin-American Republics. The first volume of this series, the "History of Peru," by Clement R. Markham, appeared in 1892. The succeeding volumes will be, in the following order, "History of Chile," by Anson Uriel Hancock, the Western novelist, author of "Coitlan: a tale of the Inca world," "History of Brazil," by John C. Redman and William Eleroy Curtis, director of the Bureau of American Republics; "History of Argentina," by Mary Apin Sprague; and "History of Bolivia," by T. H. Anderson, U. S. minister to that country. Other volumes are in preparation, but not advanced enough for announcement. This series will form the first continuous history of the South American republics published in America, and will cover the period from Pre-Columbian times to 1892. The closer commercial relations which, within the last few years, have sprung up between these countries and the United States make the series of especial interest to American readers.

SILVER, BURDETT & Co. will shortly publish "The Famous Allegories," by James Baldwin, author of "Six Centuries of English Poetry;" and several other books, of which the full titles are given in classified list under heading Education, Language, etc.

SPON & CHAMBERLAIN have a long list of new books and announcements, full titles of which will be found in the classified list in this issue under the heading of Arts and Sciences.

STREET & SMITH's announcements will be found in the classified list under the heading Fiction.

TAIT, SONS & Co. have in preparation several interesting works "The Victorian Age of English Literature," by Mrs. Oliphant, is a book a house may be proud to have its imprint on, and it is promised in a handsome two-volume edition. "The Master Builder," a play in three acts, by Henrik Ibsen, is now having a successful run in London, and it will be issued in the translation by Edmund Gosse and William Archer, who have done so much to bring the gloomy Norwegian satirist before the English-speaking and thinking world. A dainty little volume will be made of four interesting addresses by Henry Irving, to be entitled "The Drama." These addresses were delivered at Oxford University. There will be an édition de luxe, limited to 300 copies, signed by Henry Irving. The other announcements are works of fiction. M. G. Tuttle, the talented woman who writes under the pseudonym of "Maxwell Grey," will have a new story called "The Last Sentence," said to be up to the standard of "The Silence of Dean Maitland." The scene is Brittany. "Dearest" is the title of a new novel by Mrs. Forrester, narrating the experiences of a young girl in subjection to an obnoxious governess and harshly treated by her mother, who favors her elder daughters and makes the younger one defiant. "Loaded Dice," by Edgar Fawcett, is just ready, and is a brilliant story of cosmopolitan life in Paris, and "The Doomsman," by Gertrude Atherton, a Mexican story of thrilling interest, will be brought out shortly in book form, and will no doubt renew the popularity it enjoyed in Lippincott's Magazine. A posthumous work by Jessie Fothergill, entitled "Oriole's Daughter," will be gladly welcomed by the many admirers of this very talented writer, and will tell a story of life in Continental Europe of which the heroine is a young widow who has sought consolation for her bereavement in an artistic career in Rome. George Manville Fenn will have two new stories, "The Dingo Boys" and "The Weathercock." Adeline Sergeant will furnish a novel entitled "Christine," having its scene in Egypt, and Helen Mather has written an Irish story, to be called "Wrostell's Weird," in which the heroine is a young French bride married to an Irish landowner, forced to live four months of the year on his lonely Irish property, remote from all the world in which she delights.

THE TRUTH SEEKER COMPANY have in press "The Creation of God," by Dr. Jacob Hartman, and "The Resurrection of Jesus," by John Allen; and "Crimes of Preachers in the United States." Later in the spring they will bring out "Was Abraham Lincoln a Christian?" by J. E. Remsburg.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS Co. will have ready by May 1 some artistic publications for summer reading, with which they will inaugurate the Breezy Library Series. The titles will be "Mervin Mary Ann," by I. Zangwill, and "Summer Clouds," by Eden Phillpott.

BENJ. R. TUCKER, New York, will publish immediately Emile Zola's latest story, "Modern Marriage." The author takes four typical marriages—one from the nobility, one from the bourgeoisie, one from the small shop-keeping class, and one from the working people—and describes in each case the origin of the marriage, its motive, its consummation and its results.

EVERETT WADDEY Co. will publish a book specially interesting to lawyers and financiers on the "Life and Times of C. G. Memminger, once Secretary of the Treasury of the Confederate States," by Henry D. Capers, giving a full and complete history of the financial policy of the Confederate States. The book will be illustrated.

WARD, LOCK, BOWDEN & Co. announce an edition of "Lavengro," which is generally considered the reliable autobiography of George Borrow, the author, traveller, translator and wanderer among the Zinkali, which will have an important introduction by Theodore Watts, who was a personal friend of Borrow's, and throws much light upon many puzzling passages of the book. A little later this house will issue "Carpentry for River and Garden," edited by the author of "Every Man His Own Mechanic;" and "The Story of Andrew Fairfax," by Joseph Hocking.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. will publish early this spring "The $1,000,000 Bank-Note, and other stories," by Mark Twain, who in the title story—first published in The Century—works out the unique idea of the probable experiences of an honest stranger turned adrift in London with no money but a million-pound bank-note, and unable to account for his being in possession of it; "Elizabeth: Christian Scientist," the story of a refined and deeply religious girl who leaves her home in the Georgia mountains with the object of converting humanity to Christian Science, by Miss Matt Crim, author of that clever book, "The Adventures of a Fair Rebel;" and "Stories from the Rabbis," a collection of tales gathered from the Talmud and Midrash and retold by Dr. Abram S. Isaacs, professor of German and Hebrew at the New York University. They will soon issue "The Art of Sketching," a fully illustrated treatise intended especially for artists in black and white, and translated from the French of G. Fraipont by Clara Bell, prefaced with an introduction by Edwin Bale; a new cheap edition of Mrs. Custer's "Tenting on the Plains," originally sold by subscription only, and "One Hundred Desserts," by Alessandro Filippini, being a companion volume to the same chef's "One Hundred Ways of Cooking Eggs" and "One Hundred Ways of Cooking and Serving Fish." This little cook-book, like its predecessors, contains only recipes tested by M. Filippini during his twenty-four years' experience with the Delmonicos.

BRADLEE WHIDDEN, Boston, has just ready a new supply of "The Ferns of North America," by Prof. Daniel C. Eaton, in two handsome quarto volumes. This work has been out of print for two years, and the present supply is limited and will be final.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just issued "A Short History of the Book of Common Prayer," by Dr. Huntington, Rector of Grace Church, N. Y. City; and announces for early issue "Christ and Modern Unbelief," by Randolph H. M'Kim, rector of Epiphany Church, Washington, D. C.; and "In Paradise," a study of the state of the faithful dead, by Charles H. Strong, rector of St. John's Church, Savannah, Ga. Among his very latest publications are "Studies in the Civil, Social and Ecclesiastical History of Early Maryland;" "The Private Life of the Great Composers," by John Frederick Rowbotham; and "Golden-Rod Stories," by Barbara Yechton, five kinds, bound in white covers, suitable for Sunday-school distribution.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. E. R. HUMPHREYS, the well-known classical scholar and author, died in Boston, March 20. He was the author of "Lessons on the Liturgy of the Protestant Episcopal Church," published in 1860; "Essays on the Education of Military Officers," 1862; "The Higher Education of Europe and America," and "America, Past, Present and Prospective," published in 1870. He was born in England, March 1, 1820, and was graduated from the University of Cambridge. During the war he wrote a series of articles for Moore's Masonic Magazine on the alleviation of war's necessary sufferings, and also a historical work on Masonry.

WILLIAM L. MACDONALD died March 18, after a painful illness of nearly nine months. He was born in Scotland 57 years ago. For many years he was a member and finally proprietor of the well-known bindery of Macdonald & Sons, of Cambridge and Boston, and was also the founder of the well-known Boston publishing and bookselling house of Cleaves, Macdonald & Co. and Loughton, Macdonald & Co. He was possessed of a magnificent tenor voice, and was a member of the Clara Louise Kellogg Company for several years, and also of the Temple Quartette.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BEDFORD, I.A.—Ramsey & Bibbins, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

GARNETT, KAN.—John O. Osborne, proprietor of the Osborne Book-Store, has sold out.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Bryant & Douglas Book and Stationery Co. succeeds Joseph A. Mack & Co., booksellers and stationers, and continues the business greatly improved at 1002 Walnut Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. J. Holman & Co.'s New York agency is at 426 Broome Street, where they are at present making a fine display of Bibles and albums.

NEW YORK CITY.—J. H. Jordan, who was with the firm of Fred'k Keppel & Co. since 1878, and who was their manager for the past five years, has associated himself with the Max Williams Co., 306 Fifth Avenue, near 31st Street, N. Y., as secretary and treasurer. The new company will make a specialty of rare engravings.

high-class modern etchings, and water-colors. Mr. Max Williams, the president of the company, was also with Messrs. Fred'k Keppel & Co. for a number of years as buyer. He is about to leave for Paris.

NEW YORK CITY.—We understand that the committee of the creditors of the United States Book Company and of its subsidiary companies have drafted a memorandum of agreement looking forward to a gradual liquidation of the company's affairs. The plan calls upon creditors holding prior liens to relinquish their preferences to the extent of 50 per cent. of their claims; and provides that after 50 per cent. shall have been paid to the prior lien creditors 25 per cent. shall next be paid to all the other creditors, and thereafter payments are to be made to all the other creditors in proportion to the amount of their demands. The preferences proposed to be recognized and retained under this arrangement will amount to only about $150,000, after the payment of which and expenses of administration the next payments, up to about $175,000 more, will be made to the general creditors, excluding the holder of prior liens, and thereafter the whole of the remainder of the assets will be applied ratably to the benefit of all without any discrimination. The agreement is not to become effective unless signed by creditors to the amount of at least $750,000, and when effective requires the unanimous action of the committee upon all questions. First payment under this agreement would be due about the first of May next. It is thought that if the agreement is consummated that the business will be continued with the utmost economy. A warehouse near Brooklyn will probably be selected to store the books of the various agencies, and the business of the parent company and auxiliary branches will be done under one roof, saving upwards of $50,000 in rents alone.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WORK on the English "Reference Catalogue" will be begun next month, and the trade may therefore look for the volume some time before the next spring season. The price for the forthcoming volume will be higher than that of the previous volume.

It is the opinion of Mr. Chatto, the London publisher, that of amateur novel-writers only about three in every hundred find their way into print. During the last year his firm accepted forty-four manuscripts out of 663 sent in.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. are about to publish "Outlines of Forestry," by Prof. Edwin J. Houston. Prof. Houston will treat the subject in a popular manner, pointing out in simple non-technical language the character of the effects, both on the general climate of a country and on the distribution of its rainfall, which inexorably follow the removal of its forests.

RAITHBY, LAWRENCE & Co., publishers of The British Bookmaker, have in preparation what promises to be an important work on "Book-binding," by W. H. Edmunds. It will be in one handsome crown quarto volume, with reproductions of old and modern bindings in gold and colors, and numerous illustrations in the text. The edition will be 1000 copies, 250 of which are reserved for the United States.

THE new life of De Foe, which is in preparation by Mr. Wright, will contain much new and valuable biographical detail derived from unpublished letters of De Foe. Mr. Wright thinks he has discovered the key to "Robinson Crusoe," and he will endeavor in his work to prove that De Foe, in declaring, in the "Serious Reflections," that he was himself "Robinson Crusoe," was, contrary to the opinion of most of his biographers, asserting what was in reality quite true.

THE litigation over the publication of General B. F. Butler's book has outlived the author of the book. On the 17th inst. the suit of the publishers against the general was finally argued before the full bench of the Supreme Court, which reserved decision. The plaintiff, the C. F. Jewett Publishing Company, it will be remembered, obtained in the lower court a finding of $2500 as damages sustained in consequence of General Butler's refusal to let the house publish the work under a contract which had been made, and the defendant took exceptions.

AN attachment has been obtained in New York City against the Hubbard Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, for $3500 in favor of the Britannica Publishing Company. The latter company alleged that in 1891 the Henry G. Allen Company, of New York, was largely indebted to Alfred H. Hubbard, of Philadelphia, and gave him notes, with a lot of copies of their reprint of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" as collateral security, and in case of nonpayment of the notes Hubbard was to sell the books and credit the Allen Company with the proceeds on the notes. Mr. Hubbard later incorporated the Hubbard Publishing Company, and transferred the notes and books to it. The books were sold, and it is alleged that $7000 in excess of the amount of the notes was realized, which Mr. Hubbard refused to deliver to the plaintiffs or give an accounting for, and an action was begun in Philadelphia to compel him to do so. The Allen Company assigned its interest in the books to the Britannica Publishing Company, which demands judgment for $7000, but the amount of the attachment was placed at $3500.

FROM a correspondent to the Chicago World's Fair Advocate we learn that the firm of J. W. Randolph & Co., of Richmond, Va., established in 1811, computes its output of books at about $100,000 per year. The firm, which ranks as one of the largest Southern publishing concerns, occupies the five-story building at 1302 East Main Street. The five floors are stocked with every class of literature, law and school books predominating. They also carry a large line of stationery. Since the retirement of Mr. J. W. Randolph the management has been in the hands of Col. Jos. V. Bldgood, retired colonel of the First Virginia Cavalry. No man has a more honorable record than the colonel, who has been associated with this house about twenty-eight years, and the present prosperous condition of the house is largely due to his personal efforts. Mr. W. J. Quigley has charge of the paper and printing department, and Mr. J. J. English, Jr., son of the former junior partner when the firm was Randolph & English, of the law and general book department. Both gentlemen are thoroughly acquainted with every detail of their work and well known in social and business circles throughout Richmond.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith. Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Scott's Waverley Novels.

Edited by ANDREW LANG.

New Limited Edition of 1000 Copies.

Scott has stamped his genius on an entire country and language, and the Waverley Novels are read by millions, and in every civilized country in the world. These great novels have never before been properly illustrated.

This edition is enriched at a cost of over forty thousand dollars, with proof impressions on Imperial Japanese paper of three hundred original etchings from paintings by celebrated artists of France and England, among whom are Sir J. E. Millais, R.A., R. W. Macbeth, Gordon Browne, Pettie, Lefort, La-laube, Teyssonnières, etc.

Andrew Lang, the greatest English critic, as editor, will furnish critical introductions, glossaries and notes to each novel, supplementing Scott's own notes.

This is the most magnificent edition ever made of the works of any novelist.

The type will be large and new, set in a fine open page. The margins ample, and the paper a beautiful natural tint. The volume a small 8vo, easy to handle, and the binding vellum cloth, gilt tops, slightly trimmed. Complete in 48 vols., issued 2 vols. per month, at $2.50 per volume. Also 500 copies printed on Holland hand-made paper, with fifty additional illustrations, and bound in half leather, at $5.00 per volume.

Alexandre Dumas' Romances

New Limited Edition of 1000 Copies.

The most complete and only finely illustrated edition ever issued of the principal romances of this great French writer, newly translated by eminent scholars. Dumas' novels are mainly sketched with a historical background, covering the romantic period of French history including the time of Richelieu, Louis XIV., XV., XVI., the French Revolution, and Napoleon. His "Three Musketeers" and "Count of Monte Cristo" have become world-famous.

This edition is embellished with over two hundred superb etchings and photogravures, mainly by French artists such as De Neuville, Leloir, Emile Bayard, Flameng, Lefort and others, supplemented by landscapes and portraits from authentic paintings of the sovereigns and their favorites, ministers, generals, etc.

The manufacture of this edition is perfect.

All of the illustrations will be proof impressions on Imperial Japanese paper.

This edition is printed from entirely new plates, set from new, large type, in a small page with ample margins, and will be complete in 40 octavo vols., bound in English vellum cloth, paper titles, gilt tops. It will be issued by subscription only, at the rate of about 2 vols. per month, at $2.50 per volume.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY'S Spring Publications.

HELPS BY THE WAY. Edition de luxe, prepared as a memorial to Bishop Brooks, and containing his portrait and autograph in a beautiful photogravure frontispiece. Printed on parchment paper, antique style, and bound in full parchment with antique decorations in gold, $2.50.

The make-up of this beautiful volume will be satisfactory to the thousands who loved and now mourn the great and good bishop.

WHITTIER WITH THE CHILDREN. By MARGARET SIDNEY. Illustrated with full-page photogravure of "Whittier with the Children," and sixteen exquisite cuts from photographs and drawings made at the poet's homes of his pets and favorite retreats. Royal 8vo, uncut edges, bound in silver gray with silver and gold ornaments, $1.50.

Among the many beautiful tributes to the gentle Quaker poet none have been more tenderly appreciative than this life-sketch written from intimate personal friendship, and from choice family reminiscences.

SEAWARD. An Elegy on the Death of Thomas William Parsons. With Notes and Biography. By RICHARD HOVEY. Royal 8vo, gilt top, in box, $1.50.

The poem is issued in charming style, with full-page photogravure portrait and exquisite illuminated initials; is beautifully printed and bound, and forms a superb Easter souvenir.

"One of the most memorable poems which has been published for many a day. It will be numbered among the great elegies of the language."—Independent, New York.

A SONG OF THE CHRIST. By HARRIET ADAMS SAWYER. Beautifully illustrated, with 16 full-page photogravures from original drawings, $1.50.

The story of our Saviour told anew in sweet and musical verse. The song is composed of separate poems, each making a picture of some era, but merged into a harmonious whole. The illustrations are rare examples of artistic and poetic feeling.

CHRIST HIMSELF. By ALEXANDER MCKENZIE, D.D. Cloth, plain, $1.00; exquisite white and silver binding, $1.25.

"We have seen few books with such a richness, such a fragrance of meaning."—Presbyterian.

CHRISTMAS EVE, AND EASTER DAY, AND OTHER POEMS. Edited with introductory essay, showing Browning's theory of personal immortality, and with copious notes, by HELOISE E. HENSKY. Preface by Prof. W. J. Rolfe. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents; white and gold, $1.00.

"Christmas Eve, Easter Day, Saul, and the strange experience of Karshish form part of a constituent whole in the illustration of Browning's idea of immortality."—Christian Union.

THE STILL HOUR; or, Communion with God. By Prof. AUSTIN PHILIPS, D.D. New edition. 16mo, 60 cents; gilt edges, $1.00; white and gold, $1.25.

The world-wide circulation of "The Still Hour," of which two hundred thousand copies, in six different languages, have been sold, shows how well it has met the aspirations and yearnings of humanity. The preface and the last chapter on Faith were written just previous to the author's death.

"A book for all time."—Critic, New York.

IMMORTAL HOPES. Compiled by Mrs. M. J. C. FOSTER. With Introduction by J. M. Buckley, D.D. 24mo, cloth, gold and silver die, 50 cents.

This dainty volume contains such beautiful poems as "There Is No Death," by Lord Lytton, Edmund Clarence Steadman's ideal poem of "The Undiscovered Country," and St. Bernard's grand verse, "For Thee, O Dear, Dear Country;" with exquisite full-page illustrations.

THE HEREAFTER. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents; white and gold, 75 cents.

Pithy personal answers to the question, "What are the strongest proofs and arguments in support of the belief in a life hereafter?" By twenty-three great religious teachers of various denominations; with their autographs. They form both interesting reading and valuable testimony.

OLIVER CROMWELL. By Rev. GEO. H. CLARK D.D. Illustrated from old prints. 12mo, $1.25.

The character and influence of Cromwell have not been fully estimated, because not thoroughly understood. Dr. Clark has made an exhaustive study of the great "Protector," and shown the political and historical significance of his rule and its far-reaching effects.

"The book has all the interest of the highest style of fiction; it has unmistakable marks of absolute truthfulness; it touches nearly all the salient points; it is a perfect picture of the man."—BISHOP CLARK.

THE TENNYSON REMEMBRANCE BOOK. Compiled by ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS. 12mo, bound in soft tinted cloth with cameo die, gilt edges, $1.25; full seal, $2.50.

A fine summary of Tennyson's life-work, with glimpses of his boyhood, manhood and old age; interesting tributes from famous writers, and selections from his poems illustrative of phases of his character and genius, make up this charming memorial of the great poet.

ONLY A FLOCK OF WOMEN. By Mrs. A. M. DIAZ. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Mrs. Diaz is both an ideal thinker and a practical worker. She is especially at home on all social matters, and the forty-two papers of this book show her practical wisdom, keen mother-wit, invigorating cheerfulness and ready sympathy at their very best. They are rich in suggestiveness.

ENDEAVOR DOIN'S DOWN TO THE CORNERS. By Rev. J. F. COWAN. Fully illustrated from original drawings. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A delightfully racy and realistic account by "Brother Jonathan Homespun" of the Christian Endeavor work in a country village.

Irresistibly funny in the manner of telling, it is yet full of the spirit and earnest purpose of this great active working-force of the modern church.

THE DOWN-EAST MASTER'S FIRST SCHOOL. By EDWARD A. RAND. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A capital story both for teachers and pupils. The old-fashioned "spelling-school" and other institutions of "Yankee-land" come in for realistic description, and the book is alive with humor, romance and spirit.

By CAROLINE HUNT RIMMER. Illustrated with bas-relief frontispiece and other cuts. Quarto, cloth, $1.25.

One of the most delightful books designed to instruct as well as entertain children. The drawings illustrate action, composition, proportion and expression by simple lines which lead up to the finished outline, so that a child with any talent for drawing can readily learn from them and from the text; as an art-manual for the home and kindergarten the book is invaluable.

THAT MARY ANN. The Story of a Country Summer. By KATE UPSON CLARK. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

A bright, original, entertaining home story for boys and girls. The girl-cousin and the four boys are capably drawn, and the story has an abundance of incident and merry country life.

ARCHIE OF ATHABASCA. By J. MACDONALD OXLEY. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

A genuine Canadian story of trapper life in the wild woods of British Columbia, with Indians and hunters. It is stirring, realistic and fascinating, and will just suit "live" boys who enjoy real adventures.

LITTLE PAUL. By MARGARET SIDNEY. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.00.

"Little Paul" is one of the most winsome of this favorite author's many charming boy characters, a brave little knight who battles always for the right. The famous "Frisbie School" enters into the story, with "Aunt Philena" in a new relation.

THE LITTLE CARD. By "PANSY." 12mo, cloth, 50 cents.

The Golden Texts form the basis of a tender and helpful and inspiring story, such as "Pansy" best knows how to weave.

"The chapters of this book include, among many other things, directions concerning the treatment of fevers of many kinds, measles, diphtheria, pneumonia, etc.; give valuable information about the various organs of the body, the use of bandages, food for invalids and infants, instructions before and after motherhood, and innumerable points that will be found valuable in many minor ills. The text is untechnical and clear, and in the appendices, abbreviations, weights and symbols, medicines and doses, and important definitions are given."—Boston Times.

"Nothing appears wanting to make the book most valuable for the home nurse as well as for the professional."—Public Opinion.

Two Popular Novels.

The Golden Calf.

By H. H. BOYSEN. 12mo; cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Prof. Boyesen has left his favorite Scandinavian scenes to tell a story of modern American life, to point in a new and vivid way the old moral that the "love of money is the root of all evil."

"A strong novel containing a story interestingly told with an unmistakable purpose."—Saturday Spectator.

All He Knew.

By JOHN HABBERTON. 12mo; cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"Its purpose and spirit, and its practical adaption to the great spiritual needs of mankind, are so admirable that it deserves to be read and re-read and circulated widely."—The Congregationalist.

"All He Knew ought to be in every home and on every library shelf. Those who 'never read novels' should read this for the truth it contains."—Canadian Methodist Quarterly.

A New Book by Bishop John H. Vincent.

In Search of His Grave. An Easter Study. Uniform with To Old Bethlehem. 30 cents.

An attractive little Easter volume, with rubricated title page, printed in colors, illustrated with five full page photogravures, and bound handsomely in parchment. The author's visits to Jerusalem are chronicled in this brochure and there is an historical account of the search for Calvary and the old and new theories relating to the location of the Calvary site.

To Old Bethlehem.

By BISHOP JOHN H. VINCENT. Bound in parchment and illustrated from original photographs in the author's possession. 30 cents.

"A dainty little book. The author gives an account of a recent visit to Bethlehem, supplemented by some pages of hearty, wholesome, living thoughts."—New York Christian Advocate.

Two Strong Books.

The Busy Man's Bible.

By GEORGE W. CABLE. 16mo; cloth, 75 cents.

"It is hoped that this bright and helpful work will have a large circulation."—National Baptist.

"We wish that the book could be handed about among Bible-class teachers in every Sunday school in our land."—The Golden Rule.

The Story of Gottlieb.

By DR. WM. F. WARREN, President of Boston University. With frontispiece, rubricated title page. Bound in white vellum. 16mo; 60 cents.

"It is a strong book—strong in its simplicity, its truthfulness, in the impression it makes."—Presbyterian Observer.

Callias: An Historical Romance.

By ALFRED CHURCH, M. A. 12mo; cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

Callias, undoubtedly the most important of Mr. Church's writings, is printed originally in the United States, direct from the author's manuscript. The novel is intensely interesting; the plot is not subordinated to the historical and biographical matter.

Americanized Delsarte Culture.

By EMILY M. BISHOP. Cloth, $1.00.

The author adopts an ideal standard of life—"the greatest good to the greatest number"—and considers the Delsarte art of expression in a broad sense, as it may be of general benefit to all. Americanized Delsarte Culture relates to health and grace and includes expression and art. It is a practical Delsarte handbook.

To the Trade.—Flood & Vincent are the official publishers of all books used by the great Chautauqua Reading Circle. Besides these text books this firm has a long list of special publications designed for the general market, of which the books mentioned in this advertisement are a part. Flood & Vincent have no special house representing them for the trade. Orders sent direct to the publishers will receive prompt attention.

OUR ANNOUNCEMENTS.

A. Bronson Alcott. His Life and Philosophy. By F. B. SANBORN and WILLIAM T. HARRIS. With portraits from a crayon by Mrs. Richard Hildreth, and from a photograph by Boyd, in 1881, and an engraving of the Orchard House and School of Philosophy. 2 vols. Crown 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

"The material for this work has been derived from the copious biographical papers left by Mr. Alcott, or furnished by his daughter, Mrs. Pratt, from sources in her possession. The pages of this book portray our friend as he lived—in youth, in middle life, and in serene old age."—From the Introduction.

Memoirs and Letters of Charles Sumner. Volumes III. (1845-1860), and IV. (1860-1874). By EDWARD L. PIERCE. With two portraits. 2 vols. 8vo, cloth, $6.00.

As Mr. Pierce is an extremely conscientious writer and an ardent admirer of Mr. Sumner, he spared no pains in preparing the book, and read nearly all the 40,000 letters which Mr. Sumner left in his library, the sum total of nearly all that statesman's correspondence.

Guide to the Knowledge of God. A Study of the Chief Theodicies. By A. GRATRY, Professor of Moral Theology at the Sorbonne. Translated by Abby L. Alger. Introduction by William R. Alger. 8vo, cloth, $3.00. This book was crowned by the French Academy.

Some Passages in the Practice of Dr. Martha Scarborough. By HELEN CAMPBELL. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

It is strikingly original in presenting the ethics of the body, and in weaving precedent and precept into one of the most beguiling stories of recent date.

A Great Man of the Provinces in Paris. By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Being second part of "Lost Illusions." Translated by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. 12mo, half russla, $1.50.

The Brotherhood of Consolation. (L'Envers de Histoire Contemporaine.) 1. Madame de la Chanterie. 2. The Initiate. By HONORÉ DE BALZAC. Translated by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. 12mo, half russla, $1.50.

A Woman Who Failed, and Others. By BESSIE CHANDLER PARKER. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

Joys Beyond the Threshold. A Sequel to "The Tomorrow of Death." By LOUIS FIGUIER. Translated by Abby L. Alger. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

The Man With Seven Hearts, and Other Stories. By ARTHUR BURRELL. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

The book is original even in its plan, and bears the stamp of solid, shrewd intellect that is sufficient for itself.

Patriotism and Science. Some Studies in Historic Psychology. By WILLIAM MORTON FULLERTON. 16mo, cloth. (In Press.)

London of To-Day. By CHARLES EYRE PASCOE. An illustrated handbook for this season, 1893, and for all seasons. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Brown's Retreat, and Other Stories. By ANNA EICHBERG KING. 16mo, cloth. (In Press.)

The Lover's Year-Book of Poetry. Married Life, Child Life. A collection of love-poems for every day in the year. By HORACE PARKER CHANDLER. Vol. I., January to June. 16mo, cloth, $1.25; white and gold, $1.50.

Marriage. The Inheritance. Destiny. By SUSAN EDMONSTONE FERRIER. With photogravure from designs by Merrill. Uniform with our "Jane Austen." 6 vols. 16mo, half ruby morocco, gilt top, $7.50; half calf, $15.00.

Convent Life of George Sand. Translated by MARIA ELLERY MACKEYE. (From "L'Histoire de Ma Vie.") 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

ROBERTS BROTHERS, Publishers, BOSTON.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY'S Announcements for the Spring.

THE CONTINUATION OF ## THE NOVELS OF ANTHONY TROLLOPE.

The next group will be the Parliamentary Novels, containing

Can You Forgive Her? 3 vols. Phineas Finn, 3 vols. Phineas Redux, 3 vols.

The Prime Minister, 3 vols.

The Duke's Children, 2 vols.

These, like the Barchester Tower Series, form a distinct group. "Can You Forgive Her?" issued in April. The others will follow at convenient intervals. Each volume 12mo, with frontispiece in photogravure from design by C. R. Grant, cloth, $1.25. A de luxe edition on Holland paper, limited to 250 copies, will be issued at $2.50 per volume.

Previously issued: the Barchester Tower Series, 13 vols., $16.25.

THE NOVELS OF MARIA EDGEWORTH.

To be issued in instalments, with illustrations in photogravure, beginning with "Belinda," in 2 vols., at the uniform price of $1.00 per volume.

This edition will be uniform in type, size, etc., with the very popular edition of Jane Austen's Works published during the last year by Dent, of London.

"She is the author of works never to be forgotten; of works which can never lose their standard value as 'English Classics.' Her novels always found an eager reception at a time when the poetry of Scott, of Campbell and of Crabbe was issuing in its freshness from the press; when the Edinburgh and Quarterly Reviews, then splendid novelties, were to be duly read and studied; when Madame de Staël was at her zenith, and, in a word, when the competition of the noblest wits was only less keen than at the present day."—EDWARD EVERETT in North American Review. Said Sir Walter Scott: "If I could but hit Miss Edgeworth's wonderful power of vivifying all her persons and making them live as beings in the mind, I should not be afraid."

YOUTH (Jeunesse).

Translated from the French of CHAS. WAGNER by Ernest Redwood. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This book, which has attracted wide attention in France, has run through many editions and has been crowned by the French Academy. It is a protest against materialism, a plea for the ideal, for plain living and high thinking. Its publication in English has been urged by such men as Chas. Dudley Warner, who has spoken of it in the highest terms. It is a book which every thoughtful person will find most suggestive and inspiring.

A NEW STORY by AMELIA E. BARR.

A Singer from the Sea. Uniform in size and style with Mrs. Barr's other works. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; also, Cluny McPherson, uniform in style and price, a reissue of this earlier, popular story.

A NEW STORY by MARTHA FINLEY.

The Tragedy of Wild River Valley. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; also in the Blue Paper Novels, 50 cents.

In the Series MAKERS OF AMERICA:

Peter Stuyvesant. By BAYARD TUCKERMAN, author of "Life and Times of Lafayette." 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Thomas Jefferson. By JAMES SCHOULER, LL.D., author of "History of the United States." 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

THE ROSE:

Its Cultivation, Varieties, etc. By H. B. ELLWANGER. An entirely new edition, from new plates. Thoroughly revised and largely rewritten by George H. Ellwanger. 16mo, tastefully bound, $1.25.

ALMOST FOURTEEN.

A book designed to be used by parents in the training of their sons and daughters for present modesty and nobility and for future fatherhood and motherhood. By MORTIMER A. WARREN. A new edition, revised, $1.00.

To be Published Immediately.

BARRIERS BURNED AWAY.

A Story of the Chicago Fire. By E. P. ROE. Phoenix Edition from new type, bound in half cloth, with gold side similar to the popular cheap edition of "Reveries of a Bachelor," recently issued in this style.

ELSIE DINSMORE. (Quarter Century Ed.) By MARTHA FINLEY. In a neat but very cheap edition, issued on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the publication of this most popular child's book.

FROM OUT OF THE PAST.

The Story of a Meeting in Touraine. By EMILY HOWLAND HOPPIN. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

THE-YEAR BOOK OF SCIENCE for 1892.

Edited by Prof. T. G. BONNEY, D.S.C., LL.D., F.R.S. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

It aims to present a conspectus of the progress made annually, divested as far as may be of technicalities.

It is intended to be useful not only to those interested in one department, but generally interested in science and desiring to learn in which direction the sphere of knowledge is being enlarged.

In their series of BLUE PAPER NOVELS. 12mo, 50 cents.

Wild River Valley. By MARTHA FINLEY.

Perchance to Dream. By MARGARET SUTTON BRISCOE.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.'S SPRING BOOKS.

Abraham Lincoln.

In the Series of American Statesmen. By JOHN T. MORSE, editor of the Series, and author of the volumes on John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin. With a portrait and map. 2 vols., 16mo, $2.50.

An admirable work devoted mainly to the public portion of Lincoln's career, the various important questions that engaged his attention before and during the Civil War, and illustrating the marvellous wisdom, good sense, sagacity, freedom from passion, comprehensive patriotism, all dominated by a lofty moral purpose, which gave such force to his judgments and commended his measures so strongly to the popular mind.

Greek Poets in English Verse.

Edited by WM. H. APPLETON, Professor in Swarthmore College. 12mo, $1.50.

An admirable collection of the best Greek poems, from Homer, Hesiod, Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Theocritus, Aristophanes, Anacreon, Sappho, and others. These are presented in the best translations ever made of them, and are prefaced with an essay by the editor.

The Divinity of Jesus Christ.

By the Editors of The Andover Review. A series of noteworthy papers contributed to that Review, and forming a symmetrical and very interesting treatment of the great topic they discuss. 16mo, $1.00.

Donald Marcy.

A Novel. By ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS. 16mo, $1.25.

A story largely of college life, with all the vivacity, energy and freshness of feeling characteristic of healthy college experience; and deepening into more serious purpose and larger views as the responsibilities of life increase.

A Roadside Harp.

A New Volume of Poems. By LOUISE IMOGEN GUINEY. 1 vol., 16mo.

Those who are familiar with Miss Guiney's poems do not need to be told how varied in theme and treatment they are, how vigorous, how melodious. It is saying little to pronounce them far above the average new volumes of verse, and it is confidently believed that lovers of poetry will find in this tasteful book much to admire and much that they will gladly remember.

The Dawn of Italian Independence:

Italy from the Congress of Vienna, 1814, to the Fall of Venice, 1849. A peculiarly welcome work on account of its marked ability and picturesqueness, and as covering an important period in Italian history which has hitherto been inadequately treated. By WILLIAM R. THAYER. With maps. 2 vols., crown octavo, $4.00.

The Interpretation of Nature.

A book of equal value and interest, treating with full knowledge and admirable candor several important questions related to both natural history and theology, by N. S. SHALER, Professor of Geology in Harvard University, author of "Illustrations of the Earth's Surface," etc. $1.25.

John Ruskin: His Life and Work.

A biography of this illustrious man by W. G. COLLINGWOOD, for years Mr. Ruskin's private secretary. It contains letters by Mr. Ruskin, Carlyle and Browning, and much other matter never before published, showing Ruskin's remarkable character and the admirable contributions made by him to the literature of art and ethics. The work has several portraits and other illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo.

Dr. Latimer.

A Story of Casco Bay, including three stories, or a story of three interested couples, by CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM, author of "Miss Bagg's Secretary" ($1.25), "The Mistress of Beech Knoll" ($1.25), "Next Door" ($1.25), "Young Maids and Old" ($1.25), and other entertaining stories. It is told with the vivacity and freshness which make all of Mrs. Burnham's novels so readable. $1.25.

Mr. Tommy Dove, and Other Stories.

By MARGARET DELAND, author of "John Ward, Preacher," "Sidney," "The Story of a Child," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

A book of delightful short stories, written with the spirit, freshness and literary skill which have marked all of Mrs. Deland's books. It will be excellent for reading aloud in summer circles.

Old Kaskaskia.

A Historical Novel of Illinois. By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD, author of "The Lady of Fort St. John," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

Mrs. Catherwood repeats the signal success in historical fiction which she achieved in "The Lady of Fort St. John," one of the most powerful of modern novels.

A Cathedral Courtship, and Penelope's English Experiences.

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN, author of "The Birds' Christmas Carol," "Timothy's Quest," etc. With illustrations. 16mo, $1.25.

Two exceedingly bright and entertaining stories, which cannot fail to amuse and delight those who have read Mrs. Wiggins' previous very popular stories.

Tools and the Man.

A book of great importance and interest, discussing Property and Industry under the Christian Law—including Labor, Competition, Co-operation and Socialism, by Rev. Dr. WASHINGTON GLADDEN, author of "Applied Christianity," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Who Wrote the Bible?" $1.25.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

A NEW VOLUME BY J. M. BARRIE.

A Tillyloss Scandal.

By J. M. BARRIE, author of "The Little Minister," "A Window in Thrums," "When a Man's Single," etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Belmore Series.

In this new story of Scottish peasant life Mr. Barrie is on his own peculiar ground again. It is the pawky little village of Thrums we are once more introduced to, with its simple weaver folk and the quaint, odd characters that figure in "A Window in Thrums," and in that classic of Scottish theocratic life, "The Little Minister." The chief characters in "A Tillyloss Scandal" are Thomas Haggart and his wife, Christy Todd. The story has all the characteristic touches familiar to the reader of Mr. Barrie's earlier books. Their is plenty of dry humor, skilled delineation of character, amusing incident, and a rare power of picturesque narration. Each of the appended stories will be found full of the qualities that have made famous the author of "Auld Licht Idylls" and "The Little Minister."

OTHER WORKS BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

The Little Minister.

By J. M. BARRIE. New edition, with illustrations. 12mo, cloth, gilt, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

NEW EDITIONS IN PAPER.

The Marriage of Elinor.

By Mrs. OLIPHANT, author of "The Railway Man and His Children," "The Heir Presumptive, and the Heir Apparent," etc., etc. Belmore Series, paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"Looking back at the long series of fiction from Mrs. Oliphant's pen, it is wonderful to note how strong and accurate and fresh her touch still is. In many respects this work has even a better quality than most of its predecessors."—Boston Literary World.

The Other House.

By KATE JORDAN. Illustrated Series, paper, 50 cents; also, 8vo, cloth, illustrated, $1.25.

"A story of exceptional interest."—Philadelphia Press.

"The book is delightfully written; the hero and heroine are strong, human characters."—Detroit Free Press.

"The story is strong and unconventional. Miss Jordan has drawn the characters of both hero and heroine skillfully."—New York Press.

The Penance of Portia James.

By TASMA, author of "Uncle Piper of Piper's Hill," "A Sydney Sovereign," etc. Belmore Series, paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"This new novel by 'Tasma' is thoroughly readable; it has the freedom and breadth of touch that prove the author has seen and known the world beyond the sound of the bells of her native town. The theme of this novel is serious, but quite within the scope of the material of fiction; it is treated with a light and skilful hand, and it fully attains effectiveness and interest."—Boston Literary World.

SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT.

FAMILY AND PULPIT BIBLES: STANDARD EDITIONS.

In the English, German, Swedish and Dano-Norwegian languages. Valuable additions have been made to the contents of all of our family Bibles, in both text-matter and illustrations. Our pulpit editions show the Scripture-text alone, without collateral features, and are strongly bound in styles most suitable for the desk or lectern. For this season we have many beautiful bindings recently designed for our use, and our lines are more complete than ever before in the very latest and most artistic patterns applied to Bible covers.

THE HOLMAN SELF-PRONOUNCING S. S. TEACHER'S BIBLE.

It still remains without competition. It is the only Teacher's Bible published with all the proper names in the text syllabified and diacritically marked. We invite comparison of each one of our styles with the corresponding style of any imported edition. Our Bible upon India paper is unsurpassed in either clearness of print, flexibility or elegance of material and finish.

THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER, 1892.

We offer the first and only distinctively American edition yet published of the Prayer-Book of the Protestant Episcopal Church. A large variety of new and attractive bindings have been lately added to our list, and these will be followed by others now in preparation. Our facilities for successfully producing this class of work are unequalled in this country. Additional sizes of the Prayer-Book are also in course of making, and we shall soon place them upon the market. We have listed our books at low prices, from which we allow liberal discounts to the trade.

THE LAW OF PSYCHIC PHENOMENA.

A Working Hypothesis for the Systematic Study of Hypnotism, Spiritism, Mental Therapeutics, etc. By THOMSON JAY HUDSON. 12mo, $1.50.

The aim of this work is to show that the whole range of hypnotic, mesmeric and so-called spiritual manifestations, together with the phenomena commonly associated with the subject of mental therapeutics, are referable to two or three fundamental principles which constitute a working hypothesis, and in accordance with which they can be satisfactorily explained. The author's calm unprejudiced attitude of mind and strictly scientific method of investigation remove his work far from the regions of irresponsible speculation and vagary. The book has a significant and profound bearing upon subjects which are just now of rapidly increasing importance, and is withal thoroughly reverent in spirit. The perusal of this work, in the manuscript, by several specialists of national reputation in their several departments of science and philosophy drew from them the strongest expressions of interest and approbation.

ECHOES FROM THE SABINE FARM.

Being certain Horatian Lyrics done into English by EUGENE and ROSWALD M. FIELD. With illustrations by Edmund H. Garrett. Large-paper edition, limited to 500 numbered copies, 8vo, net, $5.00.

It is perhaps needless to say that these translations are quite free from pedantry and mere literalness, and that while some of the lyrics are singularly perfect reproductions of the originals, others are free adaptations to the spirit, the forms and the speech of to-day. In them the poet boldly interprets the poet.

BERNARDIN DE ST. PIERRE.

From the French of ARVEDS BARINE. With a preface by Augustine Birrell. The Great French Writers. 12mo, $1.00.

The life of the author of "Paul and Virginia" is so unusual, so interesting, so suggestive and so amusing that of itself it would be sure of a cordial reception, but when is added to it a preface by the author of "Obiter Dicta" it is certain to be received with marked favor.

THE BEST LETTERS OF WILLIAM COWPER.

Edited with an introduction by ANNA B. McMAHAN. Laurel-Crowned Letters. 12mo, $1.00.

Cowper might be called with little exaggeration the prince of letter-writers, so elegant and classic are his epistles. These letters show him, as a rule, to be a gentle, lovable nature, guided by a cheerful philosophy, and possessing a sound good sense. Apart from their literary charm these letters give a more satisfactory picture of the man than any "Life" of him that has yet been written.

THE ELIZABETHAN LIBRARY.

A BOWER OF DELIGHTS: Being interwoven verse and prose, from the works of NICHOLAS BRETON.

The Weaver: Alexander B. Grosart. With an introduction on his life and the characteristics of his writings. 24mp, gilt top, $1.25.

SELECTIONS FROM THE WRITINGS OF LORD BACON. 24mo, gilt top, $1.25.

In the volumes of this series are collected some of the choicest gems from the writers of many of the noble though two little known authors of the Elizabethan period. These two new volumes will be welcomed, aside from their literary interest, for their unique form, being printed in old-face type on antique paper, in the 24mo size so characteristic of the sixteenth century, and appropriately bound in the style of the Tudor period.

A NEW BOOK. Useful to the BOOKSELLER and his Assistants.

The Profession of Bookselling: a handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. By A. GROWOLL, managing editor of "The Publishers' Weekly." Part I. One volume, large 8vo, bds., net, $2.

[Ready April 10.]

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY,
28 ELM STREET, NEW YORK.

"We wish to give you our advance order for that most valuable series of articles—"The Profession of Bookselling"—and wish to thank you for publishing in book form one of the most useful tools the trade has had placed in its hands for a long time."—THE FIELD & GIBBS BOOK AND STATIONERY CO., Lawrence, Kansas.

A NEW IDEA.

THE SECRET OF CHARACTER-BUILDING.

By JOHN B. De MOTTE, A.M., Ph.D.

From a Scientific Standpoint.

CLOTH, FINELY ILLUSTRATED, $1.00.

JUST PUBLISHED BY

S. C. GRIGGS & CO.

Character has a physical basis. The waves of energy that proceed from sound, from light and from heat find a correspondence in the impress of thoughts, words and deeds upon the soul, and so develop character. As youth is the plastic age, then is the time to build character, and this little book explains simply, conclusively and yet scientifically how it is done. A key is furnished to the better accomplishment of that which we should desire above all things else—the complete dethronement of the evil and the full embodiment of the good within ourselves.

THE YOUTH OF FREDERICK THE GREAT.

By ERNEST LAVISSÉ, Professor at the Sorbonne, Paris. Translated from the French by Mary Bushnell Coleman. 1 vol., 462 pages, cloth, $2.00.

"No more novel can surpass the attractions of this narrative, which delights as it instructs, and informs as it entertains."—Public Ledger, Philadelphia.

ENGLAND AND ITS RULERS.

A Concise Compendium of the History of England and Its People. By H. POMEROY BREWSTER and GEORGE H. HUMPHREY. 1 vol., 350 pages, cloth, $1.50.

"A valuable book of reference, displaying excellent judgment, a pleasing sense of proportion and a constant reference of cause to effect. The arrangement is lucid and the style direct."—Christian at Work, New York.

COLUMBUS.

An Epic Poem, Giving an Accurate History of the Great Discovery in Rhymed Heroic Verse. By SAMUEL JEFFERSON, F.R.A.S., F.C.S. Illustrated. 1 vol., cloth, $1.25.

"The work is a gem of historical literature, and will attract special interest and attention because of its opportune appearance."—Educational Gazette, Rochester, N. Y.

A STUDY OF GREEK PHILOSOPHY.

By ELLEN M. MITCHELL. 1 vol., cloth, $1.25.

"A very comprehensive view of the whole course of Greek philosophic thought."—Review of Reviews.

A SYLLABUS OF PSYCHOLOGY.

By WILLIAM BRYANT, author of "World Energy," etc. 60 pages, paper, 25 cents.

"It presents a systematic, bird's-eye view of the subject whose value cannot be overestimated."—The Independent, N. Y.

ETERNITY.

A Thread in the Weaving of a Life. By WILLIAM M. BRYANT. 40 pages, paper, 25 cents.

"This essay is the work of a thoughtful man and a scholar. It is well conceived and finely written."—The Presbyterian, Philadelphia.

READY SHORTLY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

One vol., paper, $3; hf. mor., $3.50.

LEE AND SHEPARD'S LIST OF ANNOUNCEMENTS

By Francis H. Underwood, LL.D.

The Poet and the Man Recollections and Appreciations of James Russell Lowell, with bibliography and portrait. Cloth, $1.00.

This volume contains in a small compass all the important facts of Lowell's life, with the author's recollections of his personal, mental and moral traits, and brief estimates of his works. It will not take the place of a full biography, but will supply a universal want. It is full of interest.

The Builders of American Literature First Series. Including Biographical Sketches of American Authors born up to A.D. 1825. Cloth.

This work is to take the place of a portion of the author's "Handbook of American Literature," published 20 years ago, but it will contain no specimens. The notices of authors are both personal and critical, and are almost wholly new.

By Samuel Adams Drake

Historic Mansions of New England Illustrated.

Mr. Drake, whose historical studies have so well illustrated New England character and scenery, has in this volume described some of the houses connected with famous people and interesting events. It is safe to say that whatever he does is well done, and that this book will throw new light upon our history.

By George B. Kilbon

Elementary Wood Work for Manual Training Schools Fully illustrated.

This book is a record of the manual training work done in the senior grammar grade of the Springfield, Mass., schools. To those who favor the American system the work will speak for itself. To others we bespeak for it a favorable examination, assured that they will find it to contain in an orderly arrangement those fundamental principles of working in wood which must be obtained by a student of any system to make his study of value.

By Albert F. Blaisdell

Stories of English History Fully illustrated.

Dr. Blaisdell has collected the striking and characteristic stories which are the mile-stones in the long course of English history, and has set them forth in a pleasing way for the entertainment of pupils. The book will be invaluable in schools, and the illustrations will aid in impressing the facts.

By Francis H. Underwood, LL.D.

Quabbin The Story of a Small Town. With Out looks upon Puritan Life. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.75.

"The more I read the more I was pleased; and so read on until I had taken up every chapter, every sentence, every word and the three notes of the appendix; lapped them up as a kitten laps up a saucer of cream."—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

By Ednah D. Cheney

Life of Rauch, the Sculptor With portrait and half-tone illustrations of some of the sculptor's principal works. Cloth, $3.00.

"The work is one that no artist, no lover of art, no lover of the literature of art can afford to be without."—Boston Times.

By Rev. F. M. Sprague

Socialism—from Genesis to Revelation Cloth, $1.75.

"The book is earnest, yet temperate, popular, yet learned, a volume which cannot fail to stimulate thought, and every copy when read will do positive good to the people."—Chicago Times.

By A. J. Ingersoll, M.D.

In Health The Relation of the Sexes. With portrait. Cloth, $1.00.

"The ideas given are the result of long professional experience, are pure and high in tone and will be of benefit and assistance."—Boston Times.

By Amanda M. Douglas

Larry A prize story.

"LARRY," by Miss Douglas, is the story for which the author was awarded a prize of two thousand dollars by the publishers of the Youths' Companion. As there was great co-operation, the reader will readily understand that "Larry" possesses extraordinary merit.

Bethia Wray's New Name A novel.

Miss Douglas has long been known as a writer of bright and interesting novels. Not less than twenty have appeared, and every one has met with success. She has the art of story-telling and of holding her readers.

By Arnold H. Heinemann

Froebel Letters With explanatory notes and additional matter. Illustrated. Cloth, (about) $1.00.

The Kindergarten, though an exotic, is evidently to become an American institution. The world does not go backward, and Froebel's ideas upon the training of young children will be fruitful for generations to come. These letters contain the groundwork of his plans and will be most interesting to teachers and parents.

By Oliver Optic

Strange Sights Abroad; or, Adventures in European Waters Fourth volume of "All-Over-the-World Series." Illustrated. $1.25.

In this, the fourth volume of the series, Mr. Adams (Oliver Optic)—Nestor of all living story-tellers—takes the yacht of the young millionaire with its agreeable party across the Atlantic and gives descriptions of scenes and adventures in the Canaries, Made ra and Morocco.

Benjamin Franklin

The Select Works of Benjamin Franklin

Including his autobiography, with notes and a memoir by Epes Sargent. Cloth, $1.00.

PUBLISHED SEPARATELY

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN With notes by Epes Sargent. Boards, 30 cents, net.

MEMOIR OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN With notes by Epes Sargent. Boards, 30 cents, net.

Few literary men in our time have shown keener critical sense or sounder judgment than Epes Sargent. When his name is seen as "editor" one may be sure of finding a good book. His edition of Franklin's works, and his Memoir, are admirable in every respect. Franklin's Autobiography is classic and should be read by every youth.

BOOKS RECENTLY ISSUED

By Elizabeth Hyde Bolomey

First Days Amongst the Contrabands Cloth, $1.25.

"An exact and graphic reproduction of the condition of the freedmen. The narrative is a résumé of the entire beneficent work wrought for the colored people during the approach of emancipation and since its completion."—Christian Register.

By William H. Venable, LL.D.

Let Him First Be a Man Essays Chiefly Relating to Education and Culture. Cloth, $1.25.

Altogether, this is a delightful book for the library, on account of its interest and beauty, wholly apart from its purpose. And those who are engaged in teaching will find it an invaluable aid and solace.

By Caroline F. Corbin

A Woman's Philosophy of Love Cloth, $1.25.

"A remarkable book, deserving of more than ordinary attention."—Chicago Herald.

By W. F. Gordy and W. L. Twitcheell

A Pathfinder in American History For the Use of Teachers and Normal Schools. Complete, $1.00, net. Separately, Part I., 60 cents, net; Part II., 90 cents, net.

"The book will be found invaluable, not only to the teacher, but to whoever has to guide a child's reading."—Providence Journal.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S RECENT BOOKS.

General Jackson.

By JAMES PARTON. The third volume in the Great Commanders Series, edited by Gen. James Grant Wilson. With portrait and maps. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.50.

The last literary work of James Parton, completed just before his death, was the preparation of this volume. It is a model miniature biography, possessing throughout all the interest of a romance.

An Atlas of Astronomy.

By Sir ROBERT S. BALL, F.R.S., Professor of Astronomy and Geometry at the University of Cambridge; author of "Starland," "The Cause of an Ice Age," etc. With 72 plates, explanatory text and complete index. Small 4to, cloth, $4.00.

Three Roads to a Commission in the U. S. Army.

By Lieutenant W. P. BURNHAM, Sixth U. S. Infantry, author of "Manual of Outpost Duty," etc. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

This handbook has been prepared with a view to providing popular information concerning the manner of entering the United States Military Academy and the courses to be pursued for obtaining a commission from either the Academy, the army, or civil life. The rules governing the various examinations are taken from official sources, and the author has embodied the substance of the latest legislation affecting his subject.

Manual of Guard Duty

FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY, as approved by the Secretary of War, January, 1893. Paper, 25 cents; leather, 50 cents.

A History of England in the Eighteenth Century.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY. Cabinet Edition. 7 vols., 12mo, cloth, $7.00.

A History of Ireland in the Eighteenth Century.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY. Cabinet Edition. 5 vols., 12mo, cloth, $5.00.

The "History of Ireland" was formerly included in the eight-volume edition of the "History of England." By a rearrangement of the contents the two histories now appear separately as above, each complete in itself, but bound uniformly. Important revisions have been made, and the work is in some respects practically new.

The well-known high character of this standard history needs no fresh commendation.

The Political Value of History.

By WILLIAM E. H. LECKY, author of "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," etc. A Presidential Address delivered before the Birmingham and Midland Institute, October, 1892. Reprinted with Additions. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

Idle Days in Patagonia.

By C. H. HUDSON, W.M.Z.S., author of "The Naturalist in La Plata," etc. With 27 illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $4.00.

LATEST ISSUES IN APPLETONS' TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY.

Each, 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

A Little Minx. By ADA CAMBRIDGE, author of "The Three Miss Kings," "Not All in Vain," etc.

Children of Destiny. By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL, author of "Throckmorton," "Little Jarvis," etc.

Dr. Paul's Theory. By Mrs. A. M. DIEHL, author of "The Garden of Eden," etc.

In the Suntime of Her Youth. By BEATRICE WHITBY, author of "The Awakening of Mary Fenwick," "Part of the Property," etc.

Commander Mendoza. By JUAN VALERA, author of "Pepita Jimenez," "Don Braulio," etc.

Stories in Black and White. A Volume of Short Stories by THOMAS HARDY, W. E. NORRIS, Mrs. OLIPHANT, GRANT ALLEN, J. M. BARRIE, W. CLARK RUSSELL, Mrs. E. LYNN LINTON and JAMES PAYN. With 27 illustrations.

A Comedy of Elopement. By CHRISTIAN REID, author of "Valerie Aylmer," "The Morton House," etc.

D. APPLETON & CO., 1, 3 and 5 Bond Street, New York.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in preparation a new book by Walter Besant on "The Rise and Growth of London," treating of its constitutional history, the development of its trade, the present government of the city, etc.

DAVID MCKAY, 23 South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, announces for early publication "The Pursuit of Happiness: a book of studies and strowings," by Dr. Daniel G. Brinton, well known as the author of various works on religions and ethnology.

DAVID G. FRANCIS, 12 East 15th St., N. Y., has purchased the entire edition of 152 copies of the "Monograph of the Bradford Map of the City of New York," by William Loring Andrews, just printed by the De Vinne Press. The volume contains a description of the city of New York at the time of the granting of the Montgomerie Charter, with a fac-simile of an actual survey made by James Lyne and printed by William Bradford in 1731. There are for sale only 120 copies at $10 each.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. announce for early publication "Theology of the Old Testament," by Ch. Piepenbring, pastor and president of the Reformed Consistory at Strassburg, translated by Prof. H. G. Mitchell, of the Boston University. This book is regarded by competent authorities as the briefest and clearest exposition of the subject as yet produced. While it is in direct line with advanced modern thought, it is also written in an absolutely orthodox evangelical spirit.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready the first volume of their new edition of Bryce's "American Commonwealth." This edition (the third) is entirely revised and for the greater part rewritten, and contains much new material. The second volume is now in press. They also announce "George William Curtis," a eulogy by William Winter; a new two-volume edition of Mrs. Humphry Ward's translation of "Amiel's Journal;" "The Novel: what it is," a little volume in which F. Marion Crawford considers the ethics of novel-writing; a new poem by William Watson, entitled "The Eloping Angels;" and The "Æsthetic Element in Morality," a discussion of moral philosophy, by Frank Chapman Sharp. They have in preparation a sequel to Mr. Wilfrid Ward's book about his father at Oxford, published three years ago, which will be entitled "W. G. Ward and the Catholic Revival."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE New York Times has just been purchased by The New York Times Publishing Co. Charles R. Miller will remain editor and George F. Spinney, formerly managing editor, assumes the duties of publisher.

A TWENTY-PAGE monthly paper, devoted to prison reform, sociology, education and literature, will be published at Elmira, N. Y., under the not very fortunate name The Monthly Summary. Among its contributors are mentioned Dr. A. Jacobi, Wm. D. Morrison, Rev. O. W. Gauss, Dr. Jules Morel, Dr. Frederick C. Howe and other well-known writers.

HENRY M. STANLEY is busy upon a series of short stories for early publication in Boys. They consist of legends and folk-tales communicated to the explorer by his native followers during his long and perilous journeys through the great forests of the Dark Continent; and the first of the series, "The Story of Kibatti of Uganda," will appear in the course of a few weeks. The tale will interest old readers as well as young.

It is announced that William Waldorf Astor, who recently purchased The Pall Mall Gazette and converted it from a Liberal into a Conservative organ, will on May 1 start The Pall Mall Magazine, as a complement to The Pall Mall Gazette and The Pall Mall Budget, the latter being the weekly edition of The Pall Mall Gazette. The new magazine will be published in London and New York, and will be sold for one shilling. Particular care will be devoted to its art department, and its superior illustrations will be its leading feature. Swinburne will furnish a poem for the initial number.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (same: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (same: 15 cm.); Ts. (same: 12½ cm.); Tt. (8mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., mar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Æsop. Fables; tr. by S: Croxall, D.D., and Sir Roger L'Estrange; with applications, morals, etc., by Rev. G. T. Townsend and L. Valentine; il. by Herrick. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1898. 1-29+366 p. 12", (Chandos classics.) cl., $1; 75 c.

Alexander, W. (Bp.) Primary convictions: being discussions of which the greater part were delivered in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, before the President, faculties and students of Columbia College, New York. N. Y., Harper, 1898. c. 16+821 p. O. cl., $2.50.

A series of discussions on the true character of the Christian creed—on the belief in the Father Almighty, in the incarnation of the Son, in the inspiration received from the Holy Ghost—each of which is stated in its divine simplicity apart from all particular theories on the subject.

Baker, J. M. Wealth. Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, 1898. c. '92. 48 p. D. leatherette, 25 c.

The accumulation, the power, the responsibility and the distribution of wealth are the subjects of this little book, viewed from a Christian's standpoint.

*Balfour, H. The evolution of decorative art: an essay upon its origin and development as illustrated by the art of modern races of mankind. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. 18+181 p. 12", cl., $1.25.

*Balzac, Honoré de. Ursule Mirouet; ed. for use in the schools and colleges; with introd., biographical notice and notes by Ja. Boiello. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. 12+222 p. 16", cl., 75 c.

Also published under the title of "Ursula." See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Ap. 25, 1892, [1004.]

Barnes, Annie Maria, ["Cousin Annie," pseud.] The house of grass: rev. and ed. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agts., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 2-836 p. D. cl., $1.

Charlotte Middleton, a girl of eighteen years when the story opens, is the owner of a grass hut constructed by an old slave on her father's plantation in order to humor a whim of "meh missie." This is the scene of several incidents of the story, and is used as a simile. Besides illustrating the plantation life of the Southern negro before the war, many well-known institutions of slavery are introduced, and the relation of master and slave is seen from the attitude of the Christian missionary.

*Booth, C., ed. Life and labors of the people of London. V. 4, The trades of East London. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. 352 p. 8", cl., $1.50.

Brooks, Elbridge S. Heroic happenings told in verse and story; il. by Garrett, Birch, Ogden and others. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1898. c. '92. 10+227 p. il. O. cl., $2.

Stories, verses and sketches of "heroic happenings" belonging to the world's history. They first appeared in the St. Nicholas, Wide Awake, Harper's Young People, Home and School Visitor and other periodicals for the young. Contents: The last conquistador (a story of Spanish Louisiana in 1810); Prince Almeric's amulet (an Easter-day ballad of the Latin kings, Jerusalem, A.D. 115); A boy of Genoa (A.D. 1446-1480); The first war correspondent (Egypt, B.C. 1840); Rodney's ride (July 3, 1776); A Roman man-o'-war's man (A.D. 121); On the deck of the Orient, the true story of Casablanca; The boys' crusade; Children's day in old Rome; Twixt ebb and flood; "Sir Guy's return," etc., etc.

Burnham, W. P. Three roads to a commission in the United States Army. N. Y., Appleton & Co., 1898. c. 8+160 p. D. cl., $1.

This handbook was prepared with a view to providing popular information concerning the manner of entering the United States Military Academy and the course to be pursued for obtaining a commission. The rules governing the various examinations are taken from official sources, and the author has embodied the substance of the latest legislation affecting his subject. Lieut. Burnham belongs to the Sixth U. S. Infantry, and is the author of "Manual of outpost duty," etc.

*Caird, E. The evolution of religion: the Gifford lectures delivered before the University of St. Andrew's in sessions 1890-'91 and 1891-'92. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. 2 v., 12", cl., $4.

Campbell, Mrs. Helen. Some passages in the practice of Dr. Martha Scarborough. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1898. c. 2-180 p. D. cl., $1.

Little "Dr. Martha" was a sweet, precocious child of ten years, who had even at that early age imbibed the advanced ideas of her father, Dr. Scarborough, and helped in her infantile way to spread them. There is a slight story, which deals with the cure of several inebriates, and with the restoration to health through purely hygienic measures of a little boy, who has been raised on unlimited pie and cake. The book is a plea for better food, better cooking and better living among New England folks.

Caspers, H: D. Life and times of C. G. Memminger. Richmond, Va., Everett Waddey Co., 1898. c. 2-604 p. por. il. O. cl., $3; shp., $3.50; hf. mor., $4.

The subject of this memoir was a distinguished son of South Carolina and Secretary of the Treasury of the Confederacy during its existence. In addition to the facts of Mr. Memminger's life, the work contains an exhaustive treatise on the Banking System of the United States, a complete history of the financial policy of the Confederate Treasury Department, a synopsis of the great case of the State vs. The Bank of South Carolina, and the argument of Mr. Memminger in that case.

Church, Alfred J. Stories of Cræsus, Cyrus and Babylon; from Herodotus; prepared for reading in schools; with introd., notes, map and pronouncing vocabulary of proper names. N. Y., Maynard, Merrill & Co., 43-47 East 10th St., [1893.] c. 94 p. S. (Maynard's English classic ser., nos. 115-116.) bds., 30 c.

*Corballis, Mrs. —. Raoul De Berignan: a tale. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1898. 12", cl., 75 c.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Cotel, Rev. P. A catechism of the vows for the use of persons consecrated to God in the religious state; from the last French ed. Balt., Md., J. B. Piet, 304 E. 21st St., 1893. c. 123 p. T. cl., net, 50 c.

Crawford, F. Marion. The novel, what is it? N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. c. 8-108 p. por. T. cl., 75 c.

An essay, in which Mr. Crawford defines the aim and object of the novel.

Custer, Mrs. Eliz. B. Tenting on the plains; or, General Custer in Kansas and Texas. [New issue.] N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. c. '87. 10-403 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Originally a subscription-book, published in 1887; now first given to the general trade.

Dana, Mrs. W. Starr. How to know the wild flowers: a guide to the names, haunts and habits of our common wild flowers; il. by Marion Satterlee. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 15+298 p. il. D. cl., net, $1.50.

Mrs. Dana describes more than four hundred varieties of wild flowers, making them easily recognizable; they are classified by color. The romantic, literary, legendary and other associations of each are referred to, giving the book a value for the library as well as for the field.

*Dickens, C. American notes and pictures from Italy: a reprint of the 1st ed.; with the illustrations, and an introd., biographical and bibliographical, by C: Dickens the younger. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 390 p. 12", cl., $1.

*Eminent persons: biographies reprinted from the [London] Times. V. 2 and 3. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 811; 353 p. 12", cl., ea., $1.25.

Exell, Rev. J. S. Homiletical commentary on the Book of Exodus. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1892 [1893.] 23+592 p. O. (Preacher's complete homiletic commentary, v. 2.) cl., $3.

This is the second volume of an extensive work of twenty volumes on the Old Testament, printed from imported plates obtained from the publishers in London, where the entire work has been issued after years of preparation. As we have already mentioned, in this great commentary, by various authors, is found a sermon outline or homiletic suggestion on every paragraph or verse of the Old Testament that can be turned to use in the preparation of a sermon. Abundant choice selections of illustration, from many eminent sources other than the authors of the volumes, are also given. Except in some introductory, critical and explanatory notes, preceding each chapter, no foreign words, such as Hebrew or Greek, are used.

Faber, W: F. Vobiscum Deus: the gospel of the incarnation. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1893.] c. 2-187 p. D. cl., $1.

Twelve sermons on: The kingdom of God; The kingdom of God within us; The kingdom of God coming on earth; The universal kingdom of God; Great joy to all people; The human life divine; Pure religion; The price and the purchase; An Easter summons; Our ascended Lord; The spirit of Pentecost; Contending for the faith.

Ferrier, Susan Edmonstone. The inheritance. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 2 v., 4+453; 4+443 p. il. S. hf. rus., $2.50.

See notice of complete works, in "Weekly Record," P. W., Feb. 26, '93 [1900].

First (The) millennial faith: the church faith in its first one thousand years: by the author of "Not on Calvary." N. Y., Saalfeld & Fitch, 1893. 2-84 p. D. leatherette, 50 c.

Gives through a compilation from the writings of the Christian fathers, covering all church literature to the year 1000, the opinions held during the first years of Christianity relative to the doctrine of Christ's atonement. A sketch of the life and times of St. Anselm, the monk who put forth for the first time the "satisfaction" theory, occupies part one of this interesting volume. The concluding chapter deals with the personality of Satan, and the life-long sacrifice of the Son of God, whereby our redemption was wrought.

*Fowler, W. Warde. The city-state of the Greeks and the Romans: a survey introductory to the study of ancient history. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 28+332 p. 16", cl., $1.10.

Gleason, Alex. Is the Bible from Heaven? Is the earth a globe? Does modern science and the Bible agree? [Also] An accurate chronology of all past time; cont. a classification of all the eclipses from creation authenticated by the British Astronomical Association of London, England. 2d ed., rev. and enl. Buffalo, N. Y., The Buffalo Electrotype and Engraving Co., [1893.] c. '90. 18+403 p. por. O. cl., $2.

Hamilton, G. W. Tom Croly's word. Cin., O., The Standard Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 2+238 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The scene is Hastings, western Pennsylvania. Tom Croly, the blacksmith, whose forge was on the old Turnpike Road, was chiefly notable to the people of that locality for his prophecy relative to the "Pike," his wise sayings and good works. An impulse prompting, he attempts to rescue a drunkard for the sake of his son and family. His attempt has unexpected developments.

Harrison, W. P., D.D., comp. and ed. The Gospel among the slaves: a short account of missionary operations among the African slaves of the Southern States. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agts., 1893. c. 2-394 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

Harrison, W. S. Sam Williams: a tale of the old South. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agts., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 3-303 p. D. cl., $1.

Sam Williams, the hero, was born on a Southern plantation in 1843. He describes his boyhood's home, the negro quarters, the peculiar characteristics of the African slave, with his superstitions and religious beliefs, the "cracker" and other social institutions of the old South, and ends with a quaint romance. The author aims to reproduce a picture of the South in ante-bellum days, although the story ends after the Rebellion, and deals incidentally with the Southern secession.

*Herodotus. Books 5 and 6; ed. with notes and appendices by Evelyn Abbott. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 15+347 p. maps, 8", (Clarendon Press ser.) cl., $2.75.

*Hornung, Ernest W. Under two skies: a collection of stories. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 317 p. 12", cl., $1.25.

Howard, Mrs. C. B. Annie Cooper's friends. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agts., 1893. c. '92. 2-253 p. D. (The do society ser., no. 3.) cl., $1.

The author has adapted the wise counsels and helpful suggestions which the story contains, to the method of Christian work set forth in the constitution and by-laws of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church, South, thus furnishing a valuable manual of practical instruction for the young people of the church.

Howells, W. D. The world of chance: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 2+375 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A young man who comes from a small New York town of the interior to New York City, and brings with him a ms. of an unpublished novel, hoping through it to obtain fame and fortune, is the hero. His experience with publishers and his descent from the highest pinnacle of hope to the depths of despair are told with all the realism at Mr. Howells' command. His chance acquaintance with a family of Socialists presents a not often described phase of city life.

Hudson, C. H. Idle days in Patagonia. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. il. 8°, cl., $4.

Hume, Fergus. The harlequin opal: a romance. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1893. c. 2-492 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 52.) hf. mor., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

This novel, from the author of "The mystery of a hansom cab," deals with an extraordinary state of facts in a mythical South American republic. The adventures of four Englishmen in search of the marvelous Harlequin Opal whose rays prophesy peace or war according as they are blue or red, with a vivid description of a modern sea-fight—for which the author is possibly somewhat indebted to the recent Chilean troubles—form the principal features of the story.

Hunter, Sir W. Wilson, ed. Lord Hastings. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 226 p. 16°, (Rulers of India ser.) cl., 60 c.

Iowa. A digest of the decisions of the supreme court, from the Mar. term, 1887, to the May term, 1892, both inclusive; also of the federal courts in Iowa and of the supreme court of the U. S. during the same period so far as they relate to Iowa law or subject-matter peculiar to Iowa; by Emlin McClain. V. 3, (being the 1st supp. v.) Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1893. c. 721 p. O. shp., net, $4.

Lethbridge, Sir Roper. The golden book of India: a genealogical and biographical dictionary of the ruling princes, chiefs, nobles and other personages, titled or decorated, of the Indian Empire. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 23+584 p. 8°, cl., $12.

Loney, S. L. Mechanics and hydrostatics for beginners. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 304 p. 16°, (Pitt Press mathematical ser.) cl., $1.25.

McMillan, W. F. Myra Mordaunt: a story of love and constancy. [3d ed.] Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., [1893.] c. 2-341 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 23.) pap., 50 c. In Philadelphia, about the year 1841, Myra Winterfield and Willard Mordaunt were married, much to the chagrin of Archer Burrell, a Virginia planter, who vowed vengeance on his rival. He made no attempt, however, to execute his vow until nearly a year after this event, when the absence of Mordaunt in South America and other circumstances favored a secret interview with Mrs. Mordaunt. After this Burrell's threat is carried out, and the effects are sensational, surprising and dramatic. The action for the most part occurs during the War of the Rebellion.

Miles, Eustace Hamilton. Comparative syntax of Greek and Latin. In 2 pts. Pt. 1, cont. original and early meanings and principles of syntax and appendices. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 31+72+148 p. 8°, cl., $1.60.

Montaigne, Michael E. de. Essays; tr. by C. Cotton; ed. with some account of the author, and notes by Carew Hazlitt. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 3 v., 16°, cl., $5.

Monteiro, Mariana. Christopher Columbus: his life, labors and discoveries. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12°, cl., $1.

Morgan, Emily Malbone. Prior Rahere's rose. 8d ed. Hartford, Ct., Belknap & Warfield, 1893. c. '92. 4-31 p. T. cl., 50 c.

The time of the story is the nineteenth century; it is based upon a sad episode in the life of a child patient of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, founded by Prior Rahere in 1123 in fulfillment of a vow.

Palmbury, Albert. Treatise on public health and its applications in different European countries, (England, France, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Sweden and Finland;) ed. by Arthur Newsholme. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 20+539 p. 8°, cl., $5.

Seawell, Molly Elliot. Children of destiny. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. 2+341 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 113.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Fifty years ago the romantic and mysterious played important parts at Deerchase, on the lovely coast of Virginia. Richard Skelton, a pessimist writing a new philosophy, had been born with a golden spoon in his mouth. As a boy he loved Sylvia Shapleigh; fifteen years later he made Sylvia love him. Through a young protégé Skelton meets his fate. An involved plot brings out several strong characters and gives a fascinating picture of luxurious living in the South many years ago.

Smith, G. G. Mr. Hall and his family, especially Susie: a story of Southern life. Nashville, Tenn., Pub. House of the M. E. Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agts., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 176 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Mr. Hall, when the story opens in 1817, was filling a book-keeper's position in Wilmington, North Carolina, and acting as a local preacher in the African meeting-house in that place. His convictions prompting, he soon becomes what the Southern Methodists call a "supply;" when he is sent by the conference on a circuit his experiences and their results take up most of a story, which was written for the dual purpose of portraying the South of about 60 years ago and the Methodist of that day.

Spalding, Erastus W., D.D. Confirmation in the church and in the Bible. Milwaukee, Wis., The Young Churchman Co., 1893. 21 p. D. pap., 10 c.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Book-Shop (F. M. Morris) will remove May 1 to 113 and 115 State Street.

COMPTON, CAL.—Robert Harris has bought the book and stationery store of George H. Marsden.

FARMINGTON, ILL.—L. G. Baylor, bookseller, has sold out.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Lovell, Gestefeld & Co. has been incorporated to manufacture and deal in books, etc. The capital is said to be $50,000. Mr. John W. Lovell is reported as one of the incorporators.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The stock of Rode's Book-Store was bought at assignee's sale March 10, by Geo. Ecke, for $3018.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Bryant & Douglas Book and Stationery Co. open their new store, 1002 Walnut Street, to-day (April 1). Though a new concern, its members are by no means new in the business. Mr. T. E. Bryant was with the late M. H. Dickinson about twenty years, during the last eight as manager and buyer. Mr. Percy Douglas was in the same house about six years, as head of the retail book department. They intend to conduct a first-class book and stationery business, with all that the term implies, but will make a specialty of medical books, new miscellaneous books and commercial stationery. Catalogues and price-lists from publishers and manufacturers will be acceptable.

MACON, MO.—Williams & Parker succeed Parker Bros. in the book and stationery business.

MADISON, WIS.—The Catholic Book-Store Co. has incorporated with a capital stock of $1000.

NEW YORK CITY.—The partnership existing under the firm-name of George Munro has expired by mutual consent, Mr. George Munro retiring. The publishing business will be carried on by George W. and John Munro, under the name of George Munro's Sons.

PARIS, MO.—Henning & Krummell, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—Lee M. Galt, bookseller, it is reported has made an assignment.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Lon Hardman and J. M. Campbell, who purchased for $7263 the stock of the Graham Book and Stationery Co., will organize a stock company to be known as the St. Joseph Book and Stationery Co.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—J. A. Swanson, bookseller, has sold out.

SHELBY, O.—Shaw & Phillips, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—A. O. Halterman has retired from the book and stationery business.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 1, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

THE French proverb says that "it is the unexpected which happens." But sometimes the expected happens. There are several gentlemen connected with the publishing trade who have been so periodically concerned in the failure of business enterprises that the trade has come to expect with reasonable regularity disaster to the businesses with which they are concerned. They have great appetite for large affairs, but their genius is rather for ruining than running the enterprises which they undertake. Two such undertakers have run their usual course and come to the end again within the past few months; in the case of others there has been a period of rest for some years past.

The proposals which have been submitted by a committee representing the creditors, or certain creditors, of the United States Book Company, mark the end of one of these great business enterprises, and, perhaps it may fairly be said, an attempt to begin a new cycle which might or might not result as disastrously as before.

The United States Book Company was organized a few years since under the laws of New Jersey to undertake an enormous publishing business, massing into one "combine" a considerable number of previous enterprises. If conservatively as well as enterprisingly handled, this "trust," as it would in some places be called, might have been of service both to the public and to the bookselling trade. Unfortunately, no sooner was this great organization formed than it began to extend its business into ramifications as to which the committee report that it is absolutely impossible to disentangle one from the other. The United States Book Company, it appears, owned all the stock except that for qualifying directors, of the concerns known as Lovell, Coryell & Co., Hovendon Co., International Book Co., National Book Co., Empire Publishing Co., and Seaside Publishing Co., which the committee's report speaks of as subsidiary companies. The committee very frankly and wisely propose to treat the affairs of all seven companies as one, pooling the assets and the liabilities. This was evidently the only course open, but the various complications and entanglements are sadly illustrative of the method in which the whole business has been handled. It would require an executive of the most astounding ability to handle the affairs of the seven publishing concerns thus inter-related and complicated, and the burden put upon any shoulders or set of shoulders, would scarcely be compensated for by the facility which this plan might afford for making, endorsing and discounting paper.

The committee now asking creditors to put the whole control of affairs into their hands with unlimited power, consist of Mr. John I. Waterbury, president of the Manhattan Trust Company, which is the trustee for bonds to the amount of one million dollars issued by the United States Book Company; Mr. Franklin W. Hopkins, treasurer of the Trow Company; and Mr. Schuyler Quackenbush, broker, who is said to represent some of the stockholders in the concern. They have presented a statement of the affairs of the book company, accompanied by a letter from Mr. Charles C. Beaman, as counsel, with a proposed instrument of compromise.

The first lien on the property is a bonded indebtedness of one million dollars, secured by a mortgage upon 1,254,000 electrotype and stereotype plates, and most of what there may be of the publishing plant otherwise. The other liabilities are stated at about one million dollars, "substantially all for money borrowed, work done, or material furnished." Nothing is said about the stockholders' investments.

The general assets are stated to consist of books and book stock, cash, etc., and such plates as have been manufactured or acquired since the mortgage bond.

No specific or detailed statement of any kind seems to be made as to the names of the creditors or the nature of the indebtedness, with the exception of the judgment creditors, who prove to be practically the same parties throughout the seven several companies. The Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company is the largest preferred creditor, with a total of $251,103.86; the other preferred creditors are: E. N. Root, $15,820.71; Henrietta A. Smith, $31,063.69; Manufacturers' National Bank of Troy, $26,889.30; Edw. K. Lynch, $7385.62; Buckley, Dunton & Co., $10,800.90; Carter, Hughes & Kellogg, $5022.59; Caxton Bookbinding Company, $1850.81; J. Howard Latham, $68,592.61; and the Merchants' National Bank of Plattsburg, N. Y., $2807.52, making a total of $170,233.75.

The committee, if they obtain the assent of two-thirds of the creditors, to the amount of about $750,000 of debts, propose first to set apart $60,000 yearly out of any proceeds of the stock, or of the business if continued, to the payment of the 6% interest on bonds for which the Manhattan Trust Co. is trustee, and which are said to be scattered among a number of holders. We find no statement as to whether the gentlemen otherwise largely identified with the financial management of the company are large holders of these bonds, which constitute the first preference lien. The committee next propose to pay off in full a bank judgment amounting to $12,000. The committee next propose that they shall be allowed $100,000 out of the proceeds of the assets with which to continue the business on any plan whatever which they may decide to adopt. The committee next propose that 50% of the preferred claims, amounting to about $150,000, shall then be paid, an arrangement having been made by which the Trow Company and other judgment creditors, with the exception of the bank which is to be paid in full, waive preference on 50% of their preferred claims. This constitutes a lien of $60,000 yearly and a disposal of approximately $262,000 before the non-preferred claims can get a penny. From what there may be left, if anything, the non-preferred claims are to have a dividend of 25%, after which dividends, if any, are to be declared pro rata on all claims, preferred or non-preferred.

In view of the mutual relations between the United States Book Company and the subsidiary companies, the Trow Company and the several gentlemen who are known to be associated with one or both of these companies, the first requirement of a full and candid statement on the part of the committee which is to reorganize this business, should be a list of the holders of bonds, of the preferred and non-preferred creditors, of the holders of guaranteed liabilities, who are vaguely referred to in the agreement as also preference creditors, and of the stockholders, so that those creditors who have not been concerned in the management of these properties should know on whom the responsibility rests and to what extent the affairs of the reorganization committee are to be entrusted to the same hands.

While we do not undertake to advise members of the trade who may be creditors as to their interest or duty in this matter, we should suggest that such a statement should be required before any definite arrangement is made.

Whether it is wise to give absolute power to any committee to use the wreckage of this business to build up another which might take practically the same lines, is also a question for the trade to determine.

The committee suggests that compromise on the basis of this agreement is necessary and desirable to prevent great disaster to the publishing trade. The disaster to the trade has been befalling it for some years past because of the very methods which have brought this particular company to grief. It is, indeed, questionable whether even a sheriff's sale of this property and the attendant consequent flood of "bankrupt sale" books upon the market could affect the trade so disastrously as it has been affected in the past and might be affected in the future by the continuance of this kind of publishing business. Each time the creditors of the recurrent concerns referred to at the start of this article have, from motives of good nature or business reasons, assented to a so-called reorganization, with the same people—who have in their new start totally ignored their responsibilities in the business from which they have emerged and on the wreck of which the new concern has been built—the same old end has come in a few short years to the new story. The trade has seen notes issued in settlement of claims, remaining overdue in their money drawers quite overlooked by the men responsible for them; a revival of the very methods which had already brought ruin and had demoralized the trade, and so on, and so on. Now that the end has come to a company which had started out to absorb and revolutionize a great part of the publishing trade, it is certainly a matter for serious question whether any disaster could be so serious as to put such a concern on its feet again.

SUBSCRIBERS to the "English Catalogue of Books" for 1892 may be interested to know that copies have just reached us and may be expected some time next week. As the edition, like that of the "Annual American Catalogue," is limited, those who desire to possess the volume should be prompt in sending their order.

AN ENGLISH OPINION ON "THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING."

From The [London] Publishers' Circular.

THERE has just been issued from the offices of our contemporary, THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, of New York, a little volume on "The Profession of Bookselling" which ought to be specially prized by the book trade not only in America, but in England. The author, Mr. A. Growoll, has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. If, as Napoleon held, detail is all-important in matters of business, then this work must prove invaluable to the budding bookseller, for it treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. Mr. Growoll is the very incarnation of thoroughness. He never misses, never scamps; and if he does not set down aught in malice he certainly extenuates nothing. He treats in turn of all the phases of a bookseller's career from the preparatory training, right through every grade and stage, to the general superintendence of a large shop. Directions are given about entering the profession, about reading, about buying and selling, about trade catalogues, literary papers, arrangement and care of stock, classification, advertising and so forth. If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world.

Mr. Growoll, as we have hinted, does not mince matters. At the very outset he states what the efficient bookseller must be and what he may expect. "There are few callings," says Mr. Growoll, "that require more special qualifications than this. Whoever would fit himself for the book trade must have patience, endurance, a love for literature, a capacity for hard work, an eagerness to learn; in one word, must be in love with his profession in every particular. He must come prepared by a good general and some business education. He must, above all, have the capacity to master infinite details—details which would discourage, if not disgust, ninety out of a hundred business men in other callings. He must have unlimited ambition, and yet remain satisfied in rarely seeing it gratified. He must live ever hopeful of the future, notwithstanding his dissatisfaction with the present. He must never fail in his effort at well-doing, and his energetic pushing and striving, though he sees his substance drawn from him by unscrupulous and short-sighted competition." The moral of all this seems to be that whoever aims at wealth, ease and happiness will give bookselling a wide berth. Why should a man devote his energies and talents to a difficult and comparatively unremunerative calling, when, by making a different choice, he might have fame and fortune on easy terms? Mr. Growoll does not answer that question. He simply says, "Beware!" and passes on to other considerations. Perhaps he knows that a youth with a passion for books is not to be turned aside by the fanciful objections of a counsellor; or, possibly, having stated the case, he believes it is best to let every man have his swing in his own way.

It is appalling to learn from Mr. Growoll's pages how much the competent bookseller must know. He must be more learned in literature than any half dozen critics or professors put together. He must have the names of all authors, the titles and prices of all books, native and foreign, at his fingers' ends. He must be prepared, at a moment's notice, to answer the hardest questions in the abstrusest subjects. He must have publishers' lists off by heart, and when he is asked for a book under a wrong title, be able to supply it without delay or trouble. He must know human nature so as to make himself all things unto all men, and particularly to all women, for they need most humoring. He must be an expert cataloguer, a tasteful window-dresser, a skilful packer. He must know the advertising value of every magazine, periodical and journal in the land, and be a discriminator in matters of criticism. He must understand the mysteries of the public taste, and the art of getting orders from those who pay spot cash. And with all his skill and learning he must be as modest as if he knew nothing, and with unruffled humility let crochety people abuse him for his ignorance. The career, it will be admitted, is a trying one. It has been said that examiners are severe on booksellers' assistants, but the hardest examiner is lenient compared with Mr. Growoll. Yet "The Profession of Bookselling" is distinctly a book to be studied.

GERMAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1892.

THE following table from the Börsenblatt, prepared by the Leipzig firm of J. C. Hinrichs, presents a view of the book production in Germany during the past year. These statistics, it must be remembered, present not only the output of books in the German Empire, but of Austria and Switzerland as well. In fact, all countries whose publishers are members of the Börsenverein are represented:

THE PRINTING EXPOSITION AT THE PRESS CLUB FAIR.

THE printing and allied trades will occupy an important place in the Press Club Fair to be held from May 1 to June 1, in the great building at Lexington Avenue and Forty-third Street, N. Y., called the Grand Central Palace. Ten thousand square feet on the ground floor of the exposition building will be devoted to the printing exhibit. In this exhibit it is intended to show by object lessons on a magnificent scale the history and progress of the printing trade since the establishment of the first press in New York City two hundred years ago by William Bradford. The first rudimentary press and the latest perfected web press will be shown in actual operation, and there will be an exhaustive exhibit of typesetting and moulding, electrotyping, stereotyping and photo-engraving processes, color work, etc. All these various departments will be in constant operation during the fair. No charge for space will be made for any printing exhibit from which the fair derives a revenue or which is operated for the benefit of the fair. Space for the different exhibits is now being made and the setting up of machinery, etc., arranged for. Allan Forman, of The Journalist, is chairman of the Exposition Committee; J. R. Abarbanell, 120 Nassau Street, is secretary.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A PROPOSITION TO REGULATE DISCOUNTS.

ST. PAUL, MINN., March 24, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Regarding the reports of the several booksellers' associations throughout the United States, it would seem that although grievances are aired, and business methods of department stores condemned, yet little is accomplished towards a definite settlement of the discount trouble.

To the writer, it seems as though the true solution of the difficulty lies in the hands of half a dozen retailers and jobbers of books on a large scale, and will never be solved by the retailers of lesser degree who have taken up the matter.

For instance, if dealers like A. C. McClurg & Co., Burrows Bros., Bowen-Merrill Co., D. D. Merrill Co., Bancroft Co. and other leading booksellers in the larger towns, for their mutual profit and in the interests of the badly demoralized book trade at large, would bring their influence to bear on the publishers, I doubt not that something might be accomplished.

The writer has seen in the past fifteen years as many as twenty-five book-stores, opened under auspicious circumstances by good business men, that closed doors after a comparatively short term of fruitless opposition to stores giving 20, 25 and 30 per cent. discount.

To-day there are few of the larger book-stores which are paying expenses through legitimate trade—that is, by retailing and wholesaling of books and stationery, for an examination into the matter will generally show that the profit from real estate or the publishing of some desirable book is bearing the greater part of the expenses of the concern.

Throughout the middle and western part of the United States the smaller dealers are badly handicapped, not by the department stores, but by the great book-store in Chicago, which reaches out into all cities west of Pittsburg, and by giving discounts even as low as 25 and 30 per cent. to private buyers and 37½ per cent. to libraries, practically debars dealers from handling the better class of literature. This fact forcibly presented to the publishers in its true light—i.e., the exhibition of their publications to a community and the chance sales to outlying districts through catalogues of a few leading book-stores as compared to having their books actually on sale by book-stores in every town or city in the country—should have some effect upon those gifted with a modicum of intelligence. By this means books could be sold as in Germany, to be resold at publishers' prices under some penalty for infringement of contract, and book-stores would multiply in the land for the good of the public, benefit of the publisher, and profit to the bookseller.

Finally, I would say in conclusion, that this scheme, with modifications naturally occurring to interested persons, could be tried with no trouble except correspondence between the prominent book-dealers, and might easily be the solution of the present difficulty.

C. W. SANDERS.

BOOKSELLERS' EXAMINATIONS.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., March 21, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Your reprint of the examinations of the London Booksellers' Society is extremely interesting. Some of us have already tried the questions, but find many of them too local in application to benefit an American clerk.

We have no society and no school, and may have none for many years; but can we not fill up the interval with self-examinations? Would THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY print at regular intervals, say monthly, a half column of questions? Perhaps there might be found some gentlemen who would be willing to revise answers. One might do it at first. Later it might require one for Boston and New England, one for New York City and State, one for Philadelphia and the South, one for Cleveland and the central region, one for Chicago and the West, and one for San Francisco and the Pacific coast.

The number of clerks who would respond to this plan would in time indicate the desirability of formal examinations. Very truly yours,

ALBERT H. HALL.

[We are considering a plan that will meet in part the request of our correspondent.—ED. P. W.]

A BOOK-PROTECTOR WANTED.

LANCASTER, N. H., March 28, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I wish you would call attention to the inventive genius of readers of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to the end that some one devise a simple, inexpensive case or cover for books to protect edges of books from dust on shelf. Could not something patterned after the Divinity-Circuit style cover be made to do good service? I wish all publishers would cover their books with a dark-colored serviceable paper cover or slip, lettered on both back and side, so as to show on shelf and also in window or show-case the title.

G. H. COLBY & Co.

OBITUARY.

JOSEPH WILLIAMSON RANDOLPH.

JOSEPH WILLIAMSON RANDOLPH, the oldest bookseller and publisher in Richmond, Va., died on the afternoon of the 26th ult. at the residence of his son, Major Norman V. Randolph, No. 512 E. Grace Street, Richmond, Va. Mr. Randolph had for nearly half a century been one of the foremost citizens of Richmond, and was held in the highest esteem both in the business and social world. He was born at "Chester Lodge," August 19, 1815. His mother died when he was nine years old, and he was brought up by his grandmother, Mrs. Lucy Ward Randolph, who moved to Richmond in 1815. One of the most vivid recollections of Mr. Randolph's boyhood was that of Lafayette's second visit to Richmond in 1824, and joining in the procession in his honor. In 1829, when fourteen years old, he entered the employment of John H. Nash, a Richmond bookseller, where he received for his first year's work a salary of $50. This was increased in the following year to $150. In 1831 Mr. Nash failed in business, and young Randolph was retained by the trustees to sell off the stock by retail. At the final sale he purchased books and stationery to the amount of $200 and commenced business on his own account, opening in the same connection a circulating library. In 1834 he bought out the stock of a bookseller in Norfolk, Va., and moved there, associating himself with his uncle, Josiah B. Abbott, under the name of J. W. Randolph & Co. It was a small beginning, yet in three years the value of their stock had increased to $4000. A few years later the firm moved their business to Richmond, where they greatly prospered, but Mr. Abbott endorsing the notes of Thomas H. Drew, who failed, the firm of J. W. Randolph & Co. were left with a liability of $17,000, which amount Mr. Randolph most honorably paid, discharging the entire indebtedness within four years. After the liquidation of this debt Mr. Abbott became associated with Mr. Randolph until his death in 1849 from which time Mr. Randolph continued the business alone in his own name, with success and reputation, until the disastrous fire incident upon the evacuation of Richmond, April 3, 1865, which destroyed his establishment and swept away the chief part of the available accumulation of his life—for the earnings of the war were invested in Confederate bonds and other war securities.

In 1866 Mr. Randolph recommenced business on a borrowed capital of $100, and associated with himself Joseph J. English, under the firm-name of J. W. Randolph & Co. The house occupied by them was the same in which Mr. Randolph had commenced business in 1832. It was said of him that "when he commenced his business he could have taken his stock in a wheelbarrow, and that now it would take a steamboat to remove it."

The present commodious establishment of the firm, comprising the best-appointed bookbindery and one of the largest and most valuable stock of books in the Southern States, is located at Nos. 1302 and 1304 East Main Street. The firm of which Mr. Randolph has been the head has ever been characterized by enterprise, fidelity and probity, and it is noteworthy that from the period of the embarrassment in 1842 he has conducted his business without giving negotiable notes or like obligations.

Mr. Randolph held the highest rank among the old merchants of Richmond, and was noted for his pleasant manners and his honorable life. He had been in feeble health for some time. His wife died several years ago, and he leaves one son.

A well-attended meeting of the booksellers and stationers of Richmond was held at the store of H. M. Starke & Estes to take action in regard to the death of Mr. Randolph, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That in the death of Joseph W. Randolph the trade has lost its oldest and one of the most honorable members, whose death will be felt by every member of the trade and lover of books, and that his honesty, liberality and strict integrity are worthy of emulation."

It was resolved to close the book-stores of the city from 10 A.M. to 12 M. on the day of the funeral and to attend the funeral in a body.

WILLIAM BROTHERHEAD.

WILLIAM BROTHERHEAD, the founder of Brotherhead's Circulating Library, said to be the first of its kind in this country, died at his residence, 1440 South Street, Philadelphia, March 21. He had been in ill health for about a year and a half, but the immediate cause of death was heart failure, following a third attack of paralysis. Mr. Brotherhead was born in Armsley, near Leeds, Yorkshire, England, 69 years ago, and came to this country when about 20 years of age. He first entered into the tailoring business at Sixth and Market Streets, but lost his all by a fire which destroyed his stock and furniture. He then went into the bookselling business, opening stalls at the corner of Sixth and Market Streets, where he was quite successful until again burned out. He then removed to Eighth Street, below Walnut, having stores on both sides of the street, and remaining there nine years; then to 911 Locust Street, where he also remained nine years, and then to a building erected by himself on the site of an old frame house at 205 South Thirteenth Street, in which he remained seven years. While in these places he was reported to be the holder of the largest and most valuable collection of autographs, engravings and prints in America, and his circulating library contained as many as 43,000 volumes. He also conducted a similar large business in New York in partnership with Rev. Andrew Sutton, D.D., one of his sons, Alfred, travelling in London, Paris and other foreign cities and securing originals or copies of rare and valuable works. During his long business life he was the author of several works relating to Colonial and Revolutionary history, as well as an intelligent writer upon topics connected with the Civil War. He was also the founder of American Notes and Queries, still existing. He married in England a member of the Wharton family, and was the father of three sons and four daughters, six of whom are married. A full account of his career as bookseller was printed in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, May 2, 1891 (v. 39, No. 1005, p. 630), at the time Mr. Brotherhead issued his little volume entitled "Forty Years Among the Old Booksellers of Philadelphia."

JOHN D. WATTLES, publisher of The Sunday-School Times, of Philadelphia, died at Sarasota, Fla., on March 21, aged forty-four.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MAARTEN MAARTENS' new story, "The Great-er Story," is soon to be published as a serial in Temple Bar.

HENRY JAMES, who for many years enjoyed the friendship of Mrs. Kemble, gives a sketch of her in the April number of Temple Bar.

MISS HELEN AINSLEE SMITH, of Newark, N. J., a well-known writer of children's books, has been married for three years, and is the wife of James Elliott, a New York lawyer.

THE ALDINE CLUB entertained Mr. Thomas Bailey Aldrich on the evening of March 24 at its cosy club-house on Lafayette Place. Hamilton W. Mable presided, and among those who entertained the company with speeches and recitations were E. C. Stedman, W. D. Howells, Charles Dudley Warner, John Burroughs, Edward Eggleston, F. Hopkinson Smith, Eugene Field, Prof. George E. Woodberry, Charles S. Reinhart and James Whitcomb Riley.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"FAIR TO LOOK UPON" by Mary Belle Freeley, is being translated into German and will shortly be issued in Leipzig. The American publishers, Morrill, Higgins & Co., will issue a new illustrated (paper-covered) edition on the 15th inst.

GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM on the evening of March 27 delivered before the students and faculty of Princeton College the lecture on "The History of Literary Property" which he delivered on similar occasions at Yale and Johns Hopkins. The address dealt with the close relations which an author bears to his publisher and to the public at large.

WUNDERLICH & CO., 868 Broadway, will have on exhibition until the 3d inst. the original drawings in black and white and in colors of the illustrations which will appear in the forthcoming "exhibition number" of Scribner's Magazine. Among the artists represented are George H. Boughton, Alfred Parsons, Robert Blum, F. S. Church, Howard Pyle, A. B. Frost, C. D. Gibson and others.

HORACE C. DONOGHUE, a well-known Chicago publisher, committed suicide on the 27th of March. While he was standing before his dressing-case his wife took up a newspaper and began reading about Elliott F. Shepard's death in New York. Suddenly she heard her husband fall with a peculiar gurgling sound, and rushing to his side she found that he had cut his throat from ear to ear with a razor. The cause for the suicide is a mystery. Mr. Donoghue leaves a large estate.

THE forty-first volume of the "Trow Copartnership and Corporation Directory" has just been issued. The first volume, issued in 1849, contained 66 pages and information concerning about 6000 firms and corporations. The new volume contains the names of more than 29,000 firms, corporations, etc. In all the corporations the names of the officers, the amount of capital, the name of the State in which they are chartered, and other useful information are given. The names of foreign houses having offices in this city, with the names of the agents and their addresses, are also given.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY was made the subject of legislative inquiry in Chicago on March 27. Charles J. Barnes, general western manager for the company, was the principal witness. He declared that the company was for the purpose of minimizing expenses by a concentration of business interests. He said the combined income of every school-book company in the United States was only about $6,500,000, and of this the American Book Company had received $3,307,000, which enabled it to pay only 6 per cent. dividends. Mr. Barnes declared that his concern was legitimate and deserved public gratitude, because of the lower prices for school-books which it had made possible.

A WISE and venerable book-lover once hit upon a cunning way in which to defeat the nefarious book-borrower. He wrote the price, in plain figures, in all his books, and when anybody asked to borrow a volume he cheerfully answered, "Yes, with pleasure." Then he would add, looking at the fly-leaf, "I see the price of this work is so-and-so—you may take it at this figure, which will, of course, be refunded when the volume is returned." "Those who really wanted the books," says the New York Tribune, which is responsible for the item, "made no objection to leaving the deposit, while those who lazily wanted to avoid a journey to the nearest library generally failed to take the loan." The old gentleman's beautiful library was in this way preserved intact.

CHARLES H. SERGEL, of the Chicago publishing house of Charles H. Sergel & Co., has been appointed by President R. M. Bermudez, of the Republic of Peru, to the position of consul ad honorem in Chicago. Mr. Sergel is the first Peruvian Consul ever appointed in Chicago, and the distinguished honor was conferred by President Bermudez in recognition of the merits of the "History of Peru," the initial volume of Mr. Sergel's historical series, which was produced last fall. This history of Peru is now being translated into Spanish and ex-Mayor William R. Grace, of New York City, whose firm will handle the works in the Latin-American countries, having a branch house in Lima, is negotiating with the government of Peru, it is said, for the sale of 10,000 volumes of the Spanish edition.

L. PRANG & Co. have taken great pains in the preparation of their Easter novelties. Artistic skill is shown in the designs, which are chaste and delicate, and the conceptions are original and striking. This delicacy of design is noticeable not only in their high-priced productions, but their inexpensive cards possess the same distinctive feature. Some of their booklets are especially satisfying to the artistic sense. Among these are: "Nature's Jubilee," a poem with full-page illustrations of cherubs in delicate water tints; "The Voice of Spring," also illustrated in colors; and "Violets," one of the daintiest little publications that ever issued from a press. It is a collection of verses on the violet, with illustrations of that flower on every page; nothing simpler or sweeter could be imagined. Among their art pictures is a new publication, "Budding Life," which is very suggestive. A little child stands in a field of flowers, stretching up its hands toward two butterflies which seem to have just escaped from the chrysalis. The picture is done in water-color tints and is specially charming. Their fine-art picture for this season is an exceedingly pretty child's head, entitled "Looking Upward," by Burnham Rigby. They also make a specialty this year of booklets in hand-decorated linen and leatherette covers, and of fine prints on satin.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Revue des Deux Mondes has just published a translation of Richard Harding Davis' "Unfinished Story."

ELLIOT STOCK, London, has in preparation an interesting volume on "Scrivelsby, the home of the champions," with some account of the Marmon and Dymoke families, by Rev. Samuel Lodge.

THE Russian publishers do not intend to allow authors to interfere with their business. They have petitioned the Minister of the Interior to impose a special tax on the works of all authors who act as their own publishers.

S. BARING-GOULD and Oscar Beringer have written a libretto for an opera founded on Mr. Gould's weird novel, "The Red Spider." S. Clarke has nearly completed the libretto of a new comic opera for E. Jacobowski.

IN Japan it has just been decided by a committee of the peers that the discharge of the work of editors or publishers is neither becoming nor desirable for women, and that these offices shall be reserved to men of, or over, twenty-one years of age.

WILLIAM MORRIS' Kelmscott Press will shortly issue a history of the First Crusade, entitled "Godfrey of Boulogne," and a new work of which he himself is the author, called "The Well at the World's End." This latter is a romance of the vague mediæval period.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish immediately a new edition of the "Poems by Two Brothers," and also a large-paper edition, limited to 300 copies, and containing fac-similes of several pages of the original ms. The volume will include also a reprint of the Cambridge Prize Poem on "Timbuctoo."

BURNS & OATES, London, will shortly publish a posthumous work by Cardinal Manning, consisting of essays written on "Honor," "Consistency," "Vanity," "Popularity," "Gossip," "The Fourth Estate," "Critics" and like subjects. The forthcoming work has the special interest of being his Eminence's only legacy to secular literature.

A VERY full and interesting life of Mohammed the Apostle has just been published by the Oriental Translation Fund, New Series, under the patronage of the Royal Asiatic Society. It is a translation by E. Rehatsek, a well-known Oriental scholar, from the work of Mirkhand, the Persian historian, known under the name of the Rauzat-us-sata, or Garden of Purity, and is in two volumes. The next volume containing the lives of Abu Bakr Omar, Othman and Ali, the immediate successors of the Prophet, will be published in 1894.

WILLIAM HEINEMANN, London, has in preparation an English edition of M. Emile Michel's "Rembrandt: his life, his work, and his time," edited by Mr. Frederick Wedmore. It will contain over eighty plates and about three hundred reproductions of works of the master; and while some of the less important ones of the French edition will be excluded, other examples will be added, so that the English version will have features quite of its own. There will be an ordinary edition, at two guineas net, and a small edition, numbered and signed, on Japanese vellum, with duplicate set of plates on India paper, at ten guineas.

GEORGE BELL & SONS, London, will publish at once the first volume of Mr. Wheatley's new edition of "Pepys' Diary," which is now to be printed for the first time in its complete form, with the authority of the Master and Fellows of Magdalene College, Cambridge. Mr. Mynors Bright, in his edition of the diary, left about one-fifth unprinted, but he transcribed the whole, and the present edition represents this transcript, a few unprintable passages only being omitted. The editor has added a large number of notes, besides those of Lord Braybrooke. There will be eight volumes in all, and a limited large-paper edition is also to be published. The American market will be supplied by Macmillan & Co.

A "LOVER OF BOOKS," writing to an English journal, makes a vigorous and much-needed protest against what he calls the ridiculous practice of allowing some modern littérateur to advertise his name as "editor" upon every reprint of a standard work offered to the public. He asks why these modern editors should be allowed to annoy in this impertinent fashion a classic read and beloved before they were born, and he scorns the "ridiculous, fussy and artificial ceremony of editing things which only require to be left alone to the care of any sensible printer." Here is a slap for Andrew Lang: "Of Mr. Lang—Editor-in-Chief to the British Nation—it is too late to speak. The 'admirable and exhaustive index' now to be appended to Sir Walter's novels will give one more stimulus to the prevalent vices of the age—aimless quotation and a pretence of familiarity with our great classics. And it will remain a marvel to many of us why the publisher could not simply have reproduced, unaided, the as yet unrivalled 'forty-eight-volume' author's edition."

BERNARD QUARITCH deserves credit for having undertaken cheap popular issues of the earliest printed tracts relating to the discovery and early history of the New World. The first four of these, brought out at the suggestion of Mr. William Curtis, the head of the American Government Department connected with "The World's Columbian Exposition," the Spanish letter of Columbus announcing the discovery of the New World, printed at Barcelona in April, 1493 (40 c.); the Latin translation of this letter printed at Rome in 1493 (30 c.); Amerigo Vespucci's narrative of his first four voyages, printed at Florence in 1505 or 1506 (75 c.); and Hariot's narrative of the first plantation of Virginia in 1585, printed at Franckfort in 1590, with engravings by Theodore de Bry, and at the latter's "owne coast and chardges" (60 c.). There are added accurate English translations, learned prefaces, the Ptolemy map of 1513, and the drawing by Stradanus, made about 1580, wherein Vespucci appears in conversation with an awe-stricken Indian woman in a hammock. The work is well done, and there can be no more praiseworthy contribution to our four hundredth anniversary celebrations.

The Bibliographie de la France contains an article (interesting chiefly to the collector of ex-libris) on the celebrated book-mark of Sebastian Nivelle, the most noted publisher and printer of Paris from 1550 to 1603. Nivelle descended from a long line of Parisian painters and publishers. The list of the works he printed or published during forty-three years is a very long one. In nearly all of them appears a book-plate, known to all collectors as La marque aux cigognes [the sign of the storks]. This book-plate was drawn by Nivelle himself and shows great imagination and erudition in its composition. His first idea was taken from the sign which marked the house he lived in before streets had been named and numbered in Paris. A copy of this sign formed the centre, surrounded by four medallions based on Biblical and Roman legends, all typifying filial love, the special characteristic of storks. The plate is a work of art interesting to study for the wealth of its ideas, its high moral and distinct literary characteristics. The motto was the third commandment, which appeared sometimes in French rhyme, but more frequently in Latin or even Greek. The article in The Bibliographie de la France gives a description and facsimile of the plate which was given by Nivelle to Sebastian Cramoisy, his son-in-law, and appeared in the books printed by him and his heirs until the first years of the eighteenth century.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

MACMILLAN & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Now Ready. Vol. I. of the New Revised and Enlarged Edition of

THE RIGHT HON. JAMES BRYCE'S GREAT WORK

The American Commonwealth.

By the Right Hon. JAMES BRYCE, D.C.L., author of "The Holy Empire;" M.P. for Aberdeen. In two volumes, large 12mo. Third edition, revised throughout and for the greater part rewritten. Vol. I., $1.75 net. Vol. II., In the Press.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON MR. BRYCE'S GREAT WORK,

The American Commonwealth.

"His work rises at once to an eminent place among studies of great nations and their institutions. It is, so far as America goes, a work unique in scope, spirit and knowledge. There is nothing like it anywhere extant, nothing that approaches it. . . . Without exaggeration, it may be called the most considerable and gratifying tribute that has yet been bestowed upon us by an Englishman, and, perhaps, by even England herself. . . . One despairs in an attempt to give, in a single newspaper article, an adequate account of a work so infused with knowledge and sparkling with suggestion. . . . Every thoughtful American will read it, and will long hold in grateful remembrance its author's name."—New York Times.

"As we can hardly conceive of any influence more likely to help in forming a right judgment on these momentous subjects than that of so wise, so temperate, and so able a discussion of American institutions as Prof. Bryce has here given us, we repeat the wish that it may find its way to the library of every patriotic citizen, and be studied with earnest care."—N. Y. Evening Post. (Second Notice.)

"All too brief and inadequate as this review may be, it indicates the lofty tone and impartial spirit of a work that takes instant rank as the keenest critique and most trustworthy description of our social and political life. The only way to enjoy such a work is to read every line of it."—Philadelphia Press.

"We understate the facts when we say that De Tocqueville's survey of our political and social framework cannot be compared, in point of wide knowledge and wise comment, with 'The American Commonwealth,' by James Bryce."—New York Sun.

"This work will be invaluable . . . to the American citizen who wishes something more than a superficial knowledge of the political system under which he lives and of the differences between it and those of other countries. . . . The fact is that no writer has ever attempted to present so comprehensive an account of our political system, founded upon such length of observation, enriched with so great a mass of detail, and so thoroughly practical in its character. . . . We have here a storehouse of political information regarding America such as no other writer, American or other, has ever provided in one work. . . . It will remain a standard even for the American reader."—New York Tribune.

"On this side of the Atlantic it is recognized as the most remarkable among English books for the accuracy of its statements, its fairness of judgment and its clearness of comprehension; while by the English press it is regarded as the most sagacious and important study of the subject since De Tocqueville's 'Democracy in America,' which appeared more than half a century ago."—Public Opinion.

"Written with full knowledge by a distinguished Englishman to dispel vulgar prejudices and to help kindred people to understand each other better, Prof. Bryce's work is in a sense an embassy of peace, a message of good-will from one nation to another."—London Times.

"The event of the year in the literary world takes place to-day in the publication by Messrs. Macmillan of Mr. Bryce's monumental work on 'The American Commonwealth,' . . . a work remarkable alike for penetration of judgment, for felicity of style and for solidity of research."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Of the "American Catalogue" of 1876-1884, remain, and the price, as per previous notice, is now raised to $15 in paper, and $17.50 in half morocco binding. The type is destroyed, and no more can be printed. When the supply on hand has been reduced to the price will be raised to $17.50 in paper and $20 in half morocco. Any library, bookseller, or collector who has not a copy should order before it is too late.

A few copies still remain of the Subject Volume of the American Catalogue for 1876 which we will supply for $12.50 in paper and $15 in half morocco. This is of especial value in libraries and book-stores which cannot now buy the Author Volume, as, except novels, juveniles, etc., it gives the same books, re-arranged by subjects. The price on this work also will presently be raised.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE,

28 Elm Street (P. O. Box 943), New York.

IMPORTANT TO BOOKSELLERS.

Annual Catalogues, 1892.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1892 contains :

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1892.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1892.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same, in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1892.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.00 sheets, $3.50 half leather.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1892, just ready, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

Early orders for both Catalogues are solicited.

Island Nights' Entertainments.

"The Beach of Falesa," "The Bottle Imp" and "The Isle of Voices." By R. L. STEVENSON. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

These stories reveal anew some of Mr. Stevenson's most admirable qualities as a story-teller—his gift of fiery narrative of adventure and fight and his fantastic imagination and grim humor. They are valuable, too, as studies of South Sea Island character.

Christ in Modern Theology.

By A. B. FAIRBAIRN, D.D., Mansfield College, Oxford. 8vo, $2.50.

Mr. Fairbairn's book presents the new view of Christ due to the growth of the historical and scientific spirit of inquiry, and discusses the important effect of this new view upon Christian theology.

The French Revolution.

By CHARLES E. MALLET, Balliol College, Oxford. 12mo, $1.50, net.

A new University Manual, bringing into compact compass the information, suggestions and ideas contained in the larger and more important works, inaccessible to most readers, on this great historical epoch.

NEW IMPORTATIONS.

Modern Meteorology.

An Outline of the Growth and Present Condition of Some of Its Phases. By FRANK WALDO, Ph.D., Late Junior Professor Signal Service, U. S. A. With 112 illustrations. Cr. 8vo, $1.25. A new volume in the Contemporary Science Series.

Japanese Jingles.

By MAE ST. JOHN BRAMHALL. Second edition. Sq. 12mo, $1.50.

Many new color blocks, painted in Japan, give a special beauty to the second edition of this popular book, of which nearly 4000 copies have been sold.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, 743-745 Broadway, New York.

A. J. HOLMAN & CO., Limited.

SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT.

FAMILY AND PULPIT BIBLES: STANDARD EDITIONS.

in the English, German, Swedish and Dano-Norwegian languages. Valuable additions have been made to the contents of all of our family Bibles, in both text-matter and illustrations. Our pulpit editions show the Scripture-text alone, without collateral features, and are strongly bound in styles most suitable for the desk or lectern. For this season we have many beautiful bindings recently designed for our use, and our lines are more complete than ever before in the very latest and most artistic patterns applied to Bible covers.

THE HOLMAN SELF-PRONOUNCING S. S. TEACHER'S BIBLE.

It still remains without competition. It is the only Teacher's Bible published with all the proper names in the text syllabified and diacritically marked. We invite comparison of each one of our styles with the corresponding style of any imported edition. Our Bible upon India paper is unsurpassed in either clearness of print, flexibility or elegance of material and finish.

THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER, 1892.

We offer the first and only distinctively American edition yet published of the Prayer-Book of the Protestant Episcopal Church. A large variety of new and attractive bindings have been lately added to our list, and these will be followed by others now in preparation. Our facilities for successfully producing this class of work are unequalled in this country. Additional sizes of the Prayer-Book are also in course of making, and we shall soon place them upon the market. We have listed our books at low prices, from which we allow liberal discounts to the trade.

JUST ISSUED :

The Victorian Age of English Literature.

By Mrs. OLIPHANT, author of "The Makers of Florence," "The Makers of Venice," "Laurence Oliphant's Life," etc., etc. In 2 vols., 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $3.00.

This work contains an accurate and comprehensive survey of English literature during the past fifty years—the Victorian Age—which is undoubtedly one of the most active, most prolific and richest literary periods in the history of the globe.

The lives and writings of five hundred literary celebrities are passed under the author's discerning review in these volumes, which likewise contain the history of the inception and development of innumerable magazines, newspapers, etc., more or less known to fame. The book is a most painstaking and able conspectus of Victorian literature, such as no student and no possessor of a library can afford to be without.

The Drama.

Addresses by HENRY IRVING. With frontispiece by Whistler. 16mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

This dainty little volume comprises four interesting addresses by Mr. Irving, dealing with the annals of acting and with the art as well as with the traditions of the stage. It is full at once of the enthusiasms and the professional culture which mark everything said or done by the chief figure on the modern stage, who properly holds his profession in high esteem. The addresses, delivered at Oxford University, on the Four Great Actors of the English Stage, will, we are sure, be read and re-read by all lovers of the higher drama and by every one in sympathy with the actor's art. The work is enriched by an excellent character portrait of Mr. Henry Irving.

The Highland Nurse.

A Tale. By the DUKE OF ARGYLL. 18mo, paper, 25 cents. Shandon Series.

Lovers of Scotch scenery and legends will be particularly pleased with the Duke of Argyll's carefully written story, "The Highland Nurse." There is much in this little volume that will also appeal to novel-readers in general, notably the weird mystery that surrounds the old Highland Nurse, who attains the marvellous age of 120 years. This book is replete with beautiful word-pictures which were evidently penned by a keen lover of these lovely Highland scenes.

A Deplorable Affair.

By W. E. NORRIS, author of "Adrian Vidal," "A Bachelor's Blunder," etc., etc. 18mo, paper, 25 cents. Shandon Series.

"For the combination of high literary qualities which Mr. Norris possesses, we must go back to the most eminent of his predecessors."—Quarterly Review.

"Mr. Norris has given us a very pleasant story, told in his own very pleasant way. His dialogue is always pleasant and sometimes witty."—London Daily Chronicle.

"In 'Loaded Dice' we have a novel of the most brilliant and fascinating type, aglow with all the gleam and glitter of Paris, in which city the scene is laid."—Boston Budget.

Christine.

By ADELINE SERGEANT, author of "Beyond Recall," "A Life Sentence," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Hollywood Series.

"'Christine' has a finished quality that in the artistic sense is exceedingly agreeable. The narrative has plenty of effective contrasts, and the descriptive passages are admirable in suggestiveness."—Boston Beacon.

LIBRARY OF CHOICE FICTION.

THE ALGERIAN SLAVE. By G. CAROLI .....$0.50

This narrative of extraordinary adventures among the piratical Moors of Algiers, twenty years before this cruel race had its power for evil wrested from it by the French conquest of 1830, is based upon the actual experiences of an English lad captured by the Dey's cruel sea robbers. The story is told with a simplicity as effective as it is touching. The incidents are startlingly realistic, and in every respect this novel deserves a choice place in every public and private library.

DR. PHILLIPS. By FRANK DANBY ..... 50

This is a recent and very powerful novel. The scene is laid in London among the Jewish middle classes. Never has the undying antagonism and animosity existing between the Semitic and the Aryan races been more vividly pictured, and although the novelist is by birth a Christian, his descriptions are both true and fair. The plot is entrancing from the first to the last page, and the ring of genuine originality is there. A first-class, most entertaining novel of the present day.

NOTES IN SEASON.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will issue this month the third and fourth volumes of Pierce's biography of Sumner, the first volumes of which appeared about fifteen years ago. They will also publish shortly "The Man with Seven Hearts," by Arthur Burrell, a combination of little mystical tales and poems, with bits of humor and pathos intermingled, which has been a success in England; and a volume of short stories entitled "Brown's Retreat," by Mrs. Anna Elchberg King.

AMBLARD & MEYER BROTHERS, 13 W. 24th Street, New York, American agents for Alphonse Lemerre, of Paris, will publish at once a copyright edition in French of "Un Scrupule," a new volume by Paul Bourget, the author of "Cosmopolis," etc. Messrs. Amblard & Meyer are empowered to make all arrangements for the right to translate, dramatize and reproduce new works brought out by M. Lemerre, who is the publisher of Coppée, Bourget, Loti, Daudet and other well-known French writers.

FLKING H. REVELL Co. will shortly publish a brief popular biography of W. E. Gladstone, by Walter Jerrold, under the title of "England's Great Commoner," in which the record of Gladstone's life is brought down to date. They are to have a German edition of "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life," which has already been published in Danish; and a Japanese edition of "The Earthly Footprints of Our Risen Lord," which is an illustrated condensation of the four gospels put into narrative form.

RUFUS C. HARTMANFT, of Philadelphia, will shortly issue a curious and interesting work entitled "The Confessions of a Convict," which has been edited by Julian Hawthorne. It is the story told by a convict who was confined in Auburn Prison for ten years for forgery. During this period he kept notes of the various phases of prison life, jotting down from time to time incidents which indicated the exact routine life of a criminal in a great penal institution. During his ten years' servitude his companion or "bench pal" was Jimmy Hope, the notorious bank burglar, whose career and exploits were from time to time told to the writer, who has embodied the same in his narrative. There will be forty illustrations taken from life—a part of them pen drawings made by the criminal.

FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. will publish at once an American edition of Dr. Adolph Harnack's "Outlines of the History of Dogma." This edition is translated from the German by Edwin Knox Mitchell, professor in Hartford Theological Seminary. Dr. Harnack is well known as theologian and exegete, and is professor of church history in the University of Berlin. The same firm have in press "Our New Hymnal," prepared by Philip Phillips and his son, adapted for use in the Christian Endeavor Association, Epworth Leagues, and all gospel meetings in Sunday-schools as well as churches. Among the new departures in this "Hymnal" will be a sort of concordance-index of all the hymns, which will enable the chorister or pastor to select, at sight, any verse or hymn for any occasion needed. It will contain about 500 of the best hymns and tunes, new and old, in the English language.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce a volume of lectures on preaching to be delivered at the Yale Divinity School by the Rev. Robert F. Horton, of London, England. The Rev. Mr. Horton, it will be remembered, is the author of "Revelation and the Bible," a book which Dr. Abbott describes in The Christian Union as "one of the very best of its class—valuable for what it suggests as well as for what it contains, and most of all for its demonstration that one may hold in the truest sense to both inspiration and revelation while rejecting the dogma of a verbally inspired and infallible book." The next volume in the series of Rulers of India (published in this country by Macmillan & Co.) will be "Aurang-zib," by Stanley Lane-Poole. We understand that it is not proposed to add any more to the volumes already announced as in preparation, which will deal with the following: Lord Clive, the Marquess Wellesley, Earl Amherst, the Earl of Auckland, Sir Thomas Munro and James Thomason.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); O. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Ts. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Andrews to accompany a fac-simile of an actual survey made by Ja. Lyne and printed by W: Bradford in 1731. N. Y., printed at the De Vinne Press, [for sa'e by David G. Francis, 12 East 15th St.,] 1893. c. 114 p. il. O. cl., $10. [Edition limited to 152 copies.]

Argyll, Duke of, [G: D. Campbell.] The Highland nurse: a tale. [Also] An eighteenth century Juliet, by Ja. Mortimer. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] c. '91. 2-170 p. S. (Shandon ser., no. 3.) pap., 25 c.

The Highland nurse by the narrator's calculation must have been at least one hundred and ten years old when he first met her. He had heard of her all his life, as from her his grandfather and father had imbibed all the love of the old Scots upon which his imagination had been fed. Descriptions of Scotch scenery and of many fishing excursions lighten the pages. "An eighteenth century Juliet" is a tale of southern France about 150 years ago.

Barr, W: M. Pumping machinery: a practical handbook relating to the construction and management of steam and power pumping machines. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 447 p. il. O. cl., $5.

This work is essentially descriptive of pump detail; no attempt has been made to enter into the theory and mathematics of pump-construction. It has been prepared for engineers, architects, contractors, plumbers, etc., who have occasion to recommend and use pumping machinery, and who wish to inform themselves regarding pump-construction; being largely descriptive, its illustrations have been made a prominent feature; with few exceptions the illustrations are from pumping machinery actually constructed and in use.

Bernard, C: de, [Dugrail de la Villette.] Gerfaut: a novel; from the French, by A. A. Page. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1893. c. 2-363 p. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 59.) pap., 50 c.

Gerfaut, the hero's name, also signifies a falcon's head, once used in the arms of French royal families. The story is laid in Alsace and Lorraine in the early part of the century. The hero is a literary man of the clique of which Chateaubriand was then the leader. The heroine is a married woman who remains true to her husband although romantically in love with Gerfaut. The end is tragic. The first mingling of the working people and the aristocracy under the Bourbons is described with historically accurate details. First published in New York by Carleton in 1874 under the title of "A fatal passion," published in London in 1881 as "Lover and husband;" published in Paris in 1888 as "Gerfaut."

A strange escapade which leaves the reader in doubt as to the hero's sanity gives title to the story. This character, by name Frank Merreday, a young Englishman of birth and means, pervades the narrative; he is wildly eccentric, being one of those peculiar combinations of opposite qualities which Mrs. Clifford depicted in "Aunt Anne." He is the bad influence in the lives of several women, and almost succeeds in breaking the heart of the young bride of his cousin Laurence Halstead.

Eschenbach, Marie v. Ebner. The child of the parish: a novel. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1893. c. 4-342 p. D. (Choice ser., no. 81.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Pavel, the son of a cruel, utterly immoral bricklayer, is thrown upon the parish after his father is hung for murder and his mother sent to the penitentiary for ten years, having been proved accessory to the crime. By his own efforts he makes himself respected. He dreads his mother's release, fearing it will spoil his position. The death of his sister, who has become a nun, his mother's confession, and his friends, all work to make him a worthy man. The scene is Moravia.

Fairbairn, A. M., D.D. The place of Christ in modern theology. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 20+556 p. O. cl., $2.50.

This work "is an endeavor through a Christian doctrine of God at a sketch of the first lines of Christian theology." The author, who is principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, thinks that "what God signified to Jesus Christ he ought to signify to all Christian churches." The first part is concerned with historical criticism, the second with theological construction. He endeavors to explain the factors and forces that have moved and shaped the theologies of the past that he may draw the groundwork of a theology for the present. The matter was originally embodied in a Morse Lecture and also in the Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale University.

Harnack, Adolf. Outlines of the history of dogma; tr. by Edwin Knox Mitchell. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893. c. 10+567 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Adapted not only for a text-book for students, but for a popular and comprehensive history of the creeds of Christendom. Dr. Harnack begins with the first apostolic declarations concerning Christ, traces carefully the results of contact with the Hellenic schools of thought, notes the effect upon Christian doctrine of the political changes during the ages, and conveys a clear understanding of the great historical controversies down to the days of Luther, out of which were gradually evolved the various creeds and formulas that give character to the different sects of to-day. The work is conveniently subdivided, each subdivision being preceded by a brief and masterly historical survey of the period considered. The book is printed in large type and has marginal index notes on nearly all of the pages, and a practical table of contents, which furnish ample facilities for ready reference.

*Harrison, F. The choice of books. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. 168 p. 18°, cl., 75 c.; pap., 25 c.

Hopkins, W. J. Telephone lines and their properties. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. c. 14+258 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Contents: Design and construction of city lines; Underground work; Long distance lines; Wire; Insulators; Exchanges; Switchboards; The propagation of energy; The telephone current; Measurement; Properties of city lines; Interferences from outside sources; Properties of metallic circuits; Cables. Author is professor of physics in the Drexel Institute, Phila. His intention has been to provide a book which should prove useful to the practical man, as well as one which would serve as a basis for a lecture course to students. He has therefore devoted some space to the development of correct elementary ideas of matter and energy.

Hornung, Ernest W. Tiny Luttrell. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1898.] c. 5+864 p. D. cl., $1.

A carefully conceived and carefully executed character study of a young Australian girl, impetuous and somewhat slangy, intelligent and amusing, and with a warm, loving heart. The scene changes from Australia "in the bush" to England. "Tiny Luttrell's" story entirely concerns her heart history and her struggle as to whether she shall marry the man she loves or the man who loves her. The minor characters are well described.

*Howells, W. D. An imperative duty: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1898. 8°, (Harper's Franklin sq. lib.) pap., 50 c.

Irving, H. The drama: addresses; with a frontispiece by Whistler. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1898.] 8-201 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The addresses deal with the annals of acting and with the art as well as with the traditions of the stage. They are entitled "The stage as it is," "The art of acting," "Four great actors" and "The art of acting"—there being two separate lectures with the latter title.

Knudsen, A. Triangular surveys from single stations. San Francisco, Cal., [Osborn & Alexander, 401 Market St.] 1898. c. 32 p. T. bds., 75 c.

"When perched upon some lofty station overlooking a surrounding area which is to be surveyed, all engineers must repeatedly have longed, from their inmost heart, for some method that with equal certainty and despatch, but wider range than any based on micrometric measurements, might enable them to seize at once upon the host of details offered to their view without going through the intricacies of a scheme or the agonies of double stations. Such a method I profess to embody in this little volume."—Preface.

Leyton, Frank. The shadows of the lake. 4th ed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 5+148 p. S. cl., $1.25.

"The shadows of the lake" is the opening poem of a collection of poems that have been very generally commended by the English press. They are somewhat sad and pessimistic in tone, but gracefully written and imbued with passion and pathos.

Lombard, L. Observations of a musician. Utica, N. Y., [published by the author, L. Lombard,] 1898. c. 114 p. T. cl., 50 c.; pap., 80 c.

Twenty-four little essays upon musical topics; with a graceful introduction by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Mallet, C. E. The French revolution. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1898. 9+307 p. D. (University extension manuals.) cl., net, $1.

"I have not attempted in this small volume to write a history of the French revolution. . . . I have rather endeavored, while taking for granted some knowledge of the story, to supply what handbooks generally have not space to give, and to collect in a convenient form some of the information, the suggestions and ideas which are to be found in larger books of comment and inquiry."—Author's introduction. Contains a list of important works on the subject (3 p.).

*Mortimer, Mrs. M. The peep of day; with verses illustrative of the subjects. New ed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 6+184 p. il. 16°, cl., $1.

Norris, W. E. A deplorable affair. [Also] A deadly dilemma. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1898.] c. '92. 2-163 p. S. (Shandon ser., no. 6.) pap., 25 c.

An old-fashioned bookseller at an English seaside resort tells the story. He makes the acquaintance of the heroine as a protégée of Miss Whitfield's, the great lady of the place. Miss Whitfield's jewels are taken and sold and suspicion rests upon the protégée, who is a successful writer for young people. In spite of this "deplorable affair" Miss Devereux's life is made happy by love and marriage. "The deadly dilemma" comes to a dismissed lover who hesitates for an agonizing minute whether he shall save his girl from death by wrecking a train or let her die before his eyes where she has fallen on the tracks.

Oliphant, Mrs. Marg. O. W. The Victorian age of English literature. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1898.] c. '92. 2 v., 2-318; 4+818-847 p. D. cl., $3.

Supplements and continues Mrs. Oliphant's "Literary history of England in the end of the 18th and the beginning of the 19th century." Contains an accurate and comprehensive survey of English literature during the past fifty years—the Victorian age—and one of the most active and prolific in the world's history. The lives and writings of five hundred literary celebrities are passed under review, and the history given of the inception and development of innumerable magazines, newspapers, etc., more or less known to fame. The volumes have marginal indexes, and a full alphabetical index under author's names. A reference-book for public and private libraries supplying information about living writers always difficult to find.

Outdoors: a book of healthful pleasure. Bost., Pope Mfg. Co., 221 Columbus Ave., 1893. 77 p. il. sq. S. pap., 10 c.

Contents: Lawn tennis, by F. A. Kellogg; Yachting, by George A. Stewart; Cycling, by Julian Hawthorne; Football, by Walter Camp; Baseball, by J. C. Moore; Horsemanship, by H. C. Merwin; Rowing, by Benjamin Garbo; Canoeing, by C. Bowyer Vaux. A collection of authoritative articles on healthful outdoor pleasures, illustrated by Copeland, Beals, Gallagher, Young and Shute.

Owen, Mary Alicia, comp. Voodoo tales, as told among the negroes of the Southwest; collected from original sources; introd. by C. Godfrey Leland; il. by Juliette A. Owen and L. Wain. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1898. c. 12+810 p. il. O. cl., $1.75.

About twenty stories of negro superstitions and folklore, supposed to be related by colored "aunties" of the Missouri border to a little white "missy." They are somewhat in the style of "Uncle Remus" tales, dealing with the adventures of "woodpecker," "ol' rabbit," "blue jay," etc. Charles G. Leland contributes an introduction, in which he points out the predominant elements of folk-lore in these Missouri negro traditions.

Petiscus, A. H. The gods of Olympus; or mythology of the Greeks and Romans; tr. and ed. from the 20th ed. of A. H. Petiscus by Katherine A. Raleigh; with a preface by Jane E. Harrison. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '92. 14+271 p. il. O. cl., $2.

This English edition of a work that has gone through twenty editions in the original has been improved in many ways, making it more acceptable to English students. In many places it has been condensed, and passages from English writers have been here and there substituted for quotations from German poets; additions have also been made with a liberal hand, among which are new illustrations and abundant references to kindred works for further reading.

Peyton, J. L. Tom Swindel; or, the adventures of a boomer. Staunton, Va., G. L. Bolen, 1893. c. 136 p. S. pap., 50 c.

Tom Swindel, a Virginia lawyer, resigns his position at the bar, purchases a tract of land, and with some fellow-conspirators attempts to boom a town. His methods and experiences are evidently given to show the dangers attending one who transgresses the moral or legal rights of a community.

Pictorial New York and Brooklyn: a guide to the same and vicinity. N. Y., Smith, Bleakley & Co., 853 Broadway, [1893.] 5+175 p. maps, il. Q. pap., 50 c.

Aims to place the cities of New York and Brooklyn before the reader as they are now rather than as they were of old. This is done through a bright and graphic text, which also includes all the usual information of the guide-book, and is from the pens of Charles Lotin Hildreth and Frederic Lyster, and a profusion of unusually good pictures. The sectional maps have been carefully prepared, are accurate and up to date, as is the whole work.

Protestant Episcopal Church. Hymnal; rev. and enl. as adopted by the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, 1892. N. Y., T. Whittaker, 1893. c. '89. 594 p. T. cl., 30 c.

*Raine, Ja. York. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 10+225 p. maps, plans, 8°, cl., $1.25.

Robinson, W. A., D.D. The little chicken-thieves. Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, 1893. c. 2-145 p. D. cl., 50 c.

The little chicken-thieves were two small boys who rifled Mr. Harney's setting hen of her brood. Some of the consequences of their daring act are told in a story which ends romantically.

Schaeffer, O., M.D. Medical pocket atlases: obstetrics; pt. 1, Labor, delineated in 98 plates; tr. [from the German] and published under the supervision of J. Clifton Edgar, M.D. N. Y., L. Hydel, 212 E. 50th St., 1893. 8 p. text, folded atlas, D. cl., $1.80.

*Scott, Sir Walter. Waverley novels. [New Dryburgh ed.] In 25 v. V. 6, Old Mortality. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 17+441 p. il. 8°, cl., $1.25.

Sherman, L. A. Analytics of literature: a manual for the objective study of English prose and poetry. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1893. c. 19+468 p. D. cl., $1.40.

"The aim of the present manual is simply to remedy, so far as may be, the seeming defects in the teaching of literature. . . . It is in no sense a substitute for the various text-books on the subject now in use. Its purpose, most particularly, is not only to render somewhat of the higher interpretation of literature possible to such as have little normal bent towards letters, but likewise to enable the better gifted to understand more definitely and confidently their own processes. It essays to make criticism begin on less vague and more exact foundations."—Preface.

Smith, R. Payne, D.D. Daniel: an exposition of the historical portion of the writings of the prophet Daniel. Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, [1893.] 4+335 p. D. cl., $1.

Composed of papers originally published in the British Homiletic Magazine.

Stevenson, Rob. L. Island nights' entertainments. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. '92, '93. 3+220 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Under the title "Island nights' entertainments" are comprised three stories with scenes laid in the Samoan and Sandwich Islands, entitled "The beach of Falessa," "The bottle imp" and "The Isle of Voices." They are odd, whimsical stories, and actual studies of the scenes and characters they photograph, dealing largely with the superstitions of the South Sea Islanders. The first is told by an English trader who marries a native woman; his story, a somewhat gruesome one, is realistic in the extreme. The second story is fantastic, having a similar motive to Balzac's La peau de chagrin. The third is a story of Hawaiian sorcery.

Swinburne, Ja., and Wordingham, C. H. The measurement of electric currents. Electrical measuring instruments. [Also] Meters for electrical energy; ed. by T. Commerford Martin. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1893. c. 237+4 p. T. (Van Nostrand's science ser., no. 109.) bds., 50 c.

The object of the two papers in this little work is to review the advances made of late years in the production of what may be termed commercial instruments for measuring commercial currents.

Taussig, F. W. The silver situation in the United States. 2d rev. ed. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 7+183 p. D. (Questions of the day ser., no. 74.) cl., 75 c.

Originally published by The American Economic Assoc. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., April 16, 1892, [1895.] In the present revision the passages relating to the act of 1890 have been almost entirely rewritten, chiefly with a view to giving an account of the events of the year 1892.

Turnbull, Mrs. Lawrence. Val Maria: a romance of the time of Napoleon I. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 200 p. il. D. hf. cl., $1.25.

Val Maria was a little valley of France, named for a statue of the Virgin which brought worshippers from every part of France. The young hero was a delicate child with a genius for sculpture. His father was a member of the French senate when the first Napoleon was director. The father's praise of Napoleon inspired the child to make a bust which was viewed by the emperor when the boy lay on his death-bed. By the author of "A catholic man."

United States Army. Manual of guard duty, approved January 7, 1893. N. Y., Office of The Army and Navy Journal, 1893. 4+78 p. Tt. pap., 25 c.

Van Dyke, H., D.D. Straight sermons to young men and other human beings preached before the Universities of Yale, Harvard and Princeton. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 10+233 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Of these ten sermons Dr. Van Dyke says: "Their real aim is nothing else than to help people to be good, which is the hardest and the finest thing in the world. Their gospel is simply this: that the sure way to be good is to trust and follow Jesus Christ, the Son of God."

Verne, Jules. Mistress Branican; from the French, by A. Estoclet; il. by L. Bennett. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '91. 4+

877 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 187.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.
See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Dec. 12, '91, [1087.]

*Virgil, [Lat. Virgilius.] Maro Publius. Æneid, Bks. 1-6; tr. into English by Ja. Rhoades. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 4+210 p. 8°, cl., $1.75.

Waldo, Frank. Modern meteorology: an outline of the growth and present condition of some of its phases. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1898. 21+460 p. il. D. (Contemporary science ser.) cl., $1.25.

The main object of the author is to bring the reader into closer contact with the work which has been and is actually engaging the attention of working meteorologists rather than to present finished results. Chapter 1 is mainly devoted to the mention of some of the principal sources of information concerning the recent progress of meteorological science; 2 contains a history and description of some important meteorological instruments and the methods of using them; 3 is mainly made up of an abstract of the important memoirs on thermodynamics of the atmosphere, recently communicated to the Berlin Academy of Sciences by Prof. von Bezold; 4 contains a partial outline of the history of the development of theories of the general atmospheric circulation; 5 is devoted to a historical sketch and partial explanation of the secondary atmospheric circulation; 6 embraces some of the principal results obtained by Dr. Brückner.

*Walpole, Spencer. The land of home rule: an essay on the history and constitution of the Isle of Man. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 6+287 p. 8°, cl., $1.75.

Watson, W. The eloping angels: a caprice. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. c. 5+29 p. S. cl., 75 c.

Mr. Watson's verse has always true poetic merit, and "The eloping angels" is no exception. It is a poem of twenty-nine stanzas relating the experiences of two angels who, disatisfied with "their selfish heaven of unearned joy," exchange "the dullness of entire felicity for life on earth, where they remain immortal and find true happiness. The style is finished and graceful; the poem abounds in delicate satirical humor. Finely printed on linen paper with wide margins and uncut edges.

*Watts, Francis. Introductory manual for sugar growers. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 10+150 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

*Weyl, Theodor. The coal-tar colors, with especial reference to their injurious qualities and the restriction of their use: a sanitary and medico-legal investigation; with a preface by Prof. Sell; tr., with permission of the author, by H. Leffmann. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1892 [1893.] 12-17+154 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Wharton, Anne Hollingsworth. Through colonial doorways. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1898. c. 237 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The seven papers which make up this volume originally appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, Lippincott's Magazine and other periodicals. They depict certain phases of social and domestic life of Colonial days, as seen in Philadelphia chiefly; they also recall many interesting and charming personalities of those times—both men and women. The titles of the papers are: "Through colonial doorways," "The Meschianza," "New York balls and receptions," "The American Philosophical Society," "The Wistar parties," "A bundle of old love-letters," "The Philadelphia dancing assemblies."

Winter, W. George William Curtis: a eulogy delivered before the people of Staten Island, at the Castleton, St. George, February 24, 1898. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. c. 3+118 p. por. D. cl., 75 c.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

YALE BIBLIOGRAPHIES.—The publication of a work entitled "Yale Bibliographies" is the plan of one of the instructors of the university. The idea of collecting the statistics relative to the publication of every work written by all the present officers of his college has been conceived and carried out by Dr. Irving Fisher, instructor in mathematics at Yale. The book will be published next month. It aims to furnish a reference to the investigations of all the offices of the university, and includes the titles of all the important publications of the professors, instructors and lecturers in the university, together with those of ex-President Noah Porter. It comprises over 160 octavo pages, and includes about 2000 titles. Each title is preceded by the year of publication, and, in the case of articles, is followed by the name or names of the journal, with the volume and inclusive pages where the article is found, while in the case of a book it is followed by the name of the city where the book is published, together with the number of pages. The book closes with an index of names, arranged according to departments. Hereafter a corresponding list will be issued annually to cover future publications.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—The Book-Shop, 73 E. Madison Street, Chicago, Ill., Miscellaneous. (No. 16, 8 p. 8°.)—Burnham's Antique Book-Store, Milk and Washington Streets, Boston, Miscellaneous. The plum of this catalogue is a unique volume entitled "The Passions of the Mind in General," which has been identified by an autograph as having belonged to the famous Captain Myles Standish. The price asked for the volume is $2500. The catalogue is particularly rich in early imprints offered at reasonable prices. # The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 8, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING. THE CARE AND ARRANGEMENT OF PAPER-BOUND STOCK ISSUED IN SERIES.

A DESIRABLE feature in conducting a miscellaneous book business is to have a reasonably complete and reliable system of keeping track of the many paper-bound books issued in series and at stated intervals, such as Appletons' Town and Country Library, Lippincott's Series of Select Novels, Cassell's Sunshine Series, etc. The difficulty is to decide upon the most convenient system on which the different series shall be kept. Most booksellers have some method peculiar to themselves, while the exceptions follow a hit-or-miss plan, and trust to luck to find what is called for.

The plan most generally adopted is that of keeping the various series separate, and shelving them in numerical order, from No. 1 upwards. This would seem the simplest method possible, if customers were in the habit of ordering by number; as they are not, or only do so in rare cases, the clerk is obliged to hunt for the desired work, probably at the loss of considerable time, which may be resented by the waiting customer. Then, too, the system works badly when works by the same author that may be issued in two or more series are called for, since it frequently happens, especially in the case of works issued since the enactment of the international copyright law, that the various works of one author may be issued by as many as three different publishers. Time, especially in handling this class of books, on which the margin is never excessive, is therefore as much an object to the firm as it may be to the customer, aside from the fact so often pointed out, that the latter is always best pleased when served without delay.

The system that has been found to give the best satisfaction is to arrange all the different series as one, disregarding their individuality entirely, and arranging them alphabetically by authors, not by titles or numbers. Works by anonymous authors are kept in a separate section and arranged alphabetically by titles. At the end of each alphabet space should be left for the additions which find their way from the tables to the shelves.

This system has one advantage that outweighs its one drawback, which is that by affording ready access to all the works of a given author that may have been issued in possibly half a dozen different series, it gives the clerk an opportunity of making sales of such works as may not have been thought of by his customer when he asked for one particular book. It is a matter of daily occurrence that a customer who when calling at the store may desire but one book of an author will, if the matter is properly brought to his attention, possibly take others by the same writer. If the series are kept separate this is not so readily done.

This system works without a hitch, until a book is called for whose author is unknown to both customer and clerk. In such a case, however, this system would give no more trouble than if the stock were arranged by series or by numbers. To provide against delays in such cases we suggest the use of a large blank book indexed throughout. In this should be entered, both by title and by author, every book of this class that is kept in stock. It will be found useful in ordering to add to this record the publisher's name and the number of the series.

With such an index properly kept the person in charge of the stock will be able in the least possible time to supply any book called for. Of course the index must be punctually kept up to date, otherwise it will become worse than useless. It will be found, however, that such a list is worth all the time and care that may be put into it; in fact, such an index seems to us almost indispensable in looking after a stock of paper-bound books of almost any size.

The bookseller will save himself much trouble if he decides at the start which of the many competing editions it pays him best to handle. It is an unwise policy to run three or four different issues of the same author's works in paper covers, because in most cases it is immaterial to the customer whether he gets this or that edition of "Oliver Twist," provided the price is the same—indeed, he rarely knows the difference.

More or less difficulty is experienced in keeping up stock in this department. The plan outlined in the chapter on the "Arrangement and Care of Stock" \* in this series might be adopted. It has been suggested that the entire lists should be written on sheets of heavy Bristol boards of about  $6\frac{1}{4}$  x 10 inches in size, which may be fastened together by punching a hole through the middle near the top and passing a string through them. The lists should be arranged alphabetically by authors—the anonymous works being grouped together alphabetically by titles on separate cards. The series numbers should be added to each title. A margin of about an inch should be left at the left-hand side of the page. When it is necessary to order new supplies the number on hand and the number wanted may be lightly pencilled on the margin left as noted above, against every book that may be needed. After the order is made up these numbers may be erased and the cards thus be made to do duty for a long time. Fussy as this plan may seem, when once started it can be kept accurate with very little labor. As it will save no end of time in the end, it will soon commend itself even to those who are averse to what they term "picayune details."

It will also be found a great help to keep a book for announcements of forthcoming issues in these series. Such a book properly kept will be found useful in many ways—in answering inquiries, keeping track of the stock, especially if the announcements are crossed off as the books are issued and brought into the store, etc. Every circular received, every announcement through the trade journals or other sources, should be promptly transcribed, and as promptly crossed off as soon as a book is issued. If this is done systematically it will give no end of satisfaction. If it cannot so be kept it had better not be begun, because incomplete it would be worse than useless.

60,000 NEW BOOKS YEARLY.

UNDER the above title Talcott Williams in the Philadelphia Press for March 5 gives the following interesting statistics:

"The average American reader has equally little knowledge how large the flood of new books is yearly in the civilized world and how very small the share of this country is in adding to it. Most Americans, if they were asked, would feel certain that about as many new books were written in this country as in any in the world. As a matter of fact, there is no civilized country in Europe of any size, not even excepting Russia, which does not match or overmatch the literary product of the United States.

"This country, to take the very admirable and accurate statistics of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in 1892, published 4074 new books and 788 new editions of old books, or 4862 in all. This is close to eighty new books, not volumes, a week, and nearly ninety-eight issues weekly of both kinds. This will strike most people as a very fair literary activity. In Great Britain, however, which has only a little over half of our population, there were last year published 4915 new books and 1339 new editions of works previously issued, in all 6254, just about 120 new works or twenty every working day, so that if a man read ten hours a day every week-day he would have about half an hour to give to each book, often consisting of several volumes.

"This omnivorous reader would have to double his industry if he lived in France. The new books and new editions there in 1892 were 13,132. He would have to treble his reading powers or give each new book six minutes apiece in Germany. Ten years ago, in 1883, German publishers were issuing 14,803 works yearly. In 1884 the issues in this country were 4088, less than a third. In 1890, when the issues here were 4559, those in Germany were 18,875, or more than four times those here, so much more rapidly is the production of books growing there than here. In 1892 the production was close to 20,000 in Germany by a population two-thirds as large and with not a third of the wealth of the United States, which brought out less than a quarter as many books as Germany.

"The United States not only publishes fewer books than other countries, but among those a larger proportion are mere ephemeral novels. Last year, out of our 4862 books published, 1102, or over a fifth, were novels. In Germany, out of 18,873 books in 1890, only 1731, or less than a tenth, were devoted to either poetry or fiction. Ten years ago only 1260 such books out of 14,774 were published in Germany. Here, last year, of novels and poems together, 1361 works were published, or over one fourth of the whole. It is only in England that our appetite for fiction is matched. There, last year, 1537 novels were issued, or a full quarter of all the books published, and 217 poems, in all 1754 works. Where this country then gives a fifth of its literary activity to novels and England a quarter, Germany only turns a tenth of its writing energy in this direction.

"This simply means that the serious work of investigation in science, in history and in all practical fields is being done better and more completely in Germany than anywhere else. In newspapers and novels we beat Germany out of hand, but in serious books we are simply nowhere by the side of Germany. Even Russia, which in 1888 published 7427 new books to our 6631, and in 1899 issued 4716 to our 4559, shows a greater literary activity than this country, though readers are probably twenty-fold more numerous here.

"These comparisons are not particularly soothing to our national pride, but it is well that our national disposition to imagine that this country leads in all departments should be sharply corrected by the facts. Taking the known facts as to Germany, France, England, Russia and the United States and estimating for the rest of Europe and the yearly grist of new books in the civilized world must be put at about 60,000. We have considerably over a fifth of the population which supplies writers and readers for this annual literary flood; but we supply less than a twelfth of the new books and of our round 5000 "new" books from 800 to 1000 are imported from England and reissued here. We outmatch the world in railroads and telegraphs, in cotton and corn, in newspapers and live stock, but not in new books."

THE BRADFORD BI-CENTENNIAL.

TO-DAY (the 8th inst.) the New York Historical Society begins the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a printing-press in the New York colony by William Bradford (the exact date of which was April 10, 1693). To-day will also be commemorated the founding of the first newspaper, the New York Gazette, on October 25, 1725. The paper was printed on the site of the present Cotton Exchange, and it is in the main room of the Exchange that the celebration will take place, its use having been tendered to the society. A search has been made for the place where the first printing-press was located, and it is thought that it was on the north side of Pearl, then Dock Street, between Broad and Old Slip. A further investigation on this subject is yet to be made. As already noted, two tablets will be set up—one on the site of the old newspaper and the other where the printing-press stood. At the Cotton Exchange there will be prayer at 1 o'clock in the afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Dix, and addresses by John A. King, president of the society, and by the orator of the day.

Monday, April 10, the Groller Club will hold a meeting at its rooms and appropriate services will be observed, the feature of which will be an address by Charles R. Hideburn, of Philadelphia.

On Wednesday, April 12, the last public demonstration will be observed by the Typothetæ with a dinner at Delmonico's.

ENGLISH AUTHORS AND AMERICAN PUBLISHERS.

MR. FITZGERALD MOLLOY, author of "The Life and Adventures of Peg Woffington," published last year by Dodd, Mead & Co., in a recent issue of the London Athenæum pays the following tribute to the integrity of his American publishers:

"The unprincipled ways of American publishers have long furnished themes for bitter complaint; for in truth the men have gambled with conscience. But to day the cheerful task is mine to bear witness to the honor and honesty practised by Messrs. Dodd, Mead & Co., of New York.

"Ten years ago was published here 'The Life and Adventures of Peg Woffington,' which ran through several editions in two-volume form, and later was issued in one volume. The biography was unprotected in the United States. Last December the American publishers named brought out a handsomely illustrated edition, in two volumes, at three dollars fifty cents. On setting forth my claims for payment they have sent me an account of sales, with a check for royalties at thirty-five cents a copy. This act I think merits public acknowledgment."

OBITUARY NOTES.

DANIEL C. COLESWORTHY, the well-known Boston bookseller and writer, died on April 1 at his residence in Chelsea, aged eighty-three years. Mr. Colesworthy, who was the oldest bookseller in Boston, was born in Portland, Me., July 14, 1810. He was the son of Daniel P. Colesworthy, a Bostonian, who had moved to Portland in 1804. In 1824, when fourteen years old, young Colesworthy was apprenticed to the printing business, in which he continued until 1837, when he opened a book-store in Portland.

In 1850 he came to Boston and started a book-store on Cornhill, in the store below the one then occupied by the Burnhams. When the building adjoining the Lilley Building was completed, in 1852, he moved into the upper story, where he has remained until now, doing a successful business and respected by all who knew him. As a writer Mr. Colesworthy was well known for the excellence of his verse. His first volume of poems, entitled "Opening Buds," was published in 1838. Later he published "A Group of Children, and other poems," "School Is Out" and "A Day in the Woods," the latter appearing in 1884. Some of the shorter poems in these volumes have had a very wide popularity and have been adopted in many public-school text-books, especially "Little Words," "Never Say Fail" and "Don't Kill the Birds." In 1887 he wrote a prose monograph called "John Telestone's School," a record of one of the most noted of the old Boston schoolmasters. Mr. Colesworthy's death was sudden; he had been at his store on the day preceding and seemed in his usual health. His wife and several sons and daughters survive him.

THOMAS C. FAULKNER, widely known among newspaper men in New York City and Philadelphia, died at his home, 255 Stockton Street, Brooklyn, on the 3d inst. He was born in New York. When he was twelve years old he was a newsboy, and from that time until his death was in the newspaper business as printer, proof-reader, editor, publisher, and advertising agent. He has been connected with the New York Courier and Enquirer, Major Noah's Morning Star, and the Commercial Advertiser, and was a partner in the Reflector, a journal devoted to amusements. He became connected with the Commercial Advertiser in 1850, and served it variously as compositor, proof-reader, reporter, book-keeper, and dramatic, real-estate and insurance editor. He left that paper to engage in the advertising business, and remained in it up to his last illness. In 1858 he published the Literary Mirror, in 1861 a "History of the Revolution in the Southern States," and in 1866 the Dramatic Mirror.

JOHN SHARP RIGG, a young Scotchman, who had been in the employ of the American Tract Society, died on March 21, in New York City, of pneumonia. He was a man of rare character who had rendered himself almost indispensable to his employers.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Mr. Thurlow Weed Barnes retired from the firm of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. on the 1st inst. L. H. Valentine, Oscar R. Houghton and Albert F. Houghton were admitted as partners to the firm on the same date.

CHICAGO, ILL.—It is feared that the death of Horace C. Donoghue, noted in the last issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, will seriously affect the financial standing of several publishing houses. He had been floating accommodation paper of half a dozen publishing concerns in Chicago, four of which may collapse—indeed that of H. J. Smith & Co. is already reported. Two of the concerns in question will very likely pay their creditors in full and resume business as soon as arrangements can be made with the banks holding their paper.

NEW YORK CITY.—William Evarts Benjamin will remove May 1 to No. 22 East 16th Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of Meyer & Co., 13 W. 24th Street, has been succeeded by Am-blard & Meyer Brothers. Mr. Louis Meyer, who like his brother Paul Meyer, the senior member of the new firm, has been associated for a number of years with the New York house of Brentano's, has been admitted into partnership. They will carry on a general book business, making a specialty of French books. They will act as American agents of Alphonse Lemerre, of Paris, and the sole representative of Alex. Casavin's works. Mr. Louis Meyer is at present in France making arrangements for new publications.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—After 27 years at No. 740 Sansom St., William J. Campbell has removed his old-book store to 1009 Walnut Street. Increasing business, especially in the miscellaneous book department, has necessitated his removal to new quarters. Founded by John Campbell (father of the present proprietor) in 1850, the business has been continuous for 43 years, commencing with a book-stand at 6th and Chestnut Streets, then a larger stand in the Old Custom-House Yard, then in the basement of the Philadelphia Bank, where John Campbell became one of the best-known old-book dealers in America. In 1871 his son became associated with him in the business, under the firm-name of John Campbell & Son, and upon his death in 1874 became the sole proprietor. For many years the law-book business (bookselling and publishing) has occupied Mr. Campbell's attention to a large extent, but in his new quarters he will also deal extensively in miscellaneous books, old, scarce, rare and valuable editions, best editions, Americana, portraits, prints, etc.

ROANOKE, VA.—Thompson & Co., booksellers, 30 Campbell Street, have been succeeded by Thompson & Meadows—the firm consisting of J. Payne Thompson and D. S. Meadows. There is no change of financial interests, but as Mr. Meadows is now actively connected with the business the change in the firm-name was decided upon.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JOHN KNOX MCAFEE, representing A. L. Burt, will leave for the far West on April 17.

EUGENE FIELD is said to be preparing a book about books, one intended for the lover of books.

NEIL J. FARREL will leave New York on the 17th inst. for the South to represent W. L. Allison.

THE first edition of "Al: a social vision," by Chas. Daniel, which has been favorably received, has been exhausted, and a second edition is called for and will be issued shortly. The trade is supplied by Baker & Taylor Co. and J. B. Lippincott Co.

E. B. GAY, of the Warren School, Charlestown, Mass., was arrested on the 4th inst., charged with stealing valuable books from Brentano's. He is also suspected of having stolen about $95 worth of books from Charles Scribner's Sons. He was held in $1000 bail for trial.

A BOOK-LOVERS' club, the Philobiblon, has been formed in Philadelphia in emulation of the Grolier of New York. The president is C. S. Bement, and the vice-president C. H. Clark, who are known for their libraries of Americana and extra-illustrated books. The curator is John Thomson, who has catalogued the Clark and Jay Gould libraries.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR CO. announce "The New Era," by Rev. Josiah Strong, author of "Our Country," now in its 155th thousand; "The Gospel of the Kingdom," by C. H. Spurgeon; "Greeley on Lincoln," edited by Joel Benton, with Mr. Greeley's letters to Charles A. Dana, and reminiscences of Horace Greeley; "Milk and Meat," twenty-four sermons, by Rev. A. C. Dixon; and "Amateur Photography," by W. I. Lincoln Adams.

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just ready Pt. I. of "The Profession of Bookselling," by A. Growoll, managing editor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. The volume has already received flattering notices from such high authorities as the London Publishers' Circular and the New York Nation. The work is intended as a manual for the young bookseller, though the older members may draw suggestion and inspiration from it as well.

J. H. MASON, senior member of the J. H. Mason Publishing Co., of St. Louis, met with a horrible death in the Commerce Building in Louisville, Ky., on the 1st inst. Attempting to get out of the elevator on the ninth floor, the car started upward and caught Mr. Mason, catching his head between the rim of the floor of the car and the top of the gate. Before the elevator could be stopped Mr. Mason's body, horribly mutilated, was dashed to the pavement in the basement ten stories below.

W. H. LOWDERMILK & Co., Washington, D. C., have just ready the third volume of the "Digest of Decisions of the Second Comptroller of the Treasury," compiled by J. Q. Kern. These are the decisions which control all the payments made by the Treasury in the matters which pass the second, third and fourth auditors, brought down to date in continuation of vol. 2, and covering ten years, 1884-1893. It also contains valuable tables relating to laws affecting sections of the Revised Statutes.

LAST week Mark Lewin and Max Windlin, of 345 W. 43d Street, New York, who keep a newsstand at the corner of 42d Street and 6th Avenue, were arrested by Anthony Comstock on the charge of having sold books of an improper character to boys. On March 29 Comstock went to the stand and asked for a certain book. He was taken into a basement near by, where the book was sold to him for $1. Comstock obtained a warrant for the men's arrest, and in the Yorkville Police Court the prisoners were held in $500 each for trial.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. announce the Yale Lectures, concerning the Law and Jurisprudence of England and America, by John F. Dillon, LL.D. These twelve lectures were given last year by Dr. Dillon at New Haven, and attracted great attention. His plan was to treat of our common law in its old home and in its new home, to illustrate and illumine all the great living questions, such as legal education, trial by jury, judicial tenure, the origin, development and character of the common-law written constitutions, legislations, case-law, and all this in a popular and not technical manner, giving especial prominence to the historical and literary accompaniments of the subject.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will issue on the 15th John T. Morse's volume on "Abraham Lincoln," to be added to the American Statesmen Series, a book that will be issued in two volumes, in plain cloth, in library style and in a large-paper edition; "The Divinity of Jesus Christ," by the editors of The Andover Review; "Dr. Latimer, a story of Casco Bay," by Clara Louise Burnham; "Horatian Echoes," by John O. Sargent, with a biographical sketch of Mr. Sargent and an introduction by Oliver Wendell Holmes; "Greek Poets in English Verse," by various translators, edited by W. H. Appleton; the third volume of "Poole's Index to Periodical Literature" (January, 1887-1892); "The Riverside Primer and Reader," with illustrations; and Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol," with biographical sketch and chronological table of Dickens' writings, which will be a volume in the Riverside Literature Series.

L. HYDEL, 212 E. 50th Street, New York, has just issued two publications of great practical value to obstetricians. "The Obstetric Examination" is a short guide for physicians, students of medicine and midwives, by Prof. E. Credé and Prof. G. Leopold, edited by J. Clifton Edgar, and elucidated by five cuts; and "Ostetrics, Part I., Labor," a volume in the Medical Pocket Atlases, is a collection of ninety-eight plates and explanations by O. Schaeffer, translated and published under the supervision of Dr. J. Clifton Edgar. Dr. Schaeffer is assistant at the Frauen Klinik in Munich, and Dr. Edgar is professor of obstetrics in the University of the City of New York. The publisher also announces a second volume to treat of pregnancy, and a third volume treating of gynecology. Subsequent issues will cover ophthalmology, bacteriology and infectious diseases, surgery, cutaneous and venereal diseases, diseases of the naso-pharynx, otology and pathological anatomy. Though issued at a price that brings these atlases within the reach of persons of the most limited means, they are prepared with the greatest care and are of comparatively great compass.

FOREIGN NOTES.

WITH a view to enjoying a holiday at the Chicago Fair, Octave Uzanne, editor of the monthly magazine L'Art et l'Idée, announces that he will suspend its publication for one year. Happy M. Uzanne!

FRASER RAE, an old friend of the late M. Taine, who first made his merits known to the English public by an article in the Westminster Review in 1861, is now engaged in preparing for publication a book on Taine's "Life and Works."

LADY BURTON has completed arrangements with Mr. Leonard Smithers (H. S. Nichols & Co., 174 Wardour Street, W. London), the result of which will be the issue by her of a complete and uniform edition of all Sir Richard Burton's works. The first of the series is to be a reissue of "The Pilgrimage to Mecca and Medinah," in two volumes, which will be ready in June.

THE proprietor of the famous London bookshop, "Hatchard's," notes a marked advance in bookishness among English women. Asked to what he attributes this, he answered that he thought it to some extent a result of the American woman in English society—the fair American leading her English sister. "I take it as generally accepted," he added, "that the average American woman of education is the more bookish—cares more for books as books—than the average educated English woman, although she does not, it may be, read more."

PICK-UPS.

"IT is true that the children of great men rarely amount to anything." "True; but just think of the clench they have writing articles for the syndicates as 'The Unknown Children of Great Men.'"—Puck.

IT is all well enough to talk about industry and effort; but that Shakespeare was greater than the average advertising poet is only because it was born in him.—Puck.

A LITERARY WANT.—Clerk (at the book-store): Here it is, Mr. Spotcash. Magazine for a busy man. "Review of Reviews." Mr. Spotcash (looking at it): Hum—too much of it for a busy man. Haven't you got a "Review of the Review of Reviews"?—Chicago Tribune.

THE CLIMAX AHEAD.—"I've written a novel for school-girls, and they'll never know the climax until they've read it through." "How have you arranged it?" "I've printed the conclusion in the first chapter."—Harper's Bazar.

NOT IN THE SAME SET.—The Parvenu: Are you fond of belles-lettres? The Chump: Belle Letters? Don't know. Never met her.—Chicago News Record.

AN ALL-KNOWING BOOK CLERK.—A few months ago, writes E. W. Bok, an elderly man of distinguished appearance walked into a Washington book-store and inquired of the lady clerk who advanced to wait upon him whether she had any copies of Marlon Crawford's latest book in stock.

"We have 'Don Orsino,'" said the clerk. "That is the latest book she has written."

"She?" repeated the buyer. "Then the author is a 'she'?"

"Oh, yes," said the girl glibly. "Marlon is a girl's name."

"Ah!" replied the man, as a quiet smile stole over his face. "What does the 'F.' stand for in the name?"

"Fannie," unhesitatingly answered the clerk.

"Well," said the gentleman, "suppose you send me six copies of 'Don Orsino.' Here is my name and address."

The buyer had scarcely left the store when the proprietor came up to his clerk and said:

"What did the general want, Jennie? Some of his son's books?"

"His son's books? Who is his son?" asked Jennie.

"Why, Marlon Crawford, you know. Crawford married his daughter. Let me see the card."

And the clerk, without a word, handed her employer the little pasteboard, upon which was inscribed:

GEN. BERDAN,
1015 Connecticut Avenue.

THE

Profession of Bookselling,

A HANDBOOK OF PRACTICAL HINTS FOR THE APPRENTICE AND BOOKSELLER.

By A. GROWOLL,

Managing Editor of "The Publishers' Weekly."

"The author has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. If, as Napoleon held, detail is all-important in matters of business, then this work must prove invaluable to the budding bookseller, for it treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world."—London Publishers' Circular.

"A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Continental literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of trade catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals and literary journals; and a broad reference library. . . . For its main purpose this is an excellent manual."—The Nation.

"We wish to give you our advance order for that most valuable series of articles—'The Profession of Bookselling'—and wish to thank you for publishing in book form one of the most useful tools the trade has had placed in its hands for a long time."—THE FIELD & GIBB BOOK AND STATIONERY Co., Lawrence, Kansas.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Wanderings by Southern Waters.

By EDWARD HARRISON BARKER, author of "Wayfaring in France." Illustrated. 8vo, cloth, $4.50.

"Emphatically the book of the romantic traveller. . . . Like a wise traveller, Mr. Barker went afoot, free to follow every movement suggested by his vagrant fancy. He is full of resources—history, romance, legends, archæology, manners and customs, he notes all, in the pleasantest fashion conceivable. He marks the changeable aspects of the heavens, and the flowers and trees about him, as only a lover of Nature may. . . . Altogether, Mr. Barker's journal of wanderings by French waters is a charming book."—London Saturday Review.

"The name of the book conveys no idea of the freshness, the originality and the romance of its pages. The region in which the author has lived, sharing the existence of the peasants, and tramping over its byways, is a district rarely traversed by English people even on the railway. Visitors to the Puy de Dôme stop short a hundred kilometres north of it. Travellers to eastern Spain by way of Toulouse cross the Dordogne at a most picturesque point but never alight there."—London Athenæum.

"None tell more pleasantly or more truthfully the story of their wanderings. It is long since we have read a book so thoroughly honest."—London Academy.

The Laws and Properties of Matter.

By R. T. GLAZEBROOK, F.R.S., Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. A new volume in the Modern Science Series, edited by Sir John Lubbock. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This book, while not pretending to be a complete treatise, aims at making clear to one who wishes to understand something of physics the meaning of the terms applied to matter, and the principal properties it possesses.

The Voice of a Flower.

By E. GERARD, joint author of "A Sensitive Plant." No. 116, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"'A Sensitive Plant' is one of the most interesting novels that have appeared for some time. . . . A charming story that at once wins the reader's attention."—Boston Traveller.

NOTES IN SEASON.

ROBERTS BROS. will have ready on April 20 the third and fourth volumes of the "Memoir and Letters of Charles Sumner," by Edward L. Pierce, covering the years from 1845 to 1874; the second part of Balzac's "Lost Illusions" under the separate title of "A Great Man of the Provinces in Paris"; "Destiny" in their uniform edition of Miss Ferrier's novels; and "Patriotism and Science," some studies in historic psychology, by William Morton Fullerton.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly "Joan of Arc," a new work by Lord Ronald Gower, a complete study of the life and character of the Maid of Orleans, which will be printed on Japanese paper and illustrated with seven etchings and three photo etchings, and of which there will also be a special edition on large paper with each etching proof before letter and each copy numbered; "Chamberlain's Handbook to Japan," specially prepared in Japan for the American market, which is said to be full, exact, up to date, and illustrated by fifteen maps; "Baedeker's Guide to the United States;" and "Social Strugglers," H. H. Boyesen's new work of fiction.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready the first volume of a new edition of "The Diary of Samuel Pepys." It contains numerous additions, and is issued also in a limited large-paper edition, sold only in sets. They have also ready "Survivals in Christianity," theological studies by the Rev. Charles James Wood; "The Skeptics of the Italian Renaissance," by John Owen; and "The Stickit Minister, and some common men," by S. R. Crickott. In their Dollar Novel Series they have just published "The Odd Women," a story by George Gissing, author of "Denzil Quarrier." The next issue in their new uniform edition of Crawford's novels will be "To Leeward." "The Heart of Midlothian" has just appeared in the Dryburgh Edition of the Waverley novels which they are now bringing out.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day the books announced in last issue. Two new volumes in the American Statesmen Series are devoted to Abraham Lincoln. They are written by John T. Morse, Jr., editor of the series, who naturally gives to the public career of Lincoln much more attention than mere biographical details. Yet there are sufficient of these to make the book very desirable merely as biography, while it is especially valuable as a view and survey of the very remarkable work which Lincoln did as statesman and president. The previous volumes of the American Statesmen Series have had no portraits. On account of the exceptional character of the "Lincoln" a portrait is given, also a map which aids the understanding of military movements which Mr. Morse reviews with great clearness and force. At the same time appears a little book on "The Divinity of Jesus Christ," by the editors of the Andover Review. It consists of seven papers, and on account of the subject and of the special interest attaching to the Andover professors, the book is likely to attract a wide reading. Mrs. Burnham issues "Dr. Latimer, a story of Casco Bay," which, being entertaining and fresh like all of Mrs. Burnham's stories, will be specially desirable for summer reading. The late John O. Sargent, who was an excellent scholar and translator, had before his death translated eighty-seven of the hundred Odes of Horace. These now appear in a volume entitled "Horatian Echoes," enriched with a sketch of Mr. Sargent and an introduction by Dr. Holmes. Prof. Appleton, of Swarthmore College, culls from the translations of Greek poems about 175 which he regards as the best specimens by the best translators, and these he includes in a volume entitled "Greek Poets in English Verse;" a Second Supplement, the third volume, of Poole's "Index to Periodical Literature," covers the five years from 1887 to 1892. For educational use Houghton, Mifflin & Co. publish the "Riverside Primer and Reader," which they regard as especially valuable, inasmuch as it contains good literature in itself, and is especially fitted to promote a taste for good literature. Dickens' "Christmas Carol" is added to the Riverside Literature Series.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Written in the same spirit and on the same plan as Mr. Chittenden's "Recollections of President Lincoln and his administration;" contains a large amount of Lincoln matter not embraced in the first work. The "study" which closes the book, and which fills seven chapters, is, as the author states, "an attempt to show what the qualities were which made Mr. Lincoln great—which as a political leader, an orator, a writer of English prose, a statesman, a military strategist, a friend and benefactor of humanity, so elevated and made him the foremost man of his time." Other chapters offer reminiscences of events in the late war and actors in them, and also go back to the author's youth, describing political and social phases of the time.

Crim, Matt. Elizabeth, Christian scientist. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. c. 5-350 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

In a beautiful rural district of Georgia, Elizabeth, the village school-teacher, had grown up surrounded by family love and imbued from earliest youth with a wholly spiritual view of life. Longing to benefit her fellow-men with the theories of Christian science received from a school-mate she leaves her home and becomes companion to a nervous hypochondriac. Afterwards she devotes herself to a lame boy in New York City. The strain of fashionable New York life upon her theories is great. Again at home she meets the deciding crisis of her life.

*De Vere, Aubrey. Poetical works. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 3 v., 12", cl., $5.

Diaz, Mrs. A. M. Only a flock of women. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1893. c. 4+224 p. D. cl., $1.

Forty-two brief papers on social and domestic matters. The titles of a few are: The home atmosphere; The reason why; Children's rights; Should women take part in school affairs?; Competition; The sweating system; Newspapers; The necessities of life, etc.

*Dickens, C. The letters of Charles Dickens; ed. by his sister-in-law and his eldest daughter, 1833 to 1870. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 763 p. 12", cl., $1.

Elson, L. C. The realm of music: a series of musical essays, chiefly historical and educational. Bost., The New England Conservatory of Music, 1892 [1893.] c. 5+814 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Essays gathered from different periodicals, to which they had been contributed by the writer during the past ten years. They are intended for the general public as well as the musical student, and relate to the rise of the sonata; The development of musical notation; Old English ballads; The legends of music; Wives of the great composers; Musical humbugs; The evolution of Verdi; The development of technique; Musical novels; The intellectuality of Wagner; Wagner and his enemies; Talent and genius, etc.

English catalogue of books for 1892: a list of books published in Great Britain and Ireland in 1892; with their sizes, prices and publishers' names; also of the principal books published in the United States in one alphabet; with an index to subjects; a continuation of the London and British catalogues. N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1893. 144 p. O. pap., $1.50.

Farjeon, B. L. The last tenant. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 5+849 p. D. cl., $1.

The hero and his wife have led a childless but happy existence for years when the wife grows restless and insists upon moving. On a house-hunting expedition they meet with a queer adventure at 79 Lamb's Terrace, London. They are told the house is haunted, but the husband insists upon getting at the mysteries although the idea of taking it is abandoned. The following-up of "the last tenant" is full of adventure and mystery and the end is unforeseen and artistically brought about.

Fitzroy, Isobel. Was he the other? Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. 3+183 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 144.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The unsophisticated daughter of a Devonshire clergyman on her way to London to be introduced to society by a match-making aunt is rudely insulted by a fellow-traveller in a second-class carriage of the train. In society she meets a rich, interesting man almost exactly like the boorish train companion. For many months the young débutante meets first one and then the other before the mystery is explained in a peculiar way. Told in the first person.

Flannery, Jerome, comp. The American cricket annual for 1893. 4th year. N. Y., Jerome Flannery, P. O. Box 1211, [1893.] 165 p. sq. S. pap., 50 c.

French, Alice, ["Octave Thanet," pseud.] Stories of a western town; il. by A. B. Frost. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 7+248 p. D. cl., $1.25.

These half dozen stories first appeared in Scribner's Magazine. Their names are: "The besetment of Kurt Lieders," "The face of failure," "Tommy and Thomas," "Mother Emeritus," "An assisted Providence," "Harry Losing."

Gissing, G. The odd women. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 4+446 p. D. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.

By "the odd women" the author means the half million excess of women over men in the British Isles unprovided with mates—hence forced to live single lives. The characters are four sisters; one is a teacher, two have been nursery governesses and companions, the fourth and youngest is a draper's assistant. The story opens in London in cheap lodgings, with two of the sisters out of employment; they are prematurely old, commonplace and hopeless, living sad, colorless lives and scarcely allowing themselves enough to eat; their hopes all centre in the youngest sister, who, they trust, will marry. The details of their various careers are sad and depressing, and related with a pitiless realism.

Gould, G. M., M.D. The meaning and the method of life: a search for religion in biology. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 8+297 p. O. cl., $1.75.

From the author's introduction we quote the following paragraph, which gives some insight into the motive of his work: "It is plain that a practically omnipresent, invisible, living, intelligent force is operating in and through every living thing. To identify matter and this living intelligence by any system of idealism, monism, pantheism, or materialism, is to do violence to logic and misread the facts. The dark riddle of life is to explain why life is thus incorporating itself in material forms, and why the peculiarities, course, accidents, length of progress and evils, of the process are as they are. This little book, I believe, gives the keynote and method of solution of the riddle."

Growoll, A. The profession of bookselling: a handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. Pt. 1. N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1893. c. 7+65 p. O. bds., net, $2.

The chapters included in this work treat the practical side of the subjects discussed, and are based upon the experience of men who are professors of many years' standing in "the profession of bookselling." They have for some time been a feature of the editorial pages of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. They are rich in information of a kind not easily otherwise obtained, which is simply presented and familiarly illustrated; the beginner cannot fail to derive help from the work, and the veteran, perhaps, suggestions. The chapter headings which we give plainly designate the subjects; the bibliographies of literature and of trade catalogues, etc., are careful and scholarly compilations, richly annotated, and invaluable for reference for others than booksellers. Contents: Preparatory training; Entering the profession; Bibliography of literature; Supplementary reading; In the store; Trade catalogues, papers, literary journals, etc., and their study; Arrangement and care of stock; Stock-books; Classification; Tables; Bulletin boards; Dusting; Window-dressing; Advertising; Learning stock; Buying stock; The order department; Delivery and shipping department. Index.

Hamlin, Sara A. Pictures from English literature. Bost., Educational Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 152 p. pors. D. cl., 60 c.

For supplementary reading in grammar schools and in the younger classes of high schools. Scenes taken from the English masterpieces, with an account of the story or poem from which taken.

Hawthorne, Julian. Six cent Sam's; il. by J. Henderson Garnsey. St. Paul, Minn., The Price-McGill Co., [1893.] c. 6-332 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The title "Six cent Sam's" stands for a secluded and mysterious New York eating-house, where the inner man may be satisfied for six cents; the proprietor is a mysterious person, who disguises his true name, and is said to be "a mixture of St. Paul and the devil." All classes meet at his restaurant—rich and poor, the ignorant and cultured. Among other queer rules of the place is the following: If one guest offers to treat another and the offer is accepted, the guest is bound to entertain his host with a true story of his adventures. Many of the series of stories are brought on in this way; others grow out of the narrative. "Sam" figures in most of them. Hypnotism, spiritualism and other "isms" play conspicuous parts.

Hector, Mrs. Annie F., ["Mrs. Alexander," pseud.] The snare of the fowler. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '92. 4+349 p.

D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 139.) pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., October 1, 1892, [1079]

Henty, G. A. In the days of the mutiny: a military novel. N. Y., J. A. Taylor & Co., [1893.] c. 2-397 p. D. (Broadway ser., no. 21.) pap., 50 c.

The events which led up to the Sepoy mutiny in India and the horrible and historical scenes of the massacre at Cawnpore and the siege of Lucknow are made the motive of an exciting story, in which English officers and their families figure along with the leading characters of the natives involved in the mutiny.

Hobbes, J. Oliver, [pseud. for Mrs. Craigie.] A study in temptations. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1893. c. 6+209 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 23.) cl., 50 c.

The author of "Some emotions and a moral" makes another study of married life, under unusual circumstances. Sophia Jenyns was born in the shadow of a double tragedy. Her mother died in giving birth to her, and her father ended his own life in despair. Sophia is brought up by her father's friend, Tom Wrath, a famous artist. She is impulsive and wayward, and becomes an actress. Tom loves her and makes her his wife; but the marriage is kept secret for two years, that her professional life may not suffer. Temptations beset both during this period, Sophia going to the very edge of the precipice.

Hofman, H. O. The metallurgy of lead and the desilverization of base bullion. N. Y., The Scientific Pub. Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 415 p. il. plans. O. cl., $6. (Corr. price.)

Dr. Percy's great work, "The metallurgy of lead, including desilverization and cupellation," was published in 1870 and has become a standard in several languages. During the past twenty years so much that is new has been introduced in American practice that a book embodying latest improvements is a necessity. The author, who is professor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, intends his book especially for Americans, and has discussed new European methods chiefly in connection with their applicability to this country. This book is intended for the student, the metallurgist and the investigator.

Leon, Néstor Ponce de, comp. The caravels of Columbus; comp. from original documents. N. Y., N. Ponce de Leon, 40 Broadway, [1893.] c. 4-82 p. il. obl. D. pap., 50 c.

After much research and a comparison of many authorities and old pictures, N. Ponce de Leon has succeeded in obtaining what may be considered a true description and drawing of the ships which composed the fleet of Columbus on his voyage of discovery. The author finds that they were larger and better built vessels than generally supposed, with decks and many conveniences and ample stores.

Leon, Néstor Ponce de. The Columbus gallery, the discoverer of the new world, as represented in portraits, monuments, statues, medals and paintings: historical description. N. Y., N. Ponce de Leon, 1893. c. 7+178 p. pors. il. O. cl., $3.

Embraces a complete Columbian iconography—that is, pictures of all the existing portraits, monuments, statues and paintings of the great discoverer, with full descriptions and histories. A valuable and interesting contribution to the subject.

Leon, Néstor Ponce de. Diccionario tecnológico, Inglés-Español y Español-Inglés: de los términos y frases usados en las ciencias aplicadas, artes, industriales, bellas artes, mecánica, maquinaria, minas, metalurgia, agricultura, comercio, navegación, manufacturas, arquitectura, ingeniería, civil y militar, marina, arte militar, ferro-carriles, telégrafos, etc. 2d ed. - In this series, designed primarily for supplementary reading in schools, the plan has been to prepare books which shall have all the charm and interest attaching to volumes of travels written by the travellers themselves. Statistical geography is not present obtrusively, and what is given is just what the traveller would naturally see were he to visit the lands described.
- St. Aubyn, Alan, (pseud.) The master of St. Benedict's. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1893. 4-349 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 177.) pap., 25 c.
- The scene is in Cambridge, at St. Benedict's. The heroine, Lucy Rae, the grandniece of the old master of that college, having an ambition to try for a Tripos, becomes a student of Newnham. A description of her life as a student and a strange and sensational episode which occurs in St. Benedict's make up the interests of a novel which illustrates the force of hereditary traits and taints.

- An account of a short journey from Egypt to India, thence to China and Japan. In India the traveller visits Cawnpore and Lucknow, and recalls the scenes of the mutiny.
- Slonkiewicz, H. Without dogma: a novel of modern Poland; from the Polish, by Iza Young. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1893. c. 12+423 p. D. cl., $1.50.
- In contrast to the author's former historical novels, "Fire and sword" and "The deluge," full of ac-
- tion, incidents and characters, the present work is almost wholly devoid of action and deals merely with half a dozen characters. It is a psychological study, in the form of autobiography, of a man born above all want, and suffering all through life from a melancholy disposition, lack of positive beliefs and what he terms improductivité slave, the characteristic of the Polish nature. It is a remarkable study of love in man and woman, with reflections on art, literature, life, faith, society, etc., in these last days of this analytical, questioning century.

- Short papers that were originally published in the journal called Liberty published by Mr. Tucker in Boston. "The volume opens with a paper on 'State socialism and anarchism,' which conveys in a summary way the scope of the work. Following is the main section, 'The individual, society and the state,' dealing with the fundamental principles of human association. In the third and fourth sections application of these principles is made to the two great economic factors, money and land. In these two sections, moreover, as well as in the fifth and sixth, the various authoritarian social solutions which go counter to these principles are dealt with—namely, greenbackism, the single tax, state socialism and so-called 'communitistic anarchism.' The seventh section treats of the methods by which these principles can be realized."—Preface. The elaborate index is the work of Francis D. Tandy and Henry Cohen.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 15, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

KEEPING UP STOCK.

AT this season of stock-taking and removal it seems pertinent to touch on the vexing question of keeping up stock. Green hands, and some well-seasoned ones too, for that matter, are inclined to too great liberality in their orders for new publications. While we do not for a moment deprecate the keeping of approved stock in as great variety as the extent of the local demand, character of customers and resources of the bookseller shall fairly justify, we would caution the dealer to remember that new books, like new men, have their reputation to make, and it does not pay to discount either very largely.

On the other hand, it is even more ruinous to let stock run down. Indeed, it is a matter of general complaint among publishers that it is hard to get booksellers to keep even a moiety of their best-selling books. They complain that it is useless to create a demand in any locality unless the bookseller there will keep their books. And this seems reasonable. In the main, the maxim, "If you haven't got the goods, you will not sell them," holds good in the book business as in every other. It is absolutely necessary to place literary wares directly before the public. No written or printed description or verbal recommendation is half so potent in influencing sales as the books themselves. Especially is this true of standard works, which the bookbuyer knows are always in the market, and hence ought always to be found in a well-appointed bookstore. It is rarely that a set of books like Dickens' works or Scott's works is sold except when brought to bear directly on the purchaser in all the beauty of fresh binding, paper, type, illustrations and general get-up. Fine sets of books arranged in cases in the book-store suggest a similar disposition in the home library. Books are costly, and must be exhibited that their value may be appreciated. Every student knows that so long as the book he has in mind is not procurable except by a direct order to his bookseller, he will consult his necessities very carefully before giving that order; but place the volume immediately within reach, and his desire for it is sufficient in most cases to overcome all prudential scruples.

There are thousands of volumes in the catalogues of our publishers which will certainly have a large sale during the remainder of this century, and the only risk involved in buying them in moderate quantity is in the fact that some of them may become shop-worn. To neglect them altogether on this presumption, and only to supply them in cases where they are ordered, is to neglect one of the greatest means of cultivating and extending the book business. The policy of keeping only sufficient stock to answer the purpose of a sign-board is not one which will make the bookstore either the useful or the attractive place which it should be in the community.

A NEW DIRECTORY OF GERMAN LIBRARIES.

THE "Adressbuch der Deutschen Bibliotheken" (Address-Book of German Libraries), edited by Dr. Paul Schwenke, librarian of the Royal University Library at Göttingen, is published by Otto Harrassowitz, of Leipzig, as the tenth supplement to the Centralblatt für Bibliothekswesen. The last edition of Petzholdt's "Adressbuch der Bibliotheken Deutschlands" appeared in 1875, and during the intervening years the extraordinary progress that has been made in the management and classification of libraries has long made the preparation of a new guide to the subject necessary. Petzholdt was confined to private information in the editing of his book, but the Prussian government has given its aid in the gathering of material for the present volume. The "Adressbuch" includes all collections of books intended specially for scientific study. Libraries of popular literature for educational, practical and technical uses are not included. The libraries are catalogued alphabetically by localities. Under each locality the separate libraries are grouped: (1) Public county libraries and libraries of reigning sovereigns, provincial, city and other independent libraries, including university libraries; (2) Libraries of institutions of higher education; (3) Libraries of other schools and of scientific institutions; (4) Libraries of the civil authorities; (5) Ecclesiastical libraries; (6) Military libraries; (7) Association libraries; (8) Private and family libraries. The information regarding each individual library gives the name and locality, chief subject, number, means of increase, librarian, number of employees, catalogues, history and literature. There is an appendix of statistical tables that classifies the libraries included in almost every variety of combination, and devotes special care to tracing the collections of books that during the lapse of years have been incorporated in different libraries. The work is, of course, a masterpiece of erudition and accuracy such as our German friends are helped to turn out by the great interest and capacity for hard work they meet with in all to whom they look for information and collaboration.

BOOKBINDING.

BOOKBINDING was the subject of a lecture recently delivered to the Booksellers' Union at Leipsic, by Dr. J. Springer, who holds a position in the Royal Collection of Engravings and Copper Plates at Berlin.

Dr. Springer began with a reference to the history of costumes, and thought the outside dress of a book should come within the limits of this subject. Just as costumes were characteristic signs of the manners and customs and the age in which they flourished, the art of the bookbinder has followed the ruling taste, the fashion and general tendency of its day. The manner of the preservation of books by the style of their bindings also conveyed much positive information. The lecturer first briefly mentioned the rolled manuscripts of antiquity; and traced the present form of books to the, so-called diptychs of the ancient Greeks and Romans, two-leaved tablets of wood, with waxed inner surfaces used for writing with the stylus, which were tied at the edges with ribbons. The growing luxuries of the ages replaced these wooden tablets with tablets of ivory and precious metals. The oldest bindings show the two ivory tablets richly carved, and also show centre-pieces of ivory, generally carved with a coat of arms, surrounded by beautiful woods, often ornamented with gold and silver. These rich bindings grew steadily more sumptuous still. The ancient volumes of Ritual, generally gifts from kings to monasteries and churches, show specially gorgeous bindings, real jewels being added to their characteristic and always symbolical and dignified ornamentation. Enamel and carved cameos were added to the tablets, and large stones, beautifully cut, served to keep the more dainty ornamentation from contact with rough surfaces. Later, when parchments came into use, clasps were introduced to confine this brittle and expansive material, and these again offered a field for artistic decoration. The decorating of the backs of books was not customary in those early days. Only the covers, edges and clasps were ornamented. This is explained by the manner then customary of preserving books. They lay flat upon altars, desks and tables, or were kept in deep drawers. Later, when the fashion of putting books upright into bookcases was introduced, they were set with their backs to the wall, so that the edges and clasps faced the reader.

As books became more numerous and began to be an article of furniture in the houses of well-to-do citizens, the bindings became more simple. But for many years strong wooden tablets formed the foundation of all bindings. Gradually the effort was made to produce lighter bindings. To strengthen the thinner material leather was used as a covering. At first it was not fastened at the opening edges, but hung over to preserve them from dust and disfigurement. These bindings often took the form of bags ending in metal hooks, by which the book could be fastened to the belt. As the sizes grew smaller this style of finish disappeared. Very soon the leather and parchment coverings began to be artistically worked. They were rolled, pressed and embossed with every variety of tools and instruments. The first ornamentation of leather in colors and gold was introduced in Venice. The Venetians took their patterns from the Orient, where beautiful carpet designs, lavishly colored and enriched with gold, had already been used in preparing a worthy covering for the Koran. It was in Venice also that the art of leather mosaic had its origin, and was executed by two methods. By the more durable one the upper leather was cut out and the apertures underlaid by colored strips; by the other the leather was simply painted in colored lacquer designs. Sumptuous samples of this kind of work were found in the library of the Hungarian king, Matthias Corvinus, who, in his perhaps mistaken zeal, had accumulated almost fifty thousand manuscript volumes. The celebrated Majoli and a great part of the Grollier bindings belong in this class of the bookbinder's art.

A special school of bookbinding existed in Saxony towards the end of the sixteenth century. It is said to have been traced to Lucas Cranach, and it shows some of the best work of the art. Little is known of the personalities of the artists who brought their art to such perfection. It is believed they wandered forth and brought their German art into good repute in foreign lands. New patterns of book decoration appeared in 1640. Delicate gilt-line ornamentation, which later was elaborated into involved lace patterns, is found in books of this time. The eighteenth century also favored the fine lace-work designs which were afterwards used as borders on finely colored, smoothly rolled morocco bindings. The rococo taste slightly affected bookbindings, but was soon found to be unavailable for volumes in general use.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A WARNING.

New York, April 6, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: It becomes necessary to warn the trade and others throughout the country against honoring the drafts of S. L. Sayles made upon us. Mr. Sayles is no longer connected with us, and if he endeavors to raise money by claiming to represent us, he is not to be trusted. He severed his immediate connection with us nearly a year ago, though he continued to handle our books in Chicago for some months thereafter, but since December, 1892, has had nothing whatever to do with our business.

By giving space to this notice you will be doing the trade and ourselves a favor.

A. S. BARNES & COMPANY, Incorporated.

IN RE THE UNITED STATES BOOK CO.

ST. PAUL, April 7, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

MY DEAR SIR: Noticing your article on the affairs of the United States Book Co., I am constrained, by my approval, to emphasize the closing paragraph of the article.

The legitimate book trade and legitimate publishers of books have little sympathy with the monopolistic system carried on by the company referred to. What little encouragement there has been in years past for booksellers to carry a stock of miscellaneous books has practically been ended by the spawning out of the quantity of stock and its accumulation in great department stores, which have no sympathy whatever with the reading public or with the endeavor to create a healthy literary taste.

The result of a successful effort to re-establish this concern cannot be considered to the interests of publishers, readers and distributors of standard and current literature.

Yours truly,

D. D. MERRILL.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE G. CLAPP.

GEORGE G. CLAPP, well known to collectors of rare books and prints, and especially to New York booksellers, died suddenly on the 1st inst. in a lodging-house at 85 Bowery, New York, where he had registered as J. Stephenson. No one claimed the body and it was sent to a medical school for dissection [in unconscious fulfillment of a wish expressed by him to the writer of this about six months ago that on his death he should like to make a present of his body to some medical society for scientific purposes] and afterward buried in Potter's Field. Mr. Clapp, though few who knew him in later years suspected it, was one of the gifted group that made Pfaff's restaurant, in a basement on Broadway, near Bleecker Street, a famous resort forty years ago. His brother, Henry Clapp, Jr., the "King of Bohemians," a title by no means easy to win or hold in such a brilliant company, was the editor of the Saturday Press, Vanity Fair and other equally bright though short-lived journals, and sat at the head of the table in the Pfaff Club with such men as George Arnold, William Winter, Artemus Ward, John Savage and Henry C. Watson as his associates. Mr. George G. Clapp was born in Nantucket, Mass., nearly seventy years ago, and spent his early life in Boston, serving his apprenticeship in a little book-store on Milk Street. He was a clerk in Allen & Ticknor's book-store ("The Old Corner Book-Store"), where he attracted the attention of such men as Emerson, Daniel Webster, William Lloyd Garrison, Rufus Choate, Edward Everett and Walt Whitman. Emerson took a special liking to him, and encouraged him to start in business for himself. Though well posted in books—indeed, as a man of fine literary taste and judgment in letters he had few equals—his leaning was towards prints, and so he established himself early in the fifties in a business similar in scope and importance to that of Knoedler and Schauss, in New York. He was reasonably successful; but when the panic of 1857 overtook the business world, after paying all his debts in full, he found himself without a penny. Though encouraged by the Goupills, Knoedler and other art-dealers to continue in business, he preferred to take his chances in New York. Here he was tolerably successful at first supplying collectors with rare books and prints. After his brother's death in 1873 he returned to Boston, and for a time exhibited Bierstadt's paintings in the Eastern States. In 1885 he returned to New York quite poor, but he knew all the buyers of rare books, and established a clientele among them, which he worked with varying success until last summer, when his health gave out. From that time on he was supported by remittances from Mr. Nathan Appleton, of Boston; J. H. Johnston, of Union Square, New York; a nephew in Michigan, and one or two others. Death overtook him suddenly, although he had been wasting for months. Mr. Appleton would have given the body burial had he known in time. Mr. Clapp was nearly seventy years old. He looked more than that age. It was his habit to wear his hair and beard long. His hair drooped over his shoulders until a few months ago, when it was cut, changing his appearance most strikingly. Mr. Clapp was wonderfully well informed as to the personnel of the book trade during nearly half a century, and his conversation, full of good sense and quiet humor, was always a pleasure. A. G.

DAMASE JOUAUST.

DAMASE JOUAUST, the noted printer, editor and publisher of Paris, died on March 26, aged fifty-eight. He was already suffering from the disease to which he succumbed on the occasion of the banquet given in his honor upon his retirement from business, just one year ago, by his literary and art colleagues and a group of celebrated bibliophiles. Jouaust was a personality. He was the son of a printer, graduated at the Lycée Bourbon and began practice as a lawyer. But he was above all a passionate lover of literature, and from his youth longed to possess the books he loved in suitable type, binding and illustration. With these educated tastes and technical knowledge Jouaust combined an inexhaustible capacity for work. He was a born publisher; it was for him a vocation, and he was never content with following popular taste, but always sought to instruct and lead it in what to him was the right path. And he has succeeded; for his collections are the delight of bibliographers, although, owing to his extreme conscientiousness and critical exactness, he never succeeded in making money from the works that will be an imperishable fame among connoisseurs in books. In private life Jouaust was dearly loved, and the attachment of his clerks and employees amounted to a religion. The last work of the Jouaust press was the "Romeo and Juliet" done for Duprat & Co., of New York City.

BISHOP KIP.

THE RT. REV. WILLIAM INGRAHAM KIP, Protestant Episcopal bishop of California, died in San Francisco, April 7, aged 82 years. The bishop was graduated from Yale College in 1831 and consecrated missionary bishop to California in Trinity Church, N. Y. City, in 1853. During his busy life Bishop Kip wrote: "Lenten Fast" (published in 1843); "The Double Witness of the Church," used as a textbook in some of the English colleges; "Christmas Holidays in Rome" (1845); "The Old Jesuit Missions in America" (1846); "The Early Conflicts of Christianity" (1851); "The Catacombs of Rome" (1854); "Church of the Apostles"; "Scenes in the Old Jesuit Missions"; and "The Early Days of My Episcopate," published last year.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

McClure's Magazine, the first number of which will appear about May 15, promises to be an interesting novelty in periodical literature. It will be published by S. S. McClure, of New York, manager of the best-known newspaper syndicate agency in America. In his new venture Mr. McClure will introduce more of the journalistic idea than has hitherto found place in the magazines; in his first number M. de Blowitz, Paris correspondent of the London Times, will give a comprehensive survey of the political situation in Europe. Two eminent men of letters, New Yorkers both, in the same number will revive an old and delightful form of composition in a spirit which re-creates it, and will give it permanence as a leading feature of the magazine's first year. Of course the magazine will be illustrated, and while a most brilliant corps of contributors has been engaged, the price of 15 cents a copy has been decided upon. In approaching the price of the great newspapers Mr. McClure intends to rival their circulation if he can.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. ARTHUR BRENTANO and family left for Paris on the Bretagne, April 8.

MR. R. R. BOWKER left for Europe by the Kaiser Wilhelm for a two-months' trip.

MR. ALFRED C. HAFELY, superintendent of the manufacturing department of Koch, Sons & Co., was married to Lena Bordlein on the morning of March 27, and in the afternoon the happy couple sailed for Bermuda on a three-weeks' wedding trip. The wedding was very quiet, only the members of the families and intimate friends being present.

ON May 5 Mr. W. F. P. Conner will have completed his twenty-fifth year in the book trade and in the service of the publishing house of John Wiley & Sons. He entered the employ of the firm, who were then at 535 Broadway, on May 5, 1868, when a boy of fifteen years. He still recalls with pleasure his duty as list-boy, tramping around with what in his day was known as "Tribner's list," a daily bulletin of rare books wanted, covering from six to eight pages of foolscap. When he started as a list-boy all the publishing houses and nearly all of the book-stores were located below Bond Street, then a fashionable neighborhood. Now business has crowded the aristocracy up-town, and the book trade, though at a respectful distance, is moving after it, and to-day the larger portion of the book trade is situated above Bond Street. In 1874 Mr. Conner was made entry clerk, and a year later was advanced to the book-keeper's desk. In 1883 he was made book-keeper and cashier, and holds that position at present. Mr. Conner has won the respect and friendship of his employers, associates and all who have had occasion to meet him during the performance of his duties. We offer our congratulations in advance, and trust that he may live to celebrate his golden jubilee and to see many years beyond.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. WILLIAM C. BAMBURGH, Plainfield, N. J., expects to be his own publisher for a volume, "The Echo and the Poet, and other poems," to appear about April 25 in a limited edition.

WILLIAM WATSON has returned from Switzerland, and has joined his mother at Southend. All his admirers will be glad to hear that Mr. Watson has completely recovered, and that so long as he keeps from overwork or undue excitement there is, we are assured, no danger of a return of his malady.

PROFESSOR GARNER, who went off to Africa to establish a sort of "college settlement" among the monkeys, has sent an enthusiastic letter to his brother, to which the Sydney Evening News has given publicity. If he does not yet feel competent to get out a grammar, still, he has two hundred words with which to start a dictionary, and it is unquestionably merely a matter of time, says the Boston Transcript, "when the more highly bred of the West African Simians will be reading Shakespeare, and their youngsters running off to sea or to hunt Indians from an overdose of yellow-covered trash." Mr. Garner feels that there are not over twenty words more in the language which he has not already registered.

OCTAVE UZANNE, the eminent French bibliophile, was present at the Grolier Club on the evening of April 12, on the occasion of Mr. Hildeburn's address on William Bradford, first printer of the Middle Colonies. Mr. Uzanne, who is not yet forty, will be among the most distinguished visitors to the Chicago fair. He is to note his American impressions under the heading of "Sensations d'Amérique" for the Paris Figaro. Mr. Uzanne has written and edited upwards of fifty volumes. He edited in 1876 to 1877 the "Conseiller du Bibliophile;" in 1878 to 1880, "Les Miscellanées Bibliographiques;" in 1880 to 1889, "Le Livre;" in 1890 and 1891, "Le Livre Moderne;" in 1892, "L'Art et L'Idée," and led in these successive periodicals a progressive constituency of ardent book-lovers. At the same time he produced works wherein subtle analysis, profound erudition and thoughtful fantasy were charmingly united: "Le Bric-à-Brac de l'Amour," in 1879; "Le Calendrier de Vénus," in 1880; "Les Surprises du Cœur," in 1882; "L'Eventail," in 1882; "L'Ombrelle, Le Gant, Le Manchon," in 1883; "Son Altesse la Femme," in 1885; "La Française du Siècle," in 1886; "Le Miroir du Monde," in 1888; "Le Paroissien du Célibataire," in 1890. Then he edited four volumes of "Les Poètes de Ruelles du XVIe Siècle," twelve volumes of "Les Petits Conteurs du XVIIIe Siècle," and four volumes of "Documents sur les Mœurs du XVIIIe Siècle." He assembled as co-laborers young etchers, lithographers, water-colorists and bookbinders who were unknown, and he made them famous. He is the chief of the younger school of book-lovers in the view of whom the formation of a library is not only the collection, by force of money, of valuable books, but a selection, an expression of individual taste, the end of which shall be a realization of the most elevated ideals in bookmaking.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

ULRICH HOEPLI, of Milan, Italy, has prepared a catalogue of his publications for the World's Columbian Exposition. Mr. Hoepli has only been in business from 1872 to 1892, and his catalogue is a monument of energy and enterprise. Hoepli's bookselling and publishing establishment is easily the first in Italy. He keeps in stock every known publication on arts and sciences and adds to them year by year by his own publications. Mr. Hoepli is a German-Swiss who went to Milan in 1871 with some capital, having travelled through the principal cities of Europe to find a suitable place to establish a publishing house that should in time rank among the very first. He concluded that Milan, a prosperous city, favored by its geographical position on the borders of Germany, Austria and France, must remain the commercial capital of Italy, and decided to settle in one of its principal thoroughfares. He bought the book-store which had come into the hands of Laenger, who had purchased it from Tendler & Schaefer, all Germans, situated on the great Cathedral Square, and has steadily enlarged its business to the present day. The plant had been chiefly devoted to German books, but the young Swiss at once used his capital to give his stock an international character, supplying every new work of any country and any class. In 1871 Hoepli began the publishing side of his enterprise with the issue of two books. His publications amounted to 18 in 1874, 37 in 1877, 41 in 1879, 75 in 1883, 100 in 1890 and 125 in 1892. Among these publications are works of great merit, as shown by a careful reading of his neat catalogue. Hoepli's technical publications and handbooks of all kinds are known throughout Italy. They are the work of the most eminent writers of Italy, and cover a vast array of subjects, literary, scientific, technical, artistic, linguistic, bibliographical, etc. Mr. Hoepli's list also includes many valuable works on architecture, sculpture, painting and fine-art works relating to many branches of industry; a complete collection of Greek and Latin classics; and a magnificent work on "Universal Literature." Mr. Hoepli has already obtained medals at various exhibitions. The catalogue is a narrow 12° and contains besides 128 pages of lists a description in Italian and English of Mr. Hoepli's business career.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Bowers & Loy, 111 Nassau St., N. Y., Miscellaneous. (No. 6, 1000 titles.)—S. B. Lyster, 79 Nassau St., N. Y., Choice, interesting and scarce books. (No. 189, 523 titles.)—Martinius Nijhoff, 18 Nobelstr., La Haye, Political economy. (No. 241, 468 titles.)—Henry Stevens & Son, 36 Great Russell St., London, Eng., Americana, some in rare bindings. (No. 35, 20 p. 12°.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Prof. C. F. Kimball has sold his interest in the firm of Sizer & Kimball, book-sellers.

CHICAGO, ILL.—J. B. Gribler has bought the book business of F. C. Miller, of 106 La Salle Street, where he will continue it with a greatly enlarged and improved stock under the title of "The Odd Volume."

CHICAGO, ILL.—E. A. Weeks & Company is the title of a new firm of publishers who have established themselves at 263 and 265 Wabash Avenue. Mr. Weeks will be remembered for his long connection with the firm of Donohue, Henneberry & Co.

ERIE, PA.—James H. Vancleve, late of the Waynesburg Republican, has opened a book and stationery store here.

HUGOTON, KAN.—E. Fisher has succeeded to the book and stationery business of Eastham & Crawford.

MEXICO, N. M.—Mrs. M. A. Barker has bought out the book-store of Captain Molther in this town.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. S. Barnes & Co. are removing to No. 22 East 16th Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Publishers' Printing Co. have removed to 132-36 West 14th Street.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—R. F. Stanton, book-seller and newsdealer, has taken Wm. F. Leonard into partnership, and the firm will hereafter be known as Stanton & Leonard.

TICONDEROGA, N. Y.—S. L. & W. F. Burleigh have opened a new book-store here.

TUNKHANNOCK, PA.—Mrs. W. G. Polen, book-seller, has sold out her business to A. B. Fargo.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, will issue at once Erckmann-Chatrian's "L'Histoire d'un Paysan," with notes.

FLEMING H. REVELL Co. have in preparation a revised edition of "Ten Years' Digging in Egypt," by W. M. Flinders Petrie.

THE CENTURY Co. have in preparation a collection of the writings of Abraham Lincoln, edited by Col. John Hay and Nicolay.

It seems that the English papers made a mistake in the title of Rudyard Kipling's forthcoming book, which should be "Many Inventions."

WILLIAM BEVERLEY HARRISON, owing to a fire in the building in which he is located at 59 Fifth Avenue, sustained a loss estimated at $500.

E. A. WEEKS & Co., Chicago, have just issued Marie Corelli's "Romance of Two Worlds" in their new series of fiction entitled The Marguerite Series.

THE publishers of Mr. W. W. Astor's Pall Mall Magazine will be Routledge & Sons, who are expected to supply the American market through their New York branch.

JOHN A. TAYLOR & Co. have ready a new novel by Mrs. Oliphant, entitled "The Sorceress," in their Broadway Series; and "Grave Lady Jane," by Florence Warden, in the Mayflower Series.

ELIZABETH PHELPS WARD's new book is to be called "Donald Marcy." It is partly a story of college life, illustrating, it is said, the aspirations and thoughtfulness of healthy youth as it matures to manhood.

CHARLES T. DILLINGHAM & Co. announce a new novel by Gorham Silva, entitled "A Heroic Sinner and the Pilgrim Spinster," which has received some very flattering advance notices. The book will be ready at once.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in preparation, under the title of "Wanderings by Southern Waters," a volume of piquant sketches of life in the valleys of the Dordogne, the Tarn and the Lot, in southern France, by Edward Harrison Barker, author of "Wayfaring in France."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have a novelty in calf covers for the protection of delicately bound or paper-covered books. They are made to fit 8vo and 16mo books, these being the sizes in which most of the books of this firm are issued. In finish of detail these bindings show the well-known taste of the publishers.

THE souvenir advertising book got up by the Commercial Travelers' Club is now ready. It contains a full history of the club and its officers, as well as an article on the last brotherhood dinner. It has 200 pages handsomely illustrated and bound, and can be had by applying to President Knott, care of the Commercial Travelers' Club, 15 West Thirty-first Street, New York City.

THE Paulist Fathers will at an early date open a publishing and bookselling establishment in New York under the name of "Catholic Book Exchange," where they will handle their own books chiefly. The following volumes are in preparation: a new series of "Five Minutes' Sermons," "Stories of Conversions" and a "Mass-

Book for Non-Catholics." A recent publication of theirs is a "Life of Father Hecker in pamphlet form.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have among their newest importations "The Unseen Foundations of Society," by the Duke of Argyll, an eloquent contribution to the literature of political economy; a new revised and enlarged edition of D'Anvers' "Elementary History of Art, Architecture, Sculpture and Painting;" a series of "Books About Books," by the most famous bibliophiles of England, and a complete set of "Baedeker's Guide-Books."

THE MAX WILLIAMS COMPANY, a corporation recently formed by Max Williams and J. H. Jordan for the purpose of dealing in fine old engravings, prints, etc., with headquarters at 306 Fifth Avenue, New York, has just issued a fine copy of the portrait of Lady Hamilton painted by Romney, engraved in pure mezzotint by S. Arlent Edwards, of New York. The plate is 6 x 7½ inches, without margins, and limited to 200 copies printed on rice paper, signed and colored by the artist.

PROF. HENRY DRUMMOND, of the University of Glasgow, widely known, we might say, all over the world by his works, "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," "The Greatest Thing in the World," "Programme of Christianity," etc., etc., has arrived in this country and begun his course of lectures in Boston on "The Evolution of Man," being the Lowell Lectures for 1893. These lectures are copyrighted, and will be brought out by his publishers in this country, James Pott & Co., No. 114 Fifth Avenue, when ready for publication.

JOHN WILSON & SON, of the University Press, Cambridge, will print a small volume entitled "First Editions of American Authors," giving dates and places of publication, the size and number of pages and publishers' names. In every case possible the proofs have been revised and corrected by the authors themselves. In the case of dead authors the lists have been verified, wherever possible, by reference to the original editions. Mr. Eugene Field has prepared the introduction. Charles Scribner's Sons are the New York agents for the book.

KNIGHT, LEONARD & Co., Chicago, announce for early publication "Napoleon, a Drama, Reading Edition, with Appendix," by Richmond Sheffield Dement. It opens with the convention, the night preceding the memorable thirteenth Vendémiaire, includes the greater scenes in the life of Napoleon and closes with his death at St. Helena. It groups the more important events and personages connected with Napoleon's career. It will be illustrated by ten full-page half-tone engravings, reproducing the masterpieces of the greatest European Napoleonic painters.

JOHN B. ALDEN, of late "Literary Revolution" fame, and now at 57 Rose Street, New York, is advertising some "pretty surprises"—Longfellow's "Evangeline," etc., in large type, heavy paper, illustrated, and bound in blue and white, silver and gold—which he is selling by the "100,000 copies," at "about the cost of manufacture." He will not, however, allow the trade to share in the glory of this missionary enterprise, and will supply only private buyers —by the hundred thousand, of course. And when one of these receives his book by mail, he will be surprised; whether pleasantly or otherwise depends upon his taste.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish at once "The Philosophy of Singing," by Mrs. Clara K. Rogers; "Personal Recollections of Nathaniel Hawthorne," by his friend of many years, the late Horatio Bridge, with portraits; "Slavery and the Slave Trade in Africa," by Henry M. Stanley, illustrated by Frederic Remington; "The Earl of Aberdeen," by his son, Sir Arthur Gordon (in The Queen's Prime Ministers Series); "The Dictator," a new novel by Justin McCarthy; and a new revised edition of William Black's "Shandon Bells." They have in preparation "Lowell's Letters," edited by Prof. Norton; and "Botany as a Recreation," by Caroline A. Credey.

THE entire Bible, translated by Rev. Hiram Bingham into the language of the Gilbert Islands in the Southern Pacific, was printed, April 10, at the Bible House in the presence of several friends of the indefatigable missionary to whom bound copies were presented as souvenirs later in the day. For thirty-four years Mr. Bingham has worked at this translation, and for the last ten months has devoted himself to reading the proofs of the Bible in a language which he has first reduced to writing, completing a vocabulary and constructing a grammar for his purpose. Another Bible is thus added to the list of the American Bible Society, which now sets the Scriptures in 242 languages.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish a new story by Miss S. B. Elliott, who made her reputation with "Jerry," a story of a Western mining town. The forthcoming book, to be entitled "John Paget," is of a different character from "Jerry," the scenes being laid in New York and Newport. A new uniform edition of Miss Elliott's "Felmeres" will appear at the same time. The same publishers will soon bring out Arthur Dexter's translation of Karpeles' "Heine," an autobiography compiled from the poet's writings, which is quite complete and satisfactory, and told, as no other is, with the poet's own unapproachable charm. They will also issue a new edition of Hillebrand's "German Thought."

N. PONCE DE LEON, 40 Broadway, New York, announces a second edition of his "Technological English-Spanish and Spanish-English Dictionary," in two volumes. The first volume, containing the English-Spanish division, has just been published. The work is comprehensive in its scope, covering all words and phrases used in or relating to applied science, the industrial arts, the fine arts, mechanics, mining, metallurgy, agriculture, commerce, navigation, architecture, manufactures, civil and military engineering, marine and military science, railway engineering, telegraphy, etc. He has also ready "The Columbus Gallery," a handsome quarto volume containing reproductions of all the numerous portraits, monuments, statues and paintings of Christopher Columbus, accompanied by full descriptive notes. N. Ponce de Leon in preparing this work has had the assistance of well-known antiquarians and collectors in America and Mexico, and has produced a volume which is an important addition to the mass of Columbian literature. He will probably embody in a future volume material relating to Columbus' birthplace, his early life and manhood, his relations with the brothers Pinzon; the facts relating to his voyage, discovery and administration of the lands discovered; and many other details of his life, death and character. N. Ponce de Leon has now in press for early publication an interesting account of "The Caravels of Columbus," which he has compiled from original documents. It is supplied with many plans, diagrams and excellent illustrations, and describes with minutest detail the construction, measurements, capacity, power and appearance of the vessels in which the famous voyage was made.

FOREIGN NOTES.

AN anti-Socialistic novel, entitled "And Bebel Spoke," has just been published in Leipzig, and has attracted wide attention throughout Germany from the boldness of its attack upon the Socialist party, whose leaders are introduced in the romance under their proper names. August Bebel is the Socialist leader against whom the book is particularly directed, and the author's object is to show what the world would come to if Bebel's "Woman," with its doctrines of free love and woman's rights, should be realized. The plot deals with a woman who, after hearing Bebel speak in public, carries out his theories to the destruction of her home and happiness. The author, who conceals his identity under the pseudonym E. Herrmann, has presented, in his description of a social democracy, an excellent summary of the doctrines and ideals of the best socialistic teachers of modern Europe. The author was inspired to write this work in view of the popularity of a previous anti-Socialistic hook by Eugen Richter, entitled "Pictures of the Socialistic Future."

T. FISHER UNWIN, of London, who is now on his way to this country, will publish several works of interest during the coming months. "The Autobiography of Theobald Wolfe Tone," edited by R. B. O'Brien, will have a preface by Prof. Bryce; "Lord Tennyson and His Friends" will be a series of twenty-five portraits, done in photogravure by Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, with an essay on the poet; "Greek Vase Paintings," by Miss Jane E. Harrison and D. S. MacColl, will be made very valuable by fifty full-page plates; and "Recollections of the Countess Thérèse of Brunswick" will be the history of Beethoven's "unsterbliche geliebte," by Marlam Tenger, translated by Mrs. Rollo Russell. Notable essays are announced under the titles "Old World Scotland," by I. F. Henderson; "The Labor Movement," by L. T. Hobhouse, with preface by Haldane; "The Irish Literary Society," a lecture by Stopford A. Brooke; and "Daily Readings from Great Minds," by M. B. Curry, dedicated to her father, John Bright. In poetry this house will have ready "The Break of Day, and other poems," by Rollo Russell, and "Reflections and Refractions," by C. Weekes. A long list of fiction is also in preparation, and special attention is called to a reissue of the Mermaid Series, formerly published by Vizetelly, beginning with "The Best Plays of Ben Jonson," edited by Dr. Brinsley Nicholson, and "The Best Plays of Christopher Marlowe," edited by Havelock Ellis. A New Irish Library and a New Reformer's Library will also be inaugurated.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusives of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

The World of the Unseen.

An Essay on the Relation of Higher Space and Things Eternal. By the Rev. A. WILLINK. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"We believe that no thoughtful or intelligent person who begins to read this little book will willingly lay it down unfinished. We think most persons who have read it once will read it several times. We venture to predict that the book will be as popular as 'The Unseen Universe' or 'Natural Law in the Spiritual World.' It seems to bring the unseen so near 'that the smallest movement in the Fourth Direction would immediately bring us into it.'"—Churchman.

Abraham Lincoln.

In the Series of American Statesmen. By JOHN T. MORSE, Jr., editor of the series, and author of the volumes on "John Adams," "John Quincy Adams," "Thomas Jefferson" and "Benjamin Franklin." With a portrait and map. 2 vols., 16mo, $2.50.

The Same. In Library style, bound in smooth red cloth, 2 vols., 16mo, $2.50.

Large-Paper Edition, limited to 250 copies. With two portraits of Lincoln and a colored map. Printed on hand-made paper, and resembling in general style the volumes of the Large-Paper Edition of Shelley's Works, lately issued. 2 vols., 8vo, boards, $6.00, net.

An excellent work devoted chiefly to the political portion of Lincoln's career, the various important questions that engaged his attention before and during the war; and illustrating his marvellous wisdom, good sense, sagacity, freedom from passion, comprehensive patriotism, all dominated by a lofty moral purpose.

Greek Poets in English Verse.

Edited by WM. H. APPLETON, Professor in Swarthmore College. 12mo, $1.50.

An admirable collection of the best Greek poems from Homer, Hesiod, Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Theocritus, Aristophanes, Anacreon, Sappho and others. These are presented in the best translations, and prefaced with an essay by the editor.

Horatian Echoes.

By JOHN O. SARGENT. With a biographical sketch of Mr. Sargent, and an introduction by Dr. HOLMES. 12mo, $1.50.

Excellent translations of eighty-seven of the Odes of Horace, preserving his shrewdness, culture, blitheness of spirit, and modernness, as well as the more distinctively poetical qualities of his genius.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

COMPLETION OF PIERCE'S LIFE OF SUMNER.

Memoir and Letters of Charles Sumner.

Volume III. (1845-1860) and IV. (1860-1874). By EDWARD L. PIERCE. 8vo, cloth. Uniform with Volumes I. and II. With two portraits, $6.00; half calf, $12.00.

Mr. Pierce, as is well known, was designated in Mr. Sumner's will as one of his literary executors, but he desired having Motley or Curtis or Dana prepare the biography. They turned the request, however, back to Mr. Pierce, and so in 1877 he began that work which he has now completed. As Mr. Pierce is an extremely conscientious writer and an ardent admirer of Mr.
Sumner, he spared no pains in preparing the book, and read nearly all the 40,000 letters which Mr.
Sumner left in his library—the sum total of nearly all that statesman's correspondence.

Complete sets of the MEMOIR AND LETTERS OF CHARLES SUMNER. 4 vols.,

A Debt of Honor.

By MABEL COLLINS, author of "The Confessions of a Woman," "Suggestion," "Morial the Mahatma," "The Prettiest Woman in Warsaw," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Metropolitan Series.

One of the most fascinating stories from the pen of Mabel Collins. It is the not uncommon story of sincere affection on the part of a man of noble birth and a woman of humble origin, between whom marriage is prevented by pride of family. The story is charmingly told, and while the conclusion is somewhat sad, it is wholly natural.

PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED:

Nora Creina.

By THE DUCHESS, author of "Phyllis," "Molly Bawn," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Metropolitan Series.

The Duchess' vivacious style and Irish humor lighten up "Nora Creina," and the same delightful characters that lightly flirted and smiled through "Phyllis" and "Molly Bawn" and a host of other Irish novels reappear here in a new and pleasing rôle.

The Countess Pharamond.

By RITA, author of "The Doctor's Secret," "The Vagabond Lover," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Metropolitan Series.

"A series of sketches from life that are replete with incidents and realistic at the same time. The closing chapters solve the mysterious problem of life in the happiest way for all concerned. The story is absorbing in its interest from the beginning to the final dénouement of the plot."—Boston Herald.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in press "A Friend of the Queen," by Paul Gault; and "True Riches," by François Coppée. ●

D. D. MERRILL Co. explain that "Out of the Sunset Sea," by Judge Albion W. Tourgee, announced for publication in May, will be delayed about a month. The cause is a fire which destroyed about thirty of the drawings Miss Aimee Tourgee is making for the illustrations of her father's book, which must all be drawn again.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. announce "Utterly Mistaken," a modern story by Annie Thomas; "Prince and Herman, Regent," by Jules Lemaitre, translated by Belle M. Sherman, a story written to prove that an absolute monarchy is not necessarily improved by becoming a republic.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have now ready the Phoenix Edition of E. P. Roe's "Barriers Burned Away," uniform in size and style with the popular editions of "Reveries of a Bachelor;" "Uncle Tom's Cabin," etc., one more purely American book with which to tempt foreign visitors, and in its neat shape sure of a place on a shelf of American favorites.

FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. have ready the sixth issue in John R. Musick's Columbian Historical Novels, entitled "A Century Too Soon," describing Bacon's Rebellion, and giving vivid pictures of the manners and customs one hundred years before the outbreak of the American Revolution. The book is fully illustrated, and has a well-made index.

MACMILLAN & Co. have in press the second series of "Shadows of the Stage," William Winter's readable papers on acting and playwrights. In this instalment he has written of the elder Booth, of Miss Rehan's acting of Rosalind and other parts; of Lawrence Barrett, Richard Mansfield, Sarah Bernhardt, Ristori, Modjeska and others. Paul Cushing's novel, entitled "The Great Chin Episode," is ready in Macmillan's Dollar Novels.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day Henry Finck's long-promised work on "Wagner and His Works," a full review of Wagner's life and a summary and critical analysis of the musical and poetic contents of his writings; "Art Out of Doors," hints on good taste in gardening, by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer; "Homes in City and Country," by Russell Sturgis and others, with one hundred illustrations; and a new story of Boyesen's, called "Social Strugglers," an account of a Western family transplanted to New York to attain social distinction.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 29th the "Life and Work of John Ruskin," by W. G. Collingwood, who was for many years Mr. Ruskin's secretary, and has had special facilities for making his work authentic and interesting. This will be issued in two forms, the ordinary library form containing some portraits and other illustrations, and the large-paper edition, which is limited to 250 copies, containing several additional papers and other illustrations. At the same time will appear a new story, chiefly of college life, entitled "Donald Marcy," by Elizaeth Stuart Phelps; and two stories by Mrs. Wiggins, "A Cathedral Courtship" and "Penelope's English Experiences," which have delighted a wide circle of readers in the Atlantic Monthly; several illustrations will accompany this little book. Bret Harte has collected another volume containing "Sally Dows," a Georgia story, and three other stories which relate to California life, all of which are told in Mr. Harte's characteristic style. Gen. William Farrar Smith, who served with great distinction during the early part of the war, but suffered from a cloud during the latter part, publishes a book which he entitles "From Chattanooga to Petersburg—a contribution to the history of the war and a personal vindication." This is likely to attract the attention of military men, whether or not they are interested in the particular questions in regard to which Gen. Smith vindicates himself.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed., translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (O. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (32mo: 15 cm.); TL. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Ps. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Adams, W. I. Lincoln. Amateur photography: a practical guide for the beginner. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., 1893. c. 3-90 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

By the editor of The Photographic Times. Contents: Apparatus; In the field; In the dark room; Printing and toning; Portraiture; Instantaneous photography; Flash-light photography; Orthochromatic or color-sensitive photography; Composite photography; The "fathers of photography;" Appendix.—Tables, formulae, etc.

Adeney, Walter F. Ezra, Nehemiah and Esther. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1893. 6+404 p. O. (Expositor's Bible, new [6th] ser.) cl., $1.50.

American state reports; cont the cases of general value and authority subsequent to those contained in the "Am. decisions" and the "Am. reports," decided in the courts of last resort of the several states; rel., rep. and annot. by A. C. Freeman. V. 29. San Francisco, Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1893. c. '93. 6-1023 p. O. shp., $4.

Appleton, Rob., (pseud.) Mr. Philip St. Clare: a novel of fashionable life. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893. c. 4-292 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The scene is Boston; Philip St. Clare, a representative man of his class, and an influential member of the Brahmin Clubs, marries Margaret Lawrence, a society girl, and is seemingly happy until a chance meeting and circumstances conspire to make him return to a questionable allegiance of his bachelor days. In a final episode of this matrimonial venture it is shown that the present conditions and conventionalities of society tend to make marriage in individual cases a failure. By the author of "Mrs. Harry St. John."

Appleton, W. Hyde, ed. Greek poets in English verse, by various translators; ed. with introd. and notes. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 46+360 p. D. cl., $1 50.

The editor has aimed to do for Greek poetry, through the medium of translations, what has been so often done for English poetry—that is, to give to the reader, within the compass of a single volume, some idea of its wealth, and at the same time to stimulate and guide him to further and more thorough reading. He has collected one hundred and seventy-five of the choicest specimens. These represent the Iliad and Odyssey, the Homeric hymns, Hesiod, Pindar, Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes, Theocritus, Moschus, Anacreon, Bion, Sappho and several others. They are from the best translators, including Chapman, Pope, Leigh Hunt, Cowper, Shelley, Mrs. Browning, Edwin Arnold, Symonds, Bulwer, Stedman and others. An excellent essay by Professor Appleton is prefaced to the attractive collection.

Atkinson, E. Treatise upon the science of nutrition. [New issue.] Bost., Damrell & Upham, 1893. c. '92. 179+6 p. sq. O. cl., 75 c.; leatherette, 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record" P. W., July 23, 1892, [1099.]

*Barker, E. Harrison. Wanderings by southern waters. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 8°, cl., $4.50.

Barrie, J. M. A Tillyloss scandal, [and other stories.] N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co.,

[1893.] 2-270 p. D. (Belmore ser., no. 17.) pap., 50 c.

Tillyloss was a part of Thrums. "Tammias Haggart," the hero of the first story, which gives name to the book, ran away from his wife in a fit of anger; a thief who robs him of his coat when he is sleeping is found dead with it on him, and buried as "Tammias Haggart." The amusing part is when the hero determines to come back to Tillyloss, and has to prove to his wife and friends that he is not a corpse. The other stories are "Life in a country manse," already published as "An auld licht manse," "How Gavin Birse put it to Max Lowrie," and about a dozen short sketches in the same vein.

Bibliotheca Americana, 1893: catalogue of a valuable collection of books and pamphlets relating to America; with a descriptive list of Robert Clarke & Co.'s historical publications. Cin., O., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1893. 4+72 p. O. cl., net, $1; pap., 50 c.

A priced catalogue, classified under subjects of books relating to America.

*Black, H. Campbell. A treatise on the law of tax titles; their creation, incidents, evidence and legal criteria. 2d ed., rev. and enl. St. Paul, Minn., West Pub. Co., 1893. c. 69+716 p. O. shp., $6.30.

Black, W. Shandon bells. New [uniform] rev. ed. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 5+428 p. D. cl., 80 c.

Bridge, Horatio. Personal recollections of Nathaniel Hawthorne. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 9+200 p. pors. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Chiefly based upon three papers originally written by the author for Harper's Magazine; some new material has been added (including several letters from Hawthorne and General Pierce) now first published. Commodore Bridge, who was a college classmate of Hawthorne, limits his narrative chiefly to matters connected with his college days, and to some incidents in his later career which, he thinks, have not yet been fully recounted by others.

*Brown, C. W. Examiner and review. Chic., A. Flanagan, 1893. c. '92. 383 p. 16°, cl., $1.

Brown, Horatio F. Venice: an historical sketch of the republic. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. 18+434 p. maps, plan, O. cl., $4.50.

"In this volume I proposed to write a biography of Venice, and if it had seemed advisable I should have prefixed that title to my book. Believing that a state is an organic whole, and that such an organism can be more easily studied in a city than in a territorial state, it appeared to me that the Venetian republic presented one of the most striking examples of the inception, birth, adolescence, decline and death of a community which history has to offer for our observation. With this conception in view I have attempted to note the generation and gestation of the race; to display the operation of extrinsic circumstances, such as geographical and natural position, in the formation of its character, to trace the procedure of these intrinsic qualities, such as commercial spirit, scepticism, seamanship, which led the nation to pursue its peculiar line of development. . . . Contains a list (13 p.) of books on the history of Venice.

*Brown, T. E. Old John, and other poems. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12+248 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

*Bulwer-Lytton, Sir E. G. E. L., [Lord Lytton.] Novels and romances. In 40 v. V. 12, Godolphin; v. 18 and 14, Paul Clifford; each with etched frontispiece by E. H. Garrett. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1898. 12+435; 14+810; 4-817 p. 12°, cl., per v., $1.50; large-pap. ed., 8°, cl., per v., $3.

*Cabrin, —. Rev. Saturday dedicated to Mary; from the Italian; with preface and introd. by Father Clarke. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12°, cl., net, $1.75.

*Caird, E. The social philosophy and religion of Comte. 2d ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 9+210 p. 12°, cl., $1.60.

Cauvain, H. A village priest; from the French, by Albert D. Vandam. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1893. 4+205 p. D. (Library of continental authors.) pap., 35 c.

A translation of the original French story on which H. Beerbohm Tree's play of the same name is founded. The vicar of Bonnières is an interesting figure in a social drama in which Count de Tremailien's honor is involved and Jean de Torquénis is the supposed criminal. When the story opens a lapse of twenty years has occurred and the son of a former actor in the dual crime is the means of revealing an intricate plot.

*Chancellor, Mary. Memory gems. Chic., A. Flanagan, 1893. c. '92. 48 p. 16°, pap., 12 c.

*Chaucer, Geoffrey. The house of fame; ed. by Rev. Walter Skeat. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 136 p. 12°, (Clarendon Press ser.) cl., $1.10.

Clark, G. H., D.D. Oliver Cromwell; with illustrations from old paintings and prints. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1893. c. 14+258+5 p. pors. D. cl., $1.25.

It is only recently—though Macaulay and Carlyle led the van—that historians have had the wisdom to tell the truth of this English hero. Dr. Clark's study, largely based on Carlyle's collection of Cromwell's letters and speeches, is a careful summary of the life and times of the Lord Protector; the book is not a eulogy, but a statement of fact, and aims to rescue from the false environment that prose and poetry have alike thrown about the great Protector, "the life-story of a hero, the character of a man."

*Clarke, H. Butler. Spanish literature: an elementary handbook; with indices, etc. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 10+288 p. 12°, cl., $1.60.

Clay, Mrs. J. M. Some little of the angel still left: a novel. Cin., O., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1893. c. 2-242 p. D. cl., $1.

Captain Neville while staying in Paris just before the Crimean War seldom betrayed that he had "some little of the angel still left." A beautiful widowed marquise became his good influence. Race-horses, racing, stables and training stables are described in minute detail. Scenes from the Battle of Balaklava are introduced.

*Colorado. Supreme ct. Reports at the Sept. term, 1891; Jan., Apr. and Sept. terms, 1892; T. M. Robinson, rep. V. 17. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1893. c. 35+659 p. O. shp., $5.

Cornwallis, Kinahan. The conquest of Mexico and Peru; prefaced by the "Discovery of the Pacific:" an historical poem. N. Y., Office of The Daily Investigator, 53 Broadway, 1893. c. 5+443+24 p. D. cl., $1.

"While each of the stories in verse of the discovery of the Pacific and the conquest of Mexico and Peru is separate, and complete in itself as far as it goes, it is really a continuation of the history of America during the period of discovery and exploration, from the time embraced in my previous poem—"The song of America and Columbus; or, the story of the new world"—to the discovery of the Mississippi, to say nothing of the bird's-eye view of the United States of America."—Author's Preface.

Crawford, F. Marion. To leeward. [New cheaper ed.] N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. c. '83-'92. 4+404 p. D. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., December 22, 1893, [622.]

*Crockett, S. R. The Stickit minister and some common men. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 283 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Dandridge, N. P., M.D. Hospitals, their work and their obligations: the valedictory address delivered at the commencement exercises of the Miami Medical College. Cincinnati, March 30, 1893. Cin., O., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1893. 3-23 p. O. pap., 25 c.

Devol, G. H. Forty years a gambler on the Mississippi. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893. c. '87. 2-800 p. por. D. pap., 50 c.

*Dickens, C. A Christmas carol; with a biographical sketch, a chronological table of Dickens' principal works; a brief statement of the purpose or aim of some of his novels, and a list of passages in his writings, especially adapted for reading aloud. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. 12°, (River-side lit. ser., no. 57.) pap., net, 15 c.

Divinity (The) of Jesus Christ: an exposition of the origin and reasonableness of the belief of the Christian church, by the authors of "Progressive orthodoxy." Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. 7+233 p. D. cl., $1.

The editors of the Andover Review were the authors of "Progressive orthodoxy." They now reprint some important papers on the divinity of Christ, which have appeared in their review. Following an introductory essay are articles on The primitive church. The self-consciousness of Jesus, Revelation and redemption, The divine-human personality. The early church and The satisfaction of humanity in Jesus Christ.

Douglas, Rev. G. W. Sermons preached in St. John's Church, Washington, D. C. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1893.] c. 7+294 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Twenty-one sermons preached chiefly on holy days of the Episcopal church; they have been gathered together in book form at the expressed wish of Dr. Douglas' parishioners.

Doyle, A. Conan. The firm of Girdlestone: a romance of the unromantic. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1893.] 354 p. D. (Belmore ser., no. 18.) pap., 50 c.

"The firm of Girdlestone" dealt in ivory, gums, ebony, gold-dust and other African products. Its two members, father and son, were cold-hearted, hard-headed scoundrels, who over-insured their ships and indulged in other fraudulent practices. The older Girdlestone becomes guardian of a young heiress whose money reverts to her guardian in case of her death. The plotting of father and son to obtain this fortune and save the firm from bankruptcy makes up the story, the scene of which is principally in England.

*Dumas, Alex. La dame de Monsoreau; with three portraits and six drawings by Eugène Courbon. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1893. 2 v., 15+329; 8+361 p. 8°, cl., net, $5. [Limited subscription edition.]

*Eminent persons: biographies reprinted from the [London] Times. V. 4, 1887-1890. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 6+6-324 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Fenn, G. Manville. Witness to the deed. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 5+898 p. D. cl., $1.

An old-fashioned story of love, crime, suspicion, detective-work, mystery and science that takes place in a London lodging-house. On the point of starting to be married the hero is attacked in his room. His bride awaits him in vain. His best man sticks to him through all the mystery that follows, but his true helper is the "witness to the deed."

*Gordon, Sir Arthur. The Earl of Aberdeen. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 330 p. 8°, (The queen's prime ministers ser.) cl., $1.

Greeley, Horace. Greeley on Lincoln; with Mr. Greeley's letters to Charles A. Dana and a lady friend; to which are added reminiscences of Horace Greeley; ed. by Joel Benton. N. Y., The Baker & Taylor Co., [1893.] c. 3-270 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The opening treatise, "An estimate of Abraham Lincoln," shows Mr. Greeley's mind in contact with the questions and the personality which, perhaps, were most prominent in the course of his own career, and to a certain extent epitomize it. The letters to Mr. Dana and the one to an intimate lady friend not only cover rare periods and incidents in Mr. Greeley's life, but they show the naive, unconscious motions of a mind never tempted to dissimulation, and (in the privacy for which they are intended) without motive to be other than sincere.

*Hammer, Rev. Bonaventura, comp. Manual of the Holy Family, with the rules and prayers of the Association of the Holy Family compiled from approved sources. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 525 p. 32°, cl., 60 c.

Hancock, Anson Uriel. Silhouettes from life; on the prairie, in the backwoods. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1893. c. 3-158 p. D. cl., $1.

Seven of the sketches delineate life in Elm Creek, a typical Nebraska village, where "Old Abraham Jackson" settled with his large family in pioneer days. The remaining "Silhouettes" are descriptive of life in a backwoods settlement of Michigan, each story being complete in itself yet connected with the others by a thread of incident running through them all.

*Harrison, F. Annals of an old manor-house, Sutton Place, Guildford. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 10+231 p. 8°, cl., $14.

Harrison, F. The choice of books. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., [1893.] 3+163 p. T. cl., 75 c.

This well-known essay of Mr. Harrison is both rich in practical suggestions and shrewd analytical criticism. It is divided under the following headings: "How to read," "Poets of the old world," "Poets of the modern world" and "The misuse of books."

*Haupt, Herman. Street-railway motors: with descriptions and co-t of plants and operation of the various systems in use or proposed for motor-power on street-railways. Phil., H. Carey Baird & Co., 1893. 218 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Horace, [Quintus Horatius Flaccus.] Horatian echoes: translations of the odes of Horace, by J. Osborne Sargent; with an introd. by Oliver Wendell Holmes. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 20+240 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Dr. Holmes' characteristic introduction bears testimony to Mr. Sargent's skill as a translator and to his culture and scholarship. He has made translations of eighty-seven of the odes of Horace, which are issued in a handsome volume in white and gold, the binding having been designed by Mrs. Whitman; valuable notes are added to the odes. A biographical sketch of Mr. Sargent prefixed to the odes gives the date of his death—Dec. 23, 1891. He was Dr. Holmes' life-long friend.

McCarthy, Justin. The Dictator: a novel of politics and society. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 4+862 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The ruler of a South American republic, temporarily deposed by an unlooked-for revolution, comes to London to recruit his fortunes, preparatory to returning to "Gloria," the country from which he has been exiled. The "Dictator" has a pleasing and romantic personality, which soon makes him the centre of attraction in London society. He is loved by an English girl of high rank, and is also the object of the assassin's knife. English politics and English fashionable life are ably described.

Marbot, Marcellin de (Baron.) Memoirs of Baron de Marbot, late lieutenant-general in the French army; from the French, by Arthur J. Butler. 4th ed., slightly abridged. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 5+696 p. por. D. cl., $2.50.

Ohnefalsch-Richter, Max. Kypros, the Bible and Homer: oriental civilization, art and religion in ancient times; elucidated by the author's own researches and excavations during twelve years' work in Cyprus. In 2 v. V. 1, Text; V. 2, Plates. N. Y., B. Westermann & Co., 1893. 6+531 p. 7+43 pl. map, il. F. bds., net, $60.

The first volume opens with a list and description (in great part based on the writer's own discoveries) of Cyprian sanctuaries and tombs, amply illustrated with maps, plans and restorations. Starting from the fact that the holy tree—e.g., the Biblical tree of life and tree of knowledge—holds a very important position in the worship of ancient Oriental people, the author has devoted a large part of the work to tree and grove worship in Cyprus, Mesopotamia, Egypt, Syria and Judea, adding thereto the worship of post and pillar—Ashera and Maseba—so well known from the Bible. This and the following section on "Worship of divinities and fabulous beings" are largely illustrated from antiquities, hitherto unpublished, and also by the volume of plates, descriptions and explanations of which are given. The subjects of the appendixes are: 1. A comparison of the festivals of Oriental vegetation—divinities with those of southern and northern Europe. 2. Gold objects found in Cyprus. Full indexes.

Oliphant, Mrs. Margaret O. W. The marriage of Elinor. N. Y. Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1893.] c. '91. 8-461 p. D. (Belmore ser., no. 15.) pap., 50 c.

In spite of the disapproval of friends and relatives Elinor Dennistoun marries the Honorable Philip Compton, a handsome, fascinating man, who even in his own "fast" set is called a "scamp." Before they are married Elinor saves him from the results of one of his crimes by a falsehood, of which at the time she does not realize the meaning. After the failure of their marriage, and they are separated, this falsehood again plays a part in the lives of both.

Reed, Eliz. A. Persian literature, ancient and modern. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1893. c. 15+419 p. 1 il. O. cl., $2.50.

Prepared at the same time with "Hindu literature" (published in 1890), by the same author. No labor was spared to attain accuracy of statement, and no difficulties ignored in the years of research devoted to the collecting and condensing of the historic facts pertaining to this subject and giving them to the public together with the finest thoughts to be found upon the pages of these early manuscripts. The work is divided into four chronological divisions; the epoch of Persian poetry being again divided into seven distinct periods.

Reichhard, Mrs. J. F. My official husband; or, the mystery of Hilliard Hall. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1893.] c. 2-208 p. D. (Sunny-side ser., no. 71.) pap., 25 c.

After a stormy interview in the library of Hilliard Hall, Ryle Hilliard's father forbids him to marry a girl apparently his social inferior. This is followed by a quarrel with Letton, the supposed father of the girl, and Ryle leaves for Mexico. At this stage the intervention of an adventuresome, whose motives are revenge, brings about complications in the lives of both father and son, which are explained in a romantic story.

- Within a few days before the termination of his last illness Mr. Spurgeon was busily occupied writing his commentary on Matthew's Gospel. A great part of his leisure time, during two previous winters in the south of France, had been devoted to this work. Throughout his long illness his enjoyable task had to be set aside, but as soon as he recovered sufficiently to journey to Mentone he returned to it. To all preachers, teachers and students this commentary will be invaluable; and as the last literary work of the lamented author, it will receive a special welcome.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CARLISLE, PA.—W. W. Fletcher has opened his new book-store here. It is located a few doors south of the public square, in a part of the town that was formerly without a book and stationery store.

CHICAGO, ILL.—As already noted the death of Horace O'Donoghue has involved a number of Chicago publishing houses in financial embarrassment. Among these are H. J. Smith & Co., subscription-book publishers, the Melbourne Publishing Co. and the Nile C. Smith Publishing Co. It is the intention of H. J. Smith to organize a new company, of which he will be manager, and in which, it is said, W. B. Conkey will figure. The plates of the Melbourne Publishing Co. have been bought by E. A. Weeks & Co., and the Nile C. Smith Publishing Co. will probably liquidate and go out of business. The firms of Charles H. Sergel & Co., F. J. Schulte & Co. and the Nile Publishing Company are also involved, but are making arrangements for financial assistance, which will enable them to continue. The relations of these firms to O'Donoghue are explained as follows: O'Donoghue printed and bound their books. He did first-class work, was a very amiable man to do business with, and when it came to settlements was found to be most accommodating. Cash was no object to him; his customers' notes were just as acceptable, and, in fact, just as useful, since the banks were willing to carry a large amount of paper with his indorsement. This fact was the cause of the complications, for a time came when O'Donoghue needed quite a sum of money, and how easy it was to ask these customers of his, whom he had repeatedly assisted, for "accommodation notes." He got them, as a matter of course, and in amounts twice and thrice the size of their indebtedness to him. The total amount of these accommodation notes is said to be from $75,000 to $100,000. But even with this heavy load upon him others in the same line of business say he could have pulled through, and might have done so, but for the worry incident to this large indebtedness secured on personal relationship and the temporary mental derangement caused thereby. These notes were coming due. He could not pay them. Neither could he face these friends of his and tell them of his failure. It is believed that O'Donoghue's estate will be found sufficient to take care of all the indebtedness in time. His printing and binding plant alone is said to be worth about $150,000.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The Antiquarian Book-Shop has removed from 207 to 127 Washington Ave., S. Mr. L. G. Delano, for some time a well-known policeman in this city, is in charge of the new location.

NEW YORK CITY.—E. W. Johnson, who is obliged to remove from his old stand on Broadway because the building must make way for some improvements, will make his headquarters after the 1st of May at 47 W. 28th Street, upstairs.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 22, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

EDITORS' COPIES TO BOOKSELLERS.

It is the custom of publishers to send to those booksellers who order a certain number of copies of their new publications extra copies for the local newspapers. On these copies notice is given that the books are obtainable of the bookseller through whom they are sent, and this notice is generally printed with the editorial notices. Experience would appear to suggest that with no more outlay the publisher might advertise to far more advantage by letting all the booksellers of the town reap the benefit of the editorial copies furnished by them to promote the sale of their new books in a special neighborhood. It is suggested that publishers either send the copies for the press direct with the printed or written notice, sold by all booksellers, or direct the bookseller to whom the copies are sent for delivery to use this form.

In many towns there may be two or three booksellers who sell as many of the books as those who get the advantage of copies for the press. These naturally feel aggrieved by what they consider favoritism on the part of the publishers, and we are satisfied that it is more to the advantage of publishers to have the good-will of all the booksellers in a town or city than the good-will of one and the indifference or hostility of four-fifths, which the present practice is calculated to incite. In many cases the booksellers who get the editors' copies are far behind their neighbors in enterprise and in the amount of their business, and often their only claim for the advantage is an old connection and custom.

Although the editors' copies are an inducement to give standing orders for new publications, the demand created by the publisher by a wise selection of local papers and a generous distribution of editorial copies would in the end be supplied by a higher general average of copies sold. In this case we should think it wiser to have the publisher deal directly with the editor.

If every bookseller in a town knew that every salable book would be brought to the notice of his townsmen he would soon desire to be supplied with such books ahead of his competitors, and an element of healthy rivalry would take the place of the jealousy and hard feeling which now lead many booksellers almost to neglect the books of certain publishers who have shown what they look upon as favoritism to their competitors.

It would be an easy matter to insist upon marked copies of the local papers reaching the publishers, and to make it a condition that books be reviewed within a certain time if the paper depends on free editorial copies.

A year's trial of this plan we feel confident would give the publisher a practical estimate of the help any special paper may become to him in any given locality where he knows there are energetic booksellers. Let the publishers treat all such alike by putting their books before the public, and leaving it to each individual merchant to put himself to the front by local advertising, promptness of meeting demand, and his individual standing and popularity. Do away with jealousy, start all on the same basis, and the most enterprising bookseller will in time send in the largest orders, while all concerned will work with better grace to better satisfaction.

THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA PROTECTED AGAINST UNAUTHORIZED REPRINTS.

On April 15 Judge William K. Townsend, in the United States Circuit Court, granted an injunction to A. & C. Black, the Edinburgh publishers of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," restraining the Henry G. Allen Company and the Funk & Wagnalls Company of New York from manufacturing or selling their reprint of the authorized American edition of the encyclopædia. The authorized edition, it is unnecessary to state, is published by Charles Scribner's Sons, and is known as the "Scribner edition." It contains various articles by Gen. Francis A. Walker and other American writers which were copyrighted in this country. The defendants denied the right of copyrighting single articles to protect an entire work from reprinting by unauthorized publishers; and on this ground the case has been in litigation for many years. The first judicial decision in the suit was pronounced in 1879 by Judge Butler, in the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, and was adverse to the Messrs. Black, the Judge holding that the copyrighting of a few American articles for the purpose of protecting the entire work was not a legitimate use of the copyright. The present action came before Judge Shipman in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York in 1890. The defendants interposed the demurrer that even if the copyright of the American articles was valid, the contention of the Blacks would prevent the reprint of a foreign work and deprive the American public of a common-law privilege. The demurrer was overruled by Judge Shipman, and the case came before Judge Townsend on its main issues, so that the present decision is more of a victory for the Scotch publishers than the one of 1890.

Judge Townsend's decision, on various points, is as follows:

"Defendant claims that the existence of a partnership is not established; that, as the partners re-ided and carried on their business in Scotland, and as it is proved that there was a written partnership agreement, this agreement, and the law of Scotland as to partnerships, should have been put in evidence by the complainant. It seems to me that the partnership has been sufficiently proved for the purpose of this case.

"Defendant also claims that the substance of the complaint is not proved; that the complaint alleges a specific agreement licensing the Blacks to use the copyrighted article made on or about April 1, 1888—that is, after the recording of the title of the article in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, and somewhere about the date of publication, and that there is no evidence of any such agreement.

"The agreement to write the articles may be fairly inferred to have been made with the understanding that the ownership, title and copyright should be as should be found to be most for the benefit of the Blacks. As the article was to be copyrighted, and as, for this purpose, it was necessary that the legal title should remain in Walker, or be assigned to the Scribners, and there is no proof of any such assignment to the Scribners, I regard it as an agreement that the title should remain in Walker, while the Blacks had the right to use the article in their encyclopedia. As to the date of April 1, 1888, there is no evidence of any specific agreement made on or about that date; but, as substantially such an agreement was in existence and in force at the time of publication and on April 1, I think the facts proved sufficiently support the allegation.

"Defendant claimed that several thousand copies of the encyclopedia containing the work in question were sold in Great Britain before March 27, 1888. An examination of the exhibits, however, shows that most of these were sent to the Scribners in preparation for publication in the United States on March 27. Or about March 12 two lots of the encyclopedia, in quires, were sent to two different publishers. The invoice which accompanied one of these lots was obtained and produced, and it contains a request that the books be not exposed for sale until bound copies should afterward be sent. Under the circumstances I think this request may properly be considered as a condition of the consignment or sale. There is no evidence that the request was not complied with. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it may fairly be inferred that a similar condition was annexed to the other consignment.

"The two copies of the separate work of Walker, deposited in the office of the Librarian of Congress to complete the copyright, were obtained by taking to pieces a bound volume of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica,' and taking the sheets which contained the articles, and depositing them in the Patent Office. Defendant claims that this is not a deposit of the best edition of the work, or of any edition at all. The facts are as claimed by defendant, but I think this is a sufficient compliance with the statute.

"Defendant further alleges that the Blacks had asked the price of '$9 per volume for said 'Encyclopædia Britannica,' which is exorbitant," but I find that said price is not exorbitant. Defendant alleges that other articles have been made and included in the same way in former volumes of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica,' and suits therefor have never been prosecuted to a final hearing, and that, by the failure of the complainants to press said suits to a final hearing, the defendant has been encouraged and led to make the reprint.

"I do not think that the failure to press former suits to a final hearing stops the complainants from prosecuting this one.

"Finally, defendant alleges that the profits of the defendant have been in nowise enhanced by including said work 'United States Part III.,' etc., in the copies made by them; that the said work 'United States Part III.,' etc., is in itself of no substantial value; that defendant has not offered it for sale in the United States except as a part of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica;' that the suit is not brought bona fide for the purpose of recovering profits which would have arisen from the sale of this work by itself or restraining any damage accruing from the sale of said work per se, but is brought to enable plaintiffs to represent that defendant sold a mutilated copy of said foreign work.

"The questions raised by these allegations are interesting and important, but I think they are fairly answered by the rulings of Judge Shipman in his opinion, with all of which rulings I fully concur, and which must govern in this case."

Judge Townsend concludes:

"Complainants' copyright is infringed, and an injunction will be granted upon final hearing, without reference to the question of substantial damage."

THE BRADFORD BI-CENTENNIAL.

THE New York Historical Society met on April 8 to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the appointment of William Bradford to be Public Printer of the Colony of New York. The meeting was held in the Cotton Exchange, and previous to the exercises a tablet was placed on the south side of the building, to mark the site where the first newspaper printed in New York was issued in 1725. The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix opened the exercises with a prayer, and Hon. John A. King, president of the society, introduced Charlton F. Lewis, who spoke at length on Bradford's career. The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Chambers, of the Collegiate Church. A commemorative tablet is to be later placed in Pearl Street, in the building on the site of Bradford's first printing office. On the evening of April 11 the Groller Club held a meeting in honor of Bradford's memory at their club-house in East Thirty-second Street. Chas. R. Hildeburn delivered an address on "William Bradford, the First Printer in the Middle Colonies," and there was an exhibition of books printed by Bradford and other printers of the Middle Colonies in ante-Revolutionary days. The final Bradford celebration took place on the evening of April 12, when the Typothetæ of New York gave a dinner at Delmonico's. David Williams presided. Brief addresses were delivered by John Bigelow, St. Clair McKelway, Henry Houghton, Gen. Horace Porter, Parke Godwin, Octave Uzanne of Paris, and Fisher Unwin of London. It was regretted that Mr. A. D. F. Randolph, who was to have spoken on "The Publishing Trade," was unable to be present.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

CHARLES W. GOULD, receiver for the United States Book Company, who at a special term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held March 30, was empowered by order of Judge A. R. Lawrence to "conduct and carry on all the business of the United States Book Company and its subsidiary companies," has just issued the following circular:

"As Receiver of the United States Book Company and its subsidiary companies, I have been ordered by the Supreme Court of the State of New York to continue the business of publishing and selling books. I shall have the assistance of John M. Forbes, Esq., Vice-President and General Manager of United States Book Company and of the managers of the different departments and the subsidiary companies.

"The stock on hand is ample; the lines are complete and will be kept so. Prices and discounts will remain as heretofore.

"The reports which have been spread abroad regarding the selling of large quantities of books at ruinous prices are erroneous. While quantities have been sold they have been in the nature of job lots only. New catalogues are in preparation and will shortly be sent to the trade. New books will be announced from time to time.

"Lovell, Coryell & Co. will have the line of gilt top presentation sets and various other new books. Hovendon Co. will have a number of popular sets and various new two-volume sets like those which proved so salable last year; also a new and very attractive line of gilt top 12mos. The grade of work will be sustained and improved throughout the lines.

"On May 1 the offices and salesrooms of all the subsidiary companies will be removed to Nos. 5 and 7 East 16th Street, the present office of the United States Book Company, where samples will be kept, while the stock of goods will be removed to Williamsburg, L. I., corner North 11th and Berry Streets. All shipping will be done from Williamsburg, and goods returned must be sent there, as also all packages for enclosure.

"On May 1 the retail, jobbing and publishing departments of the United States Book Company will be discontinued. Its publications will be issued in future by Lovell, Coryell & Co. and Hovendon Co., as shown in their respective catalogues. All orders for these books should be addressed to the company publishing them. The organization and business of the subsidiary companies will be preserved, and after May 1 all orders should be addressed to the individual companies at 5 and 7 East 16th Street.

"CHARLES W. GOULD."

PAYMENTS TO POPULAR NOVELISTS.

THE editor of a London literary journal has been reckoning the payments made to popular novelists for the serial use of their stories. Thirteen names are given in the following order: Mark Twain, Mrs. Hodgson Burnett, Rider Haggard, Mr. Blackmore, Mr. Black, Mr. Stevenson, Miss Braddon, Mr. Hall Caine, Mr. Walter Besant, Mr. Conan Doyle, Mr. F. Marion Crawford, Mr. Thomas Hardy, Mr. James Payn. It will be noted that two Americans head the list.

It is stated that for the serial rights of "Treasure Island" Mr. R. L. Stevenson received about £120. Ten times that amount would not purchase a tale of equal length from his pen to-day. For the serial rights of "She" H. Rider Haggard got £300, and a similar amount was paid to Hall Caine for "The Deemster." For short stories Rudyard Kipling is still first, though J. M. Barrie is running him close, and it is predicted will take the lead. Some people evidently prophesy what they don't know, in spite of the humorist's earnest admonition. Robert Buchanan and Mr. Jerome K. Jerome are also mentioned as receiving large sums for their work.

But the totals for both book and serial rights received by novelists to-day are far below the princely sums that were paid to Scott, George Elliot, Dickens, Thackeray, Reade and Wilkie Collins. For "Romola" George Eliot received £7000, and might have had £3000 more but for her conscientious regard for art. As there are many versions of that famous transaction, we may give the facts, as stated in the London Publishers' Circular: "The novelist agreed to write a story for the Cornhill, for which she was to be paid £10,000. It was, however, to run through sixteen numbers instead of the usual twelve. Of this arrangement she did not approve, and all the arguments of her friends could not overcome her objections. Finally she threw £3000 off the price to carry her point, a rare instance of self-sacrifice for the sake of art." Lord Beaconsfield, it should be mentioned, received princely terms for "Endymion." "He wanted money," writes Mr. Froude in his biography of Beaconsfield in the Queen's Prime Ministers Series, "and it brought him ten thousand pounds."

"THE REFORMED CHURCH" BUILDING.

WHAT the Methodist Book Concern of New York is to the Methodist Episcopal denomination it is intended that the Reformed Church Building, at No. 25 East Twenty-second Street, New York, which was opened with a reception on April 4, shall be to the Reformed Church of America. The building, which is 33 by 100 feet, was formerly the residence of Percy R. Pyne, and was purchased for about $70,000. The Board of Publication, which will have quarters in the building, will furnish books, periodicals, etc., to churches, Sunday-schools and individuals at reasonable rates, and the building will be the depository for all the Reformed Church publications issued by the United Societies of Christian Endeavor. The building is four stories high and contains ten rooms, which include the quarters of the Board of Foreign Missions, the Board of Direction, the Board of Education, the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions and the governing bodies of the church in America. There is also a large assembly-room, in which the exercises were held on Tuesday. Fully 1500 persons crowded into the building. They came from all over the country, and included many ministers well known in the church. The Rev. Dr. J. C. Elmendorf, of Harlem, presided. After a dedicatory prayer by the Rev. Dr. David Cole, of Yonkers, the Rev. Dr. A. G. Vermilyea made an eloquent address on the growth of the Reformed Church. A welcoming address was delivered by the Rev. Ferdinand S. Schenck, of Hudson, president of the General Synod. He was followed by the Rev. Paul D. Van Cleaf, who gave a historical sketch of the church building project.

NEW LIGHT ON 15TH CENTURY PRINTING.

IN the Bibliographie de la France of January 21, 1893, Miss M. Pellechet publishes an article entitled "Printing in Languedoc in the 15th Century," illustrated with many fac-similes, which has a special interest for those interested in the history of printing, as it gives much information, not heretofore known, upon the work of German master-printers in Provence during the period under discussion. By comparison of types that can be verified by the reader by means of accompanying fac-similes Miss Pellechet draws the conclusion that the first dated printing done in Toulouse was the work of Martin Huss, of Botwar, whose work has hitherto only been traced to his later establishment in Lyons. This work bears the date 1476, and is entitled "De fide instrumentorum," by Andreas Barbatia (a work missing in Hain's catalogue, but described by Brunet). This work is not signed, but is known to be the work of the same printer who signed the undated work "De modo ludi scacchorum," by Jacques de Cessoles, with the initials M. H. D. B. (Martin Huss, de Botwar), following the custom of his time in mentioning his place of origin, a little village beyond the Rhine. Following this clue, several hitherto unidentified incunabula may be traced to Martin Huss and also the final disposition of his type and printing material after his return to Lyons. His Toulouse type is traced to the possession of Johann Paix, a countryman of Huss, as early as 1479, who first used it in printing "De clericis concubinaris," a work also missing in Hain, which is signed and dated and helps to identify unsigned work of this master.

Miss Pellechet's careful work also throws new light upon the epoch-making book of Claudin relating to the travels of Johann Neumeister, a former associate of Gutenberg. To him she also traces several works, vouching for her theories by fac-similes. M. Spirgatis, criticising the work of Miss Pellechet in the Börsenblatt, dwells upon the great discoveries yet to be made in this field, until lately considered exhausted by Hain and Claudin. He thinks that literature as well as antiquarian catalogues still offer rich fields of study to those sifting them who come as well equipped to the work as the French writer under discussion.

OBITUARY.

THEODORE A. ANDREWS.

MR. THEODORE A. ANDREWS, of the former firm of Cobb, Andrews & Co., of Cleveland, O., died on the 18th inst., at his home, Rogers Park, near Chicago, Ill. Mr. Andrews was at the time of his death about 53 years old. He was born in Oberlin, and was graduated from the college in that city. After leaving college he went to Cleveland and entered the employ of J. B. Cobb & Co., who succeeded to the business established by M. C. Younglove in 1837. In 1860, when the firm which then had grown from a retail concern to one of the largest retail and wholesale houses in the West removed to the large store at 241 Superior Street, Mr. Andrews was admitted as a partner, and the firm became Cobb, Andrews & Co., the other members of the firm being J. B. Cobb and his two brothers, C. C. and B. J. The firm's operations grew steadily, and shortly after Mr. Andrews became a partner his cousin Mr. Daniel Pritchard, now with D. Appleton & Co., opened a branch house of the firm in Chicago, at 81 and 83 Lake Street, under the firm name of Cobb, Pritchard & Co. Late in the sixties when Mr. Pritchard withdrew from the firm Mr. Andrews removed to Chicago to take his place, and was in charge of the store at the time of the great fire. With characteristic promptness Mr. Andrews reconstructed the Chicago branch, having his headquarters in an old dwelling-house. A few years later it was considered advisable to concentrate their strength in the parent house, and so the Chicago branch was discontinued.

In the meantime the business of the house had grown to such proportions that a large and elegant block of buildings was erected on the south side of Euclid Avenue just east of the Park. At that time it is no exaggeration to say that taken altogether—in size, commodiousness, convenience and tastefulness of arrangement and facilities for doing a heavy business with comfort and despatch, the store of Cobb, Andrews & Co. ranked first among those of the West. But all this was accomplished chiefly at the expense of the health of the energetic and indefatigable junior member—Mr. Andrews. He was a man of large capacity for work and naturally attempted to do more than his strength would stand. In the eighties he broke down and travelled for some months to regain his health. After six months he returned to his desk apparently in good condition, but in a short time he again broke down. The doctors then advised a rest of several years. In view of this decision his associates, who had learned to rely upon Mr. Andrews for the conduct of the business and who had acquired a handsome competency, decided to retire, and accepted an offer from their competitors the Burrows Brothers Company, to whom they sold the business in May, 1888. In 1890 Mr. Andrews who had then quite recovered his health took charge of the Chicago subscription department of D. Appleton & Co.'s art-works, and in six months achieved an almost phenomenal success. But he found that he could not stand a sustained strain upon his energies, and so reluctantly severed his connection with the book trade for good. Since that time he has been engaged in agency work in Chicago. He leaves a wife and six children, the oldest of whom, his son George, is connected with the National Library Association of Chicago. His father is also still living in Oberlin.

OBITUARY NOTES.

LUCY LARCOM, the poet, died in Boston on the 17th inst., after an illness of many weeks. Miss Larcom was born in Beverly, Mass., in 1826. In 1836, after the death of her father, a retired ship captain, she moved to Lowell, and after two or three years' schooling went to work in a cotton-mill. She taught school in after years in Illinois and Massachusetts. She wrote many patriotic verses during the civil war, and when Our Young Folks magazine was established in 1865 she became its assistant editor, and the next year its chief editor. She retained this place until 1874. In 1859 she had published "Ships in the Mist, and other stories," and in 1868 "Poems." "An Idyll of Work," published after her retirement from Our Young Folks, dealt largely with the life she had known in the cotton-mills. "Childhood Songs" and "Wild Roses of Cape Ann" were among her other works. Within the last two years "An Unseen Friend." "As It Is in Heaven" and "At the Beautiful Gate," published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., have met with much recognition from very exacting critics. She was a frequent contributor to the Lowell Offering and Operative's Magazine.

JOHN ADDINGTON SYMONDS died in Rome on the 19th inst., aged 53 years. He was the author of an extensive work on "Renaissance in Italy," "Introduction to the Study of Dante," "Studies of the Greek Poets," "Italian Byways," and contributions to the English Men of Letters Series on Shelley and Sir Philip Sidney. He also wrote an article on "Italian History" for the "Encyclopædia Britannica."

D. S. COLESWORTHY.

WE are enabled through the courtesy of a friend to print the above portrait of D. S. Colesworthy, Boston's oldest bookseller, a sketch of whose career was given in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, April 8.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Steam and Sail is the title of a new weekly marine publication the first issue of which has just made its appearance in New York City.

WITH the May number The Century is to have a new cover, designed by Mr. Stanford White, who was the designer of the cover which replaced the old purple cover of Scribner's Monthly in 1880.

A MONTHLY magazine of new and original short tales is to appear under the name of Stori-ettes, and arrangements have been made with the most popular English and American writers for material for its columns. Stori-ettes will also give space occasionally to humorous sketches, poems and drawings, for which prizes will be offered. The first number will contain fifteen tales written by Julian Hawthorne, John Habberton, William Perry Brown, S. Baring-Gould, W. E. Norris, "The Duchess," etc.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

EDWARD EGGLESTON has gone West and, with his wife, will live at Madison, Ind. Dr. Eggleston goes there for the purpose of rewriting "The Hoosier School-Master," and will remain near the scene until the work is in satisfactory shape.

MISS YONGE, most indefatigable of novelists, has begun to write in collaboration with others. Her forthcoming book, "Strolling Players," has on its title-page not only her name but also that of Christabel Coleridge.

PERSONAL NOTES.

JAMES S. MARTIN, for years connected with the Chicago branch of the Methodist Book Concern, has severed his connection with the concern and has entered into partnership with his brother-in-law as a member in an architectural firm.

EMILE TERQUEM, delegate of the Cercle de la Librairie de Paris and representative of the French book trade at the Chicago Exposition, reached this country last week. After a brief stay in New York he proceeded to Chicago, where he may be addressed in care of Charles Macdonald & Co., 55 Washington Street.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

U. HOEPLI, Milan, has in press "Bibliografia Etioptica" (Ethiopian bibliography), a descriptive catalogue of the writings relating to Ethiopia from the invention of printing to the end of 1891, edited by Giuseppe Fumagelli, librarian of the National Library at Milan, who has compiled his work under the auspices of the Italian Geographical Society and the Society of Exploration for Commercial Africa. (8°, x-290 pp. 3428 titles.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO., 104 Fourth Ave., New York, has just ready a "Portrait Catalogue" of their publications which has been in course of preparation for the past six months. Besides containing a selected list of the Cassell Publishing Company's most important publications it contains over forty full-page portraits of the firm's authors made expressly for this purpose. Among these portraits are to be found President Grover Cleveland, Dr. Edward Everett Hale, A. T. Quiller-Couch ("Q"), Pierre Loti, W. H. Mallock, Barry Pain, Jerome K. Jerome, Chauncey M. Depew, Camille Flammarion, Alphonse Daudet, Maurus Jokai, Georges Ohnet, Dofia Pardo Bazán, P. A. de Alarcon, Eli Perkins, Thomas Stevens, Mémie Muriel Norman (the "Girl in the Karpathians"), Paul Bloet (Max O'Rell), Ward McAllister, Thomas W. Knox and Marie Bashkirtseff. Collectors will find these portraits admirably adapted for "extra illustrating" books. The catalogue will be sent, postpaid, to any address on receipt of two 2 cent stamps.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE price of "The Diary of Samuel Pepys" was given wrongly in the advertisement of Macmillan & Co. in our last week's issue. It should have been $1.50, not $1.

WE are pleased to learn that the friends of the late George E. Clapp have taken measures to recover his remains from Potter's Field and to bury them by the side of his brother's body in Nantucket, Mass.

THE EXCELSIOR PUB. HOUSE, N. Y. City, have in press "The Tuxedo Reciter," a repository of original and selected recitations and readings, contemporaneous and otherwise, compiled and arranged by Frank McHale.

WILLIAM BEVERLEY HARISON will publish at once in the Pocket Pedagogical Library "Education in Its Physical Relations," by Wm. Jolly. He also calls the attention of the trade to the fact that he is agent for the Chandler Adjustable School Furniture, also for Bangs' "Meridian Pattern," an ingenious device for use in map-drawing.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish May 15 a book entitled "Looking Within; the Misleading Tendencies of 'Looking Backward' Made Manifest." As its title suggests, it is a reply to the suggestive plans in "Looking Backward" for a revolution in present social and governmental methods and ideas. The book is written in the form of a novel.

THE LAW REPORTER CO., Washington, D. C. have ready for delivery "The Founding of Washington City," a history of the original acquirement of the site of the capital, the division of squares and the original distribution of lots from 1793-1798. The work has been compiled from the city archives by Erastus Thatcher, who has produced a most valuable aid for lawyers engaged in looking up titles and making transfers.

W. H. LOWDERMILK & Co., Washington, D. C., have just ready a new book entitled a "Historical Register of Officers of the Continental Army During the War of the Revolution," by F. B. Heltman. The author has spent a good many years of his life in the War Department, and is so thoroughly familiar with the records that he has been peculiarly fitted for the important work he has done. His work does not contain the name of every officer, but it does contain all that could be found on the rolls on file and in possession of the Government. Persons who are interested in the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution will be glad to have the work.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will issue at once the following volumes of sermons: "Princeton Sermons," by Pres. Patton, the late Prof. Hodge, and Professors Green, Warfield and others of the Princeton Theological Seminary; "New Concepts of Old Dogmas," by Rev. J. E. Odlin; "The Ivory Palaces of the King," by Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, who has lately achieved much prominence; and "The Call of the Cross," by Rev. Geo. D. Herron. The new books for young men are: "Men and Morals," a collection of addresses to students at Yale University and elsewhere, by Rev. James Stalker; "Confidential Talks to Young Men," by L. B. Sperry, M.D.; "Thoroughness," by Rev. Thain Davidson; and "Making a Beginning," by William J. Lacey, the popular English novelist.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish at an early date new Salem Editions of "Twice-Told Tales;" and "Mosses from an Old Manse," uniform with "The Scarlet Letter" and "The House of the Seven Gables," already issued; and Portland Editions of Longfellow's "Hyperion" and "Outre-Mer." These editions give a vignette of the birthplace of the authors on their title-pages. They announce "Utterly Mistaken," a modern story by Annie Thomas; "Witness the Deed," by George Manville Fenn; and "Prince Herman, Regent," by Jules Lemaitre, translated by Belle M. Sherman, story written to prove that an absolute monarchy is not necessarily improved by becoming a republic. They announce the publication of a "Latin Lessons," designed to prepare for the intelligent reading of classic Latin, by Henry Preble, formerly assistant professor of Latin and Greek at Harvard University, and L. C. Hull, master in the Lawrenceville School, Lawrenceville, N. J.

PICK-UPS.

AT THE BOOK-STORE.—Customer: But this book bears a date prior to the invention of printing. Dealer in Rare Volumes: So much the more valuable, sir; so much the more valuable. It is proof of its antiquity. It was only after the invention of printing, you know, that the counterfeiting of old volumes was possible.—Boston Transcript.

THE LITERARY BICYCLIST.

I'm a literary bicyclist—I skim the primrose path
Of dalliance with the muse of learned ease;
I scribble in the magazines, and take a daily bath
In the deep Pierian spring of journealese.

I thread poetic byways, and I scamper on the grass,
I rattle down the philosophic hill;
I glance at art and science o'er the hedgerows as I pass,
And I get a glimpse of Buckle, Spencer, Mill.

I've read a little Hegel, and of Kant a goodly slice,
With a very clever summary of Comte;
And I look to education to eradicate each vice
That humanity regards with mauvaise honte.

As for Plato, Aristotle, and the rest of classic name,
I've read them all, of course, in Bohn's translation;
I cannot say I like them, though one cannot flout their fame,
If one aims at being a man of education.

I'm the strenuous admirer of the novel-writer's art,
And I take the greatest interest in his ways;
I read him in three volumes, or the scrappy monthly part,
And I chuckle o'er the critics that he slays.

I'm very fond of interviews; a chance I never miss
Of gloating o'er the furniture and delf
Of some popular romancer, and my fondest hope is this:
To be "illustrated interviewed" myself!

—St. James's Gazette.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

The Life and Work of John Ruskin.

By W. G. COLLINGWOOD, M.A. With portraits and other illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo, $5.00.

Those who in any adequate degree appreciate Mr. Ruskin will heartily welcome the two volumes in which Mr. Collingwood, for many years his secretary, describes his life and work. The four books into which the volumes are divided relate to (1) The Boy Poet [1814-1842]; (2) The Art Critic [1842-1860]; (3) Hermit and Heretic [1860-1870]; (4) Professor and Prophet [1870-1892]. Mr. Collingwood has had access to much important material, but has not included a large number of Mr. Ruskin's letters; to these he has added letters of biographical interest by Carlyle and Browning. The great interest of Mr. Collingwood's work is supplemented by several portraits of Mr. Ruskin and some other illustrations.

Large-paper edition. Limited to 250 copies. Printed on handmade paper, with many portraits and other illustrations. In two volumes, octavo, $15.00, net.

Donald Marcy.

By ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS. 16mo, $1.25.

This is partly a college story, full of life, energy, entertainment and other wholesome and engaging qualities. It illustrates the aspirations and thoughtfulness of healthy youth as it matures to manhood, and it need not be added that it is written with power, with humor, and with a nobility of aim which lends to it an unusual interest.

A Cathedral Courtship, and Penelope's English Experiences.

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN, author of "The Birds' Christmas Carol," "The Story of Patsy," "Timothy's Quest," etc. With illustrations. 16mo, $1.25.

These two bright stories are full of brilliant conversations, humorous incidents and entertaining reflections; and with the pictures which illustrate some of the more noteworthy situations, the stories make a book which can hardly fail to charm a host of readers.

Sally Dows, and Other Stories.

By BRET HARTE. 16mo, $1.25.

This book contains, besides the title story, "The Conspiracy of Mrs. Bun'ker," "The Transformation of Buckeye Camp" and "Their Uncle from California." The first story is of Georgia, in the period following the war; the others relate to California, and are in the style in which Mr. Harte is unrivalled, both in the stories themselves and in the art with which they are told.

From Chattanooga to Petersburg, under Generals Grant and Butler.

A Contribution to the History of the War, and a Personal Vindication. By WILLIAM FARRAR SMITH, Brevet Major-General, U. S. A., and late Major-General of Volunteers. With four maps and plans. 1 vol., crown 8vo, $1.25.

Wagner and His Works.

The Story of His Life, with Critical Comments. By HENRY T. FINCK. With portraits. 2 vols., crown 8vo, $4.00.

Mr. Finck's familiarity with the vast volume of Wagner literature, his ardent and uncompromising admiration for Wagner's genius, and his aggressive, racy style, give to his book both a lasting value and a piquant flavor which every music-lover will appreciate. The book is both a full review of Wagner's life and a summary and critical analysis of the musical and poetic contents of his writings, rich in anecdote and apposite quotation.

Art Out of Doors.

Hints on Good Taste in Gardening. By Mrs. SCHUYLER VAN RENSSELAER. 12mo, $1.50.

Landscape gardening as an art, in its practical application to the beautifying of country places, is the subject of this book. Mrs. Van Rensselaer discusses the treatment of the grounds, roads and paths, piazzas, pattern beds, trees and shrubs, etc., with a fine artistic taste and a very genuine love of nature.

Homes in City and Country.

By RUSSELL STURGIS, JOHN W. ROOT, BRUCE PRICE, DONALD G. MITCHELL, SAMUEL PARSONS, JR., and W. A. LINN. With 100 illustrations. 8vo, $2.00.

This book relates to home-winning and to the characteristic features of city, suburban and country houses, with suggestions by acknowledged authorities as to the most desirable features of each class. Co-operative house-building is fully explained. The illustrations represent American architecture from Colonial times to the present.

Social Strugglers.

By Prof. H. H. BOYESSEN. 12mo, $1.25.

Prof. Boyesen's story is an account of the struggles of a Western family transplanted to New York to attain social distinction. The book is both entertaining as a picture of life, involving a delightful love-story, and valuable as a study of contemporary social tendencies.

The Profession of Bookselling,

A Handbook of Practical Hints for the Apprentice and Bookseller.

By A. GROWOLL,

Managing Editor of "The Publishers' Weekly."

"The author has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. . . . It treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world."—London Publishers' Circular.

"A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Continental literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of trade catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals and literary journals; and a broad reference library. . . . ## LATEST ISSUES :

The Victorian Age of English Literature.

By Mrs. OLIPHANT, author of "The Makers of Florence," "The Makers of Venice," "Laurence Oliphant's Life," etc., etc. In 2 vols., 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $3 00.

This work contains an accurate and comprehensive survey of English literature during the past fifty years—the Victorian Age—which is undoubtedly one of the most active, most prolific and richest literary periods in the history of the globe.

The lives and writings of five hundred literary celebrities are passed under the author's discerning review in these volumes, which likewise contain the history of the inception and development of innumerable magazines, newspapers, etc., more or less known to fame. The book is a most painstaking and able conspectus of Victorian literature, such as no student and no possessor of a library can afford to be without.

The Drama.

Addresses by HENRY IRVING. With frontispiece by Whistler. 16mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

This dainty little volume comprises four interesting addresses by Mr. Irving, dealing with the annals of acting and with the art as well as with the traditions of the stage. It is full at once of the enthusiasm and the professional culture which mark everything said or done by the chief figure on the modern stage, who properly holds his profession in high esteem. The addresses, delivered at Oxford University, on the Four Great Actors of the English Stage, will, we are sure, be read and re-read by all lovers of the higher drama and by every one in sympathy with the actor's art. The work is enriched by an excellent character portrait of Mr. Henry Irving.

The Highland Nurse.

A Tale. By the DUKE OF ARGYLL. 18mo, paper, 25 cents. Shandon Series.

Lovers of Scotch scenery and legends will be particularly pleased with the Duke of Argyll's carefully written story, "The Highland Nurse." There is much in this little volume that will also appeal to novel-readers in general, notably the weird mystery that surrounds the old Highland Nurse, who attains the marvellous age of 120 years. This book is replete with beautiful word-pictures which were evidently penned by a keen lover of these lovely Highland scenes.

A Deplorable Affair.

By W. E. NORRIS, author of "Adrian Vidal," "A Bachelor's Blunder," etc., etc. 18mo, paper, 25 cents. Shandon Series.

"For the combination of high literary qualities which Mr. Norris possesses, we must go back to the most eminent of his predecessors."—Quarterly Review.

"Mr. Norris has given us a very pleasant story, told in his own very pleasant way. His dialogue is always pleasant and sometimes witty."—London Daily Chronicle.

PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED :

A Republic Without a President.

By HERBERT D. WARD, author of "The Master of the Magicians," "The New Senior at Andover." 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"A Republic Without a President!" is the title story of a volume which illustrates with particular briskness the crisp and vigorous style of Mr. Herbert D. Ward. The final story in the volume, entitled "Colonel Oddmenton," is a sequel to "A Republic Without a President," and as such makes a most pleasing finale to an enjoyable book. The work will undoubtedly be received with pleasure not only for the peculiarity of its title, but for the merit of the subject-matter as well.

Christine.

By ADELINE SERGEANT, author of "Beyond Recall," "A Life Sentence," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

"'Christine' has a finished quality that in the artistic sense is exceedingly agreeable. The narrative has plenty of effective contrasts, and the descriptive passages are admirable in suggestiveness."—Boston Beacon.

By DAVID KINLEY, of the University of Wisconsin. 12mo, $1.50.

An historical and critical examination of this important institution. A work which will prove valuable to bankers and financiers generally, as well as to scholars. This is the initial volume of a series to be entitled, "Library of Economics and Politics," under the editorial control of Prof. Richard T. Ely, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of Political Economy and Director of the School of Economics, Political Science and History at the University of Wisconsin. It is designed to include in the series only such volumes as deal with timely topics in a fresh, interesting and instructive manner, and the standard of excellence maintained will, it is hoped, give to this series a leading rank in this country and abroad.

Philanthropy and Social Progress.

Seven essays delivered before the School of Applied Ethics, at Plymouth, Mass., by Miss Jane Addams, Father J. O. S. Huntington, Robert A. Woods, Prof. Franklin A. Giddings and Bernard Bosanquet, with an introduction by Prof. H. C. Adams, of Michigan University. 12mo, $1.50.

"Specialization in modern life has decreased the dependencies of men and classes to such a degree that interdependence is a thing which is felt rather than an idea to be reasoned about. Society is coming to be in fact organic, and the claim of a perfect organism that all parts should find harmony of life in the recognition of a common aim shows itself in the attitude which large numbers of persons are assuming before the vexed problems of the day. And I doubt not that many who find this book attractive will do so because it expresses in vigorous and decided language a feeling of which most of us are at least dimly conscious. It is a privilege to introduce such a book to the reading public."—FROM THE INTRODUCTION.

COPIES ONLY

remain, and the price, as per previous notice, is now raised to $15 in paper, and $17.50 in half morocco binding. The type is destroyed, and no more can be printed. When the supply on hand has been reduced to the price will be raised to $17.50 in paper and $20 in half morocco. Any library, bookseller, or collector who has not a copy should order before it is too late.

A few copies still remain of the Subject Volume of the American Catalogue for 1876 which we will supply for $12.50 in paper and $15 in half morocco. This is of especial value in libraries and book-stores which cannot now buy the Author Volume, as, except novels, juveniles, etc., it gives the same books, re-arranged by subjects. The price on this work also will presently be raised.

NOTES IN SEASON.

KEPPLER & SCHWARZMANN will publish shortly in a volume uniform with "Short Sixes" and "The Runaway Browns" the series of short stories which H. C. Bunner has been contributing to Puck under the title of "Made in France," daring adaptations from the French of Guy de Maupassant.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co., Cincinnati, have in preparation "The History of Illinois and Louisiana under the French Rule," by Jos. Wallace; and have in press a limited edition of three companion volumes—"Donn Platt, his work and his ways," by Charles Grant Miller; Col. Platt's "Sunday Meditations" and his "Plays and Poems."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish immediately "My Guest Chamber, or, for the Master's use," by Sophia M. Nugent, a devotional book similar to those by Miss Havergal, and a new and thoroughly revised edition of "The Discovery of the Yosemite," by Dr. L. H. Bunnell, who was one of its discoverers and who gave it its name.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued in their Franklin Square Library a novel by M. A. Bengough, entitled "In a Promised Land." The story is located chiefly in South Africa. They have in preparation in their series of American Essayists a collection of essays on artists and art subjects by Henry James, accompanied by a miniature drama, entitled "After the Play."

D. C. HEATH & Co. will issue at once "Petite Histoire de la Littérature Française," by Professor Delphine Duval, of Smith College. The aim in the production of this book has been to provide in French a brief history of French literature from its origin down to the present time, which should combine, as far as possible, the elements of brevity and completeness, of conciseness and interest. It is arranged so as to be adapted as a text-book, as readings for advanced classes, or as a book of reference.

GUSTAV KOBBE has published through the Globe Map Co., 2 Spring Street, New York, a suburban road-map, of which the peculiar feature is an indication of good roads by a solid red line, and of ordinary roads by parallel lines. The map is mainly for New Jersey, where the region covered extends from Lake Hopatcong, Green Pond, Pompton and Hohokus on the north to South Amboy and New Brunswick on the south. But also the whole of Staten Island, Long Island to Jamaica, and New York to Hastings and New Rochelle, are embraced. The whole is folded for the pocket.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish early in May a work entitled "Repudiation of State Debts in the United States," by William A. Scott, assistant professor of political economy in the University of Wisconsin. This is the second volume in the Library of Economics and Politics (edited by Professor Richard T. Ely), and deals with one of the most important phases of American finance. Perhaps there is no field of financial investigation in the United States which has been so neglected. The work will be of practical importance to all those who are concerned with investments, as well as to scholars interested in our financial history and institutions.

GEORGE P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation "The Wilderness Hunter, an account of the big game of the United States, and its chase with horse, hound and rifle," by Theodore Roosevelt, uniform with his "Hunting Trips of a Ranchman," with many original illustrations by well-known artists; "The Shrubs of Northeastern America," by Prof. Chas. S. Newall, uniform with the same author's "Trees of Northeastern America," now in its third edition; the second part of "An Introduction to English Economic History and Theory," by W. J. Ashley, Professor of Economic History in Harvard University, bringing the work down to the end of the Middle Ages—continuing the narrative from the fourteenth to the sixteenth century, and giving consideration to such phases of economic history as the following: the supremacy of the towns, the crafts, the woollen industry, the Agrarian revolution, the relief of the poor, the canonist doctrine; also, "A Study of the Jews in Mediæval England," compiled by Joseph Jacobs, secretary of the British Folk-Lore Association, being the sixth volume of English History from Contemporary Writers.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (8mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (32mo: 15 cm.); Ti. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Aho, Juhani, (pseud.) Squire Hellman, and other stories. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 2+162 p. D. (The unknown lib., no. 25.) cl., 50 c.

An introduction describing "The Finnish novel" is furnished by R. Nisbet Bain, who states that "Squire Hellman" is the first English translation of a Finnish novel. It is rather an incident than a novel. "Squire Hellman" is a fierce, hard-hearted, fiery-tempered land-owner who rages at the village assessors for raising his taxes. His neighbors make him believe he has incurred the penalty of the law for contempt of court and his ludicrous terror and self-abasement are realistically described. Three other stories are included: When father brought home the lamp; Pioneers; Loyal.

*Argyll, Duke of, [G: D. Campbell.] The unseen foundations of society: an examination of the fallacies and failures of economic science due to neglected elements. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 8°, cl., $5.

*Baines, Minnie Willis. The pilgrim's vision: an allegory. Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, 1892 [1893.] 121 p. il. 12°, cl., 60 c.

Balzac, Honoré de. A great man of the provinces in Paris; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 5+426 p. D. hf. mor., $1.50.

The second part of "Lost illusions," noticed in P. W., Feb. 4, '93, [1097.] The story of the poet Lucien Chardon, otherwise de Rubempré, who comes from the provinces to Paris, expecting to obtain fortune and fame through a volume of unpublished sonnets. His poverty and almost hopeless struggles to live bring him into strange companionships and stranger scenes. The picture given of the publishers, booksellers, authors and journalists, owners and editors of newspapers, the writers of plays and the actors in them, belonging to the period—the first quarter of the present century—is a dark one, vice and corruption characterizing both scenes and characters.

*Barnes, W. E. Canonical and uncanonical go-pels; with a translation of the recently discovered fragment of the Gospel of Peter, and a selection of the sayings of our Lord not found in the four Gospels. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 12+112 p. 8°, cl., $1.25.

Beale, Anne. Simplicity and fascination. [New ed.] Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. 2-499 p. D. (Good company ser., no. 25.) pap., 50 c.

Beaumarchais, P: A: C. de. Le barbier de Séville; ou, la précaution inutile: comédie en quatre actes; ed. with introd. and notes by I. H. B. Spiers. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893. c. 8+106 p. S. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 25 c.

Behrens, Bertha, [ "W. Heimbürg," pseud.] Miss Mischief (Mamsell Unnütz): a novel; from the German, by Mary Stuart Smith; il. by Warren B. Davis. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1893.] c. 4-325 p. D. (Choice ser., no. 82.) cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.
The story of a young girl brought from Italy to Germany and reared amid scenes and circumstances uncongenial to her nature. Unappreciated and misunderstood, and her acts misinterpreted, she gets the reputation of being a good-for-nothing and mischievous child; but so interesting is her character and so skillfully are her fine traits developed by the author that the reader is surprised by the vision of beauty and truth and heroism which, as the story proceeds, dawns upon the mind. "Miss Mischief" becomes a noble woman, and by her self-sacrifice, patience and energy repays a hundredfold all the protection and assistance which have been grudgingly given to her during her childhood.

Bengough, M. A. In a promised land: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 318 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 793.) pap., 50 c.

Two young girls—orphans—whose only home had been an English school in which "the Primitive Gospelers" educated the daughters of their missionaries. They were elected by the managers to be sent to South Africa to become the wives of two young missionaries already settled there. This is the "promised land," where the heroines' lives are spent; their experience of married life and of life in South Africa is full of dramatic incidents. The author evidently writes from observation, as scenes and characters are new and life-like.

*Bennett, W: H. Clinical lectures on abdominal hernia, chiefly in relation to treatment, including the radical cure. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 16+261 p. diagrams, 8°, cl., $2.50.

*Benson, Rev. R. M. Divine Exodus. V. 3, Pt. 1, The final Passover: a series of meditations upon the Passover of our Lord Jesus Christ. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 10+425 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Bolton, Horace W., D.D. America's next war; introd. by G: P. Smith. Chic., H. W. Bolton, 409 W. Monroe St., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 2-285 p. por. O. cl., $1.

Addresses on patriotic subjects aiming to stimulate a love of country in American youth: the "next war," the author predicts, will be caused by the lack of patriotism in the Roman Catholic Church and its encroachments upon the liberties of a free country.

Bolton, Horace W., D.D. Home and social life; introd. by Elijah Horr, D.D. 12th thousand. Chic., H. W. Bolton, [1893.] c. '84. 253 p. por. D. cl., 75 c.

Twenty-two essays on home; Wives and mothers; Shaping of character; Libraries, Courtesies, etc.

Bolton, Horace W., D.D. Our fallen heroes, and other addresses. Chic., H. W. Bolton, [1893.] c. '92. 2-204 p. por. D. cl., 75 c.

Lectures on Grant, Logan, Sheridan, Crook and Sherman; delivered before patriotic organizations

Bolton, Horace W., D.D. Personal reminiscences of the late war; introd. by F. A.

- Bolton, Horace W., D.D. The soul's cry; introd. by C. C. McCabe, D.D. Chic., [H. W. Bolton,] 1890 [1893.] c. '90. 4-267 p. por. D. cl., 75 c.
- Sermons by the pastor of the First M. E. Church of Chicago.
- Boyesen, Hjalmar Hjorth. Social strugglers: a novel. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 4+299 p. D. cl., $1.25.
- Peleg Bulkley made millions in real estate bought with thousands earned as merchant tailor in a large Western town. The ladies of his family yearned for social recognition, and Mr. Bulkley retired and came to New York City to realize their wishes. Life at a Long Island summer resort and the doings of society are graphically sketched. The hero was born of the "four hundred," but teaches his fiancée to estimate society at its true value. He is a believer in "Toynbee Hall" movements.
- *Brantley, W: T. Law of contract. Balt., Md., Harold B. Scrimger. 1893. c. 9+325 p. O. cl., $3; leath., $3.50.
- *Brown, Rev. Elijah P. Blasts from a ram's horn; meetin matters on the Ciderville sirkut: sayings, sermons and lectures. Also an account of the author's conversion; with an introd. by H. A. Buchtel, D.D. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1893. 388 p. il. 12", cl., $1.20.
- *Buxton, Dudley Wilmot, M.D. Anæsthetics. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1892 [1893.] 216 p. 16", cl., $1.50.
- *Chamberlain, Basil H., and Mason, W. B., eds. A handbook for travellers in Japan. 3d ed., rev. and rewritten by B. H. Chamberlain and W. B. Mason. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. maps, 12", cl., net, $5.
- *Clark, C. M. The picturesque Ohio: a historical monograph. Columbian ed. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1893. 238 p. il. 12", cl., 90 c.
- Clemens, S. L., ["Mark Twain," pseud.] The £1,000,000 bank-note, and other new stories. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. c. 5+260+9 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.
- The Bank of England once issued two notes of a million pounds each. Two rich Englishmen—brothers—fell into a dispute as to what would become of an honest stranger turned adrift in London with no money but one of these million-pound bank-notes, and no way to account for his being in possession of it. They buy one of these notes, find the man—a young American—to experiment with, and to decide which theory is the true one. The first story relates his adventures. Of the other stories, many have never before appeared in book form. They are called: "A cure for the blues," "About ships from Noah's Ark to the vessels of to-day," "Playing courier," "The German Chicago," "A majestic literary fossil," "Letter to Queen Victoria," "The enemy conquered" and "Mental telegraphy."
- De Leon, T. C., and Ledyard, Erwin. John Holden, Unionist: a romance of the days of destruction and reconstruction. St. Paul, Minn., The Price-McGill Co., 1893. c. 2-338 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.
- Claims to be a true picture of life in the South during and after the late war. The scene opens in the Sand Mountains of northern Alabama, and changes to Washington during President Johnson's administration. A love-story is interwoven with characteristic episodes in which local Southern factions take part, and which present typical Southern characters, known as "Loyalists," "Unionists" or "Scalawags" at the North, but chiefly as "Union men" and anti-secessionists in Alabama.
- Douglas, Amanda M. Lost in a great city. [New ed.] Bost., Lee & Shepard, [1893.] c. '80. 468 p. D. (Good company ser., no. 26.) pap., 50 c.
- See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., March 5, 1881, [477.]
- *Dun, Finlay, ed. Veterinary medicines, their actions and uses. 8th ed., rev. and enl. N. Y., Sabiston & Murray, 1893. 776 p. 8", cl., $5.
- Elton, C: I: and Mary Augusta. The great book-collectors. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 8+228 p. il. O. (Books about books, ed. by A. W. Pollard.) cl., $2.50.
- The authors have preferred to restrict themselves within narrow lines, and deal with the famous book-collectors or book-hunters rather than with the owners of good books, librarians or specialists, merchants or brokers of books or that most odious of all, "the book glutton who wants all that he sees." The result is a fresh book out of the beaten track full of original matter covering the subject from the classical period to the Victorian age. The following countries are covered: Ireland, Northumbria, England, Italy from the age of Petrarch; Germany Flanders, Burgundy and France to the time of Renouard. Index.
- *Ferguson, Wilbert P. Practical hints on Junior League work; with an introd. by J. F. Berry, D.D. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1893. 103 p. 16", cl., 30 c.
- Ferrier, Susan Edmonstone. Destiny. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 2 v., 3+413; 424 p. il. S. hf. rus., $2.50.
- See notice of complete works, "Weekly Record," P. W., February 23, 1893, [1100.]
- Filippini, Alessandro. One hundred desserts. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. c. 3-121 p. obl. T. (Handy volume culinary ser., no. 8.) cl., 50 c.
- The author was employed by Delmonico for twenty-five years. The desserts presuppose a long practical knowledge of cookery.
- Finck, H: T. Wagner and his works: the story of his life; with critical comments. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 2 v., 13+460; 5+430 p. pors. O. cl., $4.
- Mr. Finck's reputation as a musical scholar, his thorough familiarity with Wagner literature and his interesting style give his work a permanent value. It is the result of many years' special study, and is both a full review of Wagner's life, the dramatic episodes of which are treated with unusual fulness, and a summary and critical analysis of the musical and poetic contents of his writings, rich in anecdote and quotation. Mr. Finck acknowledges himself indebted to previous biographies for less than a twentieth part of the material contained in these two volumes; the rest is based on his own personal experiences, on Wagner's autobiographic writings and other original documents, including a collection of Wagneriana which he began seventeen years ago.
- Fraipont, G. The art of sketching; with 50 il. from drawings by the author; from the French, by Clara Bell; with preface by Edwin Bale. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. 5+99 p. D. cl., $1.
- The treatise is mainly intended for the use of artists in black and white. It is short, but practical and good. The references are mostly to French works or artists, as the writer is French.
- Fullerton, W: Morton. Patriotism and science: some studies in historic psychology. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 6-164 p. D. cl., $1.
- Three essays entitled: "On a certain danger in patriotism at the present time;" "English and Americans;" "Democracy, with reference to a recent book."
- *Gale, J: T. Account guide and form book for guardians and trustees in the state of Ohio; including the substance of the laws, with complete reference to sections of the revised statutes; fully indexed. (Columbus, The Ruggles-Gale Co., 1893. c. '92. 111 p. D. cl., [64 p. blank,] $4.

Gerard, E., [pseud. for Mrs. E. G. Laszowska.] The voice of a flower. N. Y., Appleton, 1898. 64+279 p. D. (Town and country lib., no. 116.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The flower is a white carnation with blood-red centre that takes a prize at a flower show on the estates of the ancient German family of Sturmfeder. The seed of this flower is an heirloom in the family of an Italian painter and his bewitching grand-daughter. Count Sturmfeder loses his heart to this girl, and carnations sprouting from seed given to her affianced lover are the voices that betray the Count's methods of capturing an unwilling bride.

*Gower, Lord Ronald. Joan of Arc: a biography; with an appendix giving the French and English bibliography of the subject. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1898. il. 8°, cl., net, $7.50.

Hardy, W. J. Book-plates. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1898. 16+175 p. il. O. (Books about books, ed. by A. W. Pollard.) cl., $2.50.

The author, well known as a collector of and writer on book-plates, treats the subject in a scholarly fashion under the following headings: The early use of book-plates in England; "Styles" in English book-plates; Allegory in English book-plates; "picture" book-plates; German book-plates; "The book-plates of France and other countries; American book-plates; Inscriptions on book-plates in condemnation of book-stealing or book-spoiling, and in praise of study; Personal particulars on book-plates; Ladies' book-plates; The more prominent engravers of English book-plates; Odds and ends.

Hector, Mrs. Annie F., ["Mrs. Alexander," pseud.] Mammon. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1893.] c. '91. 2-392 p. D. (The Belmore ser., no. 19.) pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., December 8, 1892, [1088.]

*Hutchkin, Rev. S. F. The York road, old and new, Fox Chase and Bustleton. Phil., Binder & Kelly, 518 Minor St., 1898. il. 12°, hf. mor., $5.

Ibsen, H. The master-builder: a drama in three acts; from the Norwegian, by J. W. Arctander. Minneapolis, Minn., William Kriedt Pub. Co., 618-15 Washington Ave., 1898. c. 8+160 p. por. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Solness, the master-builder, is an egotist consumed with jealousy of the geniuses that have existed before him and of the rising talent about him. His wife has no sympathy with his ambitions but spends her whole life for duty after the death of her children and the burning of her inherited home. Hilda, a young enthusiast, succeeds in again inspiring Solness to surpass his confrères in his art. She spurs him on to a reckless act in which he loses his life, and she is hysterically glad that he has fallen from the top of a building.

International medical annual and practitioner's index, 1893: a work of reference for medical practitioners by various authors. 11th year. N. Y., E. B. Treat, 1898. 60+590 p. 12°, cl., $2.75.

Isaacs, Abram S. Stories from the rabbis. N. Y., C. L. Webster & Co., 1898. c. 8-201 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author is professor of German and Hebrew in the University of the City of New York. The rabbis whose sayings are recorded in the Talmud and Midrash, were admirable story-tellers. These stories throw light upon the daily avocations of the rabbis and their regard for labor and its blessings. Some of the stories have already appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, Sunday-School Times and Harper's Bazar.

*Kain, W. C. The Tennessee officer: a practical treatise on the powers, duties, rights and liabilities of officers in the state of Tenn. Knoxville, Ogden Bros. & Co., 1898. c. 63+821 p. O. shp., $6.

*Lang, Andrew. Homer and the epic. N.

Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 11+424 p. 8°, cl., $2.50.

*Liautaud, A., M.D. Manual of operative veterinary surgery. N. Y., Sabiston & Murray, 1898. 786 p. il. 8°, cl., $7.50; hf. cl., $8.50.

*Low, David Allan, and Bevis, Alfred W. A manual of machine-drawing and design. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1898. 6+367 p. il. diagrams, 8°, cl., $2.50.

*Meyer, Lucy Rider. Deaconesses, Biblical, early church, European, American; with the story of how the work began in the Chicago Training-School for City, Home and Foreign Missions, and the Chicago Deaconess' Home. Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, 1892 [1893.] 244 p. il. 12°, cl., 75 c.

*Mivart, St. George. American types of animal life. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1898. il. 12°, cl., $2.

Morfil, W. R. The story of Poland. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1898. c. 12+889 p. por. il. D. (Story of the nations ser., no. 36.) cl., $1.50; hf. leath., $1.75.

Prof. Morfil has written this work on Poland on the same lines as his previous work on Russia in this series. The plan of the work is to give a readable history of the country by bringing into prominence the more stirring episodes and salient characteristics, and putting in the background the details which must prove less interesting. At the same time the thread of the history is never intentionally lost sight of. The work is based entirely upon original and native authorities, no mere compilations having been employed. Gives in detail the chief ethnological elements of the population; and for those who wish to study Polish history more minutely a list has been added of the most important works on the subject. The work has no political bias.

Morris, W. O'Connor. Napoleon, warrior and ruler, and the military supremacy of revolutionary France. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1898. c. 16+493 p. map, il. D. (Heroes of the nations ser., no. 8.) cl., $1.50; hf. leath., $1.75.

The author has freely made use of the great mass of material in existence in the shape of biographies, memoirs, correspondence, etc., relating to Napoleon. His work is a popular one, and devoted principally to Napoleon's personality, its aim being to form a fair and just estimate of a man who has been the subject of excessive adulation and of excessive detraction beyond any eminent man of modern times.

Morse, J. T., jr. Abraham Lincoln. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1898. c. 2 v., 5+387; 5+378 p. por. D. (American statesmen ser.) cl., $2.50.

"The time has passed when a biographer of Lincoln can undertake original investigation or research. We doubt if a single new fact about Abraham Lincoln is revealed in this new biography from the hand of the editor of the American Statesmen Series. It is a contribution to the philosophy of biography which the accomplished author practically makes. Nicolay, Hay, Arnold, Herndon, Lamon, Raymond, Holland and other biographers have done their work so thoroughly that a voluminous Lincoln library has been collected. To this mass of literature, written on varying lines and from diverse points of view, Mr. Morse applies the synthetic method, and brings out of it a composite picture, shaded and toned by the investigators who have been at work before him."—New York Tribune.

Musick, J. R. A century too soon: a story of Bacon's rebellion; il. by F. A. Carter. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1898. c. 10+400 p. il. D. (Columbian historical novels, no. 8.) cl., $1.50.

The chief actors in the story are John Stevens and his son Robert, the son and grandson of Philip Stevens, whose story was told in "Pocahontas." It deals chiefly with the rebellion of 1676, led by Roger Bacon against Governor Berkeley and the "king's men" of Virginia. Bacon's rebellion failed on the very eve of victory because of its leader's untimely death. The Stevens, father and son, are actors in these events, and in describing their experiences the political and social conditions of the American colonies are pictured.

Nehrling, H. North American birds; with 36 col. pl. after water-color paintings by Rob. Ridgway, A. Goering and Gustav Muetzel. In 12 pts. V. 1. Pts. 6, 7 and 8. Milwaukee, Wis., G. Brumder, [1893.] c. 241-288; 49+289-371 p. Q. pap., ea., $1.

This work having become so voluminous as to render a division into two separate volumes necessary, the editor deemed it best to issue a double number, containing parts 7 and 8, and thus to conclude volume 1. This double number contains an interesting introduction to the whole work and indices to volume 1.

*New York. Legal advice: a compendium of law of the state of New York; compiled by Eldorous Dayton for the purpose of giving to the citizens of this state a summary view of the common and statute law pertaining to general transactions. Marlborough, N. Y., Eldorous Dayton, [1893.] c. 10+557 p. O. shp., $3.25.

*Norman, H. The real Japan. New cheaper ed. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. il. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Oliphant, Mrs. Marg. O. W. The sorceress. N. Y., J. A. Taylor & Co., [1893.] c. 382 p. D. (The Broadway ser., no. 22.) pap., 50 c.

"Laura Lance, who gives the title to the novel, is a diabolical creature who sows wretchedness and misery between a girl and her lover, then makes love to the girl's brother—or allows him to make it to her—and breaks his heart, and finally endeavors to capture the father of her victims. The reader would certainly never gather from what had gone before that the destroyer of the peace of the Kingward family had 'really never at any time meant that family any real harm.'"—The Academy.

Farr, Mrs. Louisa. The squire. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '92. 2+328 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 141.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., July 23, 1892, [1099]

Patten, Simon N. Cost and utility. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, 1893. 17-36 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 74.) pap., 25 c.

Peter, Mrs. Mary L. A century of the presidents of the United States from George Washington, 1789, to Benjamin Harrison, 1889; with important events that occurred during each administration: in verse. Buffalo, N. Y., [published by the author.] Mrs. Mary L. Peter, 104 Bryant St., 1892 [1893.] c. '91. 39 p. O. pap., 25 c.

A little book which gives in rhyme the presidents and chief events of their administrations; a help to the memory.

Pierce, E. L. Memoir and letters of Charles Sumner. In 4 v. V. 3, 1845-1860. V. 4, 1860-1874. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 8+621; 7+658 p. pors. O. cl., $6; hf. cf., $10.

The first two volumes of this work were published in 1877. See notice in P. W., Nov. 10, 1877, [304.] Mr. Pierce, as it is well known, was designated in Mr. Sumner's will as one of his literary executors. As he is an extremely conscientious writer and an ardent admirer of Mr. Sumner, he spared no pains in preparing this work, and read all the 40,000 letters which Mr. Sumner left in his library. V. 3 deals with society in Boston at the period between 1845 and 1860, and the events of Mr. Sumner's own public and private life during this time, his active interest in various social reforms, and his career in Congress with the different measures upon which his voice was heard, such as "The fugitive slave law," "The Missouri compromise," etc., ending with the assault made upon him in the Senate Chamber by Preston S. Brooks. V. 4 opens with the Secession movement of 1860, and includes all the eventful history which followed down to March 11, 1874, when Sumner died. George William Curtis, who read the entire manuscript of the work some months before he died, wrote to Mr. Pierce: "Your patient diligence and complete research are without example in such work, and I think often of your remark to me that it had taken your life to write Sumner's."

Poole, W. F.; and Fletcher, W. I. Poole's index to periodical literature: the second supplement; from January 1, 1887, to January 1, 1892; by W. I. Fletcher with the co-operation of the American Library Association. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 13+476 p. O. cl., net, $8; shp., net, $10; hf. mor., net, $12.

To Mr. Fletcher, Mr. Poole's associate in this work from its beginning, belongs, with his collaborators, the sole credit of the present supplement. Dr. Poole having been too busy with other work to take any part in it. It furnishes a key to the periodical literature of the past five years, an unusually productive period in magazine writing. In all 148 periodicals are covered; 67 are continued from the Index of 1882, 40 were first included in the first supplement, and 41 are now first introduced, six of which are old periodicals not before indexed. Most prominent among these six sets is the Journal of the Society of Arts (London), the entire thirty-nine volumes of which are now first indexed. The articles of this journal are of great importance, especially in the department of applied science. Another addition is Meliora (London), the twelve volumes of which, published from 1888 to 1890, are replete with valuable papers on a multitude of sociological topics. The number of Mr. Fletcher's collaborators in the present supplement is sixty-three, two more than in the previous one, the co-operative method working as successfully as at first.

Prentiss, Caroline Edwards. Fleeting thoughts. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. 8+128 p. D. cl., $1.
Over a hundred short poems.

*Rawle, Francis, comp. Acts relating to car trusts as in force in various states, down to Mar. 1, 1893, [etc.] Phil., privately pr. by Francis Rawle, 328 Chestnut St., 1893. c. 50 p. S. pap., (price on application.)

*Reifsnider, Anna C. Ellis. Unforgiven. St. Louis, Mo., The Anna C. Reifsnider Book Co., 1893. c. 280 p. il. 12°, (Happy hour lib., no. 3.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

*Rohde, Rev. J. M. The joy of prayer; introd. by Bp. I. W. Joyce. Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, 1892 [1893.] 161 p. 16°, cl., 45 c.

Sabine, Wallace Clement. A student's manual of a laboratory course in physical measurements. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1893. c. 8+126 p. D. cl., $1.85.

*Strangeways, T. Veterinary anatomy. 4th ed., rev. and enl., by I. Vaughan. N. Y., Sabiston & Murray, 1893. 701 p. 8°, cl., $6.

Sturgis, Russell, Root, J. W., Price, Bruce, [and others.] Homes in city and country. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 8+214 p. il. O. cl., $2.

Contents: The city house in the East and South, by Russell Sturgis; The city house in the West, by J. W. Root; The suburban house, by Bruce Price; The country house, by Donald G. Mitchell ["Ik Marvel," pseud.]; Small country places, by S. Parsons, Jr.; Building and loan associations, by W. A. Linn. These articles describe the characteristic features of city, suburban and country houses, and offer suggestions as to the most desirable features of each class. Co-operative house-building is fully explained. The illustrations represent American architecture from Colonial times to the present.

*Swan, Annie S., [Mrs. Burnett Smith.] Carlownie; or, among Lothian folk. [New issue.] Cin., O., Cranston & Curtis, 1893. 323 p. 12°, cl., 90 c.

Thomas, Annie, [Mrs. Pender Cudlip.] Utterly mistaken. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 4+300 p. D. cl., $1.

The central figure is Eli Poynter, an impulsive, vindictive and emotional girl. She cherishes intense dislike and jealousy of her widowed step-mother, and when she sees her about to marry again determines to wreck her happiness by revealing what she believes to be a shameful secret of her step-mother's life. Her suspicions are "utterly mistaken," and the results of her action recoil upon herself alone. The happiness and heart histories of half a dozen other persons besides Ella and her mother are interwoven in a story of constant misunderstanding and complication. Scene and characters are English.

*Tupper, Kerr B., D.D. Seven great lights, with an introd. by W. F. McDowell, D.D. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1892 [1898.] 188 p. 12°, cl., 75 c.

United States (State Department), Bureau of American Republics, Bulletin, no. 50. Handbook of the American Republics, 1893. No. 3. Wash., D. C., Government Print. Office, 1893. 604 p. map, il. O. pap., n. p.

Gives information regarding customs tariffs, diplomatic and consular service, area, population, products, international treaties, local regulations, resources and commerce of the Argentine Republic, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Guatemala, Haiti, Hawaiian Islands, Honduras, Mexico, etc.

Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Mariana G., [Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer.] Art out of doors: hints on good taste in gardening. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 8+399 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Contents: The art of gardening; Aims and methods; The home-grounds; Close to the house; Roads and paths; Piazzas; Formal flower-beds; Formal gardening; A word for architecture; Out-door monuments; Cameteries; The beauty of trees; Four trees; A word for the axe; The love of nature; A word for books; The artist. Also contains a selected list of books (8 p.) on gardening art and books showing a loving observation of nature.

Verity, J. B. Electricity up to date for light, power and traction. 8d ed. F: Warne & Co., [1893.] 4+163 p. il. map, S. pap., 75 c.

*Williams, Helen B. Miss Kitty: a story of a young girl. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., 1893. 12°, cl., $1.25.

*Wolff, H. W. People's banks; a record of social and economic success. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 16+261 p. 8°, cl., $2.50.

Wood, H: Ideal suggestion through mental photography: a restorative system for home and private use, preceded by a study of the laws of mental healing. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. 4-163 p. O. cl., $1.25.

By the author of "God's image in man." Mr. Wood, who is an independent investigator, belongs to no "school" or party, and has given several years of conservative study to the philosophy and demonstrations of the science of mental healing in order to interpret its laws and possibilities. Part 1 of this work is a study of the laws of "Mental healing," and part 2 embodies them in a restorative system, formulated and arranged for home and private use. Visionary and impracticable aspects of the subject are eliminated, and a scientific basis found.

A WORD IN SEASON.

We are approaching the season when retailers are wont to agree that trade is becoming "slow" and that customers are becoming both few and shy. The timid ones accept the situation as inevitable and settle down in despondency, resorting to such measures as suggest themselves for shortening expenses that they may "tide over" until business naturally livens up again. But the "hustler" adapts himself to the requirements of the season, and he accordingly exerts all his energy to make trade in such books as are generally, and unwisely so, left to themselves.

We refer to works upon gardening and farming and out-door books in general. Just now every person having a few square feet of ground is endeavoring to cultivate them; and even those who are not so fortunate have a few cherished garden-pots; but there are many thousands who have good-sized gardens, and all are engaged in one object—that of setting them out to the best advantage. Here, then, is a constituency for the bookseller to canvass. All these gardeners, large and small, amateurs and professional, are open to the temptation of books. They will feel grateful to all who will assist them with advice respecting their favorite study; while any bookseller who will introduce the right book to such a person will be regarded as a friend, while any book thus sold will probably be recommended to neighbors engaged in like pursuits.

We believe that the intelligent bookseller might find half a dozen good seasons a year; at present he is only too often satisfied with one—that of Christmas books; possibly another—that of the opening of schools. If he will adopt our suggestion he will find farmers ready to purchase books upon farm crops, manure, breeding, etc.; gardeners who will buy books on gardening and flowers; naturalists who will be grateful for books on botany, ferns, trees, shrubs, insects, etc.; fathers and mothers who, before their annual trips abroad or their vacations at home, will be glad to provide themselves with guide-books, books descriptive of the sea-shore, sea-weeds, shells and marine animals; and the younger people, who want books that will tell them about croquet, lawn tennis, golf, archery and other out-door and in-door games. Then all will want suitable light reading, books for the steamer-chair, hammock or other lounging-place—but why prolong the list?

Books of this nature are kept too much in the background. Booksellers allow them to be asked for and ordered instead of placing them in the hands of buyers—or sending them out, on approval, to likely customers. We believe that there are very few members of the trade who might not add something to their returns by judiciously adapting themselves to the seasons of the year and calling attention to the books which their special interests and natural characteristics should put in demand.

The bookseller desiring to test the methods outlined above may much lighten his own labors by utilizing some of the aids for "drumming up" business already to hand and stamped with the approval of successful experience. Most publishers prepare catalogues, leaflets or slips of the special books they carry on their lists. These they supply to the bookseller in any quantity, and at his request will furnish them with his own imprint, provided he can dispose to advantage of a given number.

The imprint issues of the monthly Literary News published from this office will also be found of great value in bringing all books of merit month by month to the attention of customers. Carefully edited, strictly independent, neatly printed and illustrated, this publication may be relied upon for a monthly bird's-eye view of any live bookseller's stock.

Of special help just at this time of the year the bookseller will find the "Summer Reading" number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, a neat, illustrated survey of seasonable books, especially works of fiction, guide-books and manuals of sports and amusements. This is prepared for the bookseller to circulate with his own imprint and has steadily grown in favor. Upwards of ten thousand copies were circulated last season, and this year the outlook seems to be for a much larger demand. Within its covers it gives extracts from the most recent novels and other books of light literature, and its special feature is a list of novels compiled carefully from the lists of the entire year, to include every book that has had popularity or is certain to gain it when brought before the people. The Columbus literature of the year will be specially brought out this season in a chatty article on the World's Fair and the best books to guide visitors to its treasures.

At any rate, the day has passed when the owner of a store, no matter how well filled or appointed, could sit in the rear of it and wait for customers to look him up. True as this is of every trade, it is peculiarly so of the book trade. The bookseller who would succeed must be alert, progressive and ahead of his customers, leading them, not being led by them. And once the bookseller gets in the habit of looking for trade he will be surprised how often he will stumble across it and in what unexpected places he can make bargains in the selling as well as in the buying of goods.

THE BRINLEY LIBRARY SOLD.

THE sale by auction of the fifth and last part of the American library of the late George Brinley, of Hartford, was concluded at the auction-rooms of C. F. Libbie & Co., No. 666 Washington Street, Boston, on the 20th inst. In the catalogue of this last part of one of the greatest libraries of American historical works ever collected were 1463 of the 9908 numbers contained in the entire library catalogue as it originally stood. The net proceeds of this sale amounted to $14,654, being double the amount of the fourth part, which was disposed of by auction in New York in 1886 for $7363. The first, second and third parts were also sold in New York, the first bringing in 1878, $48,785; the second in 1880, $32,690, and the third in 1881, $23,716, making the total proceeds from the entire library $127,209.

The part just disposed of in Boston contained the least amount of matter, and probably most of it was not considered as valuable as that contained in the other parts, but in real interest and historical importance it had some choice works. Zachariah Mayhew's copy of Eliot's Indian Bible and New Testament, which was sold on the afternoon of the 18th was among the best prizes offered to the collectors. At the sale on the last day was sold a copy of a chart of Boston Harbor, seventeen by twenty-two inches, done in water-color by Phillip Wells, with soundings without taken by Captain Thomas Smith, Captain John Fayrweather, Captain Timothy Armitage and Captain Joseph Eldridge, who were employed to do the work by His Excellency Sir Edmund Andros, captain-general and governor of his majesty's Territories and Dominion in New England, in 1689, only sixty-nine years after the settlement of Boston. The chart was sold for $850, the highest price paid for any single piece during the sale. There were countless pamphlets, broadsides and bundles of old newspapers, which brought handsome prices. For instance, 120 copies of the Connecticut Courant, dating from 1765 to 1789, sold for $70, while six volumes of the Connecticut Gazette, at first called the New London Gazette, brought $468. These six were sold on the 20th, at which the bidding was better than at any other time during the auction.

Some of the other important sales were: two volumes of Owen's "Epigrams" on vellum, of which there are only four copies in existence, each $100; four volumes of the Connecticut Journal, 1773-90, $240; one volume of the New England Weekly Review, John G. Whittier's paper, $20; one volume of the Pennsylvania Journal and Weekly Advertiser of 1753-56, $120; one incomplete volume of the Pennsylvania Packet, Philadelphia, 1779, $70; many other volumes of old newspapers and magazines at prices ranging from $23 to $70; an engraving of the Washington family by E. Savage, $40; a full-length portrait of Major-General James Wolfe, $32; a map of Staten Island, New York Bay, and the western part of Long Island and Long Island Sound, by J. Ryder, in 1789, $62.50; an autograph letter written by Gen. Benedict Arnold from New Haven, May 6, 1777, to Jeremiah Wadsworth, relating to the charge made against General Arnold by Colonel John Brown, $77.50; five volumes of Colonel Jeremiah Wadsworth's letter-books, $170; an address of Colonel Benjamin Tallmadge, who had custody of Major André until his execution, $260.

The high prices realized during the sale of the five parts of this library may be accounted for from the fact that Mr. Brinley left all his property to his wife, and with the will a memorandum instructing her to sell the library by auction, allowing Yale College, the American Antiquarian Society, the Watkinson Library, the New York Historical Society, the Pennsylvania Historical Society and Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull to purchase at these auctions books to the value of $25,000 without payment. Mrs. Brinley died soon after her husband without leaving a will, but their children agreed to carry out the instructions of the memorandum. Among the societies and colleges besides those mentioned above that were present who bought largely were Dartmouth, Columbia, Amherst, and Bowdoin, and the State libraries of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York. The prominent dealers present were Sabin, Francis, Harper and Benjamin, of New York; Littlefield, of Boston; Cole, of Washington, and Watson, of Hartford. A complete index of the five parts of the Brinley Library is in preparation, which will greatly enhance the value of the catalogue of the library as a work of reference. Libbie & Co. are taking subscriptions for the index at five dollars.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

THE notice of the changes in the management of the United States Book Company as given in our last issue was printed from an advance proof in which certain minor corrections were made just before it was issued to the public. As corrected the last paragraph should read as follows:

"On May 15 the retail and jobbing departments of the United States Book Company will be discontinued. The publications of the United States Book Company will no longer be sold by its jobbing department, but can be obtained from Lovell, Coryell & Co. and Hovendon Co., as shown in their respective catalogues. All orders for these books should be addressed to the company publishing them. The organization and business of the subsidiary companies will be preserved, and after May 1 all orders should be addressed to the individual companies at 5 and 7 East 16th Street, as follows: Lovell, Coryell & Co., Hovendon Co., International Book Co., National Book Co., Seaside Publishing Co., Empire Publishing Co."

FRENCH PUBLISHERS' EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO.

THE exhibit of the French publishers at the Columbian Exposition according to all reports promises to be of exceptional interest and importance. It will occupy more than one-third of the space devoted to the French exhibit of book-binding, typography, cartography, etc., and will include over two thousand volumes representing the finest work of the presses of Firmin-Didot, Hachette, Plon, Mame and other famous French houses. The Paris Publishers' Club (Cercle de la Librairie de Paris) has been active in arranging for the exhibit and contributed 40,000 francs of the 90,000 raised by the publishers to defray the expenses of the exhibit. The catalogue of the special exhibit of the Publishers' Club gives a list of the volumes sent by French publishers of the world's fairs held in London in 1854, in Vienna, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Melbourne, Barcelona, Antwerp and Amsterdam, at none of which has the club made as noteworthy a display as it will make this summer at Chicago. The club itself was founded in 1847, and has now a membership of over three hundred, with nearly one hundred corresponding members. One of the features of its special exhibit is an illustrated historic and descriptive account of its growth, work and present prospects. M. Emile Terquem, who has been one of the most earnest and enthusiastic workers for the success of the exhibit, will represent the club at Chicago.

The general exhibit will be especially rich in ouvrages de luxe, notable among which are the first of two volumes devoted to the manuscripts of Leonardo da Vinci, with fac-similes and reproductions of the originals, from the press of Edouard Rouveyre; a dozen important works from Thézard, the architectural publisher of Dourdan, devoted to decoration and house-furnishing; a folio volume containing drawings of the works of the Florentine masters of the fifteenth century by Count Delaborde and W. Haussoullier, from the Plons; and a number of magnificent volumes from the Hachettes, Laurens and Le Vasseur & Co. There will be superb editions of Hugo's works and many costly historical, scientific and literary works. The catalogue of the exhibit, prepared under the auspices of the Cercle de la Librairie, is an exquisitely printed volume, comprising the lists of fifty-seven firms besides that of the Cercle. Many of the lists are printed in several colors with tasteful borders. Scattered through its pages are many interesting facts relating to the history of the great French publishing houses.

The only French binder to exhibit at Chicago is Léon Gruel, successor of Trautz-Bauzonnet and foremost of his craft in France. M. Gruel's establishment is one of the oldest in Paris. He has printed a special catalogue of his exhibit, in which each of his forty volumes is described in print on one page, with a full-page illustration opposite showing the front cover. As a decorator Gruel confines himself to imitating the examples of the old masters of his art. He has volumes in the style of Maoli, Le Gascon and Derôme, and he has made a specialty of engraved and modelled leather. The prices of some of the works bound by him give an idea of the value of the collection. A manuscript, "Livres de Mariage," on vellum, with an ivory bas-relief on the cover, is 2800 francs; a manuscript copy of Lamennais' "Imitation de Jésus Christ," on vellum, with miniatures by Moreau and Ledoux, is 20,000 francs; another copy of the same work in brown morocco is 3500 francs; and a rare edition, beautifully bound in "carved leather," is 4780 francs. Other specimens of his skill are also contained in the exhibit. M. Gruel's catalogue will undoubtedly be treasured as a typographical souvenir of the exhibit as well as for its bibliographic information.

THE FAVORITE AUTHORS OF CONTEMPORARY FRENCH LITERATURE.

FOR the purpose of determining the forty favorite living authors of France, who should upon that ground constitute the "Académie," Le Journal sent out blanks asking this question to all the editors of France. Twelve hundred of these blanks have been returned filled in, and 1193 of these show Zola's name at the head. After a long break comes Taine (774 votes), Daudet (718), then with an average of 600 votes Coppée, Goncourt, Maupassant, Le Conte de Lisle, Richépin. Upwards of 500 votes were reached by Dumas, Rochefort, Vaquerie, Bourget, Sully-Prudhomme; then follow I. Simon, Claretie, Sardou, Verne, and Meilhac. The twenty-fourth place is occupied by Theuriet and the last elected member to the Académie, Bornier, is relegated to the last place in the blanks. Of the thirty-seven living members of the Académie, only thirteen have found favor with this literary jury.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ADOLPHE FRANCK, the well-known writer on philosophy and ethics and editor of the great "Dictionnaire des Sciences philosophiques," has died in Paris in his eighty-fourth year.

FROM Tours comes the news of the decease of Alfred Mame, the celebrated printer and publisher, who had one of the largest establishments in Europe.

WILLIAM S. GOTTSBERGER, the well-known publisher and printer, died on the 21st inst., at Tarrytown, N. Y., in the 57th year of his age. Mr. Gottsberger was born in New York City on November 11, 1836, in the house on Chambers Street where Bruce's type foundry was afterwards located. He was educated in the Columbia Grammar School and in the Jesuits' College, from which he was graduated in 1854. In the same year he entered the employ of D. Appleton & Co., where he advanced rapidly. When he left eighteen years later he was in charge of the wholesale and export departments. He retired from Appleton's in 1869, and after a rest of three years started in the publishing and printing business on his own account. He was quite successful in this line and retired about two years ago, leaving the business in charge of his nephew, Mr. Gottsberger Peck. Mr. Gottsberger was a man of commanding presence and of a sociable nature. He remained a bachelor and lived for the past two years with his sister at Irvington and Tarrytown, N. Y.

IN the unexpected death of Abraham Avery Boston has lost a public-spirited citizen, whose life has been of the first value. He was one of the distinguished firm of Rand & Avery, printers, who built up a printing business which was in its time second to none in this country.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A NEW novel by Spielhagen has been announced. It is to be called "Das Sonntags Kind."

THE next volume in the series Great French Writers will be a translation of M. Maxime du Camp's "Théophile Gautier," with a preface by Mr. Andrew Lang and a photograph portrait.

THE publication of Wilfrid Ward's book on "William George Ward and the Catholic Revival" has been postponed in order to include some important correspondence between his father and Cardinal Newman, which has only recently come into his hands.

U. HORPLI, Milan, has in preparation "Plan Archéologique de Rome," a plan of ancient Rome, designed from results of latest excavations by Lanciani under the auspices of the Royal Academy of the Lincei. This plan will cover forty-six sheets to allow of representation of minutest details, and six of these sheets are promised annually.

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, announces a new series, to be called The Reformer's Library, of which the first volume will be a cheap edition of G. J. Holyoake's "Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life." This will be followed by "The English Peasant," by Richard Heath; and "The Labor Movement," by L. T. Hobhouse, with a preface by Mr. R. B. Haldane.

THE recently discovered copy of Landor's "Simonidea" is not, it is now stated, the only one in existence. Another, and a perfect one, was some time ago presented to the Foster Library at the South Kensington Museum by the nieces of the poet. The "Simonidea" (so-called, Landor says in his preface, "because the first of them commemorate the dead, a species of composition in which Simonides excelled") contains a number of elegiac verses, some love-poems and several Latin odes.

THE official directory of the World's Fair, to be published by W. B. Conkey & Co., of Chicago, who also publish the official catalogue of the Fair, promises to be a most attractive and useful book. It will virtually be the "Blue-Book" of the Exposition, and will contain, besides many illustrations, a vast amount of reliable information relative to the different departments and features of the Fair. A complete roster of Fair officials, national, state and foreign, with portraits and sketches; the organization of the Fair and of departments, the construction achievements, the rules and regulations for government, the provision for sewerage, lighting, heating, power, etc.; the advertising of the Fair, the exhibits and their preparation, the finances, the legislation, etc., etc.—these are some of the subjects treated of in this book.

THE present year is a jubilee year for a number of German bookselling firms. The senior among these is the Kösel'sche Buchhandlung, established by Joseph Kösel in Kempten, Bavaria, three hundred years ago (1593); it is now conducted by Ludwig Huber. Next come the bi-centenarians—the Vossische Buchhandlung of Berlin, founded November 3, 1693, and now owned by Frau Rosalie Strikker, who has conducted the business with great vigor and independence for the last thirty years, during which period she has published many notable books; and May's Buch- und Kunsthandlung, which is also administered by a woman, Frau Johanne Röder. There are four centenarians—Eduard Anton, of Halle; W. Decker & Co., of Posen; A. Pichler's Wwe. & Sohn, of Vienna; and the Jos. Thomann'sche Buchh., of Landshut; and fifty-three firms who will celebrate their semi-centennial.

THE COMMITTEE ON PUBLICATION of the Groulier Club have arranged for the publication early in May of a "Catalogue of Original and Early Editions of Some of the Poetical and Prose Works of English Writers" from Langland to Wither. It will be the first of a series of special bibliographies covering various departments and periods of English literature, intended as an aid and guide to collectors and book-lovers, and it will be illustrated by fac-similes and artotypes of eighty-seven titles and frontispieces. The work has been undertaken by a special committee of the club. The volume will be a royal octavo, printed on Van Gelder paper of special tint; the edition is limited to four hundred copies on paper and three copies on vellum. Copies will be presented by the club to the Lenox, Astor and Columbia College Libraries, of New York; the Bodleian, British Museum and Cambridge University Libraries, of England; the Newberry Library, Chicago; Boston Public Library, and the libraries of Princeton, Yale, Harvard, and the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

ON the 26th inst. there was unveiled a monument to the memory of the ornithologist John James Audubon in Trinity Cemetery, 155th Street and 10th Avenue, New York City. From his death in 1851 until recently his body lay in a remote corner of Trinity Cemetery. The monument stands on slightly elevated ground, fifty feet back from the entrance gate at 155th Street. It is of Hudson River bluestone and rests on a heavy base of granite. Its shape is that of a Runic cross. It is 25 feet 10 inches high, the arm being 5 feet 3 inches long. The base weighs seven tons, the total weight being twenty-one tons. On the face of the base is carved the portrait of Audubon, beneath it his name; over it, in one corner, the date of his birth, May 4, 1780, and in the other, the date of his death, January 27, 1851. Directly over this, on the shaft of the monument, are the words "Oh, all ye fowls of the air, bless ye the Lord, praise Him, and magnify Him forever." The shaft is decorated on the front and back with birds and beasts. On the back is the inscription: "Erected to the memory of John James Audubon, in the year 1893, by subscription raised by the New York Academy of Sciences."

BUSINESS NOTES.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Peter Paul & Brother are about to dissolve partnership, Joseph Paul will retire to private life and reside in Baltimore, where he intends to rest and take life easy for a time. Peter Paul will continue, and has made all arrangements to put another person in the position occupied by his brother.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL.—The Chain & Hardy Company is opening a branch store in Colorado Springs, which will be devoted particularly to the sale of the Jackson photographs and kindred goods, although full stocks of fine stationery and books will also be carried. J. W. Bowman, the manager, will devote considerable time, in person to the new place, and is giving his attention and taste to the fitting up of the store-room.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

The Profession of Bookselling,

A Handbook of Practical Hints for the Apprentice and Bookseller.

By A. GROWOIL,

Managing Editor of "The Publishers' Weekly."

"The author has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. . . . It treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoil's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world."—London Publishers' Circular.

"A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Continental literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of trade catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals and literary journals; and a broad reference library. For its main purpose this is an excellent manual."—The Nation.

"Booksellers in this country [England] will find this work both useful and entertaining."—London Bookman.

"We wish to give you our advance order for that most valuable series of articles—'The Profession of Bookselling'—and wish to thank you for publishing in book form one of the most useful tools the trade has had placed in its hands for a long time."—THE FIELD & GIBB BOOK AND STATIONERY CO., Lawrence, Kansas.

OUT OF DOORS IN TSARLAND.

A Record of the Seeings and Doings of a Wanderer in Russia. By FRANK J. WHISHAW. With frontispiece and vignette by Charles Whymper. Crown 8vo, 384 pages, $2.00.

"It is a positive relief to come across a book on Russia which is not full of the intrigues of the Nihilists, the iniquities of the spy system, and the characteristics of that real or imaginary reign of terror which is alleged to exist at Moscow and St. Petersburg. 'Out of Doors in Tsar Land' is altogether a delightful volume. . . . Mr. Whishaw describes himself as a wanderer in Russia, and those who dip into his entertaining pages will quickly discover that that means a plucky, light-hearted, roving Englishman, who rambled hither and thither through the Tsar's domains with rod and gun."—Speaker.

NOTES IN SEASON.

GINN & Co. will publish early next month Long's translation of "The Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius Antoninus," edited by Edwin Ginn. The work will be issued for school use in boards and also in a compact pocket edition in cloth.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready the third edition of "An Introduction to the Study of Dante," by John Addington Symonds; and "The Life and Letters of Madame de Krudener," by Clarence Ford, illustrated with portraits of Madame de Krudener and the Emperor Alexander I.

LEE & SHEPARD will publish early next month "Not Angels Quite," a novel by a well-known writer of Boston. The work is described as "a sort of impressionist novel, though it is written in the style of a 'novela de costumbres,' with side-light thrown on the characters, who are not described at all." A critic pronounces it "the work of an optimist, leaving a good taste in the mouth—but it is not sensational." The title is from Browning.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready in their uniform edition of Anthony Trollope's works "Can You Forgive Her?" in three volumes; "From Out of the Past—the story of a meeting in Touraine," by Emily Howland Hopkin; "The Year-Book of Science," edited for the year of 1892 by Prof. T. G. Bonney; "Peter Stuyvesant," by Bayard Tuckerman, in the series of Makers of America; and "Youth," by Charles Wagner, translated from the French, by Ernest Redwood.

TAIT, SONS & Co. have just ready "The Last Sentence," by Maxwell Grey, a story said to be equal to "The Silence of Dean Maitland;" "Oriole's Daughter," a story of Rome, written just before her death by Jessie Fothergill; "Dearest," the story of a down-trodden and then triumphant Cinderella, told by Mrs. Forrester; "Kitty's Father," a tale of absorbing mysteries, by Frank Barrett; and "The Fate of Sister Jessica," a story of patient mother love, by F. W. Robinson.

THE BIBLIOGRAPHISCHE INSTITUT, in Leipzig and Vienna, has just begun to issue the first volumes of the fifth revised edition of "Meyer's Konversations-Lexikon," the world-renowned work of general reference. The work will be in seventeen volumes bound in half leather and will contain upwards of 100,000 articles covering about 17,500 pages of text, including pictures, maps and plans and 950 plates, 152 of which are colored. The International News Co. is general agent for the work in this country and offers liberal inducements to booksellers.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have ready "A Brief History of Panics, and Their Periodical Occurrence in the United States," by Clement Juglar, translated from the French by De Courcy W. Thom, a timely issue in their Questions of the Day Series; "Outlines of Roman History," a text-book for advanced students and reading-classes, by Prof. Henry F. Pelham, of Oxford University; "Vertebrate Embryology," a text-book for students and practitioners, by A. Milnes Marshall, M.D.; "A Literary Courtship," by Anna Fuller, author of "Pratt Portraits;" "A Washington Symphony," a story of life at the national capital, by Mrs. William Lamont Wheeler; and "Marked 'Personal,'" a new novel by Anna Katharine Green. They also announce "The Gospel and Its Earliest Interpretations," by Orello Cone, D.D.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish on May 15 the long-expected biography of A. Bronson Alcott, by F. B. Sanborn and W. T. Harris. The authors have drawn upon the copious biographical papers left by Mr. Alcott and upon notes in the possession of his daughter, Mrs. Pratt, for their material; they have also had access to the unpublished papers of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Thoreau, William Ellery Channing and other intimate friends of Mr. Alcott. The object of the volume is not so much to discuss the ethical points of Alcott's teachings as to "portray our friend as he lived—in youth, in middle life and in serene old age." On the same date there will be published "Joys Beyond the Threshold," by Louis Figuer, a sequel to the author's "The Tomorrow of Death," translated by Abby L. Alger, and Pascoe's illustrated handbook, "London of To-Day," revised and brought up to date for the present year.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin, of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. fr.: n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A. Augustus; B. Benjamin; C. Charles; D. David; E. Edward; F. Frederic; G. George; H. Henry; I. Isaac; J. John; L. Louis; N. Nicholas; P. Peter; R. Richard; S. Samuel; T. Thomas; W. William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (O. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Th. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Ps. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obli., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Adams, W. T., ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Strange sights abroad; or, a voyage in European waters. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. 6+305 p. il. D. (All-over-the-world ser., no. 4.) cl., $1.25.

Continues the adventures of Louis Belgrave and his friends on the yacht Guardian-Mother. The yachting party cross the ocean to the Azores, call at Madeira, scale the peak of Teneriffe and have an exciting and rather dangerous experience in Morocco.

Addams, Miss Jane, Woods, Rob. A., Huntington, Rev. J. O. S., [and others.] Philanthropy and social progress: seven essays: delivered before the School of Applied Ethics at Plymouth, Mass., during the session of 1892; with introd. by H. C. Adams. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1893.] c. 10+268 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The titles of the seven essays are as follows: The subjective necessity for social settlements, and the objective value of a social settlement, by Miss Jane Addams; The University settlement idea, by Robert A. Woods; Philanthropy—its success and failure, by Father James O. S. Huntington; Philanthropy and morality, by Father James O. S. Huntington; The ethics of social progress, by Professor Franklin H. Giddings; The principles and chief dangers of the administration of charity, by Bernard Boanquet, M.A.

Ashmont, [pseud. for Dr. J. Frank Perry.] Kennel secrets: how to breed, exhibit and manage dogs. Bost., J. L. Thayer Pub. Co., 248 Boylston St., 1893. 8°, cl., $3.

Baldwin, Ja. Mark. Elements of psychology. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1893. c. 16+372 p. il. D. cl., net, $1.50.

A compact volume which is a simplification of the author's larger "Handbook of psychology," differing from it chiefly in its omissions. Illustrative facts and explanations have been added. The treatment of the nervous system has been put at the beginning. A short glossary of terms has been added before the first chapter, and a list of general works of reference to keep the pages clear of quotations. Each chapter is headed by reference to the larger work for fuller exposition.

Barbe, L. Third French reader and writer. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12°, (Parallel grammar ser.) cl., 50 c.

Barine, Arvède. Bernardin de Saint-Pierre; tr. by F. E. Gordon; with a preface by Augustin Birrell. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1893. 14+209 p. D. (The great French writers ser.) cl., $1.

"The life of Bernardin de Saint-Pierre is so unusual, so interesting, so suggestive and amusing, that the grumpest of Anglo-Saxons need not complain of the fact that no series of Great French writers would be complete which did not contain the name of the author of 'Paul and Virginia.'" So Augustin Birrell says in his interesting preface, and further he remarks: "Saint-Pierre was no ordinary person, either as man or author. His was a strong and original character, more bent on action than on literature. Though a master of style and a great painter in words, he was ever a preacher, a sermonneur, as Sainte-Beuve calls him."

Benedict, Emma Lee. Pieces to speak. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. 3+113 p. S. bds., 50 c.

A collection of fresh, bright verse for children to declaim. The subjects are selected with taste, and the matter is new and interesting as well as instructive. The articles are classified under the following headings: Nature songs; The ways of some animal friends; Hearthstone rhymes; Cold water songs; Some airy, fairy dramatics.

Benjamin, Park. The voltaic cell. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1893. 4+563 p. 8°, cl., $5.

Billings, J. S., M.D. Ventilation and heating. N. Y., The Engineering Record, 277 Pearl St., 1893. 500 p. il. 8°, cl., $6.

Bishop, Ja. L. Code practice in personal actions: an elementary treatise upon the practice in a civil action, as governed by the provisions of the N. Y. code of civil procedure. Prepared for the use of students. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1893. c. 23+567 p. O. shp., $5.

Blaine, Ja. G. Life of James G. Blaine. Balt., Md., R. H. Woodward & Co., 1893. 8°, cl., subs., $1.50; mor., $2.

Brainard, F. R. Knots, splices, hitches, bends and lashings; illustrated and described. N. Y., Practical Pub. Co., 21 Park Row, 1893. c. 76 p. S. cl., $1.

A useful book for seamen, yachtsmen, canoeists, builders and mechanics.

Brand, Ja., D.D. The beasts of Ephesus; with an introd. by Francis E. Clark, D.D. Chic., The Advance Pub. Co., 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 206 p. D. cl., $1.

The writer believes the beasts of Ephesus were figurative and still exist in the temptations that beset Christians. He dwells specially upon the temptations of the young. Among these he makes special mention of the city, money, bad books, theatre, cards, clubs, dances, social purity, market infidelity, etc. Intended primarily for the societies of Christian Endeavor. Dr. Brand is the pastor of the First Congregational Church, Oberlin, O.

Brinton, Dan. G., M.D. The pursuit of happiness: a book of studies and strowings. Phil., D. McKay, 1893. c. '92. 4+292 p. D. cl., $1.

Discusses "Happiness as the aim of life," "How far our happiness depends on nature and fate," "How far our happiness depends on ourselves," "How far our happiness depends on others" and "The consolations of affliction."

Brook, F. de. Cavalry outpost duties; tr. by C. C. Carr. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1893. 26+386 p. 18°, mor., $2.

Burnham, Mrs. Clara Louise. Dr. Latimer: a story of Casco Bay. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 3+384 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Dr. Latimer, a prematurely gray physician of forty, spends his life in encouraging and helping everybody. Three orphan sisters begin a kindergarten in a little flat on the outskirts of Boston, and Dr. Latimer proves their good genius. The scene changes to Mt. Casco Bay, and the characters all develop during a beautiful summer among the White Mountains. Dr. Latimer's history is a surprise. An encouraging book for women bread-winners.

Burnz, Mrs. Eliza Boardman. The Sermon on the Mount in Burnz pronouncing print. N. Y., Burnz & Co., 24 Clinton Pl., 1893. 5-25 p. sq. S. pap., 10 c.

Burnz, Mrs. Eliza Boardman. The step by step primer in Burnz pronouncing print: correct pronunciation shown without new letters or change of spelling. N. Y., Burnz & Co., 1893 [1893.] c. '92. 94 p. sq. S. bds., 25 c.

The "pronunciation print" is an ingenious method of giving the phonetic spelling of words by denoting the silent letters by hair line type, the vowel sounds by diacritic marks, and the placing underneath a letter which gives a wrong sound a small letter which expresses the true sound. In "The step by step primer" only one additional sound is introduced at each new lesson.

Burrows, J. L., D.D. What Baptists believe. Balt., Md., R. H. Woodward & Co., 1893. 320 p. 16°, cl., 60 c.

Campbell, Sally. Jack, Jr. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1893.] c. 348 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A book for boys. The story of two street arabs, "Jack" and "Jack, Jr.," who form a friendship for each other which proves mutually helpful. Jack loses his life in the attempt to save a clerk in the store where he is employed as an errand-boy, and Jack, Jr., is left alone. He finds friends who send him to school, and the account of his school life, with its record of kind deeds and of many Christian character forms the larger part of the book.

Colles, Mrs. Julia Keese. Authors and writers associated with Morristown; with a chapter on historic Morristown. Morristown, N. J., Vogt Brothers, 1893. 496 p. il. 16°, subs., $3.

Collingswood, W. G. The life and work of John Ruskin. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 2 v., 14+260+21; 5+261-565+21 p. por. il. O. cl., $5. Large-pap. ed., limited to 350 copies, cl., net, $15.

Those who in any adequate degree appreciate Mr. Ruskin will heartily welcome the two volumes in which Mr. W. G. Collingswood, for many years his secretary, describes his life and work. The four books into which the volumes are divided relate to (1) The boy poet [1814-1842]; (2) The art critic [1842-1860]; (3) Hermit and heretic [1860-1870]; (4) Professor and prophet [1870-1892]. Mr. Collingswood has had access to much important material, but has not included a large number of Mr. Ruskin's letters; to these he has added letters of biographical interest by Carlyle and Browning. The great interest of Mr. Collingswood's work is supplemented by several portraits of Mr. Ruskin and some other illustrations. An appendix contains a chronology, a bibliography (7 p.) of Ruskin's writings, and "a catalogue of drawings by Mr. Ruskin."

Collins, Mabel. A debt of honor. N. Y., Hovendon Co., [1893.] c. '91. 3-220 p. D. (Metropolitan ser., no. 12.) pap., 50 c.

The old story of a man who marries without love a rich woman that he may pay "a debt of honor," made at cards, and thereby breaks the heart of a young girl he does love.

Cowper, W. The best letters of William Cowper; ed. with an introd. by Anna B. McMahan. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1893. c. '92. 302 p. S. (Laurel-crowned letters ser.) cl., $1.

The dates of these letters run from 1765 to 1794, and belong to the latter part of Cowper's life, when he began to write and publish poetry. They are addressed to his cousin Lady Hesketh, to Joseph Hill, the Rev. William Cawthorne Unwin and others. They tell the uneventful story of his life, and show him to have been of a gentle, lovable nature, guided by a cheerful philosophy, and possessing a sound good sense.

*Cox, Arthur Cleveland, (Bp.) Holy writ and modern thought: a review of time's teachers. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1893. 271 p. 12°, cl., $1.

*Cronkhite, Adelbert. Gunnery for non-commissioned officers. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1893. 450 p. 18°, mor., $2.

Curtiss, G. L., M.D. and D.D. Manual of Methodist Episcopal church history, showing the evolution of Methodism in the United States of America; for the use of students and general readers. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. '92. 5+373 p. O. (De Pauw University ser.) cl., $1.75.

Covers a period of one hundred and twenty-six years, from 1766 to 1892; gives the leading facts in the history of the Methodist Episcopal Church in chronological order.

*Daniels, Mrs. Cora Linn. As it is to be. Franklin, Mass., published by Mrs. Cora Linn Daniels, 1893. 200 p. il. por. 12°, cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Daudet, Alphonse. Contes de Daudet, (including "La Belle Nivernaise;") ed. with introd., notes and indices by A. Guyot Cameron. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1893. c. 22+302 p. por. D. cl., net, 80 c.

Eighteen selections from Daudet's most popular stories. The preface and introduction give an excellent estimate of Daudet. The annotator is professor of French in Yale University and his notes are very practical. A list of works of reference, an index of derivations, a grammatical and historical index, an index of proper names, an index of idioms and a chronological bibliography of Daudet's writings (2 pages) are included.

*Desty, Robert. A manual of practice in the courts of the U. S., embracing the provisions of the constitution, the revised statutes and amendments thereto relating to federal courts, together with the rules promulgated by the supreme ct. of the U. S. with notes of decisions. 8th ed., rev., rewritten and enl. to 2 v. San Francisco, Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1893. c. 29+666; 671-1370 p. T. shp., $6.

*Doyle, Rev. Francis Cuthbert. An introduction to the study of rhetoric for the use of schools. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 12+181+180+93 p. 12°, cl., $1.40.

*Dunbar, Newell. Phillips Brooks, the man, the preacher and the author; with an introd. by Jos. Cook, and an estimate by F. W. Farrar, D.D. Bost., John K. Hastings, Office of the Christian, 47 and 49 Cornhill, 1893. 342 p. il. 12°, hf. seal, $2.75; cl., subs., $2.

Elliott, Sarah Barnwell. John Paget: a novel. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1893. c. '92. 3+407 p. D. cl., $1.25.

After the civil war, little twin brothers are separated, one going to New York City to become the ward of a worldly cousin, the other to Corpus Christi, Texas, under the care of a noble clergyman, also a cousin. The Northern boy becomes a fashionable man of the world, the Southern boy after a wild life as cowboy, studies for the ministry. Later the brothers meet. John Paget, the clergyman, longs to do lasting good to the poor. There is a strong arraignment of fashionable churches and devotion to creeds. The yellow fever at the South and the work of nuns and lay sisters play important parts in the sad dénouement.

Erokmann, Emile, and Chatrian, Alex. Histoire d'un paysan; ed. with notes by W. S. Lyon. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893. 95 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 25 c.

Evangelical Lutheran Church. The distinctive doctrine and usages of the general bodies of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in the United States. Phil., Lutheran Pub. Soc., [1893.] c. 193 p. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

The general bodies of the Lutheran Church in this country are six. Joint Synod of Ohio, organized 1818; General Synod, 1830; German Iowa Synod, 1834; General Council, 1837; Synodical Conference, 1872; and United Synod in the South, 1883. The book makes the distinctive doctrines of these bodies accessible to laymen in cheap and convenient form.

Hovey, R. Seaward: an elegy on the death of Thomas William Parsons. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1893. c. 4+44+19 p. O. cl., $1.50.

This elegy was originally published in The Independent, Nov. 17, 1892, where it attracted considerable attention. Mr. Hovey has published privately two little volumes of verses under the titles "The laurel" and "Launcelot and Guenevere." This volume is printed on extra quality of parchment paper, with wide margin, and is illuminated throughout with beautifully designed initials, in medieval red.

Hudson, Thomson Jay. The law of psychic phenomena: a working hypothesis for the systematic study of hypnotism, spiritism, mental, therapeutics, etc. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1893. c. 409 p. D. cl., $1.50.

As its title indicates, this book deals with the scientific aspects of psychic phenomena, with the avowed object of bringing psychology within the domain of the exact sciences. To that end the author formulates a working hypothesis for the systematic study of all psychic phenomena, normal or abnormal. He holds that all such phenomena, whether designated by the name of hypnotism, mesmerism, somnambulism, trance, spiritism, demonology, miracle, psycho-therapeutics, genius or insanity, are to be referred to some general law which will correlate the whole subject-matter and remove it from the realm of the supernatural.

"These inartistic pieces are written fresh from the author's heart, but they are none the less genuine for that. They have merit, unusual merit, and though they are simply dedicated to Mrs. Johnson's children, and are not intended to make a name for herself, there are many places in this little volume which the world will not willingly allow to die. The writer has a tender love for nature, a wonderfully sweet expression and a touch that reaches the soul."—Boston Herald.

Contains Mr. Kilbon's plan for instructing beginners in woodwork as it was arranged in 1886, modified and improved from year to year as experience dictated.

Kinley, D. The history, organization and influence of the independent treasury of the United States. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1893.] c. 7+829 p. D. (Library of economics and politics, ed. by R. T. Ely, no. 1.) cl., $1.50.

An historical and critical examination of this important institution. The author, who is assistant and fellow in economics in the University of Wisconsin, says in his preface: "This essay was begun with the purpose only of tracing the influence of the independent treasury on business. But in view of the growing importance of the subject, it seemed best to make the study as complete as my opportunities would permit. The essay was begun with a prejudice in favor of the sub-treasury system, because it seemed pre-eminent an institution of the people. But as a result of the investigation I have been forced to change my opinion, and regard the system as injurious to the business interests of the country." The first volume of a new series designed to include works dealing with timely topics in a fresh, interesting and instructive manner. A list of works consulted covers two pages.

Luther, Martin. Commentary on the Sermon on the Mount; tr. by C. A. Hay, D.D. Phil., Lutheran Pub. Soc., [1893.] c. '92. 506 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The series of sermons preached by Luther in 1530 on the 5th, 6th and 7th chapters of Matthew were edited in the form of a commentary by Dr. Irmischer in the Erlangen Edition of Luther's works. The translator has preserved the roughness and fierceness of Luther's speech, presuming that intelligent readers will make due allowance for the style of speech common in his day and almost justified by the aggravating circumstances with which he contended.

Phelps, Eliz. Stuart, [now Mrs. Herbert D. Ward.] Donald Marcy. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 3+242 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Donald Marcy, a rich, careless student in a New England University, is suspended and rusticated for two terms for having been ringleader in a case of cruel hazing. He is put into the family of a poor Vermont minister, who inspires him with a love of learning. The minister's daughter, also a college graduate, makes a man of him in character and aspiration, and the story leaves her waiting for him to regain his lost fortune.

Practical hints on joint-wiping for beginners in plumbing. N. Y., David Williams, 96-100 Reade St., 1893. 2-48 p. il. O. pap., 25 c.

Two articles reprinted from The Metal Worker on the method of joint-wiping, an operation that requires perhaps more manual skill than anything else that a plumber is called upon to do; both articles were written by a practical plumber.

Prang, L., Hicks, Mary Dana, and Clark, J. S. Color instruction: suggestions for a course of instruction in color for public schools. Bost., The Prang Educational Co., 1893. c. 9+187 p. il. D. cl., $1.

This book presents to teachers in a simple and systematic manner the educational principles involved in the right teaching of color. It bases the instruction on the actual condition of the color sense in children, as ascertained by careful experiment, and leads up from this beginning to the development of the pupil's power to appreciate that wider range of colors which constitutes the ideal color unit of nature and art, and power to recognize and demonstrate in individual work the underlying principles of color harmony. The methods it advocates are those of self-activity on the part of the pupil—self-activity both in the observation of color effects and the use of color materials. It suggests a sequence of practical exercises for class-room work in different grades.

Reifsnider, Anna C. How she earned it; or, $25,000 in eleven years; by the woman who did it. St. Louis, Mo., The Anna C. Reifsnider Book Co., 1892 [1893.] c. 4-204 p. por. D. (The happy hour lib.) cl., 75 c.

Mrs. Reifsnider was a Southern girl. After the war she began to teach. She married before she was eighteen and was left a widow at twenty-two with two children. She learned stenography and met with her chief success as a reader of the notes of lawyers and through her capacity to work day and night to get copy out for the courts. The bulk of the book is filled with advice to boys and girls who have to earn a living.

The first volume of a series of the works of modern French writers, to be printed in their own language and designed to be used as reading-books by students.

Savage, R. H.: The masked Venus: a story of many lands. N. Y., The American News Co., 1893. c. 284 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The story of a Southern girl who, betrayed and deserted by a Union officer during the rebellion, devoted her life to revenging her wrongs, first on her betrayer, killing him, practically, because he refused atonement for his crime, and then on mankind in general, many men successively being led captive and to total wreck through her irresistible fascination.

Schelling, Felix E. The life and writings of George Gascoigne: with three poems heretofore not reprinted. Bost., Ginn & Co., [1893.] 131 p. O. (Publications of the University of Pennsylvania, series in philology, literature and archaeology, v. 2, no. 4.) bds., $1.

George Gascoigne was descended from an ancient and honorable family of Yorkshire, England, and was born between the years 1530 and 1535, the exact date not being known. He was one of the great pioneers of Elizabethan poetry. During his life he published many poems and dramas. Prof. Schelling, of the University of Penn., offers an interesting account of his works and his adventurous life. The book contains a bibliography of his writings (7 p.).

Sheppard, Eliz. S., ["E. Berger," pseud.] Counterparts; or, the cross of love; with an introd. and notes by G. P. Upton. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1893. c. 2 v., 4-371; 3-380 p. il. D. cl., $2.50.

Miss Sheppard made her reputation under the pseudonym of "E. Berger," which appeared on the title-page of the original edition of "Charles Auchester," published in England in 1853. "Counterparts" was published the following year, and the two works soon won a distinct place in literature. Miss Sheppard was a protégée of the Disraelis, the present work being dedicated to Mrs. Disraeli. Mr. Upton says in his introduction, "Counterparts" may be best characterized as a romance of temperaments. The problems involved—animal magnetism, metempsychosis, views of marriage, medicine and hygiene, the counterparts of physical nature, mental influences, the occult sciences of this world and speculations on the future life—were deep subjects for the consideration of a girl not yet out of her teens; but she has discussed them with remarkable mental grasp.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 6, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

MOVING AND "TAKING STOCK."—I.

MOVING a book-store, though not a desirable event in a bookseller's career, sometimes becomes a necessity. It would be presumptuous on our part to attempt to lay down hard and fast rules to hold good under all circumstances, as to the way to move a stock of books, and we must therefore restrict ourselves simply to outlining a programme that may be useful in case a removal is from one building to another in the same locality, and under ordinary circumstances.

The first requisite in moving a book stock is method founded on careful previous planning. Under no circumstances must the arrangement of stock be interfered with. Whether the plan adopted be that of putting the books into packing-cases, or tying them up in bundles, the stock should be disposed so that the arrangement on the shelves may be preserved as nearly as possible. The cases and bundles should then be numbered and placed in order in the new quarters, so that they may be put back in the shelves without trouble and loss of time.

If the removal be from one house to another in the same locality and the margin of time be as liberal as a week, the operation of removal is not so very formidable. Unless the fixtures and shelving already in use are of hard wood and cannot be replaced excepting at considerable cost, it is better to fit up the new store with fresh shelving that may be put up and painted in a day and night.

Assuming that the new quarters are ready for occupancy, consider which part of the stock to move first. Loss of business must be avoided as much as is practicable, and arrangements must be made that there shall be the least interference with trade at the older and better-known location. Therefore all of the old stock and that part of the new stock which is least in demand should go first, and so on to the end, until the few last loads include the most popular and best-selling books. Then the old store may be closed, the keys given up and the sign put up—"Removed to —."

In removing a short distance only, we should, unless it be unavoidable, discourage packing books in cases, tying them up in bundles, or transferring them in baskets. Books packed in boxes or baskets require a great deal of care and time in handling. The stock will be apt to become mixed up, especially if it is of a miscellaneous character; and in transporting it much trouble will be experienced in keeping the cases in order, so that they can be opened consecutively. Baskets and bundles will be found most vexing of all, both requiring extra handling, not taking into consideration the waste of packing-paper, the risk of loss and damage and numerous other drawbacks. Above all, we would discourage the plan of covering the trucks or wagons with carpets or paper, and putting the books on this, side by side, in rows. By this method much risk is run of damaging the books by rough handling and dropping by persons inexperienced in handling books; besides, confusion and mixing up the books is unavoidable when many are handling and carrying the stock to and from the wagons.

A practical method of moving books a reasonable distance—say from ten to twenty blocks—is the following, which has been tried successfully by one of the largest book-stores in this country. Have constructed of planed lumber boxes about four feet long, three feet wide, and a foot deep. To both sides of these boxes affix stout 3 x 5 sticks that project from the ends say about 9 inches, and that may be used as handles:

These boxes represent about the usual width and half the height of a section of book-shelving. Every box should be provided with four loose shelves.

In moving begin at one end of the store with the first or lower section. Remove the books of the first shelf and put them in the box, backs up, and in a row. Place one of the loose shelves on top. Then take the second shelf and treat it in the same way as the first, then the third and fourth, putting a loose shelf between every row. This will fill the box, which thus represents, in portable shape, half a section of books as they stood in the shelves. By making the boxes a foot deep the backs of the books are protected. As four of these boxes form a load for the bottom of an ordinary truck, it will be found best not to attempt more than two sections at a time, resting the first half-section on the floor and packing the boxes one on top of the other. When the men carry the boxes to the wagon the last one filled will be put on first, thus bringing the first shelf on top, so that when it goes to the new store the people stationed there will get the boxes in the order they should stand on the shelves. They will be obliged to do no unpacking, but simply to lift out every row and put it on the shelves in the precise order it was in the old store. There will be no mixing and no confusion, the picking up and emptying requiring but very little time. Indeed, the stock, can be taken down and put up as fast as the packed boxes get to the new store and the empty boxes reach the old store. Three sets of boxes will be found enough, thus providing one set full for the wagon on its way to the new quarters, one returning empty, and one being filled at the old store.

If the distance be longer than the one specified, it may be well to tighten the rows of books by inserting wedges of binder's board at the side, to prevent the books from rubbing against each other by the jolting of the wagon. All books in binding should be carefully wrapped up, either singly or by twos and threes.

When the tables are reached the boxes may be filled with the stock on them, and the boxes and tables can then be sent away together and set up in the new store in the same order.

By this method business may continue at the old store and be begun in the new quarters, thus doubling the chances of making sales instead of suspending business altogether, as is generally the case during removal.

AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS.

From the New York Sun.

We have received a marked copy of the Author, an English periodical conducted by Mr. Walter Besant, the novelist, and devoted to the interests of authors, more especially as opposed to those of publishers. . . .

The articles to which our special attention is called relate to particular methods of outwitting the assumed knavery of publishers, the first of them being "An American View" of the best way of preventing false returns of the sales of books on which the authors are entitled to receive a copyright, or royalty, on every copy sold. It is by Mr. Charles Burr Todd, who signs himself "Secretary of the Association of American Authors," and his plan is to amend the copyright law so as to provide that the author shall furnish a stamp containing the usual copyright form, together with his autograph, and that the publisher shall affix such stamp to every copy of the book printed. Then by subtracting the number of unsold copies from the number of stamps received from the author the actual sales of the book would be obtained. But if publishers are the knaves he assumes them to be what good will come from the extra trouble and expense? The rascally publisher can miscount, unless the author is at hand to watch him; and he would probably refuse to let the man of genius meddle in the business.

It is a childish device, as childish as the suspicions of which its invention is the expression. Publishers could not carry on their business successfully if they were not honest in their transactions. They have a reputation for mercantile honor to maintain. Their business must be conducted with a system which prevents the cheating of authors, or anybody else with whom they deal.

The real trouble with these authors is that the publishers return the sales as they actually are and not as the writers had expected them to be. Usually the vanity of authors is offended when they see this businesslike statement. They cannot conceive it possible that works of so great genius have been bought by so few people. It is much easier for them to imagine that the publishers have not made honest returns; and such suspicion is far more natural to them than doubt of their own desert, or of the public favor. That disappointment awaits nine authors out of ten. Probably not one-quarter of the books published yield any considerable profit to their authors, or even pay them the price of mechanics' wages for the time and labor expended in writing them. Of course the publishers are not to blame for this bad luck. It is for their interest to sell as many copies of every book as the public will buy.

Anybody who sets out to write a book with the expectation of making a fortune by it has the chances against him by a hundred to one. Even the novelists who are successful in winning fame enough to get more than a very moderate pecuniary compensation for their writing are very few during the course of a whole generation. The actual sales of the great run of books, more especially at this time of the brisk literary competition of newspapers and periodicals, are much less than is usually supposed. On the majority of miscellaneous books, as they are termed in the trade phraseology, the publisher is fortunate if he gets back his outlay for mere manufacture and the interest on it. The competition of the book trade, too, makes the proportionate profit of the author not so large as it ought to be.

If Mr. Besant, Mr. Todd and their literary friends and sympathizers are so suspicious of the regular publishers, why do they not organize themselves into a publishing association for the printing of their own books, instead of getting up societies whose formation is an insult to the honorable men on whose business ability they now depend? Then they could go down to the shop and count every book sold, and there would be no need of stamps such as Mr. Todd proposes.

A LITERARY DETECTIVE.

"THERE is a man in New York who has literary tendencies of the most peculiar kind," says Mr. E. Bok in the Boston Journal. "His particular fancy is to go through each book and magazine and see how many mistakes he can find. His knowledge of the printer's art is absolute, and he is perhaps as dangerous a man to look over a printed book as there is in America. His library is certainly unique, and some of his books would be worth a fortune to their authors and publishers to obtain them and make the corrections of glaring errors which this man of singular genius has detected. I was shown there some of the most popular and famous books of the day, with from 50 to 500 errors marked in every one of them. One novel, of national fame, had scarcely an unmarked page in it. Errors seemed to run riot, errors, too, of the most glaring kind, and yet I question whether ten people out of the tens of thousands who have read this book ever noticed a hundredth part of them. It would interest the Century people, I think, to see the copy of their dictionary that I saw, while the Appletons, I fancy, would weep if they could see their Encyclopædia as it came from under the hand of this skilful literary detective. I question whether there were 100 pages combined in those two works free from corrections. The pages of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' were less marked, but hundreds upon hundreds of errors were, nevertheless, noted. Mr. Blaine's 'Twenty Years of Congress,' Gen. Grant's famous work, Gen. Sherman's volumes, Joseph Jefferson's 'Reminiscences,' all these works were there literally black with pencilled corrections of errors which would surprise their authors if they could see them. Misspelled names were there by the hundred; the wrong dates could hardly be counted; one statement deliberately contradicted another statement only a few pages before, and so it went on all through scores of volumes of the most important of American reference works. Both Webster and Worcester had their dictionaries here revised, with corrections on an Anglo-Saxon basis which seemed beyond argument.

"In looking over a file of current magazines I was given a verification of a statement often made and frequently proved. This is that not once in a thousand times is the table of contents of a magazine correctly made. There was not a magazine in his cases which was not almost dotted with mistakes of every kind.

"The humorous side of this literature was well shown in this collection. In one novel by one of the best-known writers of to-day the heroine started in with light blue eyes and before the story was half through she had been given eyes of the darkest brown. In an English story, written by an author of repute, and accepted only recently as one of the greatest novels of the century, the heroine in one scene was made on one page to stoop down and tie her shoestring, while on three pages further along, directly following, it was said of the same girl that she had remained barefooted the entire day. Cousins suddenly transformed into brothers are numerous. And thus one is amused to find the most marvellous mistakes in books we think we have carefully read. Either we read too much to read carefully or we read too fast, but it has remained for one man to point out mistakes in our own reading, which, once pointed out, are obvious enough."

IN AN OLD BOOK-STORE.

From the Chicago Sunday Evening Herald.

Rows of volumes, old and dusty, big and little, worn and musty, standing in serried ranks, far too old for tricks and pranks, all waiting for the bookworm cranks. Some bear marks of faded gentility, some the imprimatur of nobility, and others an air of chronic debility. Falstaffian regiments these, covers gone and prefaces, leaves yellowed by many years, stained perhaps with once hot tears, soiled by fingers that now await the opening of the books of fate. Here Horace and Livy and Dante stand on intimate terms with Hugo and Sand, while Virgil's "Eclogues" and Georgics charmingly nestle by Greeley's "What I Know of Farming;" and rocky Scio's grand old bard is shelved with the lectures of Artemus Ward. Stately folios once worth much pelf, sink by gravity's law to the lowest shelf. What well-stuffed heads our ancestors carried, if over these tomes they tarried! What bushels of chaff they waded through to gather the grains of wheat so few! Perhaps they gathered more, at last, than we who have so often passed the golden grain of truth, and looked for opinions ready made, and cooked to suit a taste for confectionery, affected, fine and literary.

Well, here they stand, battered and torn, faded and cracked and old and worn, from many a distant clime and shore, from centuries numbering three or four, full of quaint and curious lore—of theories and hypotheses dead long ago, too dead to sneeze; of science once most proudly stated now as romance or humor rated; laws of which no man afraid is, theology sulphurous as Hades, and medicine that of no aid is. Yet burning words there are to give their writer dead a name to live and power over living men, to straighten or enlarge their ken.

They wait, intent, and do not stir to lure the passing customer. He seems to hear their silent cry, and stays to look with greedy eye, while they their secret magic ply. O'er him they weave their magic spell, till he is fettered sure and well by the old, the new, the near, the far, the false, the true, things that are not and are; and from the spell he cannot break, nor off the strong delusion shake; so he leaves a part of his well-worn pelf and a vacant space on the dealer's shelf. Away to his room like a miser he carries his latest discovery, and in his study there live again the old-time books and the old-time men.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WE announce with a sense of deep regret, which all who knew him will share, the death on the 28th of April from pneumonia, of Mr. Albert B. Yohn, manager for Tait, Sons & Company, publishers, of New York. Mr. Yohn was born in Indianapolis in 1847 and was graduated at the Asbury University in 1869. As a member of the firm of Yohn Brothers in Indianapolis and as librarian of the City Library, no citizen of Indianapolis was more widely or more honorably known. In 1876 he, with Mr. H. D. Monachesi, compiled "The Stationers' Handbook," published by F. Leypoldt, which is still a standard work on the subject of which it treats. Shortly before coming to New York he had charge of the retail department of Bowen-Merrill Company. Mr. Yohn left his native city six months ago to assume the management of the new publishing house of Tait, Sons & Company, where his unremitting and faithful diligence and unflinching courtesy won him the esteem and regard of a host of friends, and added much to the popularity of the house, whose rapidly expanding business taxed his capacity and strength to their utmost. Mr. Tait, the president of the company, pays this well-merited tribute to his faithful lieutenant: "After an experience of thirty years in business, I can honestly say I have never met with a more faithful, more zealous, or more intelligent assistant, or one who without effort and simply by mere beauty of character more quickly endeared himself to his associates. No one could know Mr. Yohn without feeling the better for the knowledge. He was a Christian whose life adorned Christianity, and his death plunged my entire staff in grief from the highest to the lowest. Mr. Whitcomb Riley, his life-long friend, said to me several weeks ago, 'You have a great treasure in Mr. Yohn; he is the most lovable man I have ever known,' and if any words of mine could add force to Mr. Riley's I should wish them placed on record now." Mr. Yohn leaves a widow and two sons, 17 and 19 years of age.

CHARLES DE MAZADE, the noted French author, editor and critic, died in Paris on April 27, aged 72. M. Mazade was employed for some years in editing the Revue des Deux Mondes and other publications, and was the author of various works on Italy, Spain, Poland and other subjects. He wrote a book on the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-1871.

MRS. HARRIET NEWELL WOODS BAKER, who under the pen-name of "Madeline Leslie" wrote many books that had a wide circulation, died in Brooklyn, April 27, aged 78 years. Her most famous work was "Tim, the Scissors-Grinder," which has been translated into several languages, and has had a circulation of 500,000 copies. Mrs. Baker was the author of nearly 160 volumes, many of which are in Sunday-school libraries.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CARLISLE, PA.—W. W. Fletcher has opened a book and stationery store here.

CHICAGO, ILL.—F. P. Kenkel, well known to the book trade of Chicago, has purchased the publishing plant of the late Louis Schick.

CHICAGO, ILL.—George F. Wilson, the publisher who was convicted in the Circuit Court of the Northern District of Illinois of the violation of the postal act of September 6, 1888, has been granted a new trial by the Supreme Court.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Chinese Weekly News Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Wong Chin Foo, Charles S. Stanton and John W. Henning.

COMPTON, CAL.—Robert Harris has bought the book and stationery store of George H. Marsden.

DALLAS, TEX.—R. B. Harwood & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

EAU CLAIRE, WIS.—Raymer's "Old Book" Store has broken out in a new place, this time at Eau Claire, under the proprietorship of J. E. Hobart. Mr. Hobart was formerly associated with T. Alexander, at 215 Washington Avenue, So., and later with the C. D. Raymer Co., 243

4th Avenue, So., both of Minneapolis, Minn. It is proposed to make this the headquarters in this part of the country for old and second-hand books of all kinds, and to this end Mr. Hobart would be pleased to receive catalogues, whenever issued, from all second-hand dealers as well as from publishers. Notices of sales of job-lots and collections of books are also requested. Books relating to the early history of Wisconsin specially desirable. The location is 321 South Barstow Street.

FARMINGTON, ILL.—L. G. Baylor, bookseller, has sold out.

MONROE, WIS.—George N. Sutherland, bookseller, has sold out.

NEW YORK CITY.—Brentano's are now in their new quarters at 31 Union Square, West. In a few days they will be able to show one of the finest book-stores in the country.

NEW YORK CITY.—Lovell Brothers & Co. is the title of a new publishing firm that has established itself at 142 and 144 Worth Street. It is composed of John W. Lovell and his brothers and John Hovendon, late with the Hovendon Company. The Home Book Company at the same address is also one of the Lovell combinations. The new combination is said to control the plates of a large number of books.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of Ward, Lock, Bowden & Co., Salisbury Square, E. C., London, and 15 East 12th Street, New York, has been converted into a limited liability company, and will accordingly henceforth be known to the trade and the public under the title of Ward, Lock & Bowden, Limited. The reasons that have rendered this step desirable are as follows: The partnership as regards Mr. E. Ward, who ceased to take an active part in the business some years ago, has been terminated by the effluxion of time; and Mr. George Lock's decease occurred in August, 1891. Since Mr. George Lock's death the business has been carried on by Mr. James Bowden and Mr. John H. Lock, assisted by the sons of the late Mr. Lock. The entire capital of the company has been taken up by the partners and trustees, no portion being offered to the public.

NEW YORK CITY.—The New York History Co. and the publishers of the Magazine of American History have removed to 10 Astor Place.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—A. O. Halterman, bookseller, has retired from business.

WABASH, IND.—Latchem & Alber, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

HOW TO SPLIT PAPER.—Please describe how paper is split.

WESTERN.
Coat both sides of the paper to be split with flour paste, working well into the paper. Take two pieces of stout white muslin and paste one on each side of the paper. Smooth down carefully, remove excess of paste, and allow the whole to dry thoroughly. Artificial heat may be used if desired to hasten the drying. When dry, grasp the two pieces of cloth firmly, one in each hand, and pull slowly and evenly. The paper should split in the middle, leaving the cut or printing on each side.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE "Further Recollections of a Happy Life," which Mrs. John Addington Symonds has selected from the autobiography of Marianne North, relate to the years between 1858 and 1869 and to travels in Europe, Egypt and Syria. The book is nearly ready in London.

DONOHUE, HENNEBERRY & Co., Chicago, Ill., call attention to their "Vest-Pocket Webster's Dictionary," 5½ by 2½ inches in size, which further contains a complete manual of parliamentary practice, a comprehensive vocabulary of foreign words, valuable tables for the computation of interest, and much more valuable information of various kinds. The book is a tempting one for news-stands.

ROSALIND GILLETTE SHAWK, district nurse for the Brooklyn Red Cross Society, has just published (through P. Blakiston, Son & Co.) a little book prepared especially for visiting nurses, to which Mrs. Helen C. Jinks has added an appendix explaining the organization and work of visiting and district nursing societies. This is an effort to popularize a branch of charitable work about which very little is known.

MR. JOHN H. SCRIBNER, who for fifteen years has been identified with the firm of Charles Scribner's Sons as a literary adviser, has resigned that position to become business manager of the Presbyterian Board of Publication in Philadelphia, succeeding Mr. John A. Black. Mr. Scribner is a Princeton man, and a nephew of the late Charles Scribner, the founder of the Scribner firm. Mr. E. W. Morse succeeds Mr. Scribner, without, however, resigning the post he has filled so acceptably for several years—that of editor of The Book Buyer.

BRENTANO's have in preparation "The Third Alarm," the first of a series of adventurous tales of the New York Fire Department, specially intended for young people, and written by James L. Ford; the "Lives" of Charlotte Cushman and Macready, for a series of biographies of players, by W. T. Price; reprints, illustrated with original etchings of Mrs. Fairstair's "Memoirs of a London Doll" and "The Doll and Her Friends," and a compilation entitled "Love in Letters," with brief notes and a preface by Henri Pène du Bois, with portraits etched by Frank M. Gregory.

It is proposed to begin the publication shortly of six dainty little volumes, fully illustrated, of "Stories from Scribner," the series to include many of the best short stories that have appeared in the magazine in recent years. The first of these volumes will consist of and be called "Stories of New York." The titles of the stories are: "From Four to Six," by Annie Eliot; "The Commonest Possible Story," by Bliss Perry; "The End of the Beginning," by George A. Hibbard; "A Puritan Ingénue," by John S. Wood, and "Mrs. Manstey's View," by Edith Wharton. The second volume, "Stories of the Railway," will have for its contents: "As the Sparks Fly Upwards," by George A. Hibbard; "How I Sent My Aunt to Baltimore," by Charles S. Davison; "Run to Seed," by Thomas Nelson Page, and "Flandroe's Mogul," by A. C. Gordon. The volumes to follow will be "Stories of the South," "Stories of the Sea," "Stories of Italy" and "Stories of the Army." All are to be illustrated and tastefully bound in sixteenmo size.

THE CENTURY COMPANY show in their exhibit at the Columbian Exposition a great number of interesting original manuscripts and drawings for important illustrations in The Century and St. Nicholas. Manuscript poems by Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier and Bryant will appear in the St. Nicholas exhibit, with the manuscript of the first chapter of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," by Mrs. Burnett, and original stories by other well-known writers. The originals of famous letters and documents quoted in Messrs. Nicolay and Hay's "Life of Lincoln" will be shown. Letters from General Grant to the editors of The Century regarding his papers for the War Series—the last from Mr. McGregor—will be exhibited, with original manuscripts by General McClellan, Joseph E. Johnston and others. They will show also how an illustration is prepared for the magazine, from the artist's drawing to the printed page, by wood-engraving and by various photo-engraving processes; how the "Century Dictionary" was made, with copies of the earliest English dictionaries, and manuscripts and proofs of the "Century Dictionary" in various stages. The exhibit, with that of other publishers, will be found in the north gallery of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts Building.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for early publication: "In Amazon Land," adaptations from Brazilian writers, with original selections, by Martha F. Sesselberg; "Lorenzo de' Medici," an historical study, by Edith Carpenter; "A History of Pottery and Porcelain in the United States," by Edwin A. Barber, very fully illustrated; "Princeton Sketches: the story of Nassau Hall," by George R. Wallace, with an introduction by Prof. Andrew F. West, fully illustrated with historic views and portraits and with fac-similes of documents; "Fleeting Thoughts," poems by Caroline Edwards Prentiss; "The Loves of Paul Fenly," a drama in verse, by Anna M. Fitch; "In the Shade of Ygdrasil," by Dr. Frederick Peterson; in the Story of the Nations Series, "The Story of Parthia," by Prof. George Rawlinson, author of the "Story of Ancient Egypt," the "Story of Phœnicia," etc.; "The Church in the Roman Empire before A.D. 170," by W. M. Ramsay, of Aberdeen University, with maps and illustrations; "Chinese Nights Entertainments," forty stories told by almond-eyed folk, actors in the romance of "The Strayed Arrow," by Adele M. Fielde, with numerous illustrations from designs by Chinese artists; "Diccon the Bold," a story of the days of Columbus, by John R. Coryell, with illustrations by F. S. Dellenbaugh; "The Monism of Man, or, the unity of the divine and the human," by Dr. D. A. Gorton; and the fifth volume of the "Papers of the American Church History Association," comprising the transactions for the year 1892.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

MAY 8, and following days.—Library of the late Geo. H. Moore, LL.D., librarian of N. Y. Hist. Soc. and Supt. of Lenox Library, including many rare works on American history. (2616 lots).—Bangs.

MAY 15-16.—Library of the late Dr. William Lee. Medical Books, Americana, Erotica and Facetiae.—Latimer & Sloan, Washington, D. C.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

The World of the Unseen.

An Essay on the Relation of Higher Space and Things Eternal. By Rev. A. WILLINK. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"We believe that no thoughtful or intelligent person who begins to read this little book will willingly lay it down unfinished. We think most persons who have read it once will read it several times. We venture to predict that the book will be as popular as 'The Unseen Universe' or 'Natural Law in the Spiritual World.' It seems to bring the unseen so near 'that the smallest movement in the Fourth Direction would immediately bring us into it.'"—Churchman.

George William Curtis.

By WILLIAM WINTER. With portrait. 18mo, cloth, 75 cents.

"Mr. Winter's tribute to the memory of his life-long friend is not a task done perfunctorily. Manifestly his heart inspired the words that he spoke. The verdict of the future respecting Curtis' rank as an author, as a man of letters, as an orator, and as a citizen, can hardly be made up without a reference to this tiny volume."—Tribune.

Vol. II. In the Press.

"It is, so far as America goes, a work unique in scope, spirit and knowledge. There is nothing like it anywhere extant, nothing that approaches it. . . . Without exaggeration, it may be called the most considerable and gratifying tribute that has yet been bestowed upon us by an Englishman, and, perhaps, by England herself. . . . Every thoughtful American will read it, and will long hold in grateful remembrance its author's name."—New York Times.

"Summer Reading,"

1893.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The SUMMER CATALOGUE, issued now for sixteen years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The sixteenth issue, with an entirely new cover, in a special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in connection with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY about the first of June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading-matter both of a practical and entertaining character, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. Booksellers at or near summer resorts should especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments, or to follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in at once.

The Profession of Bookselling,

A Handbook of Practical Hints for the Apprentice and Bookseller.

By A. GROWOLL,

Managing Editor of “The Publishers' Weekly.”

“The author has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. . . . It treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world.”—London Publishers' Circular.

“A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Continental literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of trade catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals and literary journals; and a broad reference library. . . . For its main purpose this is an excellent manual.”—The Nation.

“Booksellers in this country [England] will find this work both useful and entertaining.”—London Bookman.

“We wish to give you our advance order for that most valuable series of articles—The Profession of Bookselling—and wish to thank you for publishing in book form one of the most useful tools the trade has had placed in its hands for a long time.”—THE FIELD & GIBB BOOK AND STATIONERY CO., Lawrence, Kansas.

READY SHORTLY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC., SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the “Annual American Catalogue” of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the “Co-operative Index to Periodicals,” originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

“To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time.”—Providence Press.

OUR NEXT BOOKS.

READY MAY 15.

A. BRONSON ALCOTT.

His Life and Philosophy. By F. B. SANBORN and WILLIAM T. HARRIS. With portraits from a crayon, by Mrs. Richard Hildreth, and a photograph by Boyd, of Des Moines, in January, 1881, and an engraving of the Orchard House and School of Philosophy. Two volumes. Crown 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

The material for this work has been derived from the copious biographical papers left by Mr. Alcott, or furnished by his daughter, Mrs. Pratt, from sources in her possession. An important addition has been made through the kindness of Mr. Edward Waldo Emerson, from his father's papers not hitherto published; and something also has been drawn from the papers left behind by Mr. Thoreau, and those in possession of William Ellery Channing, of Concord, and Mr. B. M. Watson, of Plymouth. The pages of this book portray our friend as he lived—in youth, in middle life and in serene old age.—From the Introduction.

JOYS BEYOND THE THRESHOLD.

A Sequel to "The To-Morrow of Death." By LOUIS FIGUIER. Translated by Abby L. Alger. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

Mr. Figuer says: "No one can form any idea of the number of letters which I have received from persons whose imagination was touched, in various ways, by reading 'The To-Morrow of Death.' I might make up a volume of this correspondence alone.

"Of all the impressions thus conveyed to me, the one which has struck me most forcibly is that my work is eminently consoling; that it lifts up and comforts the hearts of people terrified by the fear of death by showing them in the resurrection of the human being a blissful and rapid change from mundane destinies, by giving them a hope of again meeting beyond the tomb the loved ones whom they have lost, and thus aiding them to await with courage the critical instant of the separation of soul and body."

LONDON OF TO-DAY.

By CHARLES EYRE PASCOE. An Illustrated Handbook for this Season, 1893, and for All Seasons. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"One of the very best books of its class. It gives just the information which such a book should give; and yet there isn't a dull line from cover to cover."—E. M. BACON.

"It is a chatty, full-souled, confidential sort of book, which talks out fully on all points. . . . From the practical point of view it is capital. . . . In fact, we rather wonder how any one ever got on well in London without it."

HERE THREE EMPIRES MEET.

narrative of Recent Travel in Kashmir, Western Tibet, Baltistan, Ladak, Gilgit and the Adjoining countries. By E. F. KNIGHT, author of "The Cruise the Alerte," etc. With a map and 34 illustrations (27 1-page). 8vo, 511 pages, cloth extra, $5.00.

Most attractive volume, very well written and very busily and effectively illustrated. . . . Mr. Knight keen and shrewd observer of men, manners and nature, and he writes with a very lively and graphic pen. — etc.

Mr. Knight's book is vastly entertaining, and it is by less instructive. There is an amount of 'go' in which is rare and welcome. — Daily Chronicle.

OUT OF DOORS IN TSARLAND.

A Record of the Feelings and Doings of a Wanderer in Russia. By FRANK J. WHISHAW. With frontispiece and vignette by Charles Whymper. Crown 8vo, 384 pages, $2.00.

"It is a positive relief to come across a book on Russia which is not full of the intrigues of the Nihilists, the iniquities of the spy system, and the characteristics of that real or imaginary reign of terror which is alleged to exist at Moscow and St. Petersburg. 'Out of Doors in Tsar Land' is altogether a delightful volume. . . . Mr. Whishaw describes himself as a wanderer in Russia, and those who dip into his entertaining pages will quickly discover that that means a plucky, light-hearted, roving Englishman, who rambled hither and thither through the Tsar's domains with rod and gun." — Speaker.

The Profession of Bookselling

A Handbook of Practical Hints for the Apprentice and Bookseller.

By A. GROWOLL,

Managing Editor of "The Publishers' Weekly."

"The author has collected a stupendous amount of information on his subject, and manages to impart knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. It treats of everything that he ought to know, almost things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information are young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can help making his mark in the world."—London Publishers' Circular.

"A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Classical literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals, of literary journals; and a broad reference library. For its main purpose this is an excellent manual."—Nation.

"Booksellers in this country [England] will find work both useful and entertaining."—London Business.
"We wish to give you our advance order for the valuable series of articles—'The Profession of Bookselling'—and wish to thank you for publishing in book form one of the most useful tools the trade has had placed at its hands for a long time."—THE FIELD & GINN BOOK STATIONERY CO., Lawrence, Kansas.

JUST ISSUED:

The Doomswoman.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam," "Los Cerritos," "Question of Time," etc. 16mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.00.

This last product from the pen of Miss Atherton is one continued narration of thrilling incident and vivid pictures. The scene is laid in Mexico, and, as may well be imagined, is full of the passion and unconstrained southern clime. Some of the scenes, notably that in the last chapter, are intensely dramatic and forceful. "Doomswoman" is by far the most powerful piece of fiction yet rendered by Miss Atherton, and will not lose its position by those previously unfamiliar with her style.

Venus Victrix.

A Study of a Woman. By HELEN MATHERS, author of "The Other Charmer," "Hedri," etc. Shandon Series. 18mo, paper, 25 cents.

A dramatic story of the intense order, with an element of the unusual about it that makes it a tale of great interest. "Venus Victrix" is the name given to a young, beautiful and helpless paralytic. The mystery of her life is well sustained, but all the misery it was designed to bring upon her rival is averted at the end, and thus the work of her machinations passes away. Helen Mathers has seldom, if ever, done better work than this.

The Last Sentence.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The Approach of Annesley," "In the Heart of the Storm," etc. Illustrated by Reinhardt. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"A story strong in plot and character-drawing, rich in the accessions of an abundant imagination, and with movement has a psychological potency that it would be difficult to match in the writings of any novelist of the time. 'The Last Sentence' may be, without reservation, accepted as one of the really significant novels of the year. It will bear more than a single reading and its merits are more likely to be appreciated at a third perusal."—Boston Beacon.

Oriole's Daughter.

By JESSIE FOTHERGILL, author of "The First Violin," "A March of Ranks," "Healey," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Like all Miss Fothergill's books, it is charming reading."—Glasgow Herald.

"In fine, 'Oriole's Daughter' is a book which will maintain the author's reputation for refined portraiture and workmanship."—Athenaeum.

Dearest.

By Mrs. FORRESTER, author of "I Have Lived and Loved," "My Heart," "Diana Carew," "Fair Women," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Written with the good taste and the good breeding which are characteristic of all Mrs. Forrester's works, these two types which reveal at once the author's knowledge of the world and her self-restraint—for either the other might easily have run into caricature in less skilful hands."—London World.

THE LIBRARY OF CHOICE FICTION.

THE ALGERIAN SLAVE. By G. CAROLI.

This narrative of extraordinary adventures among the piratical Moors of Algiers twenty years before this cruel race had its power for evil wrested from it by the French conquest of 1830, is based upon the actual experiences of an English lad captured by the Dey's cruel sea robbers. The story is told with a simplicity as effective as it is touching.

THE FAMOUS ROMANCES OF VOLTAIRE. With 32 superb illustrations. "A standard work." "No library is complete without it."

THE MYSTERIES OF THE COURT OF NAPOLEON III. By G. A. THIERRY. "Startling and true." With special Parisian illustrations.

WOMEN MUST WEEP. By EDGAR FAWCETT.

This strong story of New York life and New York people is undoubtedly the master effort of the famous writer of so many popular tales. The poignant fate of woman in our times has never been so strikingly portrayed. With a fine half-tone portrait of the author.

A GOLDEN PILGRIMAGE. By MARQUISE CLARA LANZA.

The gifted daughter of Dr. Hammond, late Surgeon-General U. S. A., has written here a strong tale of the bartering of a soul for gold, and of the dire disaster that follows the bargain. There is a great deal of power in this story, and the interest of the reader is kept unflagging. Illustrated with a half-tone portrait of the author.

DUCHESS ANNETTE. By ALEXANDRE DUMAS, fils. An entirely new edition from the pen of Max Maury, with eight exceptionally fine full-page illustrations drawn specially for this edition by A. Leroy.

CAMILLE. By ALEXANDRE DUMAS, fils. With 16 photogravures on enamelled paper.

MAUPRAT; or, The Bandit Noblemen. By GEORGE SAND. Illustrated with 10 half-tones from the original etchings by Le Blant.

DR. PHILLIPS. By FRANK DANIEL.

This is a recent and very powerful novel. It is laid in London among the Jewish masses. Never has the undying antagonism and animosity between the Semitic and Aryan races so vividly pictured, and, although the novelist is a Christian, his descriptions are both true and fair.

GERFAUT. By CHARLES DE BERNARD. One of the greatest novels of the century. The only translation ever published with ten exquisite reproductions in half-tone.

DR. PERDUE. By STINSON JARVIS. A thrilling tale of Yachting Adventures upon the Deep.

A MAN OF HONOR (W. de Camon). OCTAVE FEUILLET. 12 full-page illustrations from original etchings.

MADAME BOVARY. By GUSTAVE FLAUBERT. With a special preface by Max Maury. The first and only American edition with 12 full-page reproductions from original etchings.

A.D. 2000. By LIEUT. ALVARADO M. FERRER. A. Illustrated with 16 half-tone engravings on colored paper.

AN UNCONSCIOUS CRIME. By D. OLIVER, author of "King of Gold," etc. Illustrated with 16 full-page engravings from original paintings by Henry Mayer.

A BARGAIN IN SOULS. By ERNEST H. PIERSON.

This charming writer of so many excellent novels never shown himself more brilliant in wit and style in ingenious adventures. The first page is sure to bring a smile upon the reader's lips, and not vanish until the word finis is reached. The story is a "hit" of the year. Illustrated.

THE

Memorial History of the City of New York.

From its First Settlement to the Year 1892.

The Most Elaborate Work Ever Prepared on an American City.

It is the latest—it is the fullest—it is the best. Invaluable in the home of the teacher and professional man, to every student and reader.

In four royal octavo volumes from the De Vinne Press, containing as perfect as the printer, the artist and the engraver could make them; accurate, exhaustive, and a credit and honor to the great Metropolis of the New World.

More than $100,000 have been expended upon it.

In illustrative merits the Memorial History far surpasses anything ever attempted in a similar publication. There are 22 steel-engravings and 403 beautiful portraits, each accompanied by a fac-simile autograph of the subject; 25 very interesting and valuable maps; 111 reproductions of rare and ancient documents; a unique series of signatures of every Burgomaster and Mayor for more than 100 years; and several hundred views of historic scenes, houses, statues, birthplaces, residences, monuments, tombs and autographs of illustrious New Yorkers.

It was prepared on the co-operative plan, many of the most eminent scholars and writers of the time being contributors to its pages.

Among these writers may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:

Mr. Moncure D. Conway.
Hon. Charles P. Daly.
Gen. Emmons Clark.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE WORLD'S FAIR AT CHICAGO.

From "Harper's Chicago and the World's Fair." (Copyright, 1893, by Harper & Brothers.)

The Columbian Exposition and Columbian Literature.

A WARM breeze blowing from the south, laden with the fragrance of many flowers, gently caresses the cheek of the tired worker and arms him that

"From brightening fields of ether, fair disclosed, Child of the Sun, refulgent Summer comes."

The warning sounds a pleasant note in the memory; visions of happy idling and gay holiday times bring with them fresh inspiration, and life and hope are renewed in a future that holds within its limits other pictures than those of the monotonous struggle for mere existence.

The old question of "where shall we spend our summer holidays?" so often discussed and answered before, is again in order. The universal interest that attaches to it, pleasantly illustrates how very general the custom of a mid-summer rest has become.

Ours is only to point the way to new lines of travel, as in previous years, through the latest books, leaving the final destination to individual fancy, or the depths of individual purses. Our lists and advertising pages offer many new volumes, showing that the world's possibilities are yet far from being exhausted by the seeker after fresh scenes and fresh impressions.

The Mecca of thousands this summer no doubt will be Chicago, whether a long or a short vacation is at their disposal. The possibilities for instruction or amusement to be found in the World's Columbian Exposition are not to be computed. While to the idler it will be a perfect Paradise of beautiful impressions to photograph forever upon his "mind's eye," the student will discover such a wealth of new ideas and suggestions in every direction as has not been offered to him since the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876. The impetus given then to American art and to American industries must be more than doubled by the present Exposition. The marvellous "White City," reflected upon the changing waters of Lake Michigan, a vision of enchantment, sprung up apparently in a night at the waving of a magician's wand, marks an epoch in our history the full meaning of which is scarcely yet realized. American artists and architects, painters, sculptors and landscape gardeners have contributed their best gifts, untrammelled by conventionalities or traditions, the result being an ensemble, in spite of all shortcomings, the grandest the New World has ever seen. This modern Venice, with its canals and lagoons, its graceful boats and picturesque gondoliers, lying upon the "virgin shore" of the blue lake, seems a singularly happy and fitting memorial to the great Discoverer, a charming union of the Old World and the New.

Besides the treasures of science and art, and the wonders of the civilized and uncivilized world, literature has its place in these beautiful buildings, and will be made an especially prominent and attractive feature during the summer months. There is an exhibit of books and libraries in the Liberal Arts Department of the Exposition proper that is full of interest, notably the model library of 5000 volumes in full working order, with catalogue, etc., made up from the contributions of American and English publishers. The books were selected and collected under the auspices of the American Library Association and are exhibited in connection with the Bureau of Education. The library illustrates in all its details the progress of library science. The Educational Exhibit as a whole is of great value, that made by George A. Plimpton, of New York City, illustrating through his library the growth of education from the textbook standpoint, being unique in the many rare and valuable volumes that it includes. A feature of the German book trade exhibit, which is held in the quaint "Deutsche Haus," is a representative library for an educated family of ample means. The library is intended besides to present as complete and varied a view as possible of literary activity and development in Germany. The "Deutsche Haus" is only one of the many tempting and cosy nooks in the book trade exhibit. The Century Co., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and numerous other publishers have prepared charming parlors in which to receive their friends. A number of the States exhibit libraries composed of books written by the women of the State. That of New York in the Woman's Building is a collection of unexpected interest and value. The credit of the collection is due to the energy and industry of the brilliant woman's club of New York City known as the Wednesday Afternoon Club. It comprises, besides the 2300 volumes representing almost every department of literature, 3000 before the literary clubs of the New York, and a series of collections of the most original and radical writings from the pens of the women.

Beginning with July will be a series of lectures or conferences of literature and education, in the Memorial Art Building, and a broad, comprehensive programme. Many questions to be discussed in general literature, many of a practical character and of a Congress of Authors being planned, in which many prominent men of letters abroad have promised to take part—such questions as the rights of literary relations between authors and publishers, copyright laws, national and international, and many scientific and learned societies decided to hold their annual meetings in 1893, this year, the Exposition altogether has a large literary element present and progressing.

The leading thought of the Exposition, however, is that of Columbus and the discovery of America, and it will imprint indelible on the memory of the rising generation assist the object lessons of the Exposition for a brief bibliography of recent Columbian literature—histories, biographies, novel stories for the young people, some descriptive works, literary essays, poems and songs all ready to supplement the various thought a holiday time at Chicago at the World's Fair may give. While the list is not remarkable in quality or numbers, it contains some notable works. John Winson's "Discovery of America" and Winsor's "Christopher Columbus" furnish exceptionally readable material for students of Columbian history. "The Admiral's Last Voyage" and its sequel, "With the Admiral of the Ocean Sea," describe in Columbus' own words his wonderful voyages to our then known shores. Charles Paulding succeeded in making two volumes of as entertaining a character as anything we have received from his or other imaginative writers. biographies of Columbus are numerous, that of Prof. Charles Kendall Adams in the "America Series," and Frederick's compilation, entitled "The Discovery of the New World by Columbus," being among the most scholarly and accurate and in the spirit of modern criticism. Elizabeth Eggleston Seelye's "Story of Columbus" "The True Story of Columbus" by Elsie S. Brookes appeal strongly to the popular through an attractive, simple narrative a wealth of pictures, portraits, maps, etc. Alden's "Christopher Columbus," written a few years back by the then funny-man of New York Times, is a comic and irreverent manent value may be found in Kurtz's "Art Gallery Illustrated" and Bancroft's "A Book of the Fair," the latter is a serial, being published in numbers from week to week; both are meant to cover the chief art features of the Exposition. The smaller guides have different features and are all new compilations.

We have provided farther on for another class of idlers, who are not looking towards representation of the events in this "American orthodoxy's" life.

Other works quoted have special points of value either in price or interest, which we have not space now to indicate. N. Ponce de Leon's "Columbus Gallery," a monograph on the portraits of the discoverer, offers amusing comparison and thought to the general reader only familiar with the accepted picture of Columbus. "The Caravels of Columbus," from the same writer, gives the only detailed description that has appeared of this picturesque and historic fleet.

The guides and works relating to Chicago are quite bewildering. Julian Ralph's "Harper's Chicago and the World's Fair," from which we have taken the several pictures which adorn this article, is a charming series of descriptions of the most novel and inviting features of the Exposition. Two handsome art-works of per-

Chicago, but would get "far from gay cities, and the ways of men"—men and women who recuperate best in the solitudes of nature. For these are the latest volumes of travels and guide-books, describing new and untraveled routes, charming essays on the wonders and beauties of the forests and fields, the mountains and rivers, and books of out door sports full of information and suggestions, and a long list of the latest and best novels. Selections may be made from any of these classifications for the traveller seeking green fields or going to Chicago.

Nothing hastens the lagging hours like an interesting book. Carlyle has said, "If a book comes from the heart it will contrive to reach the hearts of others." The most recent evidences of the genius of our writers are laid before our readers for their amusement and entertainment.

IN THE SADDLE.

From "Oscar Peterson, Ranchman and Ranger." (Copyright, 1893, by D. Lothrop Co.)

How We Killed a Buffalo!

n J. M. Oxley's "Archie of Athabasca." (Lothrop.)

ARCHIE was quivering with intense excitement. His face was as pale as it could become, not trusting himself to speak, he pointed his trembling fingers to the opposite bank of river.

At the moment Sawtloulai looked, he too shared his companion's emotion, for just entering the river, with the evident intention of crossing, was a noble bison utterly unconscious of the presence of any danger. Unless alarmed, he would undoubtedly land right at their feet. He was all the while a young bull driven from the herd to seek his own fortune, and bearing the marks of recent conflict. Without opening their lips the two looked into each other's eyes. Despite the opinion of shrewd old Akaitchko, then, the bison were still to be found on the Salt River Plains, and the five pounds might yet be won.

Breathlessly they awaited the bison's approach. In a leisurely fashion he stepped into the water, too shallow to take him off his feet, and ploughed through it until he reached the opposite side. Then he drew himself out, and stood for a moment sniffing the breeze somewhat suspiciously.

"Now," whispered Archie. The two guns made a single report, and the two bullets went straight to their mark in the broad breast of the bison, thus suddenly awakened to his peril. With a tremendous bellow the great creature lowered his head and charged furiously up the bank. The slope was slight, and in an instant he was at the top and looking round for his assailants. The boys had separated, one to the right and one to the left, and were reloading their guns with feverish haste.

The bison caught sight of Sawtloulai first, and with another bellow bore swiftly down upon him. The clever Indian waited until he was close, then, stepping coolly to one side, resumed ramming down the powder. By the time the bison had checked his forward onset, and returned to the charge, Sawtloulai's gun was ready, and this time as he fired he discharged it into his side a little below the shoulder. Mortally wounded, yet still able to do mischief, the infuriated animal, at that moment seeing Archie, who, having reloaded, had hastened to his companion's aid, made a fierce dash at him, and the boy narrowly escaped his deadly horns. But a quick spring aside saved him, and the bison crashed into a clump of trees instead. In so doing he tripped and fell. Archie saw his opportunity, and seized it. Before the creature could regain his feet another bullet had found its way to his vitals. He strove gallantly to rise, but the weakness of death was upon him. He got as far as his knees, and remained there a few seconds, swaying from side to side, the blood pouring from his wounds, and crimson foam dripping from his mouth. Then, with a pitiful sound, half-groan, half-roar, he fell over, a shudder ran through his mighty frame, and he was dead.

"Hurrah! hurrah! hurrah!" shouted Archie, as, grasping Sawtloulai's hand, he danced three times round the huge carcass.

THE RHYME OF THE GREAT RIVER.

From Joaquin Miller's "Songs of Summer Lands." (Morrill, Higgins & Co.)

Then holy bells came pealing out;
Then steamboats blew, then horses neighed;
Then smoke from hamlets round about
Crept out, as if no more afraid.

Then shrill cocks here, and shrill cocks there,
Stretched glossy necks and filled the air.
How many cocks it takes to make
A country morning well awake!

Then many boughs, with many birds—
Young boughs in green, old boughs in gray,
These birds had very much to say
In their soft, sweet, familiar words.

And all seemed sudden glad; the gloom
Forgot the church, forgot the tomb;
And yet like monks with cross and bead
The myrtles leaned to read and read.

And oh the fragrance of the sod!
And oh the perfume of the air!
The sweetness, sweetness everywhere,
That rose like incense up to God!

I like a cow's breath in sweet spring,
I like the breath of babes new-born;
A maid's breath is a pleasant thing—
But oh the breath of sudden morn!

Of sudden morn, when every pore
Of mother earth is pulsing fast
With life, and life seems spilling o'er
With love, with love too sweet to last:

Of sudden morn beneath the sun
By God's great river wrapped in gray,
That for a space forgets to run,
And hides his face as if to pray.

Between a Music Publisher and a Composer.

From "Merely Mary Ann." (Raphael Tuck & Sons.)

"BUT you publish operas, oratorios, cantatas!"

"Ah, yes!—h'm—things that have been played at the big Festivals—composers of prestige—quite a different thing, sir, quite a different thing. There's no sale for these things—none at all, sir—public never heard of you. Now, if you were to write some songs—nice catchy tunes—high class, you know, with pretty words—"

Now Lancelot by this time was aware of the publisher's wily ways; he could almost have constructed an Ollendorffian dialogue, entitled "Between a Music Publisher and a Composer." So he opened his portfolio again and said: "I have brought some."

"Well, send—send them in," stammered the publisher, almost disconcerted. "They shall have our best consideration."

"Oh, but you might just as well look over them at once," said Lancelot firmly, uncoiling them. "It won't take you five minutes—just let me play one to you. The tunes are rather more original than the average, I can promise you; and yet I think they have a lilt that—"

"I really can't spare the time now. If you leave them, we will do our best."

"Listen to this bit!" said Lancelot desperately. And, dashing at a piano that stood handy, he played a couple of bars. "That's quite a new modulation."

"That's all very well," said the publisher; "but how do you suppose I'm going to sell a thing with an accompaniment like that? Look here, and here! Why it's all accidentals."

"That's the best part of the song," explained Lancelot; "a sort of undercurrent of emotion that brings out the full pathos of the words. Note the elegant and novel harmonies." He played another bar or two, singing the words softly.

"Yes; but if you think you'll get young ladies to play that you've got a good deal to learn," said the publisher gruffly. "This is the sort of accompaniment that goes down," and seating himself at the piano for a moment (somewhat to Lancelot's astonishment, for he had gradually formed a theory that music publishers did not really know the staff from a five-barred gate), he rattled off the melody with his right hand, pounding away monotonously with his left at a few elementary chords.

Lancelot looked dismayed.

"That's the kind of thing you'll have to produce, young man," said the publisher, feeling that he had at last resumed his natural supremacy, "if you want to get your songs published. Elegant harmonies are all very well, but who's to play them?"

"And do you mean to say that a musician in this God-forsaken country must have no chords but tonics and dominants?" ejaculated Lancelot hotly.

"The less he has of any other the better," said the great man dryly. "I haven't said a word about the melody itself, which is quite out of the ordinary compass, and makes demands upon the singer's vocalization which are not likely to make a demand for the song. What you have to remember, my dear sir, wish to achieve success, is that music, to sell, must appeal to the average amateur person. The average amateur young person is the main prop of music in this country."

Lancelot snatched up his song and the strings of his portfolio very tightly, and were clenching his lips.

"If I stay here any longer I shall swear said. "Good afternoon."

Adam at the Niagara Falls.

Mark Twain in "The Niagara Book." (Charles Nichols.)

MONDAY.—This new creature with the hair is a good deal in the way. It is hanging around and following me about. I don't like this; I am not used to company. I wish it would stay with the other animals. Cloudy to-day, wind in the east; think we have rain. . . . We? Where did I go? . . . I remember now—the new creature uses it.

TUESDAY.—Been examining the great fall. It is the finest thing on the estate. The new creature calls it Niagara Falls—I am sure I do not know. Says it is Niagara Falls. That is not a reason, but waywardness and imbecility. I get used to name anything myself. The new creature names everything that comes along before it can get in a protest. And always that pretext is offered—it looks like the thing. It is the dodo, for instance. Says the monster looks at it one sees at a glance that it is like a dodo. It will have to keep that, no doubt. It worries me to fret about it does no good, anyway. Dodo! It looks more like a dodo than I do.

WEDNESDAY.—Built me a shelter against rain, but could not have it to myself. The new creature intruded. When I put it out it shed water out of the holes with, and wiped it away with the back of its paws, and made a noise such as some of the other animals make when they are in distress. I wish it would not talk; it is always that. That sounds like a cheap fling at the poor creature, a slur; but I do not mean it so. I never heard the human voice before, and this new and strange sound intruding itself upon the solemn hush of these dreamlike tides offends my ear and seems a failure. And this new sound is so close to me; it is at my shoulder, right at my ear, first on one side and then on the other, and I am used to sounds that are more or less distant from me.

FRIDAY.—The naming goes recklessly in spite of anything I can do. I had a very good name for the estate, and it was musical and pretty—Garden-of-Eden. Privately, I tried to call it that, but not any longer public. The new creature says it is all woods and rocks and scenery, and therefore has no resemblance to a garden. Says it looks like a park, and I look like anything but a park. Consequently, without consulting me it has been new-named Niagara Falls Park. This is sufficiently handled, it seems to me.

My life is not as happy as it was.

"ONE WHITE MAY MORNING."

ONE white May morning odorous as June
I wandered with my dearest, dreaming bliss
Incomparable, if only I might kiss
Her peaceful brow as lightly as the moon
Doth kiss the lilies of a calm lagoon
When early evening first begins to miss
Its yellow sunshine; so I told her this,
Timid amid the still, serene forenoon.

Then she made answer, with a tender smile
(A soft wild rosebud, such as might beguile
The heart of Love himself, could he but see How winning-sweet her eyelids drooped, the while The rosebud blossomed swiftly, blushing),
"Am I not better than a kiss? Take me!"

—Charles Winfred Douglas, in The Century.

The Home of John Ruskin.

W. G. Collingwood's "The Life of John Ruskin."
(Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

SHALL I take you for a visit there—to Brantwood as it was in those old times? It is a weary way to Coniston, whatever road you choose. The inconvenience of the railway uncultivated, uninhabited, except for one gray farm-house high on the fell, where gaps in the ragged larches show how bleak and storm-swept a spot it is.

To come out of the station after long travel, and to find yourself face to face with magnificent rocks, and white cottages among the fir-trees, is a surprise like walking for the first time down the High Street of Edinburgh to Holyrood. And as you are whirled down through the straggling village, and along the shore round the head of the lake, the panorama, though not Alpine in magnitude, is almost Alpine in character. The valley, too, is not yet built up; it is still the old-fashioned lake country, almost as it was in the days of the "Iteriad;" still in touch with the past. You drive up and down a narrow, hilly lane, catching peeps of mountains and sunsets through thick, overhanging trees; you turn sharp up through a gate under dark firs and larches; and the carriage stops in what seems in the twilight a sort of court—a gravelled space, one side

BRANTWOOD, FROM CONISTON WATER.

From "The Life and Work of John Ruskin." (Copyright, 1893, by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

te was perhaps one reason of Mr. Ruskin's preference for driving, on so many occasions, of changing and changing trains, and stopping at many a roadside station, at last you see, suddenly, over the wild undulating country, the Coniston Old Man—Maen, stone; a survival of the Cumbria—and its crags, abrupt on the lake, long and narrow, on the water. Across the water, tiny in the distance, quite alone among forests and moors, there is Brantwood; and beyond it everything seems formed by a rough stone wall crowned with laurels and almost precipitous scoppice, the brant (or steep) wood above, and the rest is Brantwood, with a capital B.

You expect that Gothic porch you have read of in "Lectures on Architecture and Painting," and you are surprised to find a stucco Doric portico in the corner, painted and grained, and heaped around with lucky horseshoes, brightly blackleaded, and mysterious rows of large blocks of slate and basalt and trap—a complete museum of local geology, if only you knew it—very unlike an ideal entrance; still more unlike and ordinary one. While you wait, you can see through the glass door a roomy hall, lit with candles, and hung with large drawings by Burne-Jones and by the master of the house. His soft hat and thick gloves and chopper, lying on the marble table, show that he has come in from his afternoon's woodcutting.

Five Centuries of Ancestors.

From Charles de Barnard's "Gerfaul." (Laird & Lee.)

THE beauty of the woodwork was almost entirely concealed by a very remarkable decoration which covered every side of the room and consisted of one of the most glorious collections of family portraits which a country château of the nineteenth century could offer.

The first of these portraits hung opposite the windows at the right of the entrance door and was that of a chevalier in full armor whose teeth gleamed from under his long mustache like those of an untamed cat. Beginning with this formidable figure which bore the date 1247, were forty others of about the same dimensions and placed in order according to their dates.

There were more gallant cavaliers cut after the same pattern as the first. Their stern, harsh faces, red beards and broad, square, military shoulders, told that by sword thrusts and broken lances they had founded the nobility of their race. An heroic preface to this family biography! A rough and warlike page of the middle ages! After these proud men of arms came several figures of a less ferocious aspect, but not so imposing. In these portraits of the fifteenth century beards had disappeared with the sword. In those wearing caps and velvet toques, silk robes and heavy gold chains supporting a badge of the same metal, one recognized lords in full and tranquil possession of the fiefs won by their fathers, land-owners who had degenerated a little and preferred mountain life in a manor to the chances of a more hazardous life. These pacific gentlemen were, for the most part, painted with the left hand gloved and resting upon the hip; the right one was bare, a sort of token of disarmament which one might take for a painter's epigram. It was the period of idle kings.

A half dozen solemn personages with gold braided hats and long red robes bordered with ermine, and wearing starched ruffles, occupied one corner of the parlor near the windows. . . . Was it not a symbolical image of the progress of civilization, of regular legislation struggling against barbaric customs? Thanks to these respectable counsellors and judges one might reverse the motto: Non solum toga, in favor of their race. But it did not seem as if these bearded ancestors looked with much gratituted upon this parliamentary flower added to their feudal crest.

In the space between the windows and upon the remaining woodwork were a crowd of military men, with, here and there, an abbé with cross and mitre, a commander of Malta, and a solemn-looking canon, sterile branches of this genealogical tree.

The last of all was a young man with an agreeable face who smiled superciliously from under a vast head of powdered hair; a rose was in the buttonhole of his green coat with orange facings, a red sabretache against his boots a little lower down the hilt of his sabre. The costume represented a sprightly officer of the Royal Nassau. The portrait was hung on the left of the entrance door and only separated by the great-grandfather of 1247, whom he assisted, had these venerable portraits some night a fancy to descend from their in order to execute a dance such as he dreamed of. These two persons were the alpha and omega of this genealogical tree—the extreme links of the chain—one, then, in the sands of time, the other, the which had blossomed at the top. It created a tragical resemblance between two lives, separated by more than five centuries. The history of the French nobility embodied in these two men, born in the same century, had died in blood.

Identifying Plants.

From Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "Art of Identifying Plants." (Scribner.)

MATERIALS for the study of botany are everywhere at hand; no travelling is needed, no great exertion. The essential tools are simple and cheap. A couple of volumes, like the "Manual" and "Handbook," will give the student the needed introductory knowledge, full of illustrations of all plants within a very wide range, a glossary of terms to assist weak memory. With a knife, a long pin, and a common magnifying-glass the student has all he wants. He wants to end by being really a botanist. A few weeks of work with living things will transform the printed text—and of work will seem quite like play—and any one will be able to identify all the plants in the neighborhood of his home, except grasses and mosses and small fry.

I know that what I say is true, because not long since I made the experiment and did not want to make it, for I was very busy in other ways; and, while I never was as much as to think that I should enjoy less by learning more, I did not even dimly imagine how much more I should enjoy by learning a little more. Compelled by a wisely insistent friend to study my botany, I was amazed to find that the identifying of plants was quite as amusing and a great deal easier than the reading of the puzzles; that when one was identified a plant like a personal possession, doubly and doubly interesting; and that as soon as one identified a few, the whole aspect of the outer world was changed for me. It was though all my life I had gone with friends among people whose language I could not understand and now the veil had been lifted and the language explained. I really saw the things which were before me—the little as well as the big things, and every part and peculiarity of the biggest ones; and I really began to appreciate them, to recognize their peculiar beauties, to feel the charm of their personalities. The tangle by the roadside which, before, I had seen as a pretty tangle merely, now became an interweaving of a dozen different shrubs and vines; and it was only when each thus began to speak for itself to the eye that the overall beauty of the group was manifest.

The Great Masters of Sketching.

Fraipont's "The Art of Sketching." (Charles L. Webster & Co.)

SPOKE of subjects sketched from life and so well rendered. Study the drawings of J. M. Morin, who died a few years since. He left an immense number of compositions, sketches of every kind; nothing more thoughtful can be imagined, or fresher and bolder. Always charming, this great artist's sketches have inexhaustible "go." With black and white he produced an intensity of tone such as the most vivid color could not surpass.

It was because he knew how to place his strokes of deepest shadow exactly where it was of greatest value in his drawing, without losing the details, of which he was profusely sparing, to weaken the general effect. And then, full of fun, how admirably learned! Look through the pages of the Monde Illustré a few years back, and you will find endless marvelous designs signed by that masterly draughtsman; study any of the volumes he illustrated, and tell me whether any one could conceivably more elegantly and wittily than Morin—one of the great masters of the art of illustration. In 1851, he founded a school; a vast number of talented draughtsmen were his disciples—not imitating him, however, but preserving all their individuality.

When you have feasted on Morin's sketches, turn to those of Vierge, another great artist, and, in the same sense, a colorist; his sketches have an indescribable briskness and vital truth; they are of rare elegance, and yet so simple in treatment—a line, a spot, and the trick is done. Yes, the trick is done; and you might almost believe you could do as much. Only try. And after looking at his sketches, study Vierge's drawings and illustrations: take my word for it, you will never think the time wasted as you spend upon them.

Marvellous sketches again, effortlessly drawn, absolutely true, are those of the painter, Edouard Detaille. I am speaking of worked-up detailed sketches; there you have them, and so full of life! Types of character! Look at Renouard's work. Without having seen the people whose faces he has recorded in a few touches, you feel the likeness. Here are studies of character of the purest stamp. For drawings of animals, look at those by Lançon.

I mention these artists, for their names come naturally to the pen: they are past masters of their art; but there are many more whose sketches are marvels of skill. These are they from whom you must seek inspiration—not to rival them, for many are called and few chosen—but to learn from them, while preserving your own individuality, what must be recorded and what omitted in a good sketch—a matter which looks very simple when we see the result, but is very difficult when we try to do it.

A Home in the Country.

From Octave Thane's "Stories of a Western Town." (Scribner.)

THIRTY odd years ago Horatio Armorer had left the town to seek his fortune in Chicago. It was his day-dream to wrestle a hundred thousand dollars out of the world's tight fists, and return to live in pomp on Brady Street hill! He should drive a buggy with two horses, and his wife should keep two girls. Long ago, the hundred thousand limit had been reached and passed, next the million; and still he did not return. His father, the Presbyterian minister, left his parish, or, to be exact, was gently propelled out of his parish by the disaffected; the family had a new home; and the son, struggling to help them out of his scanty resources, went to the new parish and not to the old. He grew rich, he established his brothers and sisters in prosperity, he erected costly monuments and a memorial church to his parents, he married, and lavished his money on three daughters; but the home of his youth neither saw him nor his money until Margaret Ellis bought a house on Brady Street, far up-town, where she could have all the grass that she wanted. Mrs. Ellis was a widow and rich.

She was the best-natured woman in the world, and never guessed how hard her neighbors found it to forgive her for always calling their town of thirty thousand souls "the country." She said that she had pined for years to live in the country, and have horses and a Jersey cow and chickens, and "a neat pig." All of which modest cravings she gratified on her little estate; and the gardener was often seen with a scowl and the garden hose, keeping the pig neat.

An Enthusiastic Hat Collector.

From Jules Verne's "Mistress Branican." (Cassell.)

Now what hat was this? And why did Jos Merritt spend his life in searching for a hat?

This eccentric Liverpoolian was one of those inoffensive maniacs who do not belong exclusively to the United Kingdom. They are to be found on the banks of the Loire, the Elbe, the Danube, or the Escaut, as well as in the countries watered by the Thames, the Clyde and the Tweed. Jos Merritt was very rich and very well known in Lancashire and the surrounding counties as an enthusiastic "collector." It was not pictures, books, objects of art or even knick-knacks that he collected with great trouble and at much expense. No! It was hats—a museum of historical headgears and coiffures of any sort worn by man, woman or child.

On his own statement, he possessed some very precious historical curiosities: the helmet worn by Patrocles when he was slain by Hector at the siege of Troy; the cap used by Themistocles at the battle of Salamis; the insignia of Galen and Hippocrates; Cæsar's galea, which a blast of wind had carried off just as he crossed the Rubicon; Lucretia Borgia's headdress for each of her weddings, with Sforza, Alphonso d'Este and Alphonso d'Aragon respectively; Tamerlin's favorite turban in his march through Sindh; that of Genghis Khan when he destroyed Bokhara and Samarcand; Elizabeth's coiffure at her coronation; that of Mary Stuart when she escaped from the castle of Lochleven; that of Catherine II. when she was crowned at Moscow; the cap worn by Peter the Great when he worked in the shipbuilding yards at Saardam; Marlborough's soft hat, used by him at the battle of Ramillies; the headgear of King Olaus of Denmark, who was killed at Sticklestad; Gessler's hat which William Tell would not salute; the peaked hat that Napoleon I. wore at Wagram; and a hundred others no less curious.

His greatest regret was that he did not possess the particular covering which Noah happened to have on his head when the ark stood still on the top of Mt. Ararat, or that which encircled Abraham's noble brow just as he was on the point of sacrificing Isaac.

However, he was not without hope of finding them some day. As to the headwear adopted by Adam and Eve when they were driven forth from the earthly paradise, he had given up all thought of discovering them, trustworthy historians having laid it down as a fact that the first man and the first woman were in the habit of going bareheaded.

He was a thorough believer; he entertained no doubt regarding the authenticity of his finds; and no one will ever know the labor he went through, travelling the length and breadth of a country, searching towns and villages, ransacking stores and bric-à-brac bazaars, squandering money and time, and finding in the end some worthless rag which was sold to him for its weight in gold. He had begun to search the universe at large for some mysterious, undiscoverable object; and now that he had exhausted the available resources of Europe, Africa, Asia, America and Oceanica, either by himself or his correspondents, agents or travellers, he was preparing to penetrate into the most inaccessible regions of the Australian continent.

And there was a reason for his search—reason which others might have deemed sufficient perhaps, but which he looked on as the greatest moment. Having been told that the Australian natives were fond of putting themselves with the hats of civilization—and the state of those hats may be imagined, and knowing, on the other hand, that the cargoes of those rags were regularly sent to various ports along the coast, he had reached the conclusion that he might perchance get a good haul in those parts.

And, as luck would have it, Merritt was then haunted by an idea, an idea which would deprive him entirely of the little search he had. He should needs find a hat, one perfect hat, which, so he said, was to be the gem of his collection.

What was this phoenix of a hat? What manufacturer, ancient or modern, had brought it into existence? On what head, royal or plebeian, had it been displayed, and on what occasion? These were secrets that Merritt would have entrusted to no man in the world.

A Home of Kings.

From E. H. Heppin's "Story of a Meeting in France" (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

INDEED, this French spirit is the distinctive characteristic of all Touraine, whether perceived by the spirit of the ancient or of the modern. Other parts of France wear a local character often very strongly defined; but Touraine is essentially national. This is as it should be: the old home of its kings, and where the language is at its very purest and best. Here comes into contact with and learns to recognize the varying phases of the usually genial French temperament; and while basking in the sunshine of the cordiality and perfect politeness of its children, one is inclined to dwell less upon their faults; and, like most gifted nations, they have their full share. In costume, Paris this intensely national type is more difficult to find. Until the era of Versailles, the kindred palaces began, the old court sojourned in Touraine. Here royalty could escape from the cares of government; here the court revelled and hunted and plotted in châteaux and domains of the Loire and the Indre. For a long time it was more home to the kings than the capital itself; the seat of actual government. Much has been enacted within these borders; there are few pages relating to comparative modern times that are more thrilling than that tell of the conjuration and subsequent massacre of the Huguenots at Amboise, or the assassination of Guise the Balafré at Blois. Dark pages these, but they are interspersed with brighter ones that chronicle the past art in France. Though the older monarchs are constantly recalled, it is François I., that master-builder of the French Renaissance, who has his stamp everywhere in this smiling valley of the Loire, and beauty has thriven as on a fertile soil. The powerful yet evil spirit of Catherine de Médicis pervades the very atmosphere, and we meet her three weak sons at every turn while who can resist the recollections of the gallant Henri IV. and of "la Reine Marie" who, in spite of her sins, was still the peer of the Valois?

Beauty's Veil Doth Cover Every Blot.

from Maurice Thompson's "King of Honey Island."
(Robert Bonner's Sons.)

It was thus that Alexander Max Burns once more got a glimpse of the man who had stolen his child. That man's voice had startled him from his morning's sleep under Lapin's roof, and the hurried look through the window had photographed on his brain a picture of terrible significance to him. For the merest point of time his eyes had rested upon Kirk MacCollough.

What is it that makes our consciousness of an enemy's personal beauty something appealing and, in a way, distressing? An old duellist has been heard to say that he would rather let his half-smile still lingered and the old stamp of utter unrestraint was as plain as ever. No, not the boyish Kirk MacCollough, but the man, full grown to his prime, masterful, commanding, a leader of men, and yet there was no mistaking his identity.

Max Burns was old, and for fifty years had been a preacher whose sermons had overflowed with sentimental tenderness; but he had a side to his nature which was as hard as Scotch granite. It was with this hard side out that he was pursuing Kirk MacCollough; and yet, even through this, the spell of the man's strong and beautiful face found its way to his heart.

The effect of it was but temporary, so far as stand before an ordinary looking dead shot than before a handsome bungler. The glamour of a fine magnetic presence is strangely confusing; and the effect seems more powerful when the face is an evil one, especially when the evil is not on the outside and shows only elusively and by subtle indirection from within. Max Burns felt the fascination that flashed from the robber chief's face, and for a time it almost unnerved him; the beauty it wore, like some shining mask, did not suggest at all times the dark spirit of the desperate and lawless man. Long, curling yellow hair and a fine full beard of the same color; a straight nose; a good forehead; long, narrow, clear-gray eyes and a mouth indescribably haughty and stern in its expression were supplemented by a frame of unusual stature and symmetry. This was Pierre Rameau, formerly Kirk MacCollough, now the King of Honey Island, as old Max Burns saw him in the gray morning light.

Certainly it was not the Kirk MacCollough of twelve years ago—not the slender, fair-faced youth who had stolen the girl—though the reck-checking his determination was concerned; but it never quite left him during the rest of the day as he slowly but steadily followed the trail.

Literally, the preacher had no scrip for his journey, no staff, no means of living; he depended, as the old-time minister of the backwoods was wont to do, upon the hand of Providence. Here and there a trapper's or a hunter's hut, here and yonder a settler's cabin offered him rest, food, shelter. He did not tell his story; but he prayed at the fireside of all, and he managed to leave behind him, wherever he went, a memorable something—sweet, strange and altogether welcome to the simple pioneer hearts. Sometimes he fell among desperate men, robbers themselves, or aiders and abettors of them, and even with these he was at home; for he bore with him the charm of childlike faith, combined with the touching appeal of unprotected old age. What helped him most of all, perhaps, was his singing, for age had scarcely touched the deep, rich music of his voice, and his memory was stored with hymns and tunes that enthralled the hearts of his entertainers.

The People Who Succeed.

From "How She Earned It; or, $25,000 in Eleven Years."
(Anna C. Reifsnider Book Co.)

No person is truly educated and should make no pretension to be, who cannot, by that education, earn a good living in this country. I have heard people referred to as having fine educations and brilliant attainments, who, thrown upon their own resources, were helpless. They are what I call parrots. They have only read and studied to find out what somebody else knew, but they do not know anything themselves, and have not sense enough to apply what another has tried to teach them.

For many years I have observed with deepest interest the people who succeeded, and how they succeeded, and those who failed, and why they failed. I had a determination to succeed, and I adopted my own means of success, which I will faithfully relate to you. But well knowing that every woman is not fitted to do the same kind of work I did, I became interested in all working-women, in boys and in girls. I resolved to write out my own experience, embodying practical suggestions to success. I do not write to any particular class of persons—that is, to the rich or to the poor, the educated or the uneducated—but I shall endeavor to convince every intelligent parent who may read this the wisdom of rendering their children self-supporting, daughters as well as sons, and I shall try to interest the boys and the girls, for upon them depends most now.

Enough is written and said every day to imbue all with the wisdom of this idea, now I propose to tell you a plain story showing you how it may be done.

Criticism, Sacred Criticism.

From Balzac's "A Great Man of the Provinces." (Roberts.)

"COME, let us be off," said Lousteau, picking up Lucien's manuscript and making a stroke of ink just beneath the twine that fastened it.

"Have you anything more?" asked Barbet.

"Nothing, my little Shylock. I'll put you in the way of an excellent bit of business before long (in which you shall lose a thousand crowns to teach you to rob me in this way)," added Étienne in a low voice to Lucien.

"But your articles? how can you write them without the books?" said Lucien as they drove to the Palais-Royal.

"Pooh! you don't understand how easily that sort of thing is done. As for the 'Voyage in Egypt,' I did open the book and read here and there without cutting the leaves; I found eleven mistakes in grammar; I can make a column out of that by saying that though the author may have learned the hieroglyphic language of those Egyptian milestones called obelisks, he doesn't know his own, and I'll give the blunders, for I wrote them down. I shall then tell him that instead of writing about the natural history and antiquity, he had better have concerned himself with the future of Egypt, the progress of civilization, the means of uniting it to France, which, having once conquered Egypt and then lost it, could still obtain a moral ascendancy over it. That gives a chance for a fine patriotic flourish interlarded with tirades about Marseilles and the Levant and our present commercial interests."

"But suppose the author had said himself, what would you do?"

"Oh, then I should say that instead of giving us with politics, he had better have given us about art and described the country in picturesque and territorial aspects. The chance for a lament. We are over politics—politics here, there and everywhere. I regret those charming books of travel explained the difficulties of navigation, the delights of crossing the Line, in short persons who never travel want to know—while laughing, of course, at travelers make great events of gul's, porpoises, the first sight of land and shoals avoided. Scribers laugh, and that is all that's to be said. As for novels, Florine is the greatest novel there is in the world. She tells us they are about, and I knock off an article accordingly. When she is bored by what she calls 'author's phrases,' I give the bookspectful notice, and ask the publisher for another copy, which he sends me out of gratitude for the puff."

"Good God! and criticism, sacred criticism?" cried Lucien, still imbued with principles of the brotherhood.

"My dear fellow," said Lousteau, "it is a brush which you can't use on thin material or it tears it to rags. Well, don't let us lose the business any more. Do you see the mark?" he went on, pointing to the line he had made on the outside sheet of the manuscript. "It is exactly under the twine. Dauriat reads your manuscript he will certainly not be able to tie the string in the same place. Your manuscript is as good as sealed, and you will know whether he has opened it—not at all a useless experience for you. Now, take notice of another thing: you are making your entrance into the trade alone—without a sponsor, like other young fellows who go the round of a dozen publishers and whom will offer them a chair."

The Poetic Peasant Girl.

From Maxwell Gray's "The Last Sentence."
(Sons & Co.)

It was the most poetic peasant girl yet seen. She was poised lightly on the rough suburban stepping-stones, with the proud and graceful carriage that comes of bearing burdens. Her hand was raised to steady her sagging heath while springing from stone to stone. The other she carried a sickle; her dress was trim garb of the district, the skirts kilied bright in the passage, showing well-made limbs gleaming in the dusk; the snow-white Breton cap was flapped in the wind upon her wholesome face a bunch of fresh primroses was fastened in her bodice. The picture was full of charm, especially to Marlowe.

Though poised in the act of flight, the girl did not fly, but stood at gaze, her head turned over her shoulder, as if fascinated by terror, until Marlowe reached the edge of the stream, and wished her good-evening, and said the way to the nearest inn.

There was no inn near, she replied, the blush gradually dying from her face and startled fawn gaze from her large deep eyes. No, nor any tavern. Shelter for the night. There was the whole village of St. Brilleux.

now reassured, she smiled and sprang to opposite bank, beckoning to him to follow which he did, slipping on the mossy stones, which her bare feet had easily clung under water. Had he seen the château by the

That was St. Brileuc, she said in her ten French, with a strong country accent. Followed by Marlowe, she climbed up the lit-glen, through which the stream babbled on to the sea, talking with the unaffected of the French peasant, her feet pressing a alc of flower and turf, face whipped by her red cap-wings, and thus gratefully concealed and veiled. They walked till they reached a pastured grazed by cows; Marlowe wondering when the sky would melt into another shape, or resume its magic song, while the storm grew and the roar of the sea deepened.

Presently a man was seen approaching them.

"This is my father, Michel Kéronac," the Corre said. Then she examined Marlowe's situation to this strong, square Breton, who was holding a small cow which looked on the stranger with wondering eyes.

So the fairy faded into the pale, harmless Renée Kéronac, who lived with father and mother, Michel and Suzanne Kéronac, in the ruins of the feudal castle.

Père Michel readily agreed to take the belated storm-driven traveller for the night, now rapidly closing in upon them, taking care to make good tangible terms first—a easy matter, considering his broken Breton French, and Marlowe's literary book French.

In the midst of all this humming and gesticulating, misunderstanding and confusion of tongues, the sound of a bell trembled through the thunder of the rough sea and roaring wind; Kéronac stopped short, took off his broad hat, and dropped on his knees where he stood, a cow's rope thrown over his arm, his hands busy with a rosary, which suddenly appeared in them. Then went Renée's bundle of heath and sickle at the same signal, and she too fell, just where she stood, her head bent and her face shrouded by the flapping cap, a rosary appearing with the same mysterious suddenness in her hands.

The storm-wind roared over the two bent heads, shaking the father's long hair and flapping the daughter's cap: heavy raindrops fell, the cow stood patiently chewing the cud, her fur ruffled by the wind and her head bent from it. Marlowe, moved by the picture, and wondering at this combination of piety with so keen a love for gain in the worthy man before him, uncovered his own thick curled head, until the rite was done, and his new friends hurried with him and their four-footed companion to the shelter of the ruined castle, now a peasant's home. "An English painter storm-driven to pass the night," Kéronac announced, as Cecil slipped into the warm fire glow,

Mary Loved Him.

From Anna Katharine Green's "Marked Personal."
(Putnam.)

"I MUST stay," Mary persisted, looking, however, on the sudden, very pale and worn. "There is a reason why I dare not leave these rooms. Would it be safe to push the door to a little?" she queried, with her lips close to his ear. "I want to show you something it would be dangerous for any one else to know about."

Stanhope glanced at her and then across the hall. All was silent in that direction, but the door of the janitor's room was open like their own. Leaning forward, he gave the latter a light push, and it swung to, almost to the point of closing.

"Now, what is it?" he asked.

She seemed to hesitate. "I am not old enough or wise enough for such responsibilities," she objected. "If my father is living, I may be betraying him; but that mysterious man, and the look he gave about the room, may have some connection with my father's disappearance, for he has been in the house again, and—Take this!" she cried, with sudden resolution, putting in his hand a key and pointing hastily across the room, but not to where the curtain hung above the machine she had before disclosed, but to the old chest which he had observed in his first survey of the room. "Unlock that trunk, quick; I have no confidence in the Bownes. See what is in it and come back to me. I will keep guard while you are about it." And she took up her station at the crack made by the nearly closed door.

Startled, and totally unable to guess what he was about to discover, he crossed the room and hastily inserted the key in the large and old-fashioned lock of the huge chest before him. It turned without an effort, and upon lifting the lid, he saw—to his astonishment, no doubt, for he had expected something sinister—a collection of old clothes neatly spread out till they covered the entire surface of the space before him. But before he could utter a word she had sent him a loud whisper over her shoulder.

"Throw those out and look beneath. One glance will do."

He did as he was bid, and this time was not disappointed in what he found. The trunk was full of money, actual hard cash to a large amount. There was gold and silver, and bank-notes and coupons, all laid in with exactness on a square of heavy cloth, and so unprotected that he flung back in haste the clothing he had taken from above them, lest the walls around him should take note of this ready fortune and whisper the secret abroad.

"I see," was his comment, as he handed back to Mary the key. "You dare not leave this chest behind you. Never mind, we will take it with us."

She did not seem to hear; she was intent upon explaining her own attitude in regard to this money.

"I did not know there was money in this chest," said she, "till I opened it two days after my father went away. This was the key he threw me. Does not the fact of his giving it up to me look as if he expected to stay away? He had never let me take so much as a peep into the trunk before."

"And if my father should return?"

"He will be told where to find you. I am going to take you to Mrs. White. She is a woman and will welcome you kindly.

What was the matter? Was she going to faint, now that the strain and relief promised? He reached out toward her, but she drew back.

"Mrs. White?" she gasped. "Yes."

The room reeled about him. On the other hand he understood why Miss Gracia had told him that morning with such distrust. Mary loved him, and she was now a woman with a woman's heart, which he felt he was not fitted to break.

A Spectre and a Literary Tramp.

From Mary E. Stone's "A Riddle of Life."
(Lippincott.)

THE spectre was silent. He seemed to breathe deeply. At last he inquired, "What do you do to win success?"

"Anything that mankind can do."

"Supposing I should tell you how to win success,—great, warm, living success, success that men strive for—glory, fame and wealth—could do it?"

"Why don't you? I'm willing."

"There must be conditions."

"Name them."

"Listen to me: if I bestow upon you the vital ingredients to success, you must allow me to enter your body and to remain for at least half of the time—say even a minute six months."

The ragged comforter slipped entirely from the tramp's shoulders—he had shrugged disdainfully. "You mean," he said, in English language, that you would like to rent my vital tenement? In the mean time, where would I be? Two spirits in one body might be things uncomfortable. Our temperaments prove incompatible and combats ensue. Your scheme isn't practicable."

"You do not suppose," said the ghost, "I should allow you to remain in the same space with me?"

"Where can I go?"

"I shall pronounce an avatar upon our space. As I enter your body you will pass out of space."

"Isn't space a little intangible? Where is it?"

"Everywhere; all about you. Demons and spirits occupy space."

"The word suggests too much room for the tramp. "It doesn't sound snug."

"I have no inclination for idle discussion," exclaimed the spectre impatiently. "We cannot understand you had best not talk. You know the conditions. If I allow you to become successful, I must share in your triumphs. I must gain what I missed. As my mortal body has become disintegrated, I must perforce act through yours. The more you will remain ignorant of the metamorphosis. Outwardly, I shall be you; inwardly, I shall be me. Do you understand me?"

"Perfectly. I have gotten around my problems in my lifetime. But tell me, will my disembodied spirit be capable of being you cavorting around in my body? It might make me ashamed of my own body."

"Don't worry," said the ghost dryly. "I will not have you around prying into my you shall be confined to a certain space, out of the radius of my individuality. Other worlds will be accessible to you. You may visit Jupiter."

"Do you mean the serene old planet that hangs up yonder every night? Should I find anything new there?"

"What do you mean by new?"

"Oh, something to spice up life—sauce à la nouvelle; I'm pining for a change."

"You look as if a change might benefit you."

"Not complimentary, but candid. Thou art otherwise ghost. I will consider your offer. It is asking a good deal of a man to take a harder—to let out his own body, as it were; at the present state of affairs my body isn't worth much. I'd a notion of vacating it myself—drinking a pint of red ink, perhaps."

"Don't do it," pleaded the ghost. "I can make you rich and famous."

"Then it is a bargain."

Throgmorton Haggett's One Ambition.

From Julian Hawthorne's "Six Cent Sam's." (Price-McGill Co.)

As for the theory, or the ambition—for they amounted to the same thing—it possessed many theoretical merits, the chief one lacking being that of novelty. Mr. Haggett would have preferred that it should possess this also; but he consoled himself with the reflection that, if he could only vindicate it, he would enjoy two triumphs: first the vindication; and secondly, that he would have been the first to succeed of any who had tried. His name would be rendered immortal. Only there was the "if"!

The theory was, that Bacon was the author of "Shakespeare." Mr. Haggett had familiarized himself with all the extant controversial literature on the subject, beginning with Miss Delia Bacon's "The Philosophy of Shakespeare's Plays Unfolded," and coming down to the ingenious analysis of a recent American student. He had, besides, copies of the various original editions of the plays, and of every work that bore in any way upon either Shakespeare or Bacon. He had secured photographic copies of Baconian letters and manuscripts of various dates, and of all Shakespeare's alleged signatures. The entire history of the Elizabethan period was at his fingers' ends. He had even gotten so far as to determine exactly what it was he was looking for in the way of conclusive evidence. More than once he had imparted this to one of his very few friends and confidants, a certain vendor of second-hand books, by the name of Philemon Inkpenney & Co.

"It stands to reason, Philemon," he would say, "that negotiations must have been carried on between Lord Verulam and Shakespeare regarding this matter. As a rule, no doubt, these negotiations would be by personal interview. But occasionally they must have been conducted by correspondence; and although, as a measure of precaution, there would have been an understanding that this correspondence should be destroyed, yet the doctrine of chances warrants us in the belief that some fragments of it have survived. And over and above that, Philemon, it is to be remembered that a man of Shakespeare's low and tricky character would have been most apt to preserve some written evidence of Bacon's authorship, to be possibly used against him for purposes of extortion. I am convinced, consequently, that some such documentary evidence exists; and, should life be spared me, I will find it."

"Bless me, Mr. Haggett," Philemon would reply, cheerfully, "you're good for thirty years yet! And you look to me a man to carry out what you undertake, sir."

The Hero: A Product of Culture and Riches.
From Stenhiwicz's "Without Dogma." (Little, Brown & Co.)

I HAVE only four days left before my departure, and will now sum up what I said about myself. I am an individual rather worn out, very sensitive, and of a highly nervous temperament. I have a strongly developed consciousness of self, seconded by comparative culture, and taken altogether, may consider myself an intellectually developed being.

My scepticism debars me from all firm convictions. I look, observe, criticise, sometimes fancy I get hold of some essential truth, but am ready always to doubt even that. I have already said all that was necessary in reference to religion. As to my social creed I am a conservative so far as a man in my position is bound to be, and so far as conservatism suits me. No need to mention that I am far from considering conservatism as a dogma which no one is allowed to touch or to criticise. I am too much civilized to take a party view of either aristocracy or democracy. I leave that as a pastime to those who live in the country, or in remote places where ideas, like fashions, are some ten years late. From the time when privileges were done away with, the question has been closed; but in remoter parts, where the world remains more or less stagnant, it has become not so much a question of principle as rather a question of vanity and nerves. In regard to myself, I like well-bred people—people with brains and nerves, and look for them where they are most readily found. I like them as I like works of art, fine scenery and beautiful women. From an æsthetic point of view, I possess refined nerves—too refined, perhaps, owing to my early training and a naturally impressionable temperament. This æsthetic sensitiveness gives me as many delights as torments, and renders me one great service: it preserves me from cynicism or otherwise extreme corruption, and serves me instead of moral principle. I recoil from many things, not because they are wicked, but because they are ugly. From my æsthetic nerves I derive also a certain delicacy of feeling. Taken all in all, it seems to me that I am a man a little marred by life, decent enough though to say the truth, rather floating in mid-air because not supported by any dogma, either social or religious. I am also without an aim to which I could devote my life.

One word more about my abilities before concluding the synthesis. My father, my aunt, my colleagues, and sometimes strangers, consider them simply prodigious. I allow that my intellect has a certain glitter. But will the improductivité Slave scatter all the hopes invested in me? Considering all I have, or rather have not done up to this day, either for others or myself, I feel inclined to think that such will be the case. This confession costs me more than appears on the surface. My irony when I think of myself tastes bitter on the palate. There was something barren in the clay from which God formed the Ploszowskis, since on that soil everything springs up and grows so luxuriously, yet produces no fruit. Truly, if with this barrenness, this powerlessness to act, I possessed the abilities of a genius, it would be a strange kind of genius—a genius without portfolio, as there are ministers of state without portfolio.

This definition, "a genius without portfolio," seems to fit me to perfection. I shall take a patent of invention for the word. The definition does not apply to me and my name is legion. Side by side with the productivité Slave goes the genius without folio; it is a pure product of the Slav. So more I say its name is legion. I do not know another part of the world where so much is wasted, in which even those who breed something give so little, so incredibly little, in comparison with what God gave them.

The Author of "As It Was in the Beginning."

From Kipling's "Many Inventions." (Lippincott)

ENTERED, unperceived in the smoke, was the Silent. "Gen'lman to see you, sir," he, and disappeared, leaving in his stead other than Mr. Eustace Cleever. Wilbur had introduced the Dragon of Wantage with equal disregard of present company.

"I—I beg your pardon. I didn't know there was anybody—with you. I—"

But it was not seemly to allow Mr. Cleever to depart; he was a great man. The Silent remained where they were, for any other would have choked up the little room when they saw his gray hairs they shook their feet, and when The Infant caught his name, he said:

"Are you—did you write that book called 'It Was in the Beginning'?"

Mr. Cleever admitted that he had written the book.

"Then—then I don't know how to thank you, sir," said The Infant, flushing pink. "I brought up in the country you wrote all my people live there; and I read the in camp on the Hlinedatalone, and I kept stick and stone, and the dialect, too, a jove! it was just like being at home among the country people talk. Nevins, you know 'As It Was in the Beginning'?" So does The Infant.

Mr. Cleever has tasted as much praise in public and private, as one man may safely say, but it seemed to me that the outspoken attention in The Infant's eyes, and the little company came home to him very much indeed.

"Won't you take the sofa?" said The Infant. "I'll sit on Boileau's chair, and—" he looked at me to spur me to my duties as a host, but I was watching the novelist's face. Cleever had not the least intention of going anywhere, so he settled himself on the sofa.

Following the first great law of the invention which says "all property is common except money, and you've only got to ask the inventor for that," The Infant offered tobacco and cigars. It was the least he could do; but not the least lavish praise in the world held half as much appreciation and reverence as The Infant's "Say when, sir," above the long glass.

Cleever said "when," and more there was a golden talker, and he sat in the hero-worship devoid of all taint of self. The boys asked him of the birth of his books whether it was hard to write, and how the notions came to him; and he answered with the same absolute simplicity as he was questioned. His big eyes twinkled, he dug his hands into his gray beard and tugged animated. He dropped little by little the peculiar pinching of the broader vowels the indefinable "Euh" that runs through the speech of the pundit caste—and the elaborate use of words, to freely-mouthed "ows" and "ahs," and, for him at least, unfettered colloquialisms. He could not altogether understand boys, who hung upon his words so reverently. The line of the chin-strap, that still looked white and untanned on cheek-bone and forehead, the steadfast young eyes puckered at the corners of the lids with much staring through hot sunshine, the slow, untroubled breath—and the curious, crisp, curt speech seemed to puzzle him equally. He could create men and women, and send them to the uttermost corners of the earth, to help delight and comfort in every new mood of the fields, and could in-ter-pret them to the cities, and he knew the hearts of many in city and the country, but he hardly, in forty years, come "into contact with the thing which is called a Subaltern of Line."

Country Homes vs. Summering Places.

From "Homes in City and Country," (Scribner)

It is needful to exclude from present discussion those architectural retreats of the mountains, or by the shore, which are only known to their holders, and only enjoyed during August and September heats; and so—whatever dances or enliven them, or whatever dinners or sports make them gay—never get the qualities of a country family homestead.

I know very many of these summering places, in these latter years, specially taking on an importance and a fulness of equipment that they even match the city homes of their owners; but if they get every autumn a double tenting of the cupboards, and a padlocking the gates, and such dispersion of all servants as forbids any blue pennon drifting from the chimney-tops in winter, and any welcoming bound of the house-dog (if the owner pays a visit), they belong only to that category of half-homes with which we are not now concerned. Among the qualities which mark and differentiate the country house and home, as we understand it, may be counted this ever-ready openness—fires that do not go out, portraits of our grandfathers and mothers (if we have them) upon the wall, and gardens that get their belaboring with the spade as surely as every spring comes. A man may indeed divide his honors, if he have enough, and, like Queen Victoria, equip one home with Tudor ancestors, and sanctify another with the Hanoverian portraits; but barred gates and a summer rioting of weeds on house-paths make a desertion in which a sturdy home sentiment, that ought to lurk in all country houses, cannot grow.

Again, it does not appear to me that the good countryish qualities of house and home are to be measured exactly by distance from cities. Garden sanctities and charms may thrive in the very shadow of town steeples. Many of the most engaging types of our American country houses were planted on roads that became the streets of bustling towns or of cities. I recall in this connection that old Longworth homestead which for so many years held its dignified rural quietudes of trees and garden in the midst of the noisy growth of Cincinnati; again, there is the John Bartram house on the Schuylkill, retaining its country charms of vines and flowers—its birds even—long after city sounds had drowned their songs. I recall also many a quiet old town along the shores of Long Island Sound, or of the Connecticut River, where broad-faced trim houses of a colonial type, with airy halls and balustrades upon their roofs, are still full of a rural invitingness which is made good by their great gardens in the rear, and by their alleys of boxwood in the front. The interjection on the village street of butcher shops and of telegraph offices does not kill the high country qualities of such homes.

RHODE ISLAND AND CONNECTICUT SHORE HOUSE.

From "Homes in City and Country," (Copyright, 1893, by Charles Scribner's Sons.)

IN AMSTERDAM.

From Eugene Field's "Second Book of Verse." (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

MEYNHEER HANS VON DER BLOOM has got A majazin in Kalverstraat,
Where one may buy for sordid gold
Wares quaint and curious, new and old.
Here are antiquities galore—
The jewels which Dutch monarchs wore,
Swords, teacups, helmets, platters, clocks,
Bright Dresden jars, dull Holland crocks,
And all those joys I might rehearse
That please the eye, but wreck the purse.

I most admired an ancient bed,
With ornate carvings at its head—
A massive frame of dingy oak,
Whose curious size and mould bespoke
Prodigious age. "How much?" I cried.
"Ein tausend gildens," Hans replied:
And then the honest Dutchman said
A king once owned that glorious bed—
King Fritz der Foorst, of blessed fame,
Had owned and slept within the same!

Then long I stood and mutely gazed,
By reminiscent splendors dazed,
And I had bought it right away,
Had I the wherewithal to pay,
But lacking of the needful pelf,
I thus discoursed within myself:
"O happy Holland! where's the bliss
That can approximate to this Possession of the rare antique
Which maniacs hanker for and seek?
My native land is full of stuff
That's good, but is not old enough.
Alas! it has no oaken beds
Wherein have slumbered royal heads,
No relics on whose face we see
The proof of grand antiquity."

Thus reasoned I a goodly spell
Until, perchance, my vision fell
Upon a trade-mark at the head
Of Fritz der Foorst's old oaken bed—
A rampant wolverine, and round
This strange device these words I found:
"Patent Antique. Birkey & Gay, Grand Rapids, Michigan, U. S. A."

At present I'm not saying much
About the simple, guileless Dutch;
And as it were a loathsome spot
I keep away from Kalverstraat,
Determined when I want a bed
In which hath slept a royal head
I'll patronize no middleman,
But deal direct with Michigan.

Higher Education.

From Alan St. Aubyn's "The Master of St. Benedict's." (Rand, McNally & Co.)

WHILE she was thinking of the curate, and the tears were dropping in to her lap, there was a knock at the door, and some one came in. Lucy started guiltily, and hurriedly wiped her eyes. It was not the red-headed curate. It was a girl—to be more correct, a woman; everybody is a woman at Newnham—a second-year girl, who had called to see if she could help her to unpack her things, and get her room in order.

It wasn't a formal "call." Calls at Newnham are usually made after 10 P.M., when work is supposed to be over, and one is yearning for bed. The second-year girl was a little bit of a thing—smaller than Lucy. A girl who looked as if she had shrunk—as if she had once been round and plump, and bright-eyed, and soft-cheeked, and red-lipped, as a girl ought to be at twenty. She was none of these things now. She was lean and angular; her eyes were dull, her lips were pale, and her cheeks had lost all their youthful roundness and rosiness. She had never had any. The roundness had been in her figure—her back was quite straight, her shoulders were bent and stooping, and her face was narrow and flat like a board.

She had been at Newnham two years, but was twenty now, and wore glasses, not "sweet and twenty." She looked like a girl who had used up all her beauty.

"I think you have made a mistake," said, as she knelt upon the ground, Lucy's books, "in taking Classics. You should take the Natural Science Tripos. That is a thing of the past. They are quite out of date. They will be superseded altogether. Soon, very soon, Latin and Greek will be compulsory in the examinations; we shall have more useful subjects. Life is so short—she was just twenty—"that there is no time for learning things that will be out of the rush. Life is getting more and more every day, and Science is the only thing that can help us forward. There is no other way where Science will lead us!"

She clasped her hands, and gasped at the thought of it.

"No," said Lucy in a low-spirited voice. She hadn't the least interest in them. She was going to lead the girl on the floor—likely to lead her very far—but she was not to see her pet Classics turned out of the world that scornful way.

"You will learn all this trash," she continued opening the pages of Lucy's "Essays" and letting the leaves drop through her fingers as if they were not of very much account. You will pore over these rubbishy stories of a quite barbarous age—stories, and facts, and metamorphoses that, if they were written in present time, would lay the writer under prosecution for perverting the public mind. You will soak your mind with all this nonsense and impurity, and you will think that you have attained culture. Oh, to think how good their lives!"

"I am sure Classics are ever so much more useful than Natural Science," Lucy said, in a low spirit. "Look at the dreadful subjects we have to study!—and to sit side by side with men in lecture-rooms, and listen to their things most women would blush to do. Oh, I wouldn't be a Natural Scientist for the world!"

The atmosphere of Newnham was not so bad to tell. A few hours ago Lucy was a mouse, and if any one had slapped her cheek she would have been quite ready to slap them the other. Now she had plucked up sufficient spirit to defend her choice of a life.

If Newnham doesn't do anything else for a girl, it teaches her to take her own part.

Lucy didn't learn the lesson all at once. It takes a long time to learn, when one has been brought up in the old-fashioned way, to consider other people first, and to think of oneself. It would never do to practice such a doctrine at a college for women. There is one person to consider—self, self, self.

Lucy had one thing to unlearn when she came to Newnham, and a great deal more. She did not learn it all at once. She always had somebody else to consider. Now it was ever Number One. Oh, the world! Digitized by Google

The Powdered Footman Smiled.

by Kate Douglas Wiggin's "A Cathedral Courtship."
(Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

My dear girls, you are aware that we have ered fried eggs, scrambled eggs and poached
s ever since we came to Dovermarle Street, iply because we cannot eat boiled eggs pret-from the shell, English fashion, and cannot ak them into a cup or a glass, American fash-on account of the effect upon Dawson.
w there will certainly be boiled eggs at Marrimallow Hall, and we cannot refuse them rning after morning; it will be cowardly rich is unpleasant), and it will be remarked rich is worse). Eating them from an egg-
, in a baronial hall, with the remains of a wbridge in the grounds, is equally impossi-
; if we do that, Lady Marjorimallow will having our luggage examined, to see if we ry wigwams and war-whoops about with us.
, it is clearly necessary that we master the tle art of eating eggs tidily and daintily from shell. I have seen Englishwomen—very l ones, too—do it without apparent effort; I ve even seen an English infant do it, and that hout soiling her apron, or, as Salemina uld say, 'messaging her pinafore.' I propose, efore, that we order soft-boiled eggs daily;
at we send Dawson from the room directly akfast is served; and that then and there have a class for opening eggs, lowest grade, ject method. Any person who cuts the shell dly, or permits the egg to leak over the rim, allows yellow dabs on the plate, or upsets the p, or stains her fingers, shall be fine! 'tupnce' and locked into her bedroom for five nutes."

The first morning we were all in the bedroom gether, and, there being no innocent person collect fines, the wildest civil disorder pre-fled.

On the second day Salemina and I improved ghtly, but Francesca had passed a sleepless ght, and her hand trembled (the love-letter ail had come in from America). We were liged to tell her, as we collected "tuppence" ice on the same egg, that she must either reain at home, or take an oil-cloth apron to Marrimallow Hall.

But 'ease is the lovely result of forgotten il," and it is only a question of time and dere with Americans; we are so clever. Other tions have to be trained from birth; but as e need only an ounce of training where they ed a pound, we can afford to procrastinate.
omet-mes we pr-crastinate too long, but that is trifle. On the third morning success crowned r efforts. Salemina smiled and I told an andote, during the operation, although my egg as cracked in the boiling, and I question if e Queen's favorite maid of honor could have anaged it prettily. Accordingly, when eggs ere brought to the breakfast-table at Marjoriallow Hall, we were only slightly nervous.
rancesca was at the far end of the long table, d I do not know how she fared, but from varis Anglicisms that Salemina dropped, as she atted with the Queen's Counsel on her left, could see that her nerve was steady and cir-ulation free. We exchanged glances (there as the mistake!), and with an excited laugh e struck her egg a hasty blow.

Her egg-cup slipped and lurched; a top frac-on of the egg flew in the direction of the Q. C., nd the remaining portion oozed, in yellow confusion, rapidly into her plate. Alas for that past mistress of elegant dignity, Salemina! If I had been at her Majesty's table I should have smiled, even if I had gone to the Tower the next moment; but as it was, I became hysterical. My neighbor, a portly member of Parliament, looked amazed, Salemina grew scarlet, the situation was charged with danger; and, rapidly viewing the various exits, I chose the humorous one, and told as picturesquely as possible the whole story of our school of egg-opening in Dovermarle Street, the highly arduous and encouraging rehearsals conducted there, and the stupendous failure incident to our first public appearance. Sir Owen led the good-natured laughter and applause; lords and ladies, Q. C.'s and M. P.'s, joined in with a will; poor Sale-mina raised her drooping head, opened and ate a second egg with the repose of a Vere de Vere —and the footman smiled!

NOT A BOSTON GIRL.

I SEAL the letter, write her name—
It's very dear to me—
And then I add, beneath the same,
Two letters—M and D.

I see you smile in quick disdain.
You think of glasses, too,
And little curls. It's very plain
What "M.D." means to you.

But she is neither stern nor cold,
As you perhaps may think.
She's young and fair, not grim and o'd,
Nor does she scatter ink

On notes of lessons that are said
Before a learned class;
And from her dainty lips of red
No long orations pass.

The only studies that she reads
Are letters that I write;
The only lectures that she heeds
Are those that I indite.

You wonder how it all may be,
And do not understand?
She lives in Baltimore. "Md."
Means, simply—"Maryland."

—James G. Burnett, in The Century.

Latter-Day Americans.

From Sarah Barwell Elliott's "John Paget." (Holt.)

HER nephew John Paget was studying for the ministry. That would have annoyed her in the old days, but now, if one could reach the point of being absorbed and fanatical about anything, she deemed it a blessing.

The people she lived among were absorbed in many ways. One man had a fancy farm, and could talk of nothing but weeds. Some women were daft about church embroidery, some about art, some about dress reform, prison reform, hammered brass, wood carving, refugees for women, cruelty to animals, etching, orphan asylums, gymnastics, Christian science, Russian cruelty, anything to quiet the conscience and the craving for reality. No doubt good was done as well as time killed, but reality seemed to be missing.

They were all in earnest, these people; the man who talked of weeds spent hundreds, that his acres should be guiltless of one dandelion.
All the rest were in earnest too, only the work did not seem to have come to them as the duty of life. They seemed to have created a great deal of it in order to satisfy a restless energy by which they were possessed. She had no restless energy, and any of these things would have seemed playing at work. She gave money, but she could not give herself. For generations her people had lived in a hot climate, owned slaves, and been filled with repose. Work was a serious thing to such people, and had to be a solemn duty before they would do it. These Northern people had lived in a cold climate, where life was a battle, and so had been energetic for generations. As long as they had nature to conquer, and fortunes to carve out, this energy was a necessity, a boon; but now it had become the gadfly that goaded them into rest-cures and lunatic asylums. For herself, she spent her time on books and the study of her kind. The world called her icy; Claude said she was thoroughly civilized. To analyze thoroughly, one must put one's heart out of count; thus, to her, analysis of her kind was an easy thing. It had become a second nature; but she could remember the time when she hated herself for this power of moral dissection. Once when she analyzed her brother John because he was unjust to her, once when she had analyzed Carter, it had seemed to harden her heart. In her analysis of Carter, she had left weakness out, but weakness had come and he had sent for her. When she should come to die, there would be no one to send for. A trained nurse, for it was not civilized to trouble one's friends with illness and pain and death throes. All the eyes that would look into hers at the end would be calm and resigned; no hardly restrained agony, no passionate pain, but Christian resignation changing into resigned cheerfulness as she passed the point where she could change her will.

The Secret of the Great Masters.

From Marie Corelli's "A Romance of Two Worlds."
(E. A. Weeks & Co.)

"Do you not find it difficult to make your audiences understand your aims?"

"Yes," I said half laughing. "In England, at least, people do not know what is meant by improvising. They think it is to take a little theme and compose variations on it—the mere A B C of the art. But to sit down to the piano and plan a whole sonata or symphony in your head, and play it while planning it, is a thing they do not and will not understand. They come to hear, and they wonder and go away, and the critics declare it to be clap-trap."

"Exactly!" replied Heliobas. "But you are to be congratulated on having attained this verdict. Everything that people cannot quite understand is called clap-trap in England; as for instance the matchless violin-playing of Sarasate; the tempestuous splendor of Rubinstein; the wailing throb of passion in Hollman's violoncello—this is, according to the London press, clap-trap; while the coldly correct performances of Joachim and the 'icily-null' renderings of Charles Hallé are voted 'magnificent' and 'full of color.' But to return to yourself. Will you play to me?"

"I have not touched the instrument for two months," I said; "I am afraid I am out of practice."

"Then you shall not exert yourself to-day," returned Heliobas kindly. "But I believe I can help you with your improvisations. You compose the music as you play, you tell me. Well, have you any idea how the melodies or the harmonies form themselves in your brain?"

"Not the least in the world," I replied.

"Is the act of thinking them out in your mind?" he asked.

"Not at all. They come as thoughts, and I am always planning them for me."

"Well, well! I think I can certainly use to you in this matter as in others. I understand your temperament thoroughly. And let me give you my first prescription."

He went to a corner of the room and from the floor an ebony casket, curious and ornate and ornamented with silver. This he opened. It contained twelve flasks of cut glass, some with gold and numbered in order. He pulled out a side drawer in this casket and it I saw several little thin empty glass flasks about the size of a cigarette-holder. Two of these he filled them from two larger flasks, corked them tightly, and turning to me, said:

"To night, on going to bed, have a bath, empty the contents of the tube marked 1 into it, and then immerse yourself therein for about five minutes. After the bath, take fluid in this other tube marked 2, into a glass of fresh spring water, and drink it off. It is straight to bed."

"Shall I have any dreams?" I inquired with a little anxiety.

"Certainly not," replied Heliobas. "I wish you to sleep as soundly as a child. Dreams are not for you to dream. I can cure you thoroughly, and I will. I will give you your nationality—you are not English?"

"No, not entirely. I am half Italian."

"Ah, yes! I remember now. But you were educated in England?"

"Partly."

"I am glad it is only partly," returned Heliobas. "If it had been entirely, your provisions would have had no character. In fact you never would have improvised. You would have played the piano like poor musical Arabella Goddard. As it is there is a hope of originality in you—you need not be of the rank and file unless you choose."

"I do not choose," I said.

EAST TO WEST.

SUNSET smiles on sunrise; east and west are one.
Face to face in heaven before the sovereign sun
From the springs of the dawn everlasting a glory
And transfigures the west,

From the depths of the sunset a light as of morning
Kindles the broad sea's breast,
And the lands and the skies and the waters are
The day's and the night's work done.

Child of dawn, and regent on the world-wide sea
England smiles on Europe, fair as dawn and free
Not the waters that gird her are purer, nor mightier
Winds that her waters know.

But America, daughter and sister of England, is free
Of them, far as they flow:
Atlantic responds to Pacific the praise of her day
Have been and shall be.

So from England westward let the watchword be,
So for England eastward let the seas reply;
Praise, honor, and love everlasting be sent on the wings,
Westward and east,
That the pride of the past and the pride of the present
May mingle as friends at feast,
And the sons of the lords of the world-wide sea
Till the world's life die.

WAGNER AND HIS WORKS.

The Story of His Life, with Critical Comments. With portraits: vols., $4.00.

"It is certainly the best biography of Wagner that has appeared in English, really the best that has appeared in any language. Wagner's life and work are honestly and admiringly set forth, and the volumes are a monument of earnest and careful devotion that command attention and respect."—Philadelphia Times.

STORIES OF NEW YORK.

STORIES OF THE RAILWAY.

Illustrated. Each 16mo, paper, 50 cents; clo., 75 cents; half calf, $1.50.

The series of "Stories from Scribner," of which the foregoing are the first two volumes, is to include six volumes containing many of the best stories that have appeared in Scribner's Magazine in recent years, grouped under attractive subjects charmingly illustrated and daintily and tastefully made. In the matter of the book's typography, paper and illustration, the attempt has been successfully made to give the best of similar French productions. The above volumes are now ready. The succeeding volumes in preparation will be entitled: "Stories of the South" (in June), "Stories of the Sea," "Stories of Italy," and "Stories of the Army."

AN ADVENTURE IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

Illustrated from photographs by the Adventurers. 12mo, $1.50, net.

Octave Thanet's new book, the scope of which is indicated by the foregoing, has an attractive literary quality which will commend it to the general reader. The book is bright and colloquial, with many amusing touches in the narrative. The illustrations are both attractive and instructive.

HOW TO KNOW THE WILD FLOWERS.

With 104 illustrations by Marion Satterlee. Sixth Thousand. Square 12mo, $1.50, net.

From a letter by Olive Thorne Miller: "It is exactly what has long been wanted by one who loves nature and longs to be formally introduced—so to speak—that I know her treasures by name, but who has not time to study botany. Your arrangement by colors is a great help to ready reference, and the illustrations are invaluable."

ART OUT OF DOORS.

Hints on Good Taste in Gardening. 12mo, $1.50.

"It is a charming volume and one whose value will be permanent. Those of our own country places and those who some day may own them will highly value it. The author is an enthusiast and well versed in her subject."—Boston Times.

HOMES IN CITY AND COUNTRY.

With 100 illustrations. 8vo, $2.00.

"A beautiful book. It abounds in suggestions of great value to every lover of a beautiful home, and is made so practical as to be not only entertaining, but most useful."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

TROPICAL AMERICA. With 16 illustrations. Cr. 8vo, $2.00.

"Not in recent years has any English visitor produced a work in which so much vital interest has been so well recorded. Nowhere is there a chapter in which the reader may not find something to make him wiser."—New York Times.

STORIES OF A WESTERN TOWN.

Illustrated by A. B. Frost. 12mo, $1.25.

"The Western character, so full of humanity, homely and plain often, but genuine and wholesome, has never been better presented than in this volume. Octave Thanet has made an addition to American literature which is of positive and permanent value."—Boston Courier.

A SECOND BOOK OF VERSE. 16mo, $1.25.

"It must be a gloomy man or woman who is not moved to hearty laughter bubbling fun, or touched by its tender pathos."—San Francisco Chronicle.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' NEW BOOKS.—Continued.

SAINT

THE WOMEN OF THE VALOIS COURT.

With 6 portraits. Famous Women of the French Court. 12mo, $1.25.
Several new volumes are to be added to this popular series, differing from their predecessors in that they each describe the lives of several women and contain numerous portraits. The women whose careers are pictured in this first volume are Marguerite d'Angoulême, Catherine de Medicis, Diane de Poitiers, Marie Stuart, Elizabeth de France, Jeanne d'Albret, Marguerite de Valois, Elizabeth d'Autriche and Louise de Vaudemont.

Three volumes on Louis XIV. and Louis XV. will be published later.

JOHN C.
VAN DYKE.

ART FOR ART'S SAKE.

With 24 reproductions of paintings. 12mo, $1.50.
"We consider it the best treatise on the technic of painting, for general readers, that is at present obtainable, and the book most likely to aid the layman to some comprehension of the painter's view of painting—the view which is necessarily the right one, and which yet is the view that the literary critics of art have constantly obscured rather than elucidated."—The Nation.

GEORGE I.
PUTNAM.

IN BLUE UNIFORM: An Army Novel. 12mo, $1.00.

Mr. Putnam's new novel contains, as the background for a delicately and skillfully constructed love-story a series of quiet, realistic, entertaining pictures of garrison life on the Western frontier, in which officers, privates and all the other typical characters which go to make up a garrison community are portrayed with rare fidelity.

PROF. H. H.
BOYESEN.

SOCIAL STRUGGLERS. 12mo, $1.25.

"Prof. Boyesen understands American life, and he has delineated it in this novel with a vigor and grace that show him to be a philosopher as well as an accomplished literary artist."—Boston Beacon.

T. R.
SULLIVAN.

DAY AND NIGHT STORIES, Second Series.

12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.
CONTENTS: The Clerk of the Weather—A Toledo Blade—"To Her"—The Anatomist of the Heart—The Man in Red—Jack-in-the-Box—Under Cover of the Darkness.

Day and Night Stories, First Series. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

ROBERT
STEVENSON.

ISLAND NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Beach of Falésa, The Bottle Imp, and The Isle of Voices. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

"Three stories of a kind that no other British author could conceive or execute, making their wildest fantasies as veritable for the time being as events of every-day life. He is a man of genius and a noble writer."—New York Mail and Express.

FRANCISQUE SARCEY.

RECOLLECTIONS OF MIDDLE LIFE.

With portrait. 12mo, $1.50.
"Sarcey's comment on himself as well as on his friends is frank throughout, and the volume is an interesting revelation to one who has any interest in the intellectual side of Parisian life."—Providence Journal.

JOHN
SYMONDS.

THE LIFE OF MICHEL ANGELO.

With portrait and 50 reproductions of Michel Angelo's Works. Second edition, 2 vols., crown 8vo, $7.50.

"As a labor of love, as the tribute of a lover of beautiful things to a maker of them, it merits all praise; as a dictionary, a solid contribution to history, it has the unique advantage of being based upon hitherto unexplored sources of evidence; as a work of art it stands out as the best and sincerest work its author can give us."—The Academy, London.

SCRIBNER'S YELLOW PAPER COVER SERIES. The latest issues in this popular series are Dr. J. G. HOLLAND's Arthur Bonnicastle and T. R. SULLIVAN's Day and Night Stories, Second Series. Recent volumes include Reflections of a Married Man, by ROBERT GRANT; Silhouettes of American Life, by REBECCA HARDING DAVIS; The Governor, and Other Stories, by GEORGE A. HIBBARD, and Sevenoaks, by Dr. J. G. HOLLAND. The price of each of these is 50 cents. Send for a full list of the series, containing stories by FRANK R. STOCKTON, ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, GEORGE W. CABLE, OCTAVE THANET, JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS, Mrs. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT and other popular authors.

SUMMER ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Toppleton's Client; or, A Spirit in Exile.

By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, author of "Coffee and Repartee," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. (Ready June 1.)

A semi-humorous story of the supernatural in the best vein of this popular writer. An utterly commonplace English barrister is persuaded to vacate his body at intervals in favor of an accomplished but wicked disembodied soul. The latter achieves brilliant successes under its false guise, and finally makes off with the body altogether. The barrister's exiled spirit retains Toppleton to recover the lost body, and their efforts to do this are described in an entertaining manner.

The £1,000,000 Bank-Note, and Other New Sketches.

By MARK TWAIN. With frontispiece. Small 8vo, cloth, $1.00; stamped leather, $1.50.

This volume contains Mark Twain's new story of the "£1,000,000 Bank-Note," together with several other stories, by the same author, which have never before appeared in book form. They include: "Mental Telegraphy," "Playing Courier," "A Letter to Queen Victoria," "About Ships," "The German Chicago," and "A Majestic Literary Fossil."

A Catastrophe in Bohemia, and Other Stories.

By HENRY S. BROOKS. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. (Ready June 1.)

Most of these stories have appeared first in the Overland Monthly and other Western periodicals and have been widely copied all over the United States. The best known among them are perhaps: "A Catastrophe in Bohemia," "The Crazy Professor," "Dona Paula's Treasure," "The Don of Pauper Alley" and "La Tigra." Mr. Brooks lived for many years in the far western part of the United States, in Lower California and in Mexico. These stories contain various phases of life in these strange and out-of-the-way places.

Tenting on the Plains.

By ELIZABETH B. CUSTER, author of "Boots and Saddles." New cheap edition. Illustrated by Frederic Remondt. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This edition is printed from new plates, with the original illustrations, and bound in a handsome and appropriate cover. It is one of Mrs. Custer's best books, and can be very favorably compared with her "Boots and Saddles."

New paper editions of three good books at 50 cents each.

Mr. Billy Downs and His Likes.

By RICHARD MALCOLM JOHNSTON, author of "Dukesborough Tales," etc.

Don Finimondone; Calabrian Sketches.

By MRS. ELISABETH CAVAZZA.

The Master of Silence.

By IRVING BACHELLER.

Three interesting books just published

The Art of Sketching.

By G. FRAIPONT. Translated from French by Clara Bell. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Stories from the Rabbis

By ABRAHAM S. ISAACS, Ph.D. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Elizabeth: Christian Scientist.

By MATT CRIM, author of "Adventure of a Fair Rebel," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

READY IN JUNE.

A New Book by the Author of "Poems of Passion."

MEN, WOMEN AND EMOTIONS

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

12mo, Paper, 50 Cents. 12mo, Cloth, $1.25.

While the name of Ella Wheeler Wilcox is known mainly through her popular poetical works, there is a constantly increasing interest manifested in her prose essays which cover a field entirely her own.

Mrs. Wilcox possesses a talent for safely handling dangerous and hitherto tabooed subjects. Her pen is like a skilled surgeon's knife, with which she lays bare human emotions and passions, and in epigrams of warning, sympathy and counsel she crystallizes her discoveries for the benefit of humanity.

However daring and unusual the topics she discusses, no one can read any chapter in this book without feeling stronger to resist temptation and braver to cope with life's battles. Every phase of emotion is analyzed, every relation of man to woman treated, every folly and frailty probed; the lancet is often sharp, but there is balm and healing on its point.

RUSKIN.

Edition de Luxe.

We have on the presses a new Edition de Luxe of Ruskin's best works, which will be the finest set of standard books ever made in this country.

The set comprises: Modern Painters, in six volumes (including both the original and the revised volume two), Stones of Venice, in three volumes, and Seven Lamps of Architecture, in one volume; in all about 3250 printed pages, with 156 full-page inset plates and several hundred engravings.

Twenty-one of the plates are lithographed by Bien; these include all the beautiful color plates, some of them in 11 colors 101 are artotypes, the most delicate and effective of all methods of illustration, and peculiarly adapted to these particular volumes of Ruskin. The others are line-engravings or relief plates.

The books will be large octavos of uniform thickness printed on English-finish tinted paper, the best that money could buy.

The edition is limited to 1000 copies. Each volume, appropriately bound, will be enclosed in a separate box.

The set will be sold by subscription only, the ten volumes for $50. It is in every respect equal to the English Edition de Luxe which sells for $200.

Three old friends, a doctor, a judge and a detective, all about fifty years old, are chatting in the judge's home, when a peculiar sound is heard from the room above. The judge goes to find out the cause and soon returns. Again the sound is heard and he sends his friend, the doctor, to attend his wife, who is indisposed. After a long interval the doctor calls and the judge and detective find him with the body of Mrs. Hollingwood, who has been murdered. The detective work in getting at the mystery makes the story.

The principals of the North School and Arsenal School, of Hartford, Conn., have prepared a book specially for teachers. Part 1 presents the best children's books on American history, and how they can be used to best advantage. It gives titles, publishers and prices of books, and the bibliography of the subject, including the periodical literature, receives special attention. The relation of the history of America to its geography and to the contemporaneous transatlantic States is prominently brought out.

*Crepas, Adele. The emancipation of women and its probable consequences. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. 15-1. $1.

Cummings, G. D. The history of General Sumner's campaign in 1885: a dramatic poem. Francisco, Cal., W: Doxey, 1885. 2-1. pap., $1.

A dramatic poem, giving an account of the life of the Apache chief Geronimo, in the summer of 1885. Wherever the Indians and the United States figure in the work it is true to history.

Cushing, Paul. The great Chin episode. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. c. 4-326-1. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.

The "Chin episode" is a murder and the expert work which in the end traces the crime and the motive. An army officer married a butler in the household of an English woman is the chief character.

Dale, Darley. Lottie's wooing. N. Y., sell Pub. Co., [1898.] c. 5+371 p. D.

Lottie is the leading spirit in her father's household. Having taken a house in the beautiful country of England, Lottie makes up her mind to the landlord for the good of her income. The tricks and manoeuvres she resorts to in order to win this middle aged, well-balanced man.

substance of a well-planned story. Needless to say she is successful and the confessions of the lovers at the end are quite amusing.

Daniel, Lizzie Cary, comp. Confederate scrap book: copied from a scrap-book kept by a young girl during and immediately after the war, with additions from war copies of the Southern Literary Messenger and Illustrated News, loaned by friends, and other selections as accredited; published for the benefit of the Memorial Bazar held in Richmond, April 11, 1893. Richmond, Va., J. L. Hill Printing Co., 1893. 7+256 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

Contains the farewell addresses of Generals Lee, Meade, Magruder, Kirby Smith, Commander Maury at sea, the last words written by Stonewall Jackson, etc., etc. Also, "The form of parole," "Reward for Mr. Davis," "The amnesty proclamation," the "Order forbidding wearing the gray," the "Jeff Davis bond," "The Richmond Examiner's famous convention of beasts," "The constitution of the Confederate States and that of the United States compared," and a number of Confederate war poems and songs.

Dement, Richmond Sheffield. Napoleon: a drama. Reading ed. with appendix. Chic., Knight, Leonard & Co., 105-107 Madison St., 1893. c. 6-188 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50; leath., $2.50.

Written in blank verse. In the preface the author explains that he has perhaps not represented the popular Napoleon, but has endeavored to portray him as he is convinced he will appear at a not far-distant period. To this end he sometimes sacrifices historical accuracy, as his chief aim is to elucidate Napoleon's character and bring all within the compass of an hour's reading.

Dibble, F. L., M.D. Vagaries of sanitary science. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 2-462 p. O. cl., $2.

The author claims that the whole sanitary movement thus far has no resemblance to scientific investigation. Much sanitary nonsense has been foisted on the people. He submits carefully investigated facts on air, water, soil, sewer gas, cemeteries, public funerals, meat, milk and fecal diseases, typhoid fever, yellow fever, cholera, diphtheria, epidemics, boards of health and vital statistics. His purpose is to do away with the vague terrors people have about disease by teaching them their true nature and the means to avoid them scientifically.

Du Bose, J. Witherspoon. The life and times of William Lowndes Yancey: a history of political parties in the United States from 1834 to 1864, especially as to the origin of the Confederate States. Birmingham, Ala., Roberts & Son, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 15+752 p. por. O. cl., $3.50.

Mr. Yancey was born in Georgia, Aug. 10, 1814; was educated in the North and admitted to the bar in Abbeville, S. C.; he moved to Alabama in 1836, where he served in both branches of the legislature; he was also a member of Congress twice between 1844 and 1847; he was noted as an orator through the South, taking for nearly twenty years sides against Henry Washington Hilliard on leading Southern questions. He opposed the compromise measures of 1850 and was the leader of the secession movement of 1861; he died in 1863. This work reveals a strong and picturesque personality, and offers an interesting history of Southern thought, and the growth of parties and ideas, as seen from a Southern standpoint.

Duncomb, S. Whitney, jr. Bankruptcy: a study in comparative legislation. N. Y., [Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Columbia College,] 1893. 4-167 p. O. (Columbia College studies, v. 2, no. 2.) pap., $1.

Edwards, Tryon B., D.D. A dictionary of thoughts: a cyclopedia of laconic quotations, from the best authors, both ancient and modern; alphabetically arranged by subjects. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '91. 15+644 p. O. cl., $2.50.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., October 10, 1891, [1028.]

*Elterlein, Ernst v. Beethoven's symphonies in their ideal significance; explained by Ernst von Elterlein; from the German. with the author's approval, by Francis Weber. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Figuier, L. Joys beyond the threshold: a sequel to "The to-morrow of death;" tr. by Abby Langdon Alger. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 4+331 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A further development of and comment on the consoling pictures of a future life, presented some twenty years ago in the author's "The to-morrow of death; or, the future life according to science." Mr. Figuiet believes in "the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its re-incarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of ethereal space."

Finley, Martha F., ["Martha Farquharson," pseud.] The tragedy of Wild River Valley. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1893.] 2+231 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Wild River Valley is supposed to be in the north-western farming country of the United States. A story of robbery and murder and cruelty of various kinds; not intended for young readers.

Fletcher, W. I., and Bowker, R. R. The annual literary index, 1892; including periodicals, American and English, essays, book-chapters, etc.; with author-index, bibliographies and necrology; ed. with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association, and of the Library Journal staff. N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1893. c. 8+224 p. O. cl., $3.50.

"The annual literary index" succeeds to and includes what has hitherto been known as the "Co-operative index to periodicals," the list of periodicals indexed being largely increased, and contains several new features, the most important of which is the first annual index to those portions of the books of the year which are practically monographs on special subjects. It is the first volume of a series which will include the annual Fletcher index as well as the annual "Poole," known as the "A. L. A. index." In the "Index to general literature" many books are covered issued previous to 1892, but not prepared for record in time to be included in the "A. L. A. index" volume. The lists of special bibliographies published during the year, and the necrology of authors deceased during the year, both new features, will be found very useful.

*Florentine, Agnolo Firenzuola. Of the beauty of women: dialogue; from the Italian, by Clara Bell; with an introd. by Theo. Child. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $2.25.

Franklin, B. The select works of Benjamin Franklin; incl. his autobiography; with notes and a memoir by Epes Sargent. [New issue.] Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. '53. 502 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Froebel, F. Froebel's letters; ed. with explanatory notes and additional matter by Arnold H. Heinemann. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. 5-182 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The universal spread of the kindergarten has given a new and vivid interest to all that relates to Froebel. In the selections from his letters never before published, just made by Mr. Heinemann, we are taken into the silent brain-chambers of the friend of children; and we see how he toiled painfully along the road pointed out by reasoning and experience before (in his simple phrase) he "found" the kindergarten. This book with its explanatory notes becomes at once a memoir and a history of the system.

Giles, F. R. The mysterious Mr. Jarvis. N. Y., W. D. Rowland, 1893 [1893.] c. '92. 223 p. D. (Leisure-time ser., no. 16.) pap., 25 c.

The scene is Chicago. Mr. Jarvis evidently stands for Christian K. Ross, of Philadelphia. He is seen following up a clue for the recovery of his lost son given him by Mrs. Mosher, whose son was one of the abductors of Charley Ross. The interest is in Ross senior's methods and the final developments in an extended search.

Gilman, S. C. The story of a western claim: a tale of how two boys solved the Indian question. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 201 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is on the frontier of Nebraska. The first chapter introduces an incident of Western life which illustrates the methods of claim-taking and the force of the pre-emption act. The successive chapters give in detail the experiences of two Eastern lads who took up a claim and interested themselves in the Indians of the locality.

Gmeiner, Rev. J. A popular defence of Christian doctrines. In 8 v. V. 1, Modern scientific views and Christian doctrines compared; v. 2, The spirits of darkness and their manifestations on earth; or, ancient and modern spiritualism. 3d ed.; v. 3, Emanuel, the saviour of the world. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] c. '84, '85, '88. 7+212; 7+267; 8+119 p. D. V. 1, 2, ea., cl., 60 c.; pap., 35 c.; v. 3, cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

Goesbriand, L. de, (Bp.) The labors of the Apostles: their teaching of the nations. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12°, cl., net, $1.

Green, Anna Katharine, [now Mrs. Rohlf.] Marked "personal." N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 5+415 p. D. pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.

Twenty-five years back of the story lies the cause of the package marked "personal." Twelve years back lies a connecting link during the time of the New York draft riots of 1863. On his wedding day, Samuel White, with everything to live for, is found dead in his room two hours after the ceremony. His son and young second wife employ friends and foes to get at the mystery of his death. The ingenious plot is built up with all the skill of the writer of "The Leavenworth case" to the very last chapter, which contains the surprising solutions of several mysteries.

Haven, Gilbert. Christus consolator; or, comfortable words for burdened hearts. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. 6-264 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

Hasell's annual for 1893: a cyclopedic record of men and topics of the day: the year's history of all parts of the globe revised to Nov. 30, 1893. 8th year of issue. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 8°, cl., $1.50.

Hector, Mrs. Annie F., ["Mrs. Alexander." pseud.] Was she to blame? a novel. Chic., E. A. Week & Co., 1893. 6-235 p. il. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 8.) pap., 25 c.

Published in Holt's Leisure hour series under the title "Look before you leap." See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., September 2, 1892, [555.]

Helena's cloud with the silver lining. [Also] What the angels saw on Christmas eve; by the author of "How Marjorie watched." [New issue.] N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1893.] 4-316 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

Hourwich, I. A. The economics of the Russian village. N. Y., [Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Columbia College.] 1892 [1893.] 182 p. O. (Columbia College studies, v. 2, no. 1.) pap., $1.

Intended to give the American student of economics a glance at the rural conditions which have resulted in the terrible calamity of the Russian famine. Treats of the rise of "peasantism," the development of land-holding in Russia, community of land, the productive forces of the peasantry, taxation, wages, surplus population, dissolution of patriarchal family, modern agricultural classes, agrarian communism, the famine as a result of agricultural backwardness, the rise of capitalistic agriculture. Appendix of statistical tables. The author is Seligman Fellow in Political Science, Columbia College, N. Y.

How Marjorie watched. [Also] Lett. by the author of "Helena's cloud with the silver lining." N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1893.] 4-316 p. il. D. cl., 80 c.

Hunolt, Francis. Sermons, v. 9 and 10. Christian's last end; or, sermons on the four last things, death, judgment, hell. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 32°, cl., net, $5.

Jolly, W. Education in its physical relations, with special reference to physical defects in schools and suggestions for making school work broader and better. N. Y., W. Beverley Harison, 1893. 2-55 p. T. (Pocket pedagogical library, no. 1.) pap., 25 c.

The author is her majesty's inspector of schools in Scotland. A series of suggestions on important subjects addressed to earnest, practical teachers. It is divided into three parts: 1. Violations of the law in educational practice; 2. The systematic education of the body—physical education; 3. An examination of the form of over-pressure.

Kelsey, C. B., M.D. Diseases of the rectum and anus: their pathology, diagnosis, and treatment. 4th ed., rev. and cal. N. Y., W. Wood & Co., 1893. 496 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.

Lataste, Marie. Letters and writings of the French, by E. Thompson. V. 2. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12°, cl., net, $1.40.

Loomis, Alfred L., M.D. Lessons in physical diagnosis. 10th ed., rev. and cal. N. Y., W. Wood & Co., 1893. 290 p. il. 8°, $3.

Lowell, D. O. S. Jason's quest; il. by C. Reed. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1893.] c. 11+228 p. il. sq. S. cl., $1.

In this story of Jason's quest no attempt is made to harmonize or even mention all the various accounts, though some of the most striking details are recorded in the notes. The chief object is to produce a story that shall be both attractive and helpful to children and youth, and possibly to larger growth who have not quite outgrown their youthfulness, or love of folk-lore and fairy tales. Preface.

Macaulay, T. Babington, (Lord.) Macaulay's essays on Milton and Addison; ed. by W. Chalmers. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1893.] 18+190 p. (Student's series, English classics.) cl., 42 c.

McKendrick, J. Gray, and Snodgrass, T. The physiology of the senses. N. Y., Scribner's Sons, 1893. 16+318 p. (University extension manuals.) cl., $1.50.

The aim is to give an account of the function of the organs of sense as found in man and animals. While neither minuteness of detail nor comparative philosophy nor extended discussion of psychological character can be expected here.

annual, the physiology of the senses is discussed as fully as space will allow. Simple experiments are suggested by which any one may test the statements of himself, and the book has been so written as to be readily understood by those who have not made physiology a special study. It will be found a suitable preparation for entering upon the questions that underlie physiological psychology. In the last chapter an attempt is made to throw light upon the physiological basis of sensation, in the hope of contributing to speculative thought on this problem.

*Maglione, —. (Canon.) The Vatican and the kingdom of Italy. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 16°, cl., net, 30 c.

*Moriarity, Gerald P. Dean Swift and his writings. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $2.50.

Murray, D. Christie. A wasted crime: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 2+191 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new series, no. 784.) pap., 50 c.

Robert, the eldest son of Sir William Audley, Baronet of the Grange at Quarrymoor, incurs the displeasure of his father by marrying the national school teacher of Rook's End. Immediately after their marriage the baronet has a fatal accident, upon which Robert's wife makes some apparent overtures towards a reconciliation which only mask an attempt upon the old man's life. Her crime is defeated, however, by the clever action of the physician, Sir John Leppell, and she learns she has imperilled herself in this world and in the hereafter for naught.

*Navery, Raoul de. The galley slave; from the French. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12°, cl., net, 70 c.

Novena for the relief of the poor souls in purgatory; by a missionary of the Sacred Heart. Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] 3-60 p. Tt. pap., 10 c.

Olmis, Eliz. Jack's hymn. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1893. 4-58 p. il. D. cl., 50 c.

A children's hospital is the scene. Four or five little convalescents are discussing the Easter story which had just been told them by a sweet-voiced "Sister." Jack had been picked up after a railroad accident and put under the care of Dr. John in St. Innocent's Hospital. The finding of his mother and the fate of dear, blue-eyed Donald, the hospital pet, are worked into a touching story. First appeared in the New York Ledger.

Parker, Jos., D.D. The people's Bible: discourses upon Holy Scripture. V. 21, Mark-Luke. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893. 3+460 p. O. cl., $1.50.

There are more than fifty chapters, expository of the text according to Mark and Luke, in the present volume. The following from the subject-titles will serve to indicate originality of treatment by the author: "The threefold beginning of the Gospel;" "Spiritual reparation;" "Christ's relation to great multitudes;" "The unknown quantity in Christ;" "The spiritual value of the near and the invisible;" "The silent looks of Christ;" "Exciting sermons;" "Plous at the wrong places;" "Personal pronouns;" "Inquiry into meanings;" "The claims of the city;" "How to treat commotion," etc. A good, practical index is given at the close of the volume.

Putnam, G. I. In blue uniform: an army novel. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 4+279 p. D. cl., $1.

A story of garrison life at a post on the west Texas prairie, just after the close of the late war; with a simple love-affair interwoven the details of a ruined life, in which a private soldier is the chief actor, his identity, revealed only at the close, being a great surprise.

Renton, W. Outlines of English literature. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 10+248 p. D. (University extension manuals.) cl., net, $1.

English national literature is divided into two main periods, the first covering from 800-1000, the second from 1000-1900. Each of these periods is subdivided into four ages. The specialties of the writers of every age are brought before the reader by an ingenious system of diagrams and their rank in literature indicated by large and small type. American literature is considered as an integral part of English literature; but an appendix gives a summary of its history and general characteristics with a conspectus of Scotch and American poetry in relation to English.

Rice, Edwin W., D.D., ed. People's dictionary of the Bible; describing persons, places, countries, customs, birds, animals, trees, plants, books, events, and many other things in Holy Scripture. Phil., American S. S. Union, 1893. c. 6-228 p. map, D. cl., 25 c.

Seabury, W. Jones, D.D. Lectures on apostolical succession in the Church of England, being an exposition and application of the teaching of the late Rev. Arthur Haddan, D.D., in his treatise on the subject. (Rivingtons, 1869.) N. Y., C. Scribner & Korth, 246 Fourth Ave., 1893. c. 12, S. cl., net, 75 c.

Arthur West Haddan was born in 1816 and died in 1873. He was deeply affected by the Oxford movement and did much work for the Anglo-Catholic cause. His second edition of his treatise was published in 1883. It has for many years been a text-book in the General Theological Seminary in New York, and Dr. Seabury is professor. It is highly recommended by the department of ecclesiastical policy and law of the General Synod, and to make its contents known to the clergy, these lectures were delivered. Dr. Seabury aimed to improve it, but for practical purposes in an affirmative way, while the author's style is of great extent negative and defensive. Haddan was a firm believer in the Apostolic Church.

Sellinger, Jos., D.D. Agnosticism, new theology, and old theology on the nature of the supernatural; with permission of the Ecumenical Council. [New ed.] Milw., Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] c. '92. O. cl., net, 25 c.

*Spencer, Herbert. The principles of ethics. V. 2, comprising "Justice," "Negative beneficence" and "Positive beneficence." N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 12, cl., $2.

Stories of New York. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 7-214 p. il. Tt. (Stories of New York, Scribner ser., no. 1.) hf. cf., $1.50; cl., 50 c.

In the series of little books, issued under the general title, "Stories of New York," the purpose has been to gather together some of the best and most entertaining short stories written for Scribner's magazine, during the past few years, and to present them in dainty volumes grouped under attractive covers and decorated by a few illustrations to brighten the pages. The set as arranged consists of six volumes, the first, "Stories of New York," containing five to six; a comedietta, by Annie Eliot; The only possible story, by Bliss Perry; The end of the thing, by G. A. Hibbard; A Puritan Ingenu, by Wood; Mrs. Manstey's view, by Edith Wharton.

Stories of the railway. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 7-195 p. il. Tt. (Stories of the railway, Scribner ser., no. 2.) hf. cf., $1.50; cl., 50 c.

Contents: As the sparks fly upward, by G. A. Hibbard; How I sent my aunt to Baltimore, by T. Nelson Page; Run to seed, by T. Nelson Page; The Mogul, by A. C. Gordon.

Sullivan, T. R. Day and night stories: new series. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 5+249 p. D. cl., $1.

Contents: The clerk of the weather; A Tale to her; The anatomist of the heart; The red; Jack-in-the-box; Under cover of the darkness.

Taube, G. v. A medicus in love: a novel student life. N. Y., W. D. Rowland & Warren St., [1893.] c. 260 p. D. (The student life, no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

This story is one of Bohemian life in the capital of Vienna.

Scudder, J. V.

heocracy (The) and the law of national caducity. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 16°, 25 c.

Thompson, E. Maunde. Handbook of Greek and Latin palaeography. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 12°, (International scientific ser., no. 70.) cl., $2.

rebuck, W.: Sweetheart Gwen: a Welsh idyll. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. c. 5+277 p. D. cl., $1.

Sweetheart Gwen was a charming Welsh girl whose simple and winning personality made her the idol of her young cousin Mark. It is he who gives his impressions of Wales and Ty Creamed, Gwen's home, introduces a sad episode in her life, traces the use of her ardent love for a childish lover, tells the happenings of rare visits to the Welsh country in the imitable dialect of the country folk, and his inability to forget or replace an ideal heroine whose final fate is a mystery.

ucker, Mrs. Charlotte, ["A. L. O. E.," pseud.] The young pilgrim: a story illustrative of the "Pilgrim's progress." [New issue.] N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. 6-854 p. il. S. cl., 50 c.

ahy, Rev. J. W. Father Vahey's controversial letters. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., 1888 [1893.] 2-155 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Jells, Webster. An academic arithmetic for academies, high and commercial schools. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1893.] c. 7+339 p. D. (Wells' mathematical ser.) cl., $1.

Intended to furnish a thorough course in all those portions of arithmetic which are required for admission to any college or scientific school. The pupil is assumed to have already studied the more elementary parts of the subject in a text-book of lower grade; and fully enough examples are given in the earlier chapters to afford material for a review.

Wheeler, Mrs. W. Lamont. A Washington symphony: a story of society. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Whishaw, F. J. Out of doors in Tsarland: a record of the seeings and doings of a wanderer in Russia. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 4+380 p. il. D. cl., $2.

A book about Russia in which nothing is said about the Eastern question or nihilism or the horrors of Siberia. Gives realistic pictures of a typical Russian village and takes us sight seeing in the streets of St. Petersburg. The greater part of the book describes hunting adventures, from the shooting of woodcock and snipe to the pursuit of elk and bear and a wolf battue. Angling in Russian waters forms the subject of a long chapter.

White, Caroline Earle. A modern Agrippa. [Also] Patience Barker: a tale of old Nantucket. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 8-285 p. D. cl., $1.

The time of the first story is 1873. Edith Merton becomes possessed in a very remarkable way of a small mirror, which instead of reflecting the evil thoughts and desires of those who approached it, as did Agrippa's, reflects only her own shortcomings. This wonderful glass plays a most important part in the romance of a New York belle. The second story tells of the seven years' wooing of Captain Barker's daughter.

Yonge, Charlotte M., and Coleridge, Christabel R. Strolling players: a harmony of contrasts. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 3+349 p. D. cl., $1.

The story opens with a business failure by which Sir Lewis Willingham, his young wife and brothers and sisters are reduced to comparative poverty. The Willinghams have always been ardent in amateur theatricals, all are young and enthusiastic, and they form themselves into a company of strolling players to give entertainments at the homes of their wealthy acquaintances. Their experiences are varied, and they learn that acting in play and acting in earnest are very different things. English country life is pleasantly pictured.

Zardetti, Rev. Otto. Special devotion to the Holy Ghost: a manual for the use of seminarians, priests, religious and the Christian people; with a letter of introd. by Bp. J. Keane. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] c. '88. 480 p. T. cl., net, $1.

SPEAKING OF DRUMMERS.

BY ONE OF THEM.

THE first requisite in a "drummer" or "travelling agent," in modern times, is a stock of good-nature. Whatever the storm within, outwardly he must be as placid and calm as a sunbeam. A friend of ours recently related his experience. In one of our large Western cities he lost a train, and rather than lie idle for half a day determined to call on a large firm, the chief of which had the reputation of being a raging hyena in his relation to drummers. Hence all gave the man a wide berth. Our young friend, however, with not the slightest expectation of making a sale, and to pass away the hours of waiting, ventured to call upon the buying partner. He found him in his office, his feet in a chair, quietly smoking his after-dinner cigar. Showing his card, the drummer said: "I have the honor, sir, to represent the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown." With an ugly and supercilious glare, and in a sarcastic manner, the lordly man replied, the smoke curling over his head, "Well, young man, I have no objection to your representing the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown, and you may represent them till doomsday for all I care. I don't want you." Quicker than a flash, in the most pleasant manner and with inimitable grace, the young man touched his hat to his majesty, and answered: "I am quite delighted, sir, to hear that you have no objection to my representing the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown, for, sir, had I the remotest idea that you did object to my representing the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown I should not sleep a wink to-night. Good afternoon." As he quietly turned to walk out of the office the chief called out, "Come back, here, young man! Come back! Show me your samples!" The result was a sale of nearly a thousand dollars and a good customer secured.

CATCHING A BOOKWORM'S HEART.

AN amusing story of how a confirmed old bachelor, who combined with his bachelorhood the qualities of the bibliomaniac, came finally to marry, is told by an English newspaper. It appears that the lonely old bookworm employed an old servant to take care of his rooms. Upon her fell the task of arranging and dusting the library, and she soon came to be smitten with a taste for reading. She began to spend all her earnings in buying books, and, strange to say, they were old books that she bought and read. One afternoon she came in with a parcel of volumes picked up from the book-stalls. Out of curiosity the master turned over the leaves of her treasures, and we can well imagine the more or less supercilious smile that played upon his countenance as he thought of the humorous phase of this old woman turned bibliophile. Suddenly his face lighted up.

"How much did you give for this?" said he, picking up a volume with great eagerness.

"Fifteen pence," was the answer.

"Fifteen pence? Why, this work is worth £1000!" cried the collector. He reflected, when too late, how stupid he had been to speak, and in vain tried to recall his words. "I will give you 50s. for it," said he.

"Sir, you have just told me it was worth £1000."

The old creature was not to be cheated. The bookworm at last offered £100. The first edition, extremely rare, of Montaigne was a good buyer, but his servant would not take a fraction less than £1000, which sum was more than he could afford. That night the collector dreamed of Montaigne. At last he could no longer. At any price he must have the book. "This woman takes good care of it; she appears to be smitten with the same passion for old books," said he to himself next morning. "Should I not marry her? I should then have Montaigne."

So he went to her the following day and "popped the question." She accepted him, and they were married.

The clever old dame brought him the loss of a dowry.

AN ECCENTRIC BOOKSELLER.—OF JOHN M. CORSE.

GEN. JOHN M. CORSE, who died recently in Boston, according to the Muscatine Journal, was an interesting character to Iowa soldiers and civilians alike. He was a native of New York, and incidentally to all who bear the familiar hymn, "Hold the Fort." Corse went to college at the Sixth Iowa, but later he was promoted to a generalship. General Sherman placed him once in charge of Altoona, Georgia, and one day he noticed that the Confederates had set in to capture the post and Corse's little army. From Kenesaw, in the most remote distance, "Uncle Billy" signalled "hold the fort; reinforcements coming." From height to height the signal was repeated, and was received by the Iowa general. Told men to fight as long as they could, and ten minutes longer, he inspired them with the spirit of demons. He was wounded several times in the battle, but he had been victorious. In the morning he signalled back to General Sherman: "I have lost an ear and a cheek, but can hold it yet." He was a man of marked eccentricities. When he returned from school before the war, and was about to enter partnership in a book-store with his father in Burlington, he objected to having the firm "J. L. Corse & Son," and insisted on it being "J. M. Corse & Father."

OBITUARY NOTES.

JAMES A. SADLIER, of the firm of Sadlier & Co., Catholic book publishers, of New York City, died of pneumonia at the Hotel Metropole May 24, aged 49 years. Mr. Sadlier was nephew of Dennis and James Sadlier, who in 1836 founded the old publishing house of J. & J. Sadlier at 33 Barclay Street. He succeeded, for a number of years, a branch of this house in Montreal, finally succeeding uncle James as proprietor of the main branch. When his brother, William H. Sadlier, died in 1887 he joined his brother's widow in managing the concern at 11 Barclay Street, which was devoted exclusively to the publication of Catholic school-books. Mr. Sadlier got his education at the School of the Christian Brothers in this city, and was graduated later from the Jesuit College, in Montreal. He became intimately acquainted with many of the highest states of the Catholic Church in Canada. He was unmarried.

The limit of membership in this association is 500, and if the number of members increase as rapidly as this, the limit will soon be reached.

The trade is again reminded that the annual meeting of the association will take place on the evening of the 9th inst. at the trade salesrooms of Bangs & Co., 739 Broadway, New York. As business of special importance is to come before that meeting a full attendance is desirable.

NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS' AND NEWS-DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., May 16, 1893.

To the Book and News Trade of the Northwest :

As the secretary of above-named association I am desirous of obtaining the names and addresses of all booksellers and newsdealers in the Northwest, especially Wisconsin and Minnesota, for the purpose of completing a directory of the trade of the Northwest.

By giving the above immediate attention they will not only lessen my labor and confer a favor on the association but obtain a lasting benefit for themselves.

CHAS. D. RAYMER.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HENRY C. LEA has nearly completed a "History of Auricular Confession and Absolution."

EDMUND GOSSE has collected another volume of his recent contributions to periodicals, which will have the title, "Questions at Issue." It will be issued in style about uniform with his "Gossip in a Library."

SHELDEN L. WHITCOMB, Fellow in Literature at Columbia College, is preparing a "Chronology of American Literature" on the model of Mr. Ryland's most useful chronological tables of English literature.

W. B. YRATS is preparing an anthology of Irish ballads for the forthcoming series of the Library of Ireland. The first book of the series to be issued will be Thomas Davis' unpublished work, "The Patriot Parliament of 1691."

PROF. MCMASTER, we learn, has made such progress with the fourth volume of his "History of the People of the United States" that he expects to see it in the printer's hands in the fall. It relates to the period between 1812 and 1830.

LANGDON MITCHELL, the clever son of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, a young man whose poems evoked some admiration several years ago, is about to bring out a new book. This will contain many new poems and the best of those already published.

MR. HENRY JONES, better known as "Cavendish," the authority on whist, is at present in this country. Mr. Jones was born in London, England, November 2, 1831. He studied medicine and was a practising physician for about twenty years. He devoted much of his time to the study of his favorite game at cards, and about the year 1854 he founded a "Little School" for whist-players. The notes and records of the long succession of play at this place were all preserved and formed the basis of his book, "Cavendish on Whist," published in 1862. This publication was called out by Dr. Pole's suggestion, in 1861, that the world of whist-players would be glad to get some printed standard of the proper play of possible hands.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MARGARET DELAND has finished a new novel, which is to be published serially in The Atlantic under the title of "Phillip and His Wife."

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS' description of "Three English Race Meetings," illustrated by William Small, one of the cleverest of the British artists in his line, will appear in the July Harper.

UNDER the title "The Opinions of a Philosopher" Robert Grant has begun in the June Scribner a sequel to his "Reflections of a Married Man." The papers will be issued with illustrations.

THE opening chapters of R. D. Blackmore's new story, "Perlycross," appear in the June number of Macmillan's Magazine. "Perlycross" is a romance of the west of England just before the Reform bill of 1832.

WE regret to learn that the publication of that exceedingly useful index, The Weekly Review, has been suspended. It seems to have been one of those aids that every one wanted and but few were willing to support financially.

THE Critic of May 17 gives the result of the voting by its subscribers on the question, Which are the best ten American books? Emerson's "Essays" head the list, with 512 votes, and then follow Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," with 493; Longfellow's "Poems," with 444; Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with 434; Dr. Holmes' "Autocrat," with 388; Irving's "Sketch-Book," with 307; Lowell's "Poems," with 269, and then Whittier, Wallace's "Ben Hur," and Motley's "Dutch Republic."

THE first number of Household News, the new monthly magazine edited by Mrs. S. T. Rorer, is announced for July 1. It will treat of cookery, health, diet, the nursery, kindergarten, architecture, decoration, book reviews and matters in general. Mrs. Rorer is a popular teacher and lecturer on cooking, and she has associated with her as collaborators a corps of distinguished people in their special departments. The magazine will be published in Philadelphia by the Household News Company, Limited.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. C. GLUCKSMANN, of the Berlin Photographic Company, sailed for Europe for a brief stay, on June 3.

A VOLUME on "Authors Identified with New-ark" [N. J.] will be published by Mrs. Julia Keese Colles, of that city.

F. T. NEELY, Chicago, announces that he is about concluding the purchase of all plates and copyrights of Ople Read's books.

THE Seaside Library is neither returnable nor exchangeable. The failure of the United States Book Co. left millions of copies of this library in the hands of the dealers.

ALBERT SCOTT & Co., of Chicago, will publish at once Madison's "Journal of the Constitutional Convention." It will be given in one volume with a full index.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just issued another volume of Dr. Joseph Parker's "The People's Bible." The volume contains more than fifty chapters expository of the text according to Mark and Luke.

MR. S. E. BRIGGS, manager of the New York office of the Fleming H. Revell Company, sailed for England on May 18 by the Augusta Victoria. He expects to return early in July, after brief visits to the principal publishing centres of Great Britain.

WILLIAM L. STONE, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., announces "Ballads of the Burgoyne Campaign," annotated by himself. The volume will include a new poem (not a ballad) by the Rev. O. C. Auringer, entitled "The Episode of Jane McCrea."

A VOLUME of "Williams Verse" has been compiled from the pages of various periodicals conducted in past years by Williams students. It contains 159 poems, and is coming almost immediately from the Knickerbocker press (George P. Putnam's Sons).

WORTHINGTON CO. (J. J. Little, receiver) have issued in the Rose Library "A Southern Heritage," a story of American Southern society, by Wm. Horace Brown; also, in the Fair Library, Ohnet's "The Ironmaster."

GEORGE GOTTSBERGER PECK, New York, has just issued a one-volume edition of "Aspasia," by Robert Hamerling, a natural and well-written story, reproducing the social life of Greece in the days of Pericles and Sophocles.

CHARLES G. CHASE, of Boston, has written and published "That Old Man and His Dream," a small quarto of illustrations in bluish-green tint, pertaining to the face on the mountain at Franconia, N. H. A slight, fanciful text, printed in dark red, accompanies the pictures.

TAIT, SONS & Co. contributed to the New York Press Club Fair copies of the works of twenty celebrated authors, each book bearing the author's signature. An opportunity of enriching their libraries by autograph volumes has never been afforded in this city, or indeed elsewhere, to a like extent.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM announces "Revelation by Character: illustrated from Old Testament lives," by Robert Tuck; "The Epistles of Paul the Apostle: a sketch of their origin and contents," by George G. Findlay; and a new (one volume) edition of Rev. Dr. Fraser's "Systematic Lectures on the Books of Holy Scripture."

ESTES & LAURIAT, we understand, were the first publishers to be in readiness with the exhibit at the Columbian Exposition. Their new and best publications are shown off in black cases and form a noticeable and attractive feature in the department in which they are displayed. The exhibit is in charge of Mr. Lauriat.

THE CLEVELAND PUBLISHING CO., 167 Broadway, New York City, have just issued by Irene Osgood, entitled "The Star's Desire." It is a story of a beautiful American girl who fortunately marries a good Englishman whose influence educates and finally teaches her to control her unruly and spasmodic affections.

JOHN A. TAYLOR, of the firm of John A. Taylor & Co., of Toronto and New York, left his office at 10 Vandewater Street, New York, N. Y., and has not been heard from since. Mr. Taylor is about thirty-six years old and lives in Toronto where he has a wife and five children. He was a man of temperate habits and no reason for his mysterious disappearance is known.

HOWARD LOCKWOOD & Co., New York, have just issued the ninth part of their new "American Dictionary of Printing and Book-making," covering the alphabet from M to Persian. This excellent book is issued in quarterly parts and is presented without cost to subscribers to the American Bookmaker, a publication which has been steadily growing in value and importance.

"TALES FROM TOWN TOPICS," No. 3, containing a $1000 prize story, entitled "Six Months in Hades," has just been published by the Town Topics Publishing Co., 21 W. 23d Street, New York, and proves to be rich with the humor and spice characteristic of the society journals, which it takes its name. The special matter is bright, and the selected matter is most agreeable summer reading.

THE trade will bear in mind, that there are two books entitled "Japan as We Saw It." One is by Robert S. Gardiner, and was published last November by the Rand-Avery Supply Co. of Boston. The other is by M. Bicknell, with a preface by the Bishop of Exeter, and was just issued by Sampson Low, Massie & Co. It is unfortunate that the same titles have been chosen for two different books on the same subject.

MISS LARCOM intended to write a sequel to "New England Girlhood," giving such life experiences as would interest those who read her books. She gave much thought to it, but never wrote it. We learn from Houghton, Mifflin & Co. that the book will be written or edited by a relative of Miss Larcom, who is peculiarly fitted for the task, and who will be aided by the to whom Miss Larcom talked very fully concerning the proposed book.

GINN & Co. have made arrangements with Thomas Daudet for a volume of selections of his works and he has written a piece specially for this volume. The book is designed for high school and college classes, and will be specially annotated for this use by Professor

Freeborn, of the Boston Latin School. They will publish in September Tacitus' "Dialogus de oratoribus," edited with prolegomena, critical and exegetical commentary, indexes and a bibliography, by Alfred Gudeman, of Johns Hopkins University.

A SERIES of six volumes from Harper & Brothers, to be sold at the Columbian Exposition as souvenirs, will be known as the Distaff Series. They have not only been written and edited but have been printed and bound by women, and the designs of the covers were made by women. Two of the six will soon be ready. They are "The Higher Education of Women," edited by Anna C. Brackett, and the "Literature of Philanthropy," edited by Frances A. Good-

The entire set has been compiled under the supervision of Mrs. Frederick P. Bellamy.

AN interesting addition has just been made to the Baedeker Guide-Books, in a new volume devoted to the United States, including, also, an excursion into Mexico. It has been prepared by Mr. J. F. Muirhead, the compiler of Baedeker's "Guide to Great Britain," and the general manager of the English editions of the Baedeker Guides, and is issued by Charles Scribner's Sons, the American agents of the Baedeker Guides. Mr. Muirhead has spent three years in this country, reversing every section of it and gathering his material with the utmost care. The volume contains numerous maps and is fully up to date. As a feature of special interest the volume contains introductory chapters on "A Short History of American Politics," by J. B. McMaster; "Constitution and Government of the United States," by James Bryce; "Physiography of America," by Prof. N. S. Shaler, and other subjects by equally eminent authorities. American readers will be much interested in seeing our own country treated with the same fulness and exactness of detail that they have found in the Baedeker foreign guide-books.

THE American Protective Society of Authors held morning and evening sessions on May 18 in Chicago to discuss the wrongs of authors, the copyright laws and the measures needed to put author and publisher on an equal footing. Mrs. M. D. Lincoln, who writes under the pseudonym of "Bessie Beech," presided, and in a short address described the aims of the organization and the methods by which it proposes to protect writers. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Katherine Hodges, secretary of the society, on "Protection of Brain Work," by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, who in a novelette entitled "Between Two Fires" described the author as beset on one side by the fraudulent publisher, and on the other side by the plagiarist; and by Emily Thornton Charles ("Emily Hawthorne"), who spoke of "Copyright Laws and Their Effect on American Literature." Other papers were read by Mrs. Lelia P. Roby, Mrs. Kate Brownlee Sherwood, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, "Grace Greenwood" and other women writers. Both morning and evening sessions were well attended.

THE CENTURY Co. have just issued the bound half yearly volume of the The Century, containing the numbers from November, 1892, to April, 1893. Like its predecessors, the volume is a veritable treasure-house of literature. Fiction holds an important place in the table of contents, being represented by such writers as T. B. Aldrich, Octave Thanet, Brander Matthews, Edward Eggleston, F. Hopkinson Smith, Grace King, Thomas Nelson Page and Mark Twain. Among the serials are Mrs. Burton Harrison's "Sweet Bells Out of Tune," illustrated by C. D. Gibson; Wolcott Balestier's "Benefits Forgot" and Dr. Washington Gladden's "Cosmopolis City Club." Biographical papers are numerous and interesting. Tennyson, Browning, Whittier, Curtis, Liszt, Massenet and Millet are among the subjects, and excellent portraits accompany every article. There are finely illustrated papers on the World's Fair, the trial of the Chicago anarchists and topics of general interest; a vivid account of the Paris Commune, by Archibald Forbes; descriptive papers by T. A. Janvier and the Pennells; and poems by Kipling, Aldrich, James Whitcomb Riley and others. The departments are full of interest.

FOREIGN NOTES.

ZOLA's new novel, "Doctor Pascal," is just coming out in book form.

THE tercentenary of the birth of old Izaak Walton is to be celebrated in England on the 9th of August next. The spot is Stafford. Representatives from all the English angling clubs are to attend this merry-making.

MR. STEVENSON's book on the recent Samoan troubles—"A Footnote to History"—has been burned in Germany, and Tauchnitz, who published it, has been heavily fined. The author's narrative was severely critical of German conduct in Samoa.

T. FISHER UNWIN will publish immediately two new volumes of the Children's Library. One is an edition of Taylor's translation of "The Pentamerone, or, the story of stories," revised and edited by Miss Helen Zimmern, with reproductions of the original designs by George Cruikshank. The other is an English adaptation for children, executed by R. Eivind, of thirty-eight stories from the Kalevala, the illustrations being derived from Finnish sources.

THE Japanese have learned another "trick" of civilization. As Japan has not yet made arrangements with other nations for the protection of their authors' rights the Japanese publishers and booksellers promptly reprint any work for which there may be a demand. So conscientious are they in reprinting that they add even the name and address of the printer of the original. As the reprints sell for considerably less than half of the price of the original, and as the Japs believe in patronizing the home market, English and American publishers will find them poor customers until they have an "awakening of the moral sense."

THE collection of book-plates is now a recognized pastime, and there are half a dozen books devoted to the sport and as many dealers making a specialty of ex-libris. The latest development in this taste is highly comic. A Parisian dealer, M. L. Joly, noting with regret that many celebrated people of the past had no book-plates, has kindly determined to supply them. He announces a series of "Ex-libris imaginaires et supposés de personnages célèbres anciens et modernes," and he begins with the book-plates of Poe and of Brillat-Savarin—a strange conjunction. Probably we shall have in time the plate which identified the owner of the nine books of the Sibyl.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CONCORD, N. H.—W. S. Siegel, of Louisville, Conn., formerly manager of the book department of the Baptist Book Co. of that place, has taken charge of book and stationery department in the store of Woodbury E. Hunt.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Wayside Publishing Company, 142 and 144 Worth Street, is another offshoot of the new Lovell combination.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Commercial Advertiser says: "J. Willson Wilson, the noted stationer of Harlem, was once Brentano's head clerk. He began in a modest way on his own account, and has now one of the finest establishments in the upper part of the city. Personally, he is most entertaining and popular. He can imitate to perfection the famous tragedians, and his mimetic powers are great. A Scotchman by birth, he came here many years ago and concluded to remain. His fund of humor is inexhaustible, and no one ever finds him unruffled or unable to indulge in badinage."

NEW YORK CITY.—Owing to the mysterious disappearance of John A. Taylor, several of his creditors have obtained attachments against his estate.

NEW YORK CITY.—Macmillan & Co. will remove to their new headquarters in No. 66 Fifth Avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets, some time this month.

PORTLAND, ME.—George Gladstone Craven is now with the well-known Stevens & Jones Co., wholesale and retail stationers.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Stuart & Thompson, booksellers and stationers, have incorporated under the name of Stuart & Thompson Company—E. C. Stuart, president; J. L. Thompson, vice-president; and E. H. Kilham (for the past ten years with J. K. Gill & Co.) secretary. The new corporation will continue as heretofore to handle a complete line of books and stationery for the wholesale and retail trade. Mr. E. C. Stuart is now east for a few weeks stay in Chicago and New York. Mr. Thompson expects to be in Chicago during July, and hopes to meet many old friends in the book line.

STOCKTON, CAL.—Herbert Baldwin, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—John M. Dean, the well-known bookseller, we are glad to hear, is recovering from a serious fall through which he sustained a fracture of several ribs.

WINNIPEG, CANADA.—Winnipeg, according to Books and Notions, is to have an important addition to its book and stationery establishments. The new firm will be known as Hart & McPherson, the principals of which will be Mr. J. A. Hart, late of Ferguson & Co., of that city, and Mr. McPherson, who has been for some years the Canadian representative of Wm. Collins, Sons & Co., of Glasgow. The premises formerly occupied by Furner's millinery establishment on Main Street, south of Portage Avenue, have been secured by Messrs. Hart & McPherson. A new front has been put in the store and it is now being fitted up in first-class style, to be ready for opening about the middle of May. Mr. Hart, who is a nephew of Rev. Prof. Hart, is well known to the people of Winnipeg, having for years been connected with the book and stationery business here. His father is widely known as one of the leading stationers in Eastern Canada. Mr. McPherson is also well and favorably known to many Winnipeg business houses.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of notice for books out of print, exclusive of advertisement on any issue except special numbers, to not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Subscriptions for current books and such as may be easily had from publishers, and repeated matter, as well as advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the rate for subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the rate is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing orders.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," notices are entitled to one free insertion of five lines for repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at a uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words are reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have full address of advertisers as a guarantee of payment.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash or delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written notices will be considered as "not having been received."

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgiven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loftier strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material hand, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

For sale by all booksellers, or will be sent on receipt of price. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

An Adventure in Photography.

By OCTAVE THANET. Illustrated from Photographs by the Adventurers. 12mo, $1.50 net.

A bright, vivacious narrative, with a spice of humor and a dash of high spirits, of the adventures, successes and failures of two amateur photographers who are forced to depend largely upon their own ingenuity. Their entertaining experiences show what may be done by any amateur without a very large expenditure of time or money. The illustrations from their own portfolios are an unusually interesting feature of the book.

Arthur Bonnicastle.

By Dr. J. G. HOLLAND. Scribner's Yellow Paper Cover Series. 12mo, 50 cents.

So great popularity attended the reissue recently in paper covers of Dr. Holland's novel, "Sevenoaks," that an equally successful story, "Arthur Bonnicastle," is now brought out in similar cheap and convenient form.

Theism.

By ROBERT FLINT, DD., LL.D., Professor of Divinity in the University of Edinburgh. 12mo, $1.50 net.

TAIT'S NATIONAL LIBRARY OF BEST 200 BOOKS.

WE beg to inform the Trade that we will shortly issue a new series of handsomely illustrated crown octavos comprising 200 titles, which an exhaustive inquiry made of the leading Librarians throughout the country has shown to be the books most in demand in their Libraries, and, therefore, from the Trade's point of view, the most popular, the most active and best-selling titles.

A careful analysis of the catalogues of the leading domestic and foreign publishing houses clearly demonstrates the fact that there is no line in existence which will at all compare with the one which we have secured as a result of prolonged and painstaking inquiry ; and this was inevitable seeing that all other selections are, for the most part, based on individual judgment, whereas our series is practically the result of a consensus of opinion of the whole of the United States as to which are the most popular books.

Arrangements have been made with the well-known publishers, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Roberts Bros., Harper & Bros., Porter & Coates, D. Appleton & Co., J. B. Lippincott Co., Dodd, Mead & Co., Macmillan & Co., and others, whereby we are allowed to include their most prominent American copyright books in this list.

In every case the best single-volume edition has been chosen, insuring good print and paper. Each volume will contain a handsome colored photogravure title-page and from four to six new copyright illustrations of original design by American artists. This is a noteworthy feature, as many of the books, including a majority of the American copyrights, have never before been illustrated.

This edition will be of uniform size, printed on fine calendered paper with broad margin, and in clear type. It will be bound in beautiful half calf with gilt top. Each volume will be boxed, and the whole series will form a line of very attractive books for Holiday presents, and as the illustrations are copyrighted, the line can only be procured from ourselves.

The price will be $1.50, excepting for copyright books, which will be $2.00 and $2.50 per volume.

AMERICA VESPUCCI,

Reproduced in fac-simile from the Unique and Excessively Rare Originals. With translations, introductions and notes.

EDITED BY GEORGE YOUNG.

---

This work is perhaps the most important contribution to the literature of the period. It comprises the Latin and Spanish Letters of Columbus, written by him on February 15, 1493, to announce the Discovery of the New World; and Vespucci's account of his First Four Voyages.

The original editions of the Columbus Letters are in the possession of the Lenox Library of New York; their value cannot be estimated. A copy of Vespucci's Voyages is worth at least $5000.

In order to secure an extensive circulation for the Memorial, its price has been fixed at a figure which places it within the reach of all.

The work is handsomely printed upon specially prepared paper, and is a fine specimen of nineteenth century typography. It is profusely illustrated.

Tait, Sons & Company's New Books.

Americans in Europe.

By ONE OF THEM. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. [Ready July 1.

This remarkable volume, which casts so strong and at times so fierce a light on American life abroad and the evils to which it is constantly exposed, is, beyond all doubt, destined to make a very great stir, and especially among travelers and those who are already to some extent familiar with the conditions of existence in European Capitals.

The author, whose identity is only withheld temporarily, has had an unequalled opportunity of acquainting himself with his subject, and the result is a trenchant and powerful work without a single dull line within its covers. The book is absolutely indispensable to all contemplating a foreign residence for themselves or relatives.

At the Rising of the Moon.

By FRANK MATHEW. Illustrated by Fred Pegram and A. S. Boyd. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

In these stories and studies, the biographer of Father Mathew has done for Moher and its people very much what Mr. Barrie has done for Thrums in his "Idylls." They are in turns racy, humorous and deeply pathetic, like the life, indeed, which they represent so sympathetically.

Tavistock Tales.

By GILBERT PARKER (author of "The Chief Factor," etc.) and others. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Mr. Gilbert Parker's talent is very conspicuous in this work, and the same may be said of the other authors. Each story rivals the other in dramatic force and skill in treatment. No better book for the holidays can be imagined.

Mrs. Clift-Crosby's Niece.

By ELLA CHILDS HURLBUT. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This is an exceedingly piquant society novel. It abounds in striking passages, and its easy, unbroken style makes its reflection of fashionable life singularly faithful and clear. It is rare, indeed, that fashionable New York finds so gifted an illustrator as Mrs. Hurlbut.

Gossip of the Caribbees.

By W. R. H. TROWBRIDGE, JR. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

These sketches of West Indian life are drawn with a skill and finish very rare in a young author. They reveal, in the whirl of fashionable colonial gayety and its accompanying petty jealousies, a freshness and intensity of existence incompatible with our ideas of tropical or subtropical life, but they are, nevertheless, amazingly real as depicted by the writer. A highly interesting and instructive book.

What One Woman Thinks.

ESSAYS OF HARYOT HOLT CAHOON. With frontispiece. Edited by CYNTHIA M. WESTOVER. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

What Mrs. Cahoon "thinks" is worthy of the perusal of every man and every woman, and her essays will be found to afford food for very interesting and profitable reflection. The style is crisp, epigrammatic and enjoyable.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM has just issued "Sanctified Spice," a volume of gleanings from the sermons of Madison C. Peters, pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, New York City, which the Review of Reviews pronounces "keen, pithy utterances upon various subjects of the day;" and "Revelation by Character," by Robert Tuck, who describes Old Testament lives.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just published "Stories of the South" in the dainty series already containing "Stories of New York" and "Stories of the Railway;" and the "Literary History of Early Christianity," by Charles T. Crutwell. Among their latest importations are "Founders of Old Testament Criticism," by T. K. Cheyne; and "Modern Painting," by George Moore.

GINN & Co., Boston, have nearly ready No. iv. in the series of Cornell Studies in Classical Philology. "The Development of the Earlier Athenian Constitution," by George W. Botsford. No. v., in preparation, is to be entitled "On the Ritual of the Asklepios Cult," by Dr. Alice Walton. The same publishers announce a new series of Latin Classics for Schools, under the editorial supervision of W. C. Collar, of the Roxbury Latin School, and John Tetlow, of the Girls' High and Latin Schools, Boston.

JORDAN BROS., Philadelphia, publish an interesting contribution to the Columbus literature of this Columbian year. It is called "The Columbus Memorial," and consists of Columbus' first letter describing the voyage to the New World, the Latin letter to his royal patrons, and a narrative of the four voyages of Amerigo Vespucci. These are reproduced in fac-simile from the rare originals, and have been edited and translated, with an introduction and notes, by George Young. The "Memorial" is finely printed upon specially prepared paper, and besides the regular edition, a limited number of copies printed upon hand-made paper are shortly to be issued.

BOUSSOD, VALADON & Co. have in preparation the Paris "Salon," 1893, a review of the most remarkable paintings exhibited at the Champs-Élysées and Champ de Mars. The text is by Gaston Jollivet, of the Figaro, translated by Henry Bacon. The work will contain one hundred illustrations in photogravure, two etchings, and one water-color fac-simile in goupilgrature. There will be several editions at various prices. This house will also issue "Jacqueline," an original story by Th. Bentzon, translated by Mrs. Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer, with illustrations by Albert Lynch; and "Mary Stuart," by John Skelton, a historical work taking the part of the unhappy Scotch queen. All these issues will be models of bookmaking.

TAIT, SONS & Co. are just about to publish half a dozen new books of more than average interest. They are: "Americans in Europe," by a writer who for a time withholds his identity, but who describes with unsparing veracity the phases of American life abroad, the evils to which it is exposed, and the varying social and moral conditions of existence in European capitals; "At the Rising of the Moon," a volume of stories and studies, by Frank Mathew, somewhat in the vein of Mr. Barrie's "Thru the" sketches, portraying the humorous, pathetic and dramatic sides of village life; "Tavistock Tales," a volume of short stories, by Gilbert Parker; "Mrs. Clift-Crosby's Niece," by Ella Childs Hurlbut, a piquant society novel of fashionable New York; "Gossip of the Caribbees," fresh and unconventional sketches of West Indian life, by W. H. R. Trowbridge, Jr.; and "What One Woman Thinks," a volume of essays, by Haryot Holt Cahoon, edited by Cynthia M. Westover.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Colin, Lady M., and Sheldon, M. French. Everybody's book of correct conduct: being hints for every-day life. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 7+182 p. T. cl., 75 c.

A guide in every-day conduct in all matters and also a mentor in the important affairs of life; it gives the rules to be observed by children in their conduct towards their parents, and the duties of parents toward their children; it goes into the etiquette of entertaining and visiting thoroughly, and will be found most useful either to the inexperienced hostess or to the visitor unaccustomed to society; in the relations between husband and wife it gives rules which will induce and preserve harmony; and likewise offers a code to the business man and a guide to the sportsman.

Cone, Orello, D.D. The gospel and its earliest interpretations: a study of the teaching of Jesus and its doctrinal transformations in the New Testament. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 8+418 p. O. cl., $1.75.

"The object of this work is to elucidate the teaching of Jesus and to present both in their relation to it and to one another the principal types of religious doctrine contained in the New Testament. The pursuit of this object has led to a consideration of the resemblances and differences which exist between the word of the Master and the interpretations of it by his followers who composed the several writings of that book. While the classification of the New Testament literature results from critical processes, it was not consistent with the limits proposed to enter upon a detailed discussion of them, and no more has been attempted in this direction than to present those grounds of the classification adopted which are apparent from an analysis of the writings."—Preface.

The writer is a member of the American Old Testament Revision Company, and for many years professor of Biblical exegesis in the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, N. J.; author of "The Psalms, a new translation with notes."

Douglas, Amanda M. Bertha Wray's new name. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. 8-406 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Bertha Wray was the daughter of a New England school master, who died on the night of her birth; her mother's death following shortly afterward Bertha is taken in hand by a spinster aunt, who confers on the baby a name which later becomes the child's aversion. The story tells how fate, a rich granduncle and the girl's own fancy conspire to give her a more fitting name, and closes with a romantic episode of her life.

- Macdonald, G. Heather and snow. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 6+285 p. D. cl., $1.25.
- In Scotland, the land of heather and snow, the incidents of the story are lived by a healthy, happy, poetic girl, her weak-minded brother and her lover, who is the son of an intemperate mother, lady of the manor. All the author's old dreaminess and poetic interpretation of religious doctrines are found in this tale of a good girl's influence on men and women. For a short time the scene is India during the mutiny.

Matthews, Ja. Brander. The decision of the court: a comedy. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 6-60 p. por. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

The scene is Newport late in September. Mrs. Stanyhurst, née Kitty Van Kortlandt, of New York, has been suing for a divorce from her husband, an Englishman, on the ground of incompatibility, and has been residing in Newport alone for a year, the law making such a residence there requisite. Just as she is expecting "the decision of the court" giving her her divorce, her husband is announced; he comes on the plea of business and a pretty comedy is played between the two, to which there is a most unexpected ending.

Merriam, Lucius S. The theory of final utility in its relation to money and the standard of deferred payments. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1893.] 98-109 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 78.) pap., 25 c.

In the annals of the society for November, 1892, appeared a paper on "The standard of deferred payments," by Prof. E. A. Ross, of Cornell University, discussing the subject principally from the standpoint of value. The detection of some errors in his discussion suggested to the present writer the need of a special study of the relation of the theory of final utility to money in general and the standard of deferred payments in particular. In this pamphlet he first presents the results of such a study and then briefly criticises Prof. Ross' article in the light of those results.

*Nibelungenlied (The); or, lay of the Nibelung. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Ottolengui, Rodrigues. A conflict of evidence. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, [1893.] c. 3+347 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story opens with the discovery of a mysterious murder in a small New Hampshire village. The victim is an elderly man, wealthy and respected. The niece of the murdered man, her lover and two other young people fall under suspicion. Two of these suspected persons separately confess to having committed the murder; another is pointed out as the murderer by a convincing chain of circumstance. From this "conflict of evidence" the right clue is disentangled by one of the two detectives on the case—the Mr. Barnes who figured in the author's previous story, "An artist in crime." The identity of the real criminal is a complete surprise.

Pardon, G: F., ed. Opera stories. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893. 8-194 p. il. D. pap., 50 c.

The plots of eleven operas are given in the form of stories.

Phillpotts, Eden. Summer clouds, and other stories; il. by Harold Copping. N. Y., Raphael Tuck & Sons, 1893. 92 p. por. il. S. (Breezy lib., no. 2.) pap., 50 c.

The initial story is an amusing sketch of a honeymoon in the wilds of Dartmoor, the brightness of which is for a time obscured by "Summer clouds." This is followed by "Tom-tit," a pathetic little tale of an abandoned child who is adopted by the warm-hearted comedian of a country theatre and most of whose short life is passed upon the stage. A poem, "A dead rose," concludes the book. By the author of "Folly and fresh air."

Putnam, S: P. Religion a curse, religion a disease, religion a lie. N. Y., The Truth Seeker Co., [1893.] 2-96 p. D. (Truth Seeker lib., no. 32.) pap., 25 c.

- Scott, W. A. The repudiation of state debts: a study in the financial history of Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Minnesota, Michigan and Virginia. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., 1893. c. 6+325 p. D. (Library of economics and politics, no. 2.) cl., $1.50.
- By "repudiation" Dr. Scott means not merely the absolute avoidance of the obligation to pay just debts but also the "scaling" of debts and the refusal to settle bonds which were not valid from either a moral or legal standpoint. Under this broad general use of the term Dr. Scott presents in a succinct and scholarly style a digest of the constitutional law, state and national in so far as it bears on the subject of repudiation, and comes to the conclusion that the holder of repudiated bonds has no efficient means for enforcing the payment of his dues. He describes in detail the various acts of repudiation passed by twelve states. He gives a careful scientific explanation of the facts presented, and, finally, in the last chapter, discusses various remedies for those evils of defalcation and dishonesty which have brought such heavy penalties upon the states thus compromised.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 24, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

MOVING AND TAKING STOCK.—III.

THE process of taking stock, as may have been inferred from our introductory remarks, is considered by us as one of great difficulty and requiring much consideration. Indeed, it calls for the greatest care and quick and correct judgment on the part of the one entrusted with this delicate task, because for every foot of shelves he covers he is called upon to decide and determine upon the value of the stock before him. Shall it be taken at the purchase price? Must allowance be made for depreciation in value? If so, wherein has the stock depreciated? From wear and tear? Because it is unsalable, or goes slowly? From over-purchase? If not from any of these causes, why has it depreciated? When the cause has been determined upon the questions arise, What allowance shall be made? From the retail price or from the cost price? These, we admit, are knotty points; they arise on every occasion that stock is taken, and call for cool and deliberate judgment, because on their decision hangs the safety of the business.

The only safe rule, we think, is to take stock at the cost price. That is, such stock as is constantly moving. The moment it ceases to go, it begins to rapidly depreciate in value; hence it would be exceedingly unwise to take it at its cost value. Another valuation, therefore, must be put upon it. What that valuation should be must depend upon the knowledge and judgment of the one taking stock. No hard and fast rules can be laid down for this process, for instance that certain stock should be taken at  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{3}$ , or 75%.

Let us take, for example, the sections devoted to any one publisher. The chances are that every variety of that publisher's stock will be represented therein. What would be the best method for making a proper valuation of it?

First, select as you go along all the salable and regular stock which cost say 40%. Draw this out from the shelves a couple of inches, and let it remain in that position until you have made a memorandum of it. This will leave for your consideration the stock that has become "slow." Here the question will arise, Is any of this stock "replace stock," that is such of which you sell one or two copies a year? If any part of it is, it should be taken at its regular cost price, and then be pulled out in line with the regular stock. Now we have left only the old stock, and here is "the rub." Is it worth ten, twenty, thirty, fifty cents on the dollar? It is safer by far to undervalue such stock than to overvalue it, and while it may be well to carry some of it on the chance that it has not yet outlived its usefulness, much of it undoubtedly should be weeded out. Some of it can be put down at half off or lumped as "so many volumes at such a price," the remainder set down to profit and loss and thrown into the "clearance sale" pile.

Talking of clearance sales, which often excite wonder that they can be made to pay, reminds us of the assertion made by an expert that "they are the triumphant result of accurate stock-taking." It is true that many not behind the scenes are puzzled at the apparent paradox of any one making a profit by selling some article at something like half its original cost. It is by the way not at all a bad plan in a department of an extensive business to keep a running note of the average cost of the entire stock of such a department, or of all those goods which are any way kindred to each other, as it has happened before now that a buyer has been so struck by the low figure as a whole, that he has cleared the lot.

The trouble with some of the smaller dealers is that they cling to old stock with a tenacity bred partly of indolence and partly of ignorance. Such people remind one of those land tortoises which a gentleman, possessed of more tobacco than brains, taught to smoke cigars. When turned on their backs they were obliged to open their mouths to breathe. The unlighted end of a lighted cigar being inserted they were set on their legs and crawled away solemnly breathing out smoke. Either through indolence or ignorance, or both, it never occurred to the tortoises to drop it, so they went on their way in discomfort. 'Tis well to be off with the old loves, or at least rate them according to actual merit, so that they will go off without difficulty. And to prepare for the future by intelligently dealing with the past, is one of the best means of securing and keeping a position amongst the intelligent and useful members of the mercantile profession.

THE sudden announcement of the wrecking of the Cassell Publishing Company, Ltd., will be felt as a shock throughout the trade, and especially by the many members of the book trade who have for years known and trusted Mr. Dunham. Although the facts seem to be admitted, it is scarcely fair that a judgment should be pronounced against a man of his standing until the other side has been heard, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Dunham will appear to face any consequences either of his error or misdoing and do all that he can to set himself right in the eyes of the many who have liked and respected him. The financial outcome of the whole business, important as it is, is insignificant compared with the fall of a man of Mr. Dunham's standing, and if it is true that the affairs of the company and of himself are as stated, his associates and his family will have doubly the sympathy of the trade.

WE publish elsewhere a letter from a well-known bookseller, referring to the method of handling Gen. Wallace's new book which Messrs. Harper have adopted. Their course is intended as a vigorous step to cure certain evils as to which the trade has been long complaining; but it certainly should, as is suggested, go one point further, and include an understanding that if a discount is to be given on the retail price of the book to individual buyers, that should not exceed twenty per cent. The Messrs. Harper have given liberal discounts on the book, probably recognizing the fact that booksellers feel called upon to give a discount to their customers and that it is easier to acknowledge this than to attempt to issue the book at a net price. That, however, is what the whole plan practically will amount to: an actual price somewhat lower than the published price, with discounts sufficiently large to take that fact into consideration. We trust sincerely that the several steps made by different houses in that direction will ultimately result in the establishment of a lower net price for books, with discounts arranged somewhat on the method adopted in this case by Messrs. Harper.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

THE WHITE CITY, June 12, 1893.

THE Columbian World's Exposition, view it from whatever point we may, is overwhelming in detail as well as in mass. The American people has simply outdone itself—one feels tempted to say, has overdone it. Not alone the Americans have sinned in this direction, but the foreigners also, tempted by the opportunities offered, have shown themselves off in as many places as possible. One finds a repetition of similar exhibits by the same parties in a number of buildings and departments, in which it may have been difficult to draw the line, but where one feels the line should have been drawn, even at the expense of sacrificing some of the exhibits.

On every hand one is appalled at the thought of the time, labor, energy and money required in preparing, forwarding and putting up such an exhibit only as that made by the various educational institutions of this country. This is, perhaps, without conception, the most creditable of any exhibit made, and one of which the country may justly feel proud, testifying as it does to the great advance in the intellectual development of its people during the seventeen years since our Centennial Exposition.

Architecturally this exposition is an almost endless source of wonder, admiration and inspiration. This feature alone amply repays the visitor for all the time, trouble and expense he may have invested in coming hither. Dazzling in daylight, changing with every mood and movement of the spectator, singularly resplendent at night when aflame with myriads of lights, its classic and heroic proportions make an impression that time will hardly efface. For this reason, it is a matter of regret that such noble works of art should not have been cast in more enduring material that they might have stood as monuments to the enterprise of this country and for the education of coming generations in the noble and beautiful in art.

The interest of the book-lover in general and of those connected with the book trade in particular, centres, of course, in the exhibits of the publishing houses of America, Germany, France and England. Of these Germany, in its quaint old German house on Lake Michigan in charge of Mr. Otto Baumgärtel, assisted by Mr. Ed. Ackermann, of Chicago, stands easily first when numbers are considered—three hundred and thirty-three firms being represented, of which the firm of Bernhard Tauchnitz alone exhibits upwards of two thousand volumes. France with its collective exhibit artistically arranged and under the able and energetic direction of M. Emil Terquem, in the gallery of the eastern wing of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts section, facing Lake Michigan, and the United States, with its individual exhibits of about sixty firms, in the gallery of the northwest corner of the same buildings may stand together, each as an exemplar of its own method of exhibiting. England, we are surprised to find, is conspicuous by its absence—a few only of lesser known houses being represented by show-cases that are left to guard and explain themselves. Raphael Tuck & Sons have a large display of cards and chromo-lithographs in this department, and Mr. Zaehnsdorf has a show-case displaying samples of some of his inexpensive bindings and a few samples of his better work. On the ground floor of the Manufactures Building two or three publishing firms are represented in the Spanish department.

The antiquarian will find much interesting matter in the quaint little monastery of La Rabida, on the lake front adjoining the Krupp exhibit. The monastery of La Rabida, located near the town of Palos, Spain, was the refuge on two different occasions of Christopher Columbus. The monks of this institution becoming interested in the plans of Columbus encouraged him and gave him letters to influential persons at court, who eventually assisted him in procuring the desired aid to fit out his expedition. It was a happy thought of the government to erect a fac-simile of this building so closely connected with the memory of Columbus and a shelter for all the relics of Columbus that have been secured for exhibition. Here will be found the originals of many of the famous portraits of Columbus, documents and autographs of great rarity; original maps, among them the Da Vinci map loaned by Queen Victoria, and the Cosa Chart of the West Indies, loaned by the government of Spain; together with a large number of scarce volumes relating to America, including the Vatican exhibit of valuable historical documents and objects of art from the archives of the Vatican, loaned by Pope Leo XIII.

The exhibit of the American Library Association; the specimen of embroidered bindings in the Women's Building and in the jewelry department of the French section; the exhibition of the L'Imprimerie Française at the foot of the stairs, east side column, N. 66, or inside the French Court next to the bronze exhibits; and the unique exhibit of Puck comprise about all that may have even the remotest interest to the trade, the teacher, librarian or book-lover. A fuller description of the various publishers' sections must be deferred to another issue. A. G.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY WRECKED.

THE report that the Cassell Publishing Company is insolvent and in the hands of a receiver gives a shock that will be felt far beyond the book trade. The cause given for the sudden wrecking of a prosperous corporation is specially distressing. Mr. Oscar M. Dunham, its president, stands accused of converting $180,000 of the funds of the concern to his own use. The Cassell Publishing Co. purchased the American business of Cassell & Co., of London, in 1890, paying $330,000 in cash for the good-will and plant. Mr. Dunham, who had for years been manager in America for the English house, became president of the new organization, and Hezekiah G. Archer, vice-president. The company has been prosperous and last year, according to the statement submitted by Mr. Dunham to the directors, cleared $30,481.71. The crash came without warning. There was no suspicion of wrong until last Saturday. Mr. Dunham left his office on Thursday, June 15, and has not since been seen or heard from by his business associates or his family. On Saturday Walter H. Wagstaff, the treasurer, called a meeting of the directors, and they notified the lawyers of the firm, Tracy, Boardman & Platt. Under Mr. Platt's direction Mr. Dunham's desk was examined, and this investigation led to a full revelation. To protect his own interests, Mr. Archer went into court and submitted the following affidavit:

"Oscar M. Dunham had been for many years the manager in the United States of the business of Cassell & Co. when said purchase was made, and the defendant corporation organized largely through his efforts. He subscribed for a large amount of the capital stock, over 1400 shares, and in order to pay for the stock Dunham borrowed large sums of money on short time, from various persons, and as said loans matured he met the same by fraudulently making and signing in the name of the defendant its promissory notes, which he discounted and applied the proceeds thereof to the payment of his own individual debts, and he has continued to renew such fraudulent notes, or take up the same by using other similar fraudulent notes of the defendant corporation.

"He has also, ever since the organization of the corporation, fraudulently used its credit for his own purposes by discounting its commercial paper and using the proceeds thereof to pay his individual debts. In addition to the regular promissory note-book kept by the treasurer, in which the legitimate notes of the corporation were regularly numbered and entered, the proper entries also being carried into the other books of the corporation, the said Oscar M. Dunham also kept another note-book in which said fraudulent notes discounted or used by defendant Dunham for his own purpose were entered.

"Said fraudulent notes were not entered upon any of the books of the corporation, and the facts that they were in existence and that the defendant was fraudulently using the credit of the corporation were carefully kept by him concealed from the knowledge of all of the officers, directors and members of the corporation other than Walter H. Wagstaff, the treasurer; and plaintiff had no knowledge that any such fraudulent notes were in existence, or that Oscar M. Dunham had ever been guilty of any of the fraudulent acts and practices until June 17, 1893, when the facts above stated were told him in substance by said Wagstaff."

Lawyer Frank H. Platt, of the firm of Tracy, Boardman & Platt, counsel for Archer, says that on Saturday he went with Archer to the corporation's office and examined the desk of Mr. Dunham. Mr. Platt and Mr. Wagstaff examined the private note-book, and found that thirty-four promissory notes were outstanding, aggregating $168,500, all of which had been drawn since January 12 last. They all fall due between June 15 and some time in October next. Four other notes for $5000 each are referred to in the note-book, dated April 20 and 22 last. Mr. Platt says they were signed by Mr. Dunham, but he has been unable to learn if they were also signed in behalf of the corporation. None of these notes, Mr. Platt says, was entered in the regular books of the corporation. All the notes were given by Mr. Dunham to Mr. J. W. Chapman, a note broker, doing business at 31 Wall Street, who sold them to various persons. Mr. Dunham got the proceeds, but the proceeds do not figure in the regular books of the company. Mr. Platt found in the safe what appeared to be two balance-sheets for twelve months ending December 31, 1892. One was a false balance-sheet, with the "bills payable and accounts" increased from $151,316.64 to $211,316.64. On the other side the amount of "amounts due" was increased from $328,444.98 to $388,444.98.

an increase of $60,000 appearing therefore on each side of the balance-sheet. Mr. Platt asked Treasurer Wagstaff what the two balance-sheets meant, and he replied :

"It was necessary for Mr. Dunham to show the company's balance-sheet to Note Broker Chapman in order to obtain further discounts. If the true balance-sheet had been shown, Chapman would have seen at once that the entry of bills payable to the amount of $151,316.64 was false, as he knew of notes outstanding in greater amount than that. Therefore it was necessary to increase the amount of bills payable in the balance-sheet to be shown Chapman in order to deceive him. Dunham, therefore, ordered $60,000 to be added arbitrarily to each side of the balance-sheet for that purpose, which was done, and the false balance-sheet was so used for the purpose of so deceiving said Chapman, and through him the persons discounting the corporation's notes."

Annexed to the affidavit is the following copy of the balance-sheet of the company for twelve months ending December 31, 1892 :

DR.
Capital account, 3500 shares.....	$350,000 00

The receiver appointed by Judge Lawrence, Mr. H. J. Broker, is the president of the H. J. Broker Importing Company, of No. 95 William Street, which deals in castor oil. The Union Trust Company was designated in the judge's order as the depository of the funds of Cassell & Co.

Vice-President Archer declared in his petition that the business, if honestly conducted, would yield good returns, and that it was to the interest of every creditor to have it continued, but that would be impossible without the intervention of the court, as the property would be dissipated if the creditors suddenly enforced their claims.

The failure of a house like the Cassell's will involve many smaller concerns, and notably manufacturers, printers and binders. Their credit was always unquestioned and people accepted work from them and took their paper as they would gold in liquidation of large bills. It is impossible yet to say how widespread the disaster is. The receiver is a man of excellent business standing and is now at work with two expert accountants upon the books of the firm.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A BLOW AT COMBINATIONS.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 19, 1893.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR : Harper & Brothers are sending in advance of their traveller, Col. Ammon, the following agreement, which they ask the booksellers to sign :

"Agreement regarding 'The Prince of India'.

"We, the undersigned, hereby agree not to sell Wallace's 'The Prince of India' to any of our customers, directly or indirectly, at better than — net on smaller quantities than 25 copies ordered by one party at one time. On orders for 25 copies at one time we agree not to sell at better than — net."

"We also agree that we will not divide our order for this book with any other party, nor will we club with any other party for the book, nor exchange our supply of the book with any other party for other stock."

"We agree to this stipulation on the part of the publishers, in consequence of their offering to sell the book in the quantities and at the discounts as follows :"

[Special rates for 500, 250, 100, 25 copies.]

"Less than 25 copies, at customer's regular discount."

This circular must be construed as being particularly intended for the dry-goods dealers, for they are the ones who make combinations and cut prices. If Harper & Bros. are engaged in the praiseworthy enterprise of breaking up dry-goods combinations the booksellers ought to join hands with them heartily. To make such an effort effectual in preventing the cutting of prices they should put a clause in their agreement binding dealers from retailing at better than 20% off the list price.

As it is now, the large buyer can retail the book at the price the small buyer pays without breaking the agreement.

Inasmuch as combinations and cut prices are to be expected from the dry-goods dealers the booksellers should insist that the above clause be added to the agreement, and that Col. Ammon get the signatures of the dry-goods booksellers in each town before he asks for the signatures of the regular trade.

If, on the other hand, Harper & Bros. are simply trying to prevent the booksellers from combining and expect to sell the dry-goods combinations as usual, we think that their request is cool and that no bookseller ought to sign their paper.

That dry-goods stores do combine to buy books in quantities and that the booksellers ought to do so for protection is apparent. Do Harper & Bros. foresee the necessity for such combinations among booksellers in the case of "The Prince of India"? The dry-goods dealers will probably get the best prices on this book and they will use it as a leader, which means that it will be sold at a small profit and in some cases at an actual loss.

That being the case, such booksellers as are not able to take 500 copies of the book ought to combine to make up the quantity, and if Harper & Bros. try to prevent it they are not friendly to the regular trade, but rather put themselves on record as willing to do for the dry-goods dealers what they will not do for the legitimate trade.

It is the bookseller in the past that has helped make Harper & Bros. a great book-publishing house, and if any favors are to be shown it is due to the bookseller and not the dry-goods man. It is time the booksellers "took a drop" on themselves and on the publishers.

For some time publishers, not excepting such conservative houses as Harper & Bros., have catered for, and in some cases even been dictated to, by combinations of dry-goods houses because they purchased in large quantities. Then the publishers turn around and dictate these same prices and quantities to the bookseller, who frequently buys a larger quantity than he can handle or has the cheering knowledge that his dry-goods competitors are buying cheaper than he does, together with the fact that for the amount of business done the latter are under less expense in every count—rent, help, advertising and all.

The following from Harper's Weekly of June 17, page 571, is of interest. The western New York paper referred to is published in Rochester and the item shows what may be expected from the dry-goods bookseller in this city when "The Prince of India" is out:

"A dry-goods merchant advertises in a western New York paper that he is selling 'Reveries of a Bachelor,' 'Dream Life,' 'Scarlet Letter,' and all of that order at 8 cents, 'Webster's Dictionary' for 50 cents, and the 'Emerson tan-shoe for men for $3.50.' Certainly these are great days for American literature; nor is it altogether surprising that in a recent vote on the ten greatest works by American authors Emerson easily led all the rest."

The above is a good joke at the expense of the blundering dry-goods merchant which the intelligent readers of Harper's Weekly can appreciate, and so can the bookseller who knows what the prices quoted in this advertisement mean.

NOTICE TO THE TRADE:

New York, June 19, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

THE Brentano's beg to inform the trade that they have missed two numbered parts of a large illustrated work entitled "Reichenbachia," published by Sotheman & Co., London, and would feel greatly obliged if notice should be sent to them if the same be offered for sale or otherwise come to the notice of any firm or individual.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. ARTHUR H. CLARK, of the English department of The Burrows Brothers Co., of Cleveland, will sail for Europe for a two months' trip on the Teutonic, June 28.

AFTER resting in this city just long enough to recover from the effects of his voyage on the Etruria, Walter Besant, the famous English novelist, left Tuesday for New Haven. He intends to spend several weeks in New England among the scenes made famous by Hawthorne, Emerson, Whittier, Longfellow and other writers, making his trip to Chicago for the Exposition and the meeting of the International Congress of Authors, July 10, an incident in his outing. Mr. Besant has brought with him eight papers for the congress, some of which he will read and leave the rest to be incorporated with the minutes of the meeting in permanent form. Mr. Besant is evolving a new novel to deal with London subjects.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. THOMAS MOZLEY died at Cheltenham on Saturday, June 17. He was born in 1806, was graduated from Oriel College, Oxford, in 1828, and became an editorial writer on the staff of the London Times in 1844, and retained the connection to the time of his death. Several volumes of his writings have been published.

M. GROT, the well-known Russian littérateur, has died in his eighty-first year. A clerk in the office of the Council of the Empire, he became known in the thirties by his translations of Byron's "Mazeppa" and the "Fritthiof-Saga." In 1840 he was appointed professor of Russian literature in the University of Helsingfors, and in 1853 tutor of the present emperor and his elder brother. He edited the works of the poet, Derjavin, and the fabulist, Chemnitz, three volumes of the papers of Catherine I., and also her correspondence with Grimm, upon which he further wrote a monograph. He published two volumes of philological researches, a manual of Russian orthography, and a Swedish-Russian dictionary, which was issued at the expense of the Russian government.

GASTON L. FEUARDENT, the archæologist and numismatist, who was the first to call attention to the unscientific condition of the valuable Cesnola collection of Cypriote antiquities in the Metropolitan Museum, died Monday, June 19, at his home in New York City. His natural taste and skill in matters of archæology and art had been so developed by the studies of a lifetime that his word carried weight in the councils of amateurs and professional students. Mr. Feuardent was born near Cherbourg fifty years ago. Before coming to this country in 1876, he had represented in London the well-known Paris house of Rollin & Feuardent. In 1877 he became a member of the Numismatic Society of New York. Lieut.-Commander Goringe submitted to him the Greek inscriptions, with the coins found at or near the Alexandrian obelisk now in Central Park, and he presented the best monograph on the subject which is known. His attempt to open the eyes of the directors of the Metropolitan Museum to the character of the Cesnola antiquities injured his business to such an extent that he may fairly be considered a martyr to the cause of art and archæology in this city.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE and his bride have been stopping at Niagara Falls for a few days:

MAURICE BOUCHER, the French poet, is now on his way to the World's Fair.

ARLO BATES, the Boston novelist, has been elected professor of English literature in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

MR. GEORGE PARSONS LATHROP, who went over to Catholicism not long ago, has accepted the editorship of the Visitor, a Catholic weekly published in Providence, R. I.

EDMUND GOSSE has collected another volume of his recent contributions to periodicals, which will have the title "Questions at Issue." It will be issued in style about uniform with his "Gossip in a Library."

W. H. BISHOP, the novelist, has been appointed instructor in French and Spanish at the Yale Scientific School. He will begin work at the opening of the next college year and will live in New Haven.

PROFESSOR W. M. RAMSAY received a few days ago a gold medal of Leo XIII., 1890, with a most complimentary letter in Latin from Cardinal Rampollì about his book on the Church in the Roman Empire, which was presented to the Pope by De Rossi. The Pope had been much interested in the book, and had ordered it to be placed in the new hall which is to hold the library of reference-books.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE was eighty-one years old on June 14. She lives in a pretty but unpretentious gray stone cottage in Hartford, where she is cared for by her daughters. Notably active of body, for her years, she is ever on foot, and her bent, slight figure, with its white hair crowning the dark, wrinkled face, is a familiar sight in the neighborhood. She wanders in and out, and is fond of slipping across the street to the home of her sister, Mrs. Hooker, and one of her delights is to hear music sung or played.

FERDINAND BRUNETIÈRE, critic and author, was elected on June 8 a member of the French Academy, to fill the chair among the "Immortals" left vacant by the death of Taine. Brunetière was born at Toulon, France, in July, 1849. He was appointed lecturer on the French language and literature in the Normal School, and in 1887 received the decoration of the Legion of Honor. His works numbering, a dozen, are chiefly critical essays on French literature, and he has also prepared a number of annotated editions of French classics.

M. HENRI DE BORNIER was received into the French Academy on May 26. "M. Henri de Bornier has written many works, but his reputation as a dramatic poet," says the N. Y. Tribune "was established especially by his tragedy in five acts, 'Roland's Daughter,' which was played with great success at the Comédie Française, the first of the French theatres. The play waited for eleven years in the drawers of the direction of the theatre before being produced. Some years ago M. de Bornier had presented a drama called 'Mahomet,' which occasioned an exchange of diplomatic notes between the French and Turkish governments, because the latter objected to the founder of the Moslem religion being made the subject of a theatrical performance."

A MONUMENT to William Cullen Bryant will be placed in Central Park. It has been decided to take the bronze bust of the poet, the work of Launt Thompson, now in the Metropolitan Museum, which was executed several years ago but could not be placed in the park until the poet had been dead five years. Ernest Flagg, the architect, has now designed the monument in which this bust will rest. It is to be of Carrara white marble, on a sub-base of granite block. It will be inscribed with the names of the Century Club members who subscribed to help pay for its erection. It will likewise contain, carved in its marble panels, the titles of many of the poet's favorite works, his name, and upon the base of the pedestal the title of his greatest production, "Thanatopsis." The monument will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000, and, says the N. Y. Times, will be one of the handsomest works of art in the line of memorial monuments in this country.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Homiletic Review for July has an article on "Religious Books and Reading," by Prof. Hunt, of Princeton.

The Art Journal for June has just appeared, and includes a timely article, fully illustrated, concerning the celebrated Spitzer collection of fine-art objects.

Lippincott's Magazine for July will contain "An Old-Fashioned View of Fiction," by Maurice Francis Egan; "The New Poetry and Mr. W. E. Henley," by Gilbert Parker; and "Certain Points of Style in Writing," by Edgar Fawcett.

THE issue of the Christian Union for June 10 is its special Outing Number. Eighty or more pages of summer reading-matter, illustrations in color and in black and white, very full information about summer resorts, routes of travel, etc.

Macmillan's Magazine for June contains an article on "Rare Books," by an anonymous writer, which the Publishers' Circular says "is one to which collectors will turn with interest." It particularly points out the difference between a rare book and one difficult to obtain.

THE CURRENT LITERATURE PUBLISHING CO., in the July issue of Short Stories, will offer prizes of $50 each for a story constructed on a plot given by the editor; for a story having Chicago and the World's Fair for its scene; and for the best story without restriction as to theme or treatment.

McClure's Magazine for July will contain "An Afternoon with Oliver Wendell Holmes," prepared by Edward Everett Hale; the first installment of the story of the Brontës in Ireland, and portraits of Edward Everett Hale, M. de Blowitz, Thomas A. Edison, and Daniel Vierge, the great illustrator.

A GROUP of clever artists will contribute brief papers to Scribner's, giving their impressions of the World's Fair, both in text and illustrations, from their note-books. Among them are J. A. Mitchell, editor of Life, Will H. Low and F. Hopkinson Smith. The first of these papers, by W. Hamilton Gibson, appears in the July issue.

THE July St. Nicholas will contain an article on the Children's Building at the World's Fair, by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, who is in charge of the Children's Library at the fair. In the same issue will be an article on "Festival Days at Girls' Colleges," including illustrations taken at Wellesley, Bryn Mawr, Smith, Vassar and Harvard Annex.

THE following is the result of the votes received by the Revue Bleue from 764 readers in reply to a request for a list of the twenty-five best authors: Victor Hugo (616), Molière (563), Shakespeare (476), Racine (475), La Fontaine (426), Musset (426), Corneille (400), Goethe (393), Voltaire (388), Pascal (373), Lamartine (352), Homer (346), The Bible (331), Montaigne (300), Cervantes (288), Michelet (282), Balzac (256), Dante (246), Rénan (246), La Bruyère (245), Flaubert (240), Bossuet (239), Rabelais (237), A. Daudet (214), Virgil (207). Immediately following came the names of Zola, Taine and Thomas à Kempis.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Winkley, Dresser & Co., the Milk Street stationers, have made an assignment to Francis Doan. The liabilities are $150,000 and the assets somewhere in the same neighborhood. The firm found itself unable to get its loans renewed soon enough and were obliged to suspend. Up to a few days ago they felt sure that they would pull through. Mr. Dresser, in fact, felt so sure that he could make ends meet that he took considerable money from his father, who lives in Cambridge. A loan of $6000 came to him last Friday, but it was too late and was returned.

BUTTE, MONT.—Kohlberg & Co. have incorporated under the name of The Butte Auction and Commission Co.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The failure of the Cassell Company has caused the works of the Mershon Printing Company at Rahway to shut down. A levy was made on $50,000 worth of stock of the Cassell Company, which was at the printing company's works. The levy was made to satisfy an attachment for $100,000 issued in New Jersey on the application of the Mershon Company.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mary O'Loughlin, publisher of books and newspapers, under the style of the Humboldt Publishing Company, at 19 Astor Place, has made an assignment to George H. Burnham, giving seven preferences for $2295. She succeeded Joseph Fitzgerald in the fall of 1888. About a year ago she bought the plates that stock of the Twentieth Century Publishing Company. Her means, which it was claimed were formerly $30,000, it is said in the trade, were all tied up in plates and stock. Her husband is Daniel O'Loughlin, who managed the business.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Wolcott and West have enlarged their quarters by taking in an additional store of equal dimensions next door, and connecting it by arches with the old location. Everything connected with stationery and office supplies will be displayed in the new store, and the old store will be devoted to books exclusively.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

EVERYBODY'S IDEAL, Albany, will issue shortly "The Guardian Angel," by Lillian, a book said to be a refutation of the doctrines of Robert Ingersoll.

CALDWELL & HOLT, Stanton, Va., will shortly issue a "Laboratory Manual of Chemistry," by G. B. M. Zerr, which they have had for some time in preparation.

A PHILADELPHIA publisher says he paid Mr. Blaine the last money he ever received for literary work. It was $5000 for about 12,000 words in a work dealing with Columbus.

THE curious beast on the cover of Mr. Kipling's volume of new stories, "Many Inventions," is from his father's "Man and Beast in India." Every inscription on the beast is a prayer.

THE first edition of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's new book, "Men, Women and Emotions," will be 20,000 copies. This has been made necessary by the large advance orders. The book will be ready early in July.

THE next volume of the Badminton Library will be "Swimming," written by Messrs. Archibald Sinclair and William Henry, joint hon. secretaries of the Life Saving Society, with illustrations by Mr. S. T. Dadd and from photographs.

LEE & SHEPARD have nearly ready "The Builders of American Literature," by F. H. Underwood; "Not Angels Quite," by Nathan Haskell Dole; "Joseph Zalmonah," by Edward King; and "Paula Ferris," a story of domestic life, by Mrs. Sanborn.

HERMANN HEINZE, Chicago, has just issued a "World's Fair Souvenir Pocket Map," twenty-five inches square, which shows every detail down to the peanut-stands and boot-blacking booths. It is printed on bond paper and folds up neatly within a leatherette cover.

THE well-known volume on "Coaching Days and Coaching Ways," written by Mr. Outram Tristram, and illustrated by Hugh Thomson and Herbert Railton, will shortly be reissued by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. in a smaller form, ranging with the illustrated editions of "Cranford" and the "Vicar of Wakefield."

LAIRD & LEE have bought the plates of Opie Reed's famous books, "A Kentucky Colonel," "Emmett Bonlore," "Len Gansett," "The Colossus," and a volume of "Selected Stories," and have also in preparation a new book by this favorite author. The books will be put in tasteful dress. Waterloo Stanley's "A Man and a Woman" will soon be issued in their Library of Choice Fiction.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will shortly publish Samuel H. Scudder's "Brief Guide to the Commoner Butterflies," which will be sufficiently full for all but the most inveterate collectors in the Northern States east of the Great Plains. They will also publish the same author's "The Life of a Butterfly," which presents in untechnical language the story of the life of a conspicuous American species.

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, of Chicago, now issues five periodicals: the Biblical World, monthly; Hebraica, quarterly; the Journal of Political Economy, quarterly; the Journal of Geology, semi-quarterly; and the University Extension World. The University Department of Social Science proposes to publish monographs, preferring their elasticity of dimension and their immunity from the exigencies of periodical publication.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co. have just issued "Street-Railway Motors," by Herman Haupt, giving descriptions and cost of plants and operation of the various systems in use or proposed for motive-power on street railways. The object is to give such simple explanations of principles as are of interest to practical men who may be called upon to furnish capital for construction or to use their votes in favor of any proposed system of rapid or local transit in cities.

A GOOD word, made it seems by chance, is the word news. The four letters comprising it tell that the information comes from all parts of the horizon: North, East, West, South. It was a clever French writer, Alphonse Karr, who made this discovery; but he missed noting also that, strangely enough, the French words for North, East, West, South, in precisely the same sequence as the initials in the English word, news, Nord, Est, Ouest, Sud—form the Greek word neos, new.

D. C. HEATH & Co. are about to publish an "Introduction to the Study of the Dependent, Defective and Delinquent Classes," by Charles Richmond Henderson, A.M., D.D., assistant professor of social science in the University of Chicago. The work has grown out of twenty years' experience and research; it digests in small compass the consensus of the competent in treating the criminal and the weak. For those who wish more than an introduction the whole literature of the subject is helpfully indicated. The book is intended for personal study, for teachers' and ministers' institutes and for clubs enlisted for philanthropic work.

HENRY D. LLOYD, of Chicago, formerly on the editorial staff of the Tribune of that city, has written a book on trusts, which will probably be published in the autumn. This book will summarize the history of the typical trusts, and present the evidence adduced against them in the courts, giving chapter and verse in each case. Mr. Lloyd's first tilt against the trusts was his paper, "The Story of a Great Monopoly," published in the Atlantic some ten years ago. When Robert Louis Stevenson read the paper he declared Mr. Lloyd to be one of the four best writers of America. In 1890 Mr. Lloyd wrote his pamphlet, "Millionaires Against Miners," in which he recounted the pitiful story of Spring Valley.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish June 27 Dr. A. Conan Doyle's stirring story, "The Refugees," which attracted so much attention in Harper's Magazine. On the same day will appear in the Black and White Series Laurence Hutton's tribute to Edwin Booth, illustrated with original portraits; "A House-Hunter in Europe," by William Henry Bishop, containing practical suggestions regarding housekeeping by Americans abroad; "Recreations in Botany," a popular treatise by Caroline A. Creevey; and "Woman and the Higher Education," edited by Anna C. Brackett. The last volume is the first in the Distaff Series, which has been written and edited by women, while women have engaged in all the processes of making the book, from setting the type to designing the cover.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish, in the fall, a translation of Prof. Friedrich von Wieser's work on "Natural Value." This is the latest development of Jevons' marginal utility theory of value, of which the Austrian school have been the principal exponents. The main purport of the book is to show that the laws of value in the modern industrial state are, fundamentally, natural laws, which would reappear in a perfect or a communistic state, and consequently that rent and interest are not phenomena induced by an artificial state of society, but essentially economic. Incidental to this main argument we have the explanation of the present distribution of wealth by "imputation of return" and of the empirical cost of production theory as based essentially on the theory which determines value by marginal utility. The book has been translated by Mrs. Malloch (Miss Christian Brown), under the supervision of Dr. Smart, the translator of Böhm Bawerk's "Capital and Interest," who will edit it, with an introduction and analysis. They will publish immediately the ninth and concluding volume of the Cambridge Shakespeare, edited by Dr. W. Aldis Wright. It contains "Pericles," the Poems, the Sonnets, etc.

FOREIGN NOTES.

THE tablet commemorative of Coleridge's residence at Nether Stowey was fixed on the "Coleridge Cottage" on June 9.

LA MARA's edition and collection of 650 letters written by Liszt to well-known people is in process of translation into English, and this translation will soon be published.

GERMAN papers announce the impending appearance of a posthumous work of Hegel, entitled "Kritik der Verfassung Deutschlands." Dr. G. Mollat, the editor of some posthumous writings of Leibnitz and K. C. F. Krause, will superintend its publication.

MR. R. L. STEVENSON's book on the recent Samoan troubles, "A Footnote to History," has been burned in Germany, and Tauchnitz, who published it, has been heavily fined. The author's narrative was severely critical of German conduct in Samoa.

A COMMITTEE has been formed at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, to erect a local memorial to Tennyson. Two proposals are under consideration: one, to substitute a stone tower for the existing wooden beacon on the highest part of Freshwater Down; the other, to erect a granite monolith, in the form of an Iona cross, at the corner of Farringdon Lane, along which the poet often walked. The total amount of money asked for is £500, towards which about half has already been promised. Subscriptions may be sent to Lieut.-Col. Will, R.A., Golden Hill Fort, Freshwater.

DAVID NUTT, London, announces a critical edition of the Hebrew text of the Old Testament, with notes justifying the text adopted. The editor is Professor Paul Haupt, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and he has enlisted the services of most of the best-known Hebrew scholars of England, America and Germany. In addition to the text a translation into English and German will be printed separately with brief commentaries. Part 17 in the order of arrangement has already been published. It contains the text of the Book of Job, prepared by Professor Slegfried, of Jena.

ANDREW LANG has written a "Comment" to accompany an edition of "The Secret Commonwealth of Elves, Fauns and Fairies," a very rare book, written by Robert Kirk, Minister of Aberfoyle, in 1691. In this comment Mr. Lang has devoted himself mainly to setting forth and discussing the close parallels that exist between certain elements in the fairy belief in the British Isles, and the phenomena observed in modern physical research. The ordinary issue of the book (which is volume VIII. of the "Bibliothèque de Carabas"), has been strictly limited to 550 copies, and will never be reprinted. There is also an edition of 60 copies on Dutch hand-made paper in large 8vo size. There has hitherto been but one reprint of the work—namely, that issued at Edinburgh by Jameson in 1815. This edition was limited to 100 copies, and is sufficiently rare. Even the British Museum possesses no copy of the 1691 edition.

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

A PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgiven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loftier strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing his earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material hand, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated or written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

For sale by all booksellers, or will be sent on receipt of price. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

American Educational Catalogue

For 1893 [Twenty-fourth Year].

---

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-fourth year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue is made entirely new each year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) are added in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements:

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ; per 1000, $40.00.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

* * * Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.
